UIC Fund Deficit To Be Made Public

TORONTO (CP) — The deficit in the Unemployment Insurance Commission's benefit fund will be made known within the next two weeks, Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday night.

He said during a taped radio interview over radio station CFRB that he spoke with Treasury Board President C. M. Drury last Friday about the deficit and when it could be made public.

Speculation has the deficit running as high as $700 million.

"I can tell you now that Mr. Drury has said that he planned to make them public certainly within two weeks and probably before," Mr. Trudeau said.

Mr. Trudeau repeated that his government is not trying to hide the figures. Everybody knew there was a deficit since Ottawa was committed by law to put money into the fund when unemployment reached or exceeded four per cent of the work force.

The deficit figures now were vague "because we haven't sat down and added them up."

Mr. Trudeau also said he is enjoying his federal election campaign more than the one in 1968.

"The reason why I'm enjoying this election so much is there is somewhat less of the hoopla, less of the charisma . . . and there's more of people who say: 'well, let's see what he's really got to say, perhaps he fooled some of us last time

Red Teeth Found in Urns

SALVADOR, Brazil (Reuter) — Red human teeth and bones have turned up in two 1,000-year-old burial urns which anthropologists have discovered here. The red paint denoted tribal chiefs, a local university expert said.

Girls Admitted

CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuter) — A 646-year-old sex barrier ended at Cambridge University this weekend with the admission of a group of women students to traditional male-only colleges. Educational history was made when 114 girls were accepted as co-residential graduates and undergraduates for the start of the academic year in three of the university's 29 all-male colleges.

Labor Wants Voice

TORONTO (CP) — The executive board of Local 1,000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, announced Sunday that a membership vote will be held on a management proposal which was rejected last week by the board.

The executive board of the union has been under increasing pressure to hold a vote and a number of petitions to that end were being circulated among the membership.

On Friday, the local was unable to continue paying weekly strike benefits to members who have been doing picket duties. It had paid out $1.25 million.

In its latest proposal on Friday, Hydro offered to have the union's protection clause withdrawn from a contract if the courts should find it illegal.

In a statement issued at Toronto, the union said membership meetings will be held throughout the province starting Tuesday and ballots will be counted Oct. 10.

"The executive board is still unanimous in its rejection of the proposal, but feels that members must have an opportunity to express their acceptance or rejection of the offer," the statement said.

The board's decision was made during a meeting in Toronto Sunday which had been called to discuss Hydro's recent statement on a mutual protection clause.

The clause was included in Hydro's Sept. 24 proposal and demanded that there will be no reprisals by the union against members who defied picket lines and continued working during the strike.

The vote will be the 12,000 member local entered its 104th day Sunday.

The Hydro proposal was for a three - year - agreement under which increases would have ranged from 16.5 per cent to 24 per cent with an additional cost-of-living adjustment-1.5 per cent in each of the second and third years.

A union official said Hydro's insistence on unequal wage applications was unacceptable. The union has refused to consider anything other than an across-the-board increase for all members.

The union has been seeking a nine-per-cent increase in each year of a two-year contract.

Salaries currently range from $5.26 an hour for operations to $4.64 for assistant operators. Tradesmen receive about $5.86 an hour and weekly-waged workers receive a minimum of $107.24.

Palmer OMB Head?

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says William H. Palmer, 56, probably will be named this week as chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board, replacing J. A. Kennedy who retires Oct. 31. Mr. Palmer, senior adviser to the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs, formerly was deputy minister of municipal affairs and was a member of the department of municipal affairs for 25 years. Mr. Kennedy plans to start a new career as a special university lecturer.

Four Hit Jackpot

Four Canadians made it to the winners circle in the Irish Sweepstakes Saturday and are $129,000 richer. Ruth Yeomans of Toronto, Lillian Starrak of Halifax, Mrs. C. J. Kallal of Tofield, Alta., and Milo Havlasek of Victoria all had tickets on Neptus, a longshot who won the Leopardstown Handicap in a photo finish at Newmarket, England.

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Despite a statement by Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield that a Conservative government would cancel plans for a new Toronto airport in Pickering Township, Michael Starr, Conservative candidate for Oshawa-Whitby, today indicated support for the project.

Weekend Irish Death Toll Six

BELFAST (AP) — A rash of weekend shooting and bombing incidents killed six persons and wounded another 45 in Northern Ireland, a British army spokesman said today.

Another paramilitary organization made its appearance Sunday during a massive parade on Stormont Castle, home of Northern Ireland's suspended Parliament. The new force, calling itself the Service Corps, is an offshoot of the hard-line Protestant Vanguard Movement headed by William Craig, former Northern Ireland home affairs minister.

The corps has been in training for six months and "it is ready for action," a spokesman said.

The army disclosed that a soldier killed by a gunfire volley in Belfast's Catholic Ardoyne area Saturday was the brother of a private killed in Northern Ireland a year ago.

Thomas Rudman, 20, died after being shot in the chest. His brother John was killed in September last year in a guerrilla ambush at Dungannon.

Rudman's uncle Jackie Jack, also serving in Ulster, was flown home on compassionate leave Sunday and would be assigned to West Germany, an army spokesman said.

Cheers - - And an Oompah!

The fact they staged an Oktoberfest the last two days in September didn't diminish enjoyment of the festivities as more than 2,000 flocked to Belleville armory in support of Quinte Sports Foundation. Toasting event's success Saturday night with traditional steins were foundation chairman Dr. Harold Williamson (left) and Oktoberfest organizer Gerald O'Connor. Lending typical note was German band leader, Walter Bernhaur, Toronto. For details, see Page 3.

Murderer Sought

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Police here have asked for extradition from Metropolitan Toronto police in the search for William Holden, 19, for whom warrants have been sworn charging him with non-capital murder in the death Saturday of Katherine DiCecco, 18, and her 10-month-old son, Ricco.

Mrs. DiCecco was raped and strangled in her Burlington home early Saturday morning, and her son was struck on the head. He died in an ambulance on his way to hospital.

Severino DiCecco, 31, husband of the dead woman, was reported in fair condition at Hamilton after having been shot in the face in a struggle with an intruder he found in his home when he returned from working a night shift at the Ford Motor Co.

Five Die in Quinte Area

Accidents took a toll of five lives across the Quinte district Sunday. Two were asphyxiated and three died in traffic accidents.

A Trenton youth died last night when he lost control of his truck and crashed into a tree while returning from a shooting competition at Camp Borden.

In the Consecon area, two Toronto hunters were asphyxiated after the flame went out on their propane gas stove

And at Bancroft, the drivers of two cars died when their vehicles collided on Highway 28 on the western outskirts of the village early Sunday.

Edward Michael Brinklow, 18, of 118 McGill St., Trenton, was driving a department of national defence panel truck along county road nine east of Highway 14. Police report the vehicle went out of control and struck a tree, killing Brinklow instantly and sending three passengers to Belleville General Hospital.

All four belonged to the Hastings - Prince Edward Regiment.

Harry Hicks, 18, of 610 Sidney St., was admitted with back injuries while Richard Cunningham, 18, of RR 1, Consecon, suffered bruises and possible head injuries.

The other passenger, Laverne Chalk of Tweed, was treated for a severe facial cut and released.

The Consecon men had come to Prince Edward County for the weekend to work on a barn in Blakely's sideroad. They hoped to convert the building into a residence to use while hunting.

Dead are Peter Mastick, 60, and Peter Kostin, aged 66. Another man, Wilhelm Tereschi, 48, was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital where he is being kept under intensive care.

Provincial police report the men died after placing a perforated pail on one of the stove's elements.

The pail caused the flame in the element to go out but lethal propane gas continued to escape, poisoning the men.

Dr. C. R. Richmond, Prince Edward County coroner, pronounced Mastick and Kostin dead at the scene.

All the aluminum windows in the barn were closed at the time.

Police gave no cause for the Highway 28 mishap which, they say, occurred on a stretch of road, and took the lives of Larry Woodley, 21, RR 3, Bancroft, and high school student Gayle Linton, 18, Bancroft.

Police said Woodley, employed at a Bird's Creek chip mill and survived by his wife, Patricia, died instantly in the headon crash. Linton never recovered consciousness and died at Bancroft Red Cross Hospital.

Funeral services for both men will be held Tuesday.

Interest to Cover Legal Aid Costs?

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government, faced with increasing legal-aid costs, is examining a plan which has saved British Columbia money for the last three years, Attorney-General Dalton Bales said Sunday.

Mr. Bales said he has instructed officials of his ministry to get more information on the B.C. plan, under which interest from lawyers' trust fund accounts is used to help pay for legal aid.

The attorney-general said he "wouldn't be shocked" if trust funds now laying idle and collecting no interest in Ontario banks totalled more than $200 million. That's worth between $20 million and $35 million a year, he said, or roughly two or three times legal aid's annual cost to taxpayers.

Under B.C.'s legislation, enacted in 1969, lawyers have the option of placing trust funds in interest-bearing accounts with the interest going to the B.C. Law Foundation. The funds pay for some of the costs of legal aid, as well as contributing to legal education, law research, law reform and financing.

Lawyers in both B.C. and Ontario are not allowed to benefit from interest on trust funds. Such funds include money for mortgage payments, deposits to seal commercial contracts, damages awarded by a court which a lawyer may hold his expenses deducted and the proceeds from commercial sales in which a client is the seller.

"The legal aid system in this province has been doing a good job," Mr. Bales said, "but it does cost a great deal of money."

He said $10 million of the attorney-general's ministry's $20 million budget last year was spent on legal aid and costs are rising annually.

When the law society proposed two years ago that lawyers be compelled to set up interest-bearing trust accounts with the proceeds going to a foundation, the province suggested that a better idea would be to use the money to defray costs of legal aid.

A report released by the law society two weeks ago proposed a compromise under which one-third of the proceeds would go to legal aid costs. The report recommended also that the plan be made compulsory on the basis of terms to be negotiated between the law society and the banks and trust companies.

The objective would be to avoid some of the shortcomings of the B.C. plan, which is voluntary and currently participated in by a minority of the law profession there.

City Street Closing Hits at Merchants

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Business is dying on downtown Bridge St., because of "short-sighted" planning of city excavation work, Roger Porter, Downtown Association president charged today.

Mr. Porter said no one is "remotely concerned" with the dilemma posed merchants on the street.

Bridge St., between Pinnacle and Coleman Streets, has been closed to traffic for installation of sanitary and storm sewers. Excavations started two weeks ago and the project is scheduled to finish in early December.

Mr. Porter said he is annoyed because he is unable to get any answers to questions from either civic officials or construction on chances of speeding up the project.

He claims businesses along the affected street strip have dropped two-thirds of their revenue.

"I am not against the sewer," said Mr. Porter. "It is needed but it has sat there for 40 years and could have sat there for another few months until the busy season was completed.

"Hurting? These people are dying," exclaimed Mr. Porter.

"Whoever planned this thing didn't stop to think what it was going to do to the business community."

"They haven't considered the merchant, and they are going ahead with it when it hurts the merchant the most," he said.

"A civic official told me the businessmen had a terrible summer but didn't realize the merchant has to do 40 per cent of his trade in the next three months," said Mr. Porter.

"Not only are businessmen not making a living they are losing money in the process, by keeping stock in the store that has to be sold but can't be because of the mess of the road."

The crews should be working 24 hours a day on shifts and seven days a week to get this thing out of the way."

Mr. Porter attempted to talk to the engineer responsible for the job but found he was taking holidays.

Two city aldermen have looked into the problem, with neither being able to find a satisfactory solution, said Mr. Porter.

Mr. Porter says he was unable to get any response from the mayor who has also left the city.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said today that he would meet with the city engineer and investigate ways of speeding up the job.

He mentioned the possibility of adding shifts to the crews which would get the job done faster but would also increase the cost of the project.

"I don't know how strong they (merchants) are and have no idea how they will weather the loss of the season," said Mr. Reynolds.

"Nobody wants to lose 30 per cent of their income while a sewer is being laid," he said.

Firefighting Days End

TRENTON (Staff) — When Trenton fireman Gerald Lewis first joined the town's fire department as a volunteer in January of 1943, firefighting was an entirely different picture than that of today.

There weren't horsedrawn fire carriages but he recalls use of tire steam - driven fire engines, and eventual replacement with a converted street truck.

Fireman Lewis hung up his firehat Friday and says he wouldn't trade his career for any other.

He comes from a large family of firefighters.

Three uncles, a cousin and his son Roy, have all been on the department.

He recalls the time he and the late Jesse Baker were the only two, full-time firemen on the job, rotating 12 hour shifts. "If I was on duty at night and couldn't get Jesse to alert the volunteers for a fire, my wife Erma often stayed up calling them."

The job load has lessened in recent years. Back in the early 1950s, there were only 14 volunteers and two full time men; today, there are 12 full time men and 18 volunteers.

Mr. Lewis was second in command for 10 years, holding the rank of Captain, before a 1962 coronary attack made it necessary to step down to the less strenuous position of fireman. Much of his duty in the past four years has been fireball-based, manning emergency phones and alarm systems.

ARE YOU AFRAID TO GO TO A PHYSICIAN?

Recently a physician told about one of his patients who was brought to his office almost in a state of mental collapse. For nearly a year this patient watched a growth on his body become larger and was afraid to go to a physician for fear of hearing the worst. He just worried himself sick.

Fortunately it was a benign tumor, easily removed by minor surgery and now he is well again. But, if it had been cancerous, the delay might have permitted that growth to become incurable. Instead of being easily removed before its presence infected the body.

Never fear the worst. If you have reoccurring pains or aches, or unusual body changes, consult a physician quickly. The odds are they will be curable.

Camping Project In Brighton Area

BRIGHTON (Staff) — The ever-increasing costs of holiday vacation facilities is a boon for manufacturers of trailers, tenting gear and operators of transient camper parks, says farmer textile executive Fred Anderson, vacation area developer.

Mr. Anderson, who has just purchased 53 acres of prime orchard and farm land half a mile west of Highway 30 on the Telephone Road said Friday he plans to spends $150,000 to develop the land into a KOA site.

KOA is short for Kampgrounds of America, a U.S.-based firm that franchises 700 campgrounds throughout the U.S., plus 16 in Canada. Mr. Anderson has obtained a KOA franchise for his development, which he says will be one of 135 projected for Canada by next year.

Starting immediately, local contractors will begin installing a large swimming pool, and building facilities. Land for 102 trailer sites and an undetermined number of tent sites, will be cleared.

Mr. Anderson noted three areas's first KOA site, in a 12-month operation in Cherry Valley, Prince Edward County.

He says his project will be smaller, open from May 12 to Oct. 15. The 60 - by - 40 - foot trailer sites will each be equipped with water and electricity, and cost $4 a night. About 10 per cent of the sites will be equipped with sewage facilities, a large number not necessary because of the transient nature of such a park.

Mr. Anderson says transient camping is growing at about 25 per cent a year, because of its lowered number of such facilities in North America, plus the high expense of motel rooms and cottage lots.

At least four local high school students will be hired for the summer months, and eventually Fred Anderson Enterprises Incorporated, might hire a manager - and - wife team.

It's A Happy Birthday

MP Hits at Grants

PICTON (Staff) — "Trudeaumania has now turned into Trudeaumess," says Douglas Altenbrack MP Frontenac, Lennox and Addington.

Mr. Altenbrack told women of the Women's Conservative Association here that the Trudeau government has been marked by "flagrant and continual waste of public funds" and a sowing of "disharmony and national disunity by illegal policies."

He accused the Trudeau government of favoritism to Quebec and claimed this could be observed in recent Opportunities for Youth and Local Initative Project grants.

Mr. Altenbrack said a Liberal friend of his had obtained figures for him from the ministers responsible for running the programs. The figures were described as "secret."

A total of $180 million was allotted for Local Initiative Projects and a total of $74 million budgeted for Quroec province. This approximated one half the entire sum.

The other provinces received grants as follows: Newfoundland, $10 million, Nova Scotia, $12 million, Prince Edward Island, $2 million, New Brunswick, $10 million, Ontario, $26 million, Manitoba, $6 million, Saskatchewan, $4 million, Alberta $9 million, North West Territories, $1 million, British Columbia $17 million and the Yukon, one half million dollars.

Quebec received approximately $12 million under the OFY budget of $34 million—roughly a third. Ontario received $7 million, the Atlantic provinces $4 million, British Columbia $3 million, and the Prairies $4 million.

Mr. Altenbrack declared Quebec "does not have one third of our population nor do they have one third of our youth."

The MP praised the merits of bilingualism but said government policies now are creating a bilingual Canada except for Quebec where unilingualism seems favored.

Busy Week For Hees

TRENTON (Staff) — For George Hees, MP Prince-Edward Hastings this week will be a series of breakfast and luncheon meetings, an open line radio program, public meetings and meet-greeting.

Starting Monday, he begins a southern Ontario circuit in St. Catharines and Welland travels to Galt Tuesday, Brantford, Guelph and Harrison Wednesday, Waterloo and Kitchener on Thursday.

Mr. Hees arrives in Winnipeg for more campaigning.

Friday he returns to Toronto and his home-riding area near Oshoung. During the week of Oct. 9, he will remain in his home riding before once again campaigning nationally.

Coach Service Is Started

PICTON (Staff) — Loyalist Coachlines, operated by James Montgomery, Carrying Place, will begin a new run from Picton to Trenton October 2.

Two daily round trips will leave here six days a week except Sundays and holidays.

A 25-passenger bus will provide service to travellers on Highway 33 from Picton through Bloomfield, Wellington, Hillier, Consecon, Carrying Place and Trenton.

This route will correspond with present Loyalist services from Picton to Kingston via Glenora ferry.

Oktoberfest Makes Festive Time

The event was an Oktoberfest.

Its aim: To provide funds for Belleville's Quinte Sports Foundation which supports amateur sports in the city area.

Inspired by the German tradition for a special occasion combining eating, drinking and dancing in an atmosphere of good fellowship, the Oktoberfest brought hundreds flocking to the Armory Friday and Saturday nights. They danced to a German band, quaffed steins of beer and sampled German delicacies.

It was the first big public event staged by the foundation.

As yet, it was not immediately known how much the two-day occasion had netted the group Oktoberfest chairman Gerald O'Connor said today.

Hastings Historical Society Marks 15 Years Operation

People — and more of them the better — are a key in keeping any community endeavor flourishing, Hastings County Historical Society was reminded yesterday.

The reminder came as the society marked its 15th anniversary while in the throes of its biggest undertaking since its foundation — a move to new, bigger museum quarters.

The anniversary drew a number of former society executives and volunteers who had contributed much enthusiasm to launching the society as a repository of local history in 1957.

Since that time its memorabilia has expanded in volume and scope until today the society is guardian of collections believed unmatched by any group its size in Ontario. So much so, the museum is now is being moved to east Belleville's Glanmore House, recently acquired with local government aid. The move, from a century-old converted country registry office on Church St., may come within a month. Its nearness yesterday was marked by the packing cases already stacked among museum exhibits.

The need for more participants was emphasized by Edward Buckley, of the past presidents attending the event. Mr. Buckley said the society's membership still was "rather a small group" and he believed there were hundreds "if not thousands" of county residents who would join if invited.

No group its size — with the exhibits it must protect and display — can function on current membership fees alone, said Mr. Buckley.

Other founding members present included Mrs. John Haig, who, as former well-known local broadcaster Harriet Stevens, was responsible for the society's initial impetus; Tom Wrightmeyer, former city antique dealer now in the Collins Bay area, who was first president.

Pensioners Meet In City

Executive and volunteers of Pensioners Concerned will hold a meeting in the United Community Services Building Thursday at 9:30 a.m.

The group was formed recently after a meeting in the recreation centre on Pinnacle Street with Corabel Penfold, national president of the organization.

Its aim is to upgrade the standard of living for Canada's senior citizens by easing the burden of inflation and fixed incomes.

Camping Project In Brighton Area

BRIGHTON (Staff) — The ever-increasing costs of holiday vacation facilities is a boon for manufacturers of trailers, tenting gear and operators of transient camper parks says former territorial executive Fred Anderson, vacation area developer.

Mr. Anderson, who has just purchased 53 acres of prime orchard and farm land half a mile west of Highway 30 on the Telephone Road said Friday he plans to spends $150,000 to develop the land into a KOA site.

KOA is short for Kampgrounds of America, a U.S.-based firm that franchises 700 campgrounds throughout the U.S., plus 16 in Canada. Mr. Anderson has obtained a KOA franchise for his development, which he says will be one of 155 projected for Canada by next year.

Starting immediately, local contractors will begin installing a large swimming pool, and building facilities. Land for 102 trailer sites and an undetermined number of tent sites, will be cleared.

Mr. Anderson noted these areas's first KOA site, in a 12-month operation in Cherry Valley, Prince Edward County.

He says his project will be smaller, open from May 12 to Oct. 15. The 60 - by - 40 - foot trailer sites will each be equipped with water and electricity, and cost $4 a night. About 10 per cent of the sites will be equipped with sewage facilities, a large number not necessary because of the transient nature of such a park.

Mr. Anderson says transient camping is growing at about 25 per cent a year, because of the lacked number of such facilities in North America, plus the high expense of motel room and cottage lots.

At least four local high school students will be hired for the summer months, and eventually Fred Anderson Enterprises Incorporated, might hire a manager - and - wife team.

It's A Happy Birthday

Hastings Historical Society Marks 15 Years Operation

People — and more of them the better — are a key in keeping any community endeavor flourishing. Hastings County Historical Society was reminded yesterday.

The reminder came as the society marked its 15th anniversary while in the throes of its biggest undertaking since its foundation — a move to new, bigger museum quarters.

The anniversary drew a number of former society executives and volunteers who had contributed much enthusiasm to launching the society as a repository of local history in 1957.

Since that time its memorabilia has expanded in volume and scope until today the society is guardian of collections believed unmatched by any group its size in Ontario. So much so, the museum now is being moved to east Belleville's Glanmore House, recently acquired with local government aid. The move, from a century-old converted country registry office on Church St., may come within a month, its nearness yesterday was marked by the packing cases already 'stacked' among museum exhibits.

The need for more participants was emphasized by Edward Buckley, of the past presidents attending the event. Mr. Buckley said the society's membership still was "rather a small group" and he believed there were hundreds "if not thousands" of county residents who would join if invited.

No group its size — with the exhibits it must protect and display — can function on current membership fees alone, said Mr. Buckley.

Other founding members present included Mrs. John Haig, who, as former well-known local broadcaster Harriet Stevens, was responsible for the society's initial impetus; Tom Wrightmeyer, former city antique dealer now in the Collins Bay area, who was first president.

MP Hits at Grants

PICTON (Staff) — "Trudeaumania" has now degenerated into 'Trudeaupholia" says Douglas Alkenbrack MP Prontenac, Lennox and Addington.

Mr. Alkenbrack last night told members of the Women's Conservative Association here that the Trudeau government has been marked by "flagrant and confusal waste of public funds" and a sewing of "disharmony and national disunity by bilingual policies."

He accused the Trudeau government of favoritism to Quebec and claimed this could be observed in recent Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiative Project grants.

Mr. Alkenbrack said a Liberal friend of his had obtained figures for him from the ministers responsible for running the programs. The figures were described as "secret."

A total of $180 million was allotted for Local Initiative Projects and a total of $71 million budgeted for Quroec province. This approximated one half the entire sum.

The other provinces received grants as follows: Newfoundland, $10 million, Nova Scotia, $12 million, Prince Edward Island, $2 million, New Brunswick, $10 million, Ontario, $26 million, Manitoba, $6, million, Saskatchewan, $4 million, Alberta $9 million, North West Territories, $1 million, British Columbia) $17 million and the Yukon, one half million dollars.

Quebec received approximately $12 million under the OFY budget of $34 million—roughly a third. Ontario received $7 million; the Atlantic provinces $4 million, British Columbia $3 million, and the Prairies $4 million.

Mr. Alkenbrack declared Quebec "does not have one third of our population nor do they have one third of our youth."

The MP praised the merits of bilingualism but said government policies now are creating a bilingual Canada except for Quebec where unilingualism seems favored.

Oktoberfest Makes Festive Time

The event was an Oktoberfest.

Its aim: To provide funds for Belleville's Quinte Sports Foundation which supports amateur sports in the city area.

Inspired by the German tradition for a special occasion combining eating, drinking and dancing in an atmosphere of good fellowship, the Oktoberfest brought hundreds flocking to the Armory Friday and Saturday nights. They danced to a German band, quaffed steins of beer and sampled German delicacies.

It was the first big public event staged by the foundation.

As yet, it was not immediately known how much the two-day occasion had netted the group Oktoberfest chairman Gerald O'Connor said today.

Busy Week For Hees

TRENTON (Staff) — For George Hees, MP-Prince-Edward Hastings this week will be a series of breakfast and luncheon meetings, an open line radio program, public meetings and radiotrekking.

Starting Monday, he begins a southern Ontario circuit in St. Catharines and Welland travels to Galt Tuesday, Brantford, Guelph and Harrison Wednesday, Waterloo and Kitchener on Thursday.

Mr. Hees arrives in Winnipeg for more campaigning.

Friday he returns to Toronto and his home-riding area near Oshoung. During the week of Oct. 9 he will remain in his home riding before once again campaigning nationally.

Coach Service Is Started

PICTON (Staff) — Loyalist Coachlines, operated by James Montgomery, Carrying Place, will begin a new run from Picton to Trenton October 2.

Two daily round trips will leave here six days a week except Sundays and holidays.

A passenger bus will provide service to travellers on Highway 33 from Picton through Bloomfield, Wellington, Hillier, Consecon, Carrying Place and Trenton.

This route will correspond with present Loyalist services from Picton to Kingston via Glenora ferry.

U.S. Airmen Home

The three captured American flyers are back home in the United States at last and the anti-war group that obtained their release, not to mention the North Vietnamese, have had a propaganda field day. They were flown home by a circuitous route that included Peking and Moscow, so as to avoid U.S. diplomatic representatives as well as those awful militarist types from the Pentagon who doubtless were anxious to interrogate them.

It turned out that all the military in Washington wanted to do was to complete the men's reunion with their families as quickly as possible. But the fact remains that here are three military men answerable to their country and to the dictates of military discipline as much as to their families.

The men did not say much on their return — indeed the circumstances of their release and why they were chosen remain a mystery — but it is significant that a woman member of the anti-war group has complained already that one of the trio, a major, who as a prisoner in Hanoi said he was against the war, had now changed his tune. It rather looks as if the men have been caught between two stools — between the Communist propagandists on the one hand and their responsibility toward their own country on the other.

An honorable settlement of the Vietnam conflict is surely the goal of all people. But whether that will mean an end to war itself is another matter. The United States doubtless will think twice before committing so much in men and materials to any other far-off "brushfire" outbreak, but it is certain also to maintain a strong air force presence in countries like Thailand, just in case the Communists go on the march again.

The unhappy fact is that nations drop their defences only at their peril. The history of mankind has demonstrated time and again that war in one form another is to be expected. Even the anti-war people know this, only they will not admit it for reasons that we may surmise.

U.S. Election Campaign

In the United States election campaign President Nixon apparently remains the front-runner. He and vice-president Agnew are conducting a low-key campaign, with the President making only occasional forays from the White House while Democratic rival George McGovern is making very much like the man who has to try harder because he is the acknowledged underdog.

McGovern doubtless will pick up a lot of votes from younger American disenchantment with U.S. involvement in military adventures. The candidate is making a big pitch for diversion of funds into the economy at home and notably into the cities and into education.

But a great many Americans are uneasy about McGovern's policies. They wonder just how far he would go in reducing defence expenditure, thereby weakening the United States role as the free world's major power. Nixon on the other hand has made signal progress in improving relations with both Russia and China. At the same time he has wound down U.S. ground involvement in the Vietnam war while actively seeking a negotiated settlement. But he has made it plain also — the stepped-up air war is proof of this — that the U.S. is not negotiating from a position of weakness.

For these reasons Nixon stands a good chance of being re-elected. As some voters are saying, he is the lesser of two evils. Or better the devil you know than the one you don't.

Boost for Deseronto

Renovations totalling more than $60,000 at the Canada Optical Company in Deseronto are a welcome boost to the industry and town.

At a press conference there members of the board of directors from Imperial Optical in Toronto issued a statement which noted: "Deseronto may not hold a familiar ring to many but for the optical industry it rings loud and clear. In this small southern Ontario town of 1,830 population is Canada's largest optical frame manufacturer."

It is good to know that Canada Optical, which employs 67 people, is alive and well and flourishing in Deseronto.

Mackasey's Expanded Program Hits $1,200 Million Mark

Taxpayer Paying Twice Over to Boost Jobless Payments

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Nobody is saying much about it on the campaign trail, but you are going to be paying twice for Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey's recondite expanded unemployment insurance benefit program.

For the Liberals the silence is entirely understandable. For the less said, not just about unemployment, but about the enormously increased cost of unemployment insurance, the better for them.

But for the opposition, Conservatives and New Democrats alike, to remain quiet is extremely odd. They talk about the huge cost — but not about the double taxing.

For the double-billing of the taxpayer for unemployment insurance benefits ought to be one of the government's most vulnerable points during the campaign.

But it is not because, for some strange reason, the opposition so far has ignored it.

The way you, as a taxpayer, are going to get hit twice for unemployment insurance works out like this ...

... Under Bryce Mackasey's vastly expanded program of bath coverage and benefits, the federal government pays the bill for unemployment when the jobless rate tops four per cent.

Employee deductions and employer contributions now are intended to pay insurance for the first four per cent of the labor force unemployed.

With the unemployment rate constantly over six percent, the government — that is you and every other working taxpayer — must carry the more than two percent excess difference.

It means you are being double - taxed for it.

Once in your compulsory unemployment insurance wage and salary deductions.

And again in your income tax to cover the cost of insurance benefits when unemployment crosses the four percent line.

When Bryce Mackasey expanded his unemployment insurance program, he went first class, and at your expense.

Virtually every working Canadian was covered, whether he wanted it or not and regardless of the likelihood of many ever ever needing it.

Benefits were boosted from an average $55 to $68 weekly with a top of $100.

Before big-hearted Bryce so grossly inflated the program, the government paid into the unemployment insurance fund an amount equal to 20 percent of the total employee - employer payments.

The government's contribution was to carry the administrative costs of the program.

And apart from this generosity, paid cost of operation, the program was structured to be self-sustaining on employee deductions and employer contributions.

In the year before Bryce Mackasey messed about with it, benefits paid out amounted to $695 million.

Now in only the first 10 months of operation of the expanded program, the cost has run $1,200 million.

The difference?

Already $505 million and for the full year likely to go another $350 million or so to top $700 million.

Possible total tab for the year then, $1,900 million, or not far short of $2 billion.

Under the new Mackasey rules, the employees and employers will be paying only as much of that whopper as is accounted for by four percent of the unemployed.

You, as a working Canadian, of course will be contributing three.

But now you are getting the compulsory opportunity to contribute a second time — through income tax — to cover the excess of two percent of the unemployed over the four percent breakoff line where the government, in your name, picks up the tab.

Obviously, it is not enough for the government to get you on the swings. It has to hook you again on the roundabouts.

PM and the Constitution

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

With the close and interwoven relationship there now is between federal and provincial governments, national elections can have a considerable impact on the provinces.

In an interview, Prime Minister Trudeau was asked about action on constitutional reform, with an inference that he really wasn't interested in it.

He replies that yes, he was interested.

That first the provinces should get agreement among themselves.

It had been shown, he said, that this was the only practical way in which to bring about change. (He could well be right).

This is the first time a prime minister has suggested provinces should consolidate their position before entering negotiations.

Rather the opposite. Most leaders have tended to steer away from this.

This conceivably could lead to straight black and white battle gaining in the future—with Ottawa on one side of the table and the united provinces on the other.

However, just what will the provinces all agree on except that they want more money.

The actions of our public service that are of great concern are that way after first Quebec and then Ontario voluntarily gave their civil servants the right to strike.

David Lewis' corporate welfare bum stand probably won't be taken seriously in the way of incentives to industry.

When times aren't highly polished the NDP can espouse industrial incentives as much as anyone else.

Even now we can see though is the possibility of some governments contracting rather than outright grants and loans in the future.

That is it would take stock in companies it assisted.

With this, if its assistance helped the economy to succeed the government (and the taxpayers) would share in this success.

If the company was a loser, the government could not in any case; whether on a loan or stock basis.

Manitoba is already taking this equity participation. Nova Scotia is getting ready to. And Ontario has been making passes in this direction for the last few years.

Needy Korean Family Seeks Material Aid

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I will be deeply appreciative if you will kindly consider this letter.

I am the mother of four fatherless and unfortunate children. My husband left us about two years ago. I have been suffering from a serious integral disorder for over 19 months and I have not been able to receive any medical care until this date. I am writing this letter to you because of these reasons:

I have been hand - sewing clothes for others. What I earn is barely enough to feed two of my four children. Fr. Joseph Tjeng helps us much as he can, but he must also help the nearby other poor in the parish too. He is lacking money and will translate my letter to you with the hope that you will come to our aid. A doctor in the city said the operation and medicines I need will cost $300. But this is only a dream for me now. I can't afford it at all. We do not have our own house, so I have been paying $5. a month for rent. Father Tjeng took a photo of us in front of our house to let and will mail it to you with a translation of my letter.

If I had a sewing machine and some materials to work with, I could earn up to $3. a day which is all enable us to live and possibly help me to save some for my medical treatments. But a sewing machine alone costs about $70. This is also a dream to me now. Under my present illness I must worry about feeding clothing and educating my four innocent little ones. I feel hopeless now. May I say that I am more than willing to repay you for your kindness by embroidering, knitting, or sewing something and sending it to you for your help.

I am longing for having any generous persons who will be kind enough to give my materials or financial contribution for our dire needs and perhaps become the foster parent to one or two of my four needy innocent kids. I will appreciate through my life if you or any of your readers could help meet our painful needs.

Mrs. Woo Kyongsuk and children,
In care of St. Paul's Church,
Pusan, Korea.

I am very glad to be able to translate Mrs. Woos letter to you. As a person closely acquainted with her and her children, I feel it irresistible to recommend her to your good intention for her and her children's needs. They live under sub-human condition due to severe trials, and to me it would be a sin to let and do nothing to relieve this human misery. I have decided to lead her to take the liberty of petitioning you as I know the men is mightier than the sword and we are the same brothers and sisters in His precious name. I am sure that you will find it to be well worth your good intentions for the poor. Lumble family. Thank you.

Fr. Joseph K. Tjeng.

Canadian Taxpayer Will Have to Pay Up

Doubts Persist Whether Montreal Should Stage Olympics

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The current tragic events at the Olympic Games may lead to a renewed call for Canada to back out of its commitment to stage the events in 1976. Unfortunately, in a world so divided, the original purposes and meaning of the Olympics have been obscured. Instead of leading to greater international understanding and friendship, they often seem to work at cross purposes to this laudable objective.

First, there has been the bitterness over the Rhodesian attitude of retiring president Avery Brundage. This was followed by the uproar over the planned participation of Rhodesia and, finally, the murderous assault of the Arab guerrillas. These events have resulted in a great deal of soul-searching among Olympic officialdom as, well as among the public at large. Already there is talk that the Games in their present form have become too big and uncontrollable and should be replaced, after the 1976 events, with a series of world athletic contests. These would split up the various sections of the Games and be held at varying locations, one each year.

The question Canadians might ask is why wait until after 1976 to make the change? Long before the current Olympic troubles, many Canadians believed Canada, and more particularly Montreal, should not have sought nor been awarded the '76 events. Mayor Drapeau is a masterful showman and an unbridled enthusiast, as Expo 67 will attest. But Canadian taxpayers, many of whom never got close to Montreal that year, were hit hard by the cost of the world's fair.

In a centennial year the Expo bills could be borne with a measure of compliant resignation, if not, out and out joy. But the same spirit and argument can hardly be used for the Olympics, coming as they do less than 18 years after the first "big show."

The federal government has been claiming it is not going to put up any direct financial aid for the Montreal extravaganza. Canadians in other cities and provinces are openly sceptical about this pledge, chiefly viewing the expensive facilities provided in Montreal for the recent games. It becomes all too clear that if Montreal is going to compete on any reasonable level, a very large sum is going to be poured into the project. Montreal is a city that has been teetering on the verge of bankruptcy for several years. It is hardly in a position to bankroll an event of this scope and grandeur on its own.

There are reports that Montreal had planned to announce a more open budget for the organization, with the athletes mingling with the city's normal population and without the strict segregation and regulations that governed their accommodations and conduct in Munich. The recent events there must have ruled out that concept in a hurry.

Montreal happens to be our largest city but it also the one which has spawned the most interest and violence in recent years. It doesn't appear to lend itself especially well as the locale for an international event which, despite wire fences and security guards, has already been the scene of a bloody death.

If Canadians generally, and Montrealers in particular, feel they can get along without the cost and potential trouble of staging a spectacle of dubious value, now is the time to say so — not after many more thousands have been poured into preliminary preparations.

Mayor Drapeau can be awarded an "E" for effort but advised to take what help is available to his administration to look after Montreal's employed. Its poor and its slums and to take some positive steps to root out the criminal elements that have taken control of so much of the city's life.

System Ensures School Records

Those long - forgotten school marks have a way of catching up with you, when you least expect it.

Job applications or course registrations sometimes demand them — years after diplomas and certificates have been lost.

Every year in the Centre Hastings district alone, about 40 requests come through for transcripts of school marks.

But many records from one-room school houses have been lost or destroyed.

It won't happen anymore, because Centre Hastings embarked this year on a Microfiche program of preserving records.

The $2,500 pilot project has put a reader in each school in the area and a camera at Centre Hastings. All school records are sent to the high school to be put on Microfiche - easily - filed cards instead of the more familiar Microfilm.

After a student leaves school, his Ontario Student Record cards will be transferred to Microfiche for storage, along with transcripts of marks.

"They take much less storage space and therefore less money, because space costs money," says Centre Hastings superintendent Frank Tate.

Schools are also experimenting with filming of newspapers, photos and articles to be filed in the library for students' research.

"If we had had this machine at the time of the moon shots, for instance, we could have filmed the whole thing and put it in the library for future reference," said Mr. Tate.

Emergency Exercise A Success

Frankford will have its own tailor - made emergency plan after a demonstration Sunday by the Piston Pushers Motor Cycle Club.

The club, after training with the Belleville Emergency Measures Organization, decided to set up an emergency outpost in the village and held its first exercise yesterday.

Members of village council and area residents watched as the Piston Pushers arranged emergency stations and handled a mock plane crash.

August Duffy, Quinte Emergency Measures co-ordinator said today the exercise went as planned and was impressed with its efficiency.

Councillors attended the exercise to weigh its merits and have since asked Mr. Duffy to create a plan designed specifically for their village, the co-ordinator said.

"The plan last night was a test to see how the village can be organized in a peacetime emergency," said Mr. Duffy.

Council will consider Mr. Duffy's report in the near future.

Budget Program

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — A program of aims and objectives for Prince Edward County board of education is under preparation as part of program budgeting.

John McNeil, director of education said the Prince Edward principal's association will be consulted and a list of recommendations for examination will be presented at an association meeting October 11.

Cecil Reid, former principal at Queen Elizabeth school, Picton, is collaborating with Mr. McNeil at the Bloomfield board offices this year regarding 1972-73 program budgeting.

Reactivate Talks On Swimming Pool

PICTON (Staff) — The Quinte's lake swimming pool committee met late last week at Benson Hall to reactivate plans for a heated, indoor pool at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Jack Evans, chairman of the advertising subcommittee for advertising said various proposals were submitted for review by the building subcommittee and plans and alternatives for the junior Olympic size pool were discussed.

The building committee was requested to obtain additional cost estimates for study.

The finance subcommittee reported plans for a future meeting to examine a program to earn community support from municipal councils, service clubs, volunteer organizations and individuals.

Mr. Evans said town council has indicated the pool will be properly administered and maintained when it has been satisfactorily completed.

Substantial cash pledges already have been received by the pool committee from service groups and individuals.

Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. has agreed to donate an estimated $5,000 - $10,000 towards construction of the pool by providing all the cement needed.

ANAF News

Now that the excitement of the International hockey matches is over, it may be possible to get the sportsmen of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit to consider their own fall and winter activities. This weekend being Thanksgiving it probably won't get into action until next week. Then the sports committee hope to have euchre, cribbage, shuffleboard, Wednesday night dart house league, Saturday men's stagbe and double darts and the Mr. and Mrs. Dart leagues get started. Should be an active season with plenty of competition. More definite details will be available next week.

Here is wishing 1st vice-president Bill Ford "bon voyage" on his German safari and that he has a splendid and enjoyable trip.

Over the weekend the members who are Hasty-Pa will probably be conspicuous by their absence as their annual reunion will be held in Peterborough.

Don't forget the Friday evening Happy Hour both up and down stairs with a delicious dinner served in the Tartan Lounge with entertainment, dancing and plain relaxing to the music afterwards. Get up a gang and join in the fun.

This has been a black month for the unit as the news of the passing of another good comrade, the third in September, occurred early Friday morning. Comrade Jimmy Gray had been a member for over 20 years and he will be missed by his many friends. All members extend sincere sympathy to his bereaved family. On the sick list are comrades J. Carr, 48; J. R. Boyle, 726; M. Lennah, 418; F. Bulger, BGH; and A. McKenna, 28, Queen's S. C. Unit; also L. Bellinger, 613.

Naturalists See North on Film

Quinte Field Naturalists took an armchair journey last week to the Yukon, Alaska, and northern British Columbia as they viewed colored slides by Mrs. Alma Wallis well-known nature photographer.

The showing, at Belleville Collegiate auditorium, was sponsored by the naturalists in place of their regular September meeting. People attended from as far as Kingston and Port Hope, among them a busload of children and their teachers from the Shannonville school.

A community shower was held in St. John's Parish Hall, Point Anne. Mrs. Donna Richardson gave a miscellaneous shower in her home with Miss Marilyn Eggleton as co-hostess. The bride was also presented with a gift by her fellow employees at Canadian Tire Associate Store and a gift from the parts dept.

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. D. Cameron (nee Dixie Motley) was honored at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Willett Barber at Mrs. Penny Barber as co-hostess; also at another shower given by Miss Jayne Snell at Luckow held at the home of Mrs. Ewart McPherson.

Prior to her recent marriage, Mrs. Ross MacFarlane (nee Kathryn Morden) was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Olive Delaney of Belleville. Mrs. Grace Bateman, of Belleville also, held a kitchen and bathroom shower in her home. The bridegroom's parents Mr. and Mrs. R. M. MacFarlane gave a rehearsal party at the Four Seasons Motel.

MR. AND MRS. ROSS MacFARLANE

MacFarlane – Morden

St. Thomas Anglican Church was the setting for the recent wedding ceremony of Kathryn Lenore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Morden, Belleville and Ross Bailey MacFarlane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald M. MacFarlane of Gananoque. Rev. Peter Tott performed the ceremony and Mr. Donald Davenport, the organist, rendered traditional wedding music.

The bride given in marriage by her father selected a long white all over lace dress with an empire waist, scoop neckline and long sleeves. Her Juliette cap which matched the lace in her gown extended to a long nylon veil. The bride carried a cascade of white carnations encircled by mauve orchids.

Miss Anne Morden, maid of honor was attired in a long floral chiffon gown of blue, white and mauve tones. A mauve velvet ribbon accented the waist of her gown which also featured long sleeves, a high neckline, a gathered flounce at the hemline, and a mauve velvet ribbon at the waistline. She wore a large white picture hat with matching velvet ribbon and carried a colonial bouquet of shasta daisies.

The bridesmaids, Miss Gillian MacFarlane and Mrs. Lynne McGuire were dressed identically to the matron of honor and carried identical bouquets.

Mr. Frank O'Hearn of Gananoque was best man while Mr. John Harding of Ottawa and Mr. Michael McGuire of Toronto ushered the guests.

Following the wedding, a buffet style dinner was held at the Hotel Quinte-Fiesta Room. The bridal couple was attired in a long sleeved wedding wood blue gown enhanced by darker blue sequins and a seed pearl trim. Matching shoes and a corsage of tea roses shaded dark rose enhanced her dress.

The bridegroom's mother wore a street length bronze, yellow and white floral chiffon dress. Her brown accessories were complemented by a corsage of bronze mums and yellow roses.

For their wedding trip to Montreal and points east, the bride donned a navy and white corinqlene coat dress enhanced by navy accessories and a corsage of deep rose carnations.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. MacFarlane will reside at 336 Murray St., Peterborough.

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN HOLGATE

Holgate – Hart

Rev. Jack Morrison performed the recent wedding ceremony in St. Mark's United Church, Cannifton when Bonnie Heather Hart exchanged vows with Brian Roy Holgate. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart, Point Anne and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Holgate of Cannifton. Mrs. Elaine Dickman, the organist, rendered traditional music to the accompaniment of soloist, Mrs. Penny Hart and Mr. Mike Reed.

The bride, given in marriage by her mother and father selected a floor length gown of lergal sheer over peau de soie which was embroidered with rose appliques and seed pearls on the bodice, long sleeves, front and sides of the A-line skirt and waistline. A full circle train fell from the waistline. Her gown was accented by a large picture hat covered with peau de soie and crowned with rose appliques and seed pearls enhanced by a large tulle bow. The bride carried a long stemi of lime green carnations.

Mrs. Pat Reed, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, was attired in full length high waisted gown of variegated greens on imported polyester sheer over mint green crepe. Her gown featured butterfly sleeves, a dark green velvet ribbon trimmed the waist and a bow held each scallop at the hemline. A mint green picture hat highlighted her gown and she carried a basket of pale pink and white shasta daisies with baby's breath, green fern and ribbons.

The bridesmaids, Miss Bethy Hart, sister of the bride and Miss Debbie Holgate, sister of the bridegroom were dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Miss Shelly Hart, the flower girl, wore a mint green floor length gown of imported polyester crepe with a green trim around the neckband. Her gown also featured butterfly sleeves, a dark green velvet sash and bow at the waist and a dark green velvet band in her hair. She carried the same flowers as the bridesmaids.

Mr. Fred Putman of Cannifton was best man. Ushers were Mr. Bob Laflash of Bramales and Mr. Danny Webster of Cannifton.

The bridegroom's mother was dressed identically to the bride's mother except in yellow with yellow shasta daisies adorning her hair. A corsage of yellow shasta daisies and white accessories completed her dress.

For the wedding trip to western Ontario, the bride donned a red and white hotpant outfit highlighted by wet-look accessories.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Holgate will reside at 19 Yeoman St., Apt. 1.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS CAMERON

Cameron – Motley

ROSLIN — Wesley United Church, Mountain View was the scene of the recent wedding of Dixie Marlene Motley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Motley of RR 7 Belleville and Douglas Ralph Cameron son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cameron, of RR 7 Lucknow.

Rev. James Cullen, officiated. Robert Barber rendered organ music and accompanied the soloist Mrs. David Parnell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown empire style of pure silk organza with fitted bodice and wedding ball collar trimmed with Swiss embroidered lace. The empire waistline was edged with lace and festooned a large and bow at the back. The long full sleeves were enhanced with rows of lace on the triple cuffs. The A-line skirt falling into a long chapel train was trimmed with rows of Swiss lace from waistband to hem. Her floor-length veil of silk illusion was gathered at the crown and bordered with scalloped lace. She carried a colonial bouquet of red sweetheart roses steptnotis and fern.

Bridesmaids, Miss Jayne Snell, cousin of the bride groom, and Mrs. Ron Rustin, sister of the bride, and the flower girl, Miss Jane Davies, cousin of the bride, were dressed identically to the maid of honor, and carried similar flowers.

For the reception held at the Club Canara, Belleville, the bride's mother received guests wearing a floor length gown of silk chiffon over taffeta, the long sleeves ending in tight cuffs at the wrist. The collar neckline and sleeves were bordered with matching eyelet lace and she wore a corsage of deep red sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who chose a floor length sleeveless dress in lilac polyester crepe with a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

Departing for a honeymoon to points east and north, the bride donned a purple nylon printed jersey with white collar and accessories with red trim.

Upon their return hey will reside at Roslin.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. William Dufresne wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Noreen to Theo Eimers, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Eimers, Holland. The marriage will take place on October 7, 1972 at 7:30 in St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

UCW Meeting

Holloway St. Church U.C.W.

The first autumn meeting of the Holloway St. Church U.C.W. was held Tuesday, September 26 with vice-president, Mrs. J. Hainelink presiding over the 50 members attending.

Mrs. C. Holmes, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Clayton Thompson, of Campbellford who gave a message on stewardship. A steward herself, the guest speaker noted a quality of a good steward: a person who puts back a little more than she takes out of life.

Mrs. Thompson in discussing female stewardship referred to women's role in society. It was noted that women own 70 per cent of the country's wealth, are beneficiaries in 80 per cent of all life insurances, are principally responsible for youth education; have 92 labor saving devices which allows more time on their hands consist of 65 per cent of church attendants; and show more concern for the lonely as the sick and shut-ins.

During the meeting, reports were read and approved. Mrs. P. Thompson and her daughter Sharron, gave a duet. Devotions and the prayer were conducted by Mrs. F. G. Coulter.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served.

EQUAL RISK

LONDON (AP) — William Kenyon, executive director of the Merryeside Council on Alcoholism, says women's lib has resulted in more women alcoholics. "Equal pay and equal opportunity are linked with the equal risk of becoming alcoholic," he said.

Ann Landers

Is Education Irrelevant?

Dear Ann Landers: I have been sitting here reflecting on my education—having just graduated from college—and I must say it was sadly inadequate. For example, neither in my standard high school biology course nor in the first year college biology was I ever taught the difference between a king snake and a copperhead. However, in the ninth grade I had to memorize verbatim what it says to the conjugation of the Paramecium.

Never once in a classroom or a test, either in high school or college, was I told what I might expect in the way of job application blanks or interviews. I never knew what a split infinitive was until last week when a friend informed me. I had what one. Although I took a course in typing I was never taught how to change a typewriter ribbon. The list goes on and on. And yet we are told that our country is "high quality."

The absence of classroom relevancy is a traumatic shock to one emerging from school and into the "real world." What gives? Don't the educators see this? Or do I have my glasses on crooked? — Education Gripped

Dear Ed: You've struck a raw nerve. This has been one of my favorite beefs for the last 20 years. If you think education is irrelevant now you should have been around in the 30s and 40s.

I hope those responsible for planning curriculum "at every level, from kindergarten to graduate school, will read your letter twice, and then read it a third time. You're hit America in a highly vulnerable spot.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter Julie, age 13, has been enthralled with soap operas since the age of 12. Her emotional involvement with the characters used to be rather amusing, but it's gone beyond the funny stage and we are concerned.

A few months ago Julie changed shifts in order to stay home and watch a couple of soap operas that had switched to afternoon time. She now is working from 4 'til midnight. Two weeks ago, one of the story lines began to parallel so closely parallelled a tragic happening in her life that at the time she has stopped eating and has sunk into a depression. The girl is living on potato chips and candy bars.

What can we do? Don't suggest professional help. She is convinced psychiatry is phony and all medical doctors are actors.—Worried Parents.

Dear Worried: I am not surprised your daughter thinks all doctors are actors—so many of the soap operas take place in hospitals.

You know your daughter is emotionally ill and she should see a psychiatrist. If she refuses, you cannot force her to do so. Perhaps one of her friends can get through to her. Often the same advice from a person not related will carry some weight. Do try, and good luck.

Dear Ann: The supervisor at the loading dock asked me if I'd sit with his infant son while he and his wife went to a reception. Their babysitter conked out. I agreed. Although I had very little sleep the night before and was dead tired. The kid started to cry so I decided to entertain him by pinning a bath towel around myself like a diaper. I put on his bib and bonnet and stuck his bottle in my mouth and pretended to drink it. When the boss and his wife returned the kid was screaming and I was asleep on the couch in that stupid outfit. How do I get my job back? — Canned

Dear Canned: Plead temporary insanity.

Successful Living

A Fisherman's Prayer

By DORIS CLARK

God grant that I may fish
until my dying day;
And when it comes, I only last cast I humbly pray
When 30 the Lord's safe landing net I'm peacefully asleep,
That in His mercy I be judged as good enough to keep.

Author Unknown

Dear Doris: My daughter, 16, liked her girl friend's brother instantly, and he thinks he's at least 30.

We insisted she be home at 10, because she had to be at her summer job at seven next morning. But it was 10:45 p.m. when all four of them came in and settled down to watch television. I was exhausted in a hour, and curlers, but still said "hello" and left them to themselves. About 20 minutes later they got up and left.

My daughter accused me of making her friends feel unwelcome; she didn't find anything to feed them. Actually, there were plenty of cold cuts to make sandwiches, and there were cookies, potato chips and fruit for setting expected company.

I was a bit startled because in Europe where I come from anyone does not come to visit after 9 p.m. But I would be glad to change if this is the proper thing to do. — Concerned Mother.

Dear Concerned: A well-known cleft between the old world and the new! Sad is lucky that you are open-minded.

A man of 30 is too old for your Sweet Sixteen. She came home later than her curfew bringing guests without warning.

For the next few years you can keep your daughter closer to you, more serene and better protected if you make her friends yours to the extent that they like coming to your home. But there are limits, and you should settle them together. Ask her what she thinks is fair — and teach her how to make the sandwiches.

Dear Doris: My husband and I have been married for three years, have two children. We live on a farm with my mother-in-law.

Doris, I am just not happy; I am from the city and my husband is from the farm. I am afraid that my marriage will not last. My husband loves me very much, but I love him only sometimes. If he goes away I am perfectly happy. I try to be a good wife and mother but I just can't keep going this way.

One of my husband's friends must feel the tension because he said I would make a foolish mistake if I divorced him. My husband is a very sweet and tender man. — D. W.

Dear D. W.: Not enough to go on, but my guesses would include:

(1) Your change of environment from city to country is a shock to your whole emotional system. You don't adjust overnight.

(2) You are living with your mother-in-law. Kind and helpful as she may be, you need to be in your own home, running your own show and feeling like a homemaker.

(3) Sex relations are far from perfect; need thought, study, more understanding and consideration on both sides.

With a loving husband, your problems are worth some working out; and your best helper is your nearest family counsellor.

(Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope.)

LADIES' AUXILIARY
BRANCH 99

The first regular meeting after summer recess of the Ladies' Auxiliary Br. 99 was held on Sept. 26 with Comrade Elsie Armstrong presiding.

There was an excellent attendance including four new members who were initiated into the auxiliary: Bessie Crawford, Mary Knott, Doris Robinson, and Mary Rollins. The reports of committees were read and several new applications were accepted. Comrade Mildred Ford reported all sick taken care of and flowers sent to bereaved. The Thursday euchres are doing well under the supervision of Com. Effie Nolan. A rummage sale is scheduled for Oct. 21. Anyone having donations may call Com. Jean Hughes at 962-3008 or Com. Gwen Semark at 962-5187. The annual potluck supper is planned for Oct. 27. The Hallowe'en dance will be held on Oct. 27.

Com. Hodge gave a number of banquets to be catered to and urged all members to turn out when possible. The auditors reported the books in good order. Dominion Zone Commander Dorothy Rashotte spoke on the convention held in Windsor which was attended by herself and four other delegates namely Elsie Armstrong, Dorothy Purdey, Gwen Semark and Lena Rochon. It was noted that several changes have been made and will be included in the new bylaws.

Armistice Day was discussed and Com. Armstrong asked the ladies to turn out for poppy sales. The meeting adjourned after which lunch was served.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN COMWELL

Is the 'new morality' succeeding?

IT is only succeeding in making many people more nervous. Those who used to complain that a person's conscience was causing him tension are beginning to see that such an individual is not any more free of stress now, even though he can behave as he wants just so long as he doesn't get caught violating a law. With no conscience to guide him, an individual is often the victim of nonsolicated conflict because he finds himself drifting aimlessly in the new morality.

Does a child like to be stubborn?

RARELY, if ever. When a child is at ease in his ways that he actually does seem to enjoy being stubborn, parents should first "clear" themselves. In asking a child to do something, they may be taking wrong approaches. The child may be acting the only way he knows how. When he realizes that he can make his parents call him names, it is no wonder that he'll often be stubborn in a manner that he knows will control his parents' reaction.

Will a wife admit she's misunderstood?

NOT only does a wife believe it is impossible for her husband to misunderstand her, she also is convinced that she doesn't have to be too choosey about the words she uses to say what is on her mind. Many a stunned husband can attest to this; for there is hardly a married man alive who can't remember standing there, helplessly absorbing the fury of his angry wife as she flails states: "I don't give a hoot what I said, you know what I mean."

Women's Institutes

SPRINGBROOK WI

SPRINGBROOK — The September meeting of Springbrook Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Cassidy with an attendance of 23 women. The president, Mrs. George Williams, presided over the first portion of the meeting.

A surprise trip for the months followed at the Allan Hadley Farm where Mrs. Hadley personally conducted a tour of their apple picking process. She explained the different processes, including picking, sorting, packing and refrigeration.

Mrs. Hadley also mentioned that growing apples is a year-round job consisting of pruning, spraying and mulching.

The remainder of the meeting was then continued at the home of Mrs. Cassidy.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow read the minutes of the August meeting. It was decided to take a collection for the blind.

Mrs. Cyril McKeown was chosen as delegate to the convention at Peterborough in October. Happy Birthday was sung to Mrs. Fred McKeown and Mrs. Lorne McIlroy. A poem entitled the importance of Health was read by Mrs. Clayton Burkitt. Mrs. Fred McKeown, Mrs. Cyril McKeown and Mrs. Hubert McIlroy read poems also. A contest was conducted by Mrs. Myrtle Cassidy. Mrs. Cyril McKeown and Mrs. Orrie Barton won the prizes.

Following a reading on apples, apple recipes were exchanged and current events discussed.

Mrs. Carl Ray, Mrs. Bill Frost and Mrs. Murney Fleming assisted in serving tea with apple pie and cheese.

British Laborites Pushing Leaders to Left

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — The opposition Labor party braced for a swing to the left in home and foreign policies today with divided leaders under pressure to obey the majority decisions of their followers.

Chairman Anthony Wedgwood Benn, in opening the party's annual convention, said "the era of consensus politics is over," and a future Labor government must redistribute not only the country's wealth but also its power.

"There is a powerful movement for workers' control building up," Benn said.

Turning to the big issue of British entry into the European Common Market, Benn called on all laborites to work for a national election before Jan. 1, when Britain is due to join the trade and economic bloc.

The Common Market issue is both dividing and dominating the three-day conference, with some big labor unions seeking to commit their leaders to fight not only the terms but also the broad principles of British entry.

In this context, the outcome of the Danish referendum today could be decisive—especially if the Danes joined their Nordic pan-Scandinavian neighbors and reject membership.

Labor's leftward swing in foreign affairs under the pressure of militants shaped up Sunday night in a series of decisions by the party's high command.

On the Common Market, party leaders voted narrowly in support of a proposal that would bind a future Labor government to halt Britain's payments to and participation in the Common Market if negotiated terms had been negotiated. The stance would far beyond anything former prime ministers Harold Wilson would want. It would virtually limit his freedom of action.

On foreign policy and defense, the leaders accepted another proposal urging the dissolution of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw pact and the withdrawal of all nuclear arms from central Europe.

They also backed a call for the removal of American air and Polaris submarine bases from British soil.

The party's national executive stopped short, however, of recommending a demand for Britain's withdrawal from NATO although some members came out of their five hour session reporting that radical demands narrowly been accepted.

The party's shift to home policy ran all the way through to ask the rich program for future action, submitted as a discussion paper to the convention by former chancellor of the exchequer Barnes Callaghan.

Under the plan, a Labor government would introduce a wealth tax, to be levied annually, on all citizens owning £50,000 ($120,000) or more.

It would go on to operate a vigorous wages-restraint policy as a means of beating inflation but would also take no powers to control prices, rents and land values.

It would extend state ownership of, or participations in, key industries including the development of gas and oil resources in the North Sea, pharmaceuticals, banks and insurance companies, shipbuilding and in the aerospace industry, it would comment on Mr. Feirean's charges later today.

Company Accused of Transferring Profits

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Parizeau, Parti Quebecois economist, said during the weekend the Iron Ore Co. of Canada transferred profits from its Quebec mines last year to the stocks of its Newfoundland operation.

He told a news conference the company transferred the bulk of its financial reports to take advantage of Newfoundland's five per cent tax on mines.

Quebec's tax scale is much higher, he said, nine per cent for the first $1 million, 11 per cent for the $1-$4 million range and 15 per cent for anything higher.

Company president W. J. Bennett said Sunday night he would comment on Mr. Feirean's charges later today.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto stock market remained fractionally lower in light, mid-morning trading today.

The industrial index, considered a major indicator of market trend, was off .91 to 210.81, golds .75 to 192.87 and base metals .19 to 90.31. Western oils, however, managed to rise .77 to 209.86.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 457,000 shares compared with 555,000 traded by the same time Friday.

Among sectors pushing the market lower were beverage, real estate, chemical and industrial mining stocks while merchandising, utilities and loan, bank and utility issues managed slight increases.

Dealings outnumbered advances 104 to 95 while 178 issues remained unchanged.

Reed Shaw slipped ½ to $10¼; Markborough Properties ½ to $8, Ripley International ½ to $5, Acres ¾ to $15½ and Marcil Photstax ¼ to $5.

Moore gained ¾ to $48¾, Dome Pete ¾ to $43, Hoshe Oil B ½ to $35¾, BP Canada ¾ to $16 and House of Braemore ¾ to $9¾.

Falconbridge Nickel declined ¼ to $13¾, Kerr Addison ¼ to $10 and Les River 3 cents to $3.75. Brunswick advanced 23 cents to $1.30 and Texmex ½ cents to $1.20.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was dull with prices on slaughter steers and heifers under pressure and barely steady at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Good and choice veal calf prices were steady but heavy veal sold under pressure at lower prices. Hog prices were lower than last week's close and there were no early sales on sheep and lambs.

Slaughter cattle 541: Choice steers 34.50-35.50; good 33-34; medium 30.50-32.50; common 28-30; choice heifers 33.50-34.50; good 32-33; medium 29.50-31.50; common 27.29; good cows 26.50-27.50 with sales to 28; medium 25-26; canners and cutters 18-24.50; good heavy bologna bulls 29-31 with sales to 31.50; common and medium 24-28.50.

G. Hull Cut In Brawl

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Nationals lost the battles and the war Sunday in a World Hockey Association exhibition game with Philadelphia Blazers.

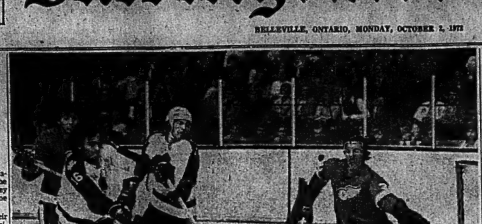
The Nationals, playing their first game, dropped a 3-1 decision before 7,021 fans—5,000 of whom attended as part of a local store promotion.

But that was almost incidental to the other activity on the ice as Gary Hull was taken to hospital with a cut mouth after tangling with Philadelphia's Pierre Palement and Ken Lynicook was carried off the ice on a stretcher, his nose broken, after a fray with Mike Rouleau of the Blazers.

Playing coach Johnny McKenzie, last year with Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League, scored the opening goal for Philadelphia with Frank Golembrosky, who earned 106 points last season with Charlotte of the Eastern League, scoring two in the third period.

Rouleau, who scored 105 points in centre with Kitchener-Waterloo last season, assisted on both his goals Sunday.

The Ottawa goal was scored by Jack Gibson, of Picton, Ont., who played last year at the University of Alberta.



McKenzie used all his available professionals in the game except Derek Sanderson and Bernie Blaine clearly dominated among these were goalie Bernie Parent, of Toronto, Andre Lacroix and Brian Campbell of Chicago Black Hawks, Danny Lawson of Buffalo Sabres and goalie Marcel Paille of Providence Reds of the American League.

He also used Yves Archambault, last year in the Quebec Junior League, in goal.

This Hull Breaks Ankle

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Kingston Frontenacs of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' League learned Sunday that centre Bobby Hull will be out for perhaps two weeks with a broken ankle.

Hull—no relation to the World Hockey Association star—broke the bone in a league game against North Hunter expressed delight. The player, a resident of Toronto, attends Queen's University in Kingston.

Fourth Reich Rises on Race Tracks

EDMONTON (CP) — The pundits of motorsport are calling Porsche's domination of the 1972 Can-Am series the rise of the Fourth Reich and Denis Hulme, try as he can't, can't contribute to the downfall of the German cars.

Hulme won the first Can-Am road race at International Speedway in 1968 and proceeded to knock off the next three in a row. Mark Donohue ended his string Sunday afternoon at the wheel of a turbo-charged Porsche 917-10K.

Tucked in front of a 12-cylinder air-cooled engine which had been breathed upon by the master mechanics in Stuttgart, Donohue nibbled away at the New Zealander's large early lead, overtook him on the 31st lap and thundered away to victory by 45 seconds

It was his first win this year and signalled the end of a streak of bad luck which began in July when he was badly injured in a crash while practising at Road Atlanta in Georgia for the second race of this year's series. Then, in his first race two weeks ago after a summer of convalescence, he blew his left rear tire at Brainerbrooke Speedway in Minnesota and was out of the race after winning the pole position.

Hulme wound up second Sunday while George Follmer of Arcadia, Cal., Donohue's teammate in the Roger Penske racing organization, was third.

Donohue, from Media, Pa., won about $17,000 for his victory as well as $2,500 for qualifying in second place Saturday. Hulme picked up a total of $12,000 and Follmer, series leader this year, took home about $8,500. The prize money in

Beman Loves Iowa Golf

BETTENDORF, Iowa (AP) — Deane Beman, has a love affair going with the state of Iowa.

"If they have a golf tournament in this state, you can count on me being there," Beman said Sunday after winning his second consecutive Quad Cities Open championship.

The victory, the fourth of his pro career, kept intact Beman's record of never losing in the state.

includes contingency money from equipment manufacturers.

Carlos Pace of Sao Paulo, Brazil, was fourth in a Shadow-Mark 3 while David Hobbs of Upper Boddington, England, was fifth in a Lola T310. Pace is normally a grand prix driver and Hobbs is the defending continental champion.

The rest of the top 10, in order, were Peter Revson of New York, Hulme's team-mate in another McLaren 2B; Lothar Motschenbacher of Newport Beach, Calif., in a McLaren 5D; Hans Wiedmer of Spietz, Switzerland, in a McLaren 6F; Tom Heyser of Highland Md., on a Lola T260 and Charlie Kemp of Lanesboro, Minn., in a Lola T222.

Follmer now has 90 points for a commanding lead in Can-Am standings with two races left. Hulme is second with 63 and Milt Minter of Reseda, Calif., is third with 55.

Minter's car, a Vesek Polak Porsche RP-10, lasted only one lap before its cooling fan disintegrated, and Francois Cevert, the French ace who is Jackie Stewart's grand prix team-mate and who won at Donnybrooke, retired his McLaren M7 on lap 39 with a broken half-shaft.

Royals Show Pennant Form

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cornwall Royals and Quebec Remparts won their opening games of the season Sunday as they demonstrated the fast-paced action which led them to place first and second respectively in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League last year.

Lions On Top

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Niagara Falls Lions captured the Ontario Baseball Association Major A midget championship Sunday defeating Ottawa 7-0 to take the best-of-three series in two games.

Savard Salvages Tie With World Champs

PRAGUE (CP) — Serge Savard, the Team Canada hero here Saturday, might never have had he given up on a broken ankle earlier in the month.

The lanky defenceman scored with four seconds remaining in the game to give Team Canada a 5-5 tie with the Czechoslovakian national team.

It was the second goal of the game for Savard but was originally credited to team-mate J. P. Parise following a concerted series of swipes at the puck.

"Three of us, (Bobby) Clarke, Savard and me, all took a cut at it," Parise said in a post-game interview. "But so far as I'm concerned, it was Savard who got the good wood on it."

The Canadian team, playing without eight players who performed in the final game against Russia last Thursday, was hard-pressed for the tie.

The Czechs took command after the first period and it wasn't until just before the final goal that the Team Canada squad seemed to recover their poise in time for the late-game heroics that have seemed to become a pattern of their recent games.

Paul Henderson, who didn't dress for Saturday's game, did it twice at Moscow, scoring in the 58th minute for a 4-3 win Tuesday and in the final minute Thursday for a 6-5 Canadian victory. Team Canada took the series with Russia 4-3 with one game tied.

But Saturday was Savard's day, a day that might not have been had he followed up his desire earlier in the month to call it quits.

The 28-year-old defenceman has played only 40 National Hockey League games in the last two years while recovering from two broken legs.

Then, with the Team Canada-Russia series tied up after a game in Winnipeg on Sept. 6, he suffered a broken ankle in a morning workout before the team departed for Vancouver.

"I thought I was through. After all, after twice breaking the other leg . . . But then I found I was able to start skating in Sweden and play in the second game to Moscow," Savard said Saturday.

"Now I'm optimistic again. I was playing in the four wins and the tie in the Russian series. So maybe that's a sign my luck has changed."

His first goal Saturday sent the Canadians away to a 2-0 first period lead in which the Czechs seemed to be overawed by being on the same sheet of ice as the North American professionals. Pete Mahovlich counted the second Canadian goal with a blast from just inside the Czech blueline.

Then the Czechs, reigning

world amateur champions, regrouped and came back with three straight goals—by Bohuslav Stastny, Milan Kuzela and Jiri Kochta. The score credited to Kuzela also appeared to go in off Stastny's stick.

The game marked the only one on the tour in which three officials—referee and two linesmen—were used, the system most familiar to NHL players. In the series with Russia and in two games against Sweden the international system of two referees was employed.

Canadian coach Harry Sinden explained Henderson's absence by saying the winger suffered a groin injury in the second period of the final game against Russia and had been advised by the team doctor not even to play in the third period.

They were replaced by Czech-born Stan Mikita, Marcel Dionne, Bill Goldsworthy, Wayne Cashman, Mickey Redmond, Dale Tallon, Don Awrey, Brian Glennie and Rod Seiling, who had seen little or no action since the two games in Stockholm.

Team Canada Content

PRAGUE (CP) — "It's great trying to come out of this one with a tie," John Ferguson, assistant coach with Team Canada, said with a sigh of relief after his club tied the Czechoslovak national team 3-3 Saturday night.

"We may not have deserved it," Ferguson said.

"The Czechs are the world champions and I'd have been really disappointed had we lost."

"We couldn't seem to take control until the last 10 minutes," Ferguson said.

Espositos Missing

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A reception planned for the Esposito brothers, Phil and Tony, had to be cancelled today when the two Team Canada players informed organizers they would be unable to attend.

Phil Esposito, of Boston Bruins, and Tony, of Chicago Black Hawks, had to report to their respective National Hockey League teams following a gigantic welcome home party in Toronto Sunday night.

Saturday went to a large extent differently from that which played the Russians to a 4-4-1 series win and which won and tied against Sweden.

On the other hand, the Canadians were playing a team that had been together for about five days and was playing its fourth game of the season as a unit—its first against tough competition.

Asked after the game whether he had gone a little bit on his selection, Ferguson said:

"All the people out there were very capable hockey players. Some may not have had the legs the others showed in early games."

Stan Mikita, Czech born and a favorite with the Czechoslovak crowd of 14,200, played for the first time since the Stockholm series and looked slow.

It was only with the game going into the last 10 minutes that the Canadians began to spark.

"The Czechs had control of the puck for the first two periods," said Ferguson, who spoke on behalf of head coach Harry Sinden, reported ill with a sore throat.

"They play a Canadian style more than the Russians and they're just as good as the Russians, but with a different style."

Meads, Printers Face Final Lap

Belleville appears to have reserved ringside seats for the celebration of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association's 50th anniversary party.

Two city teams — the Hordand and Robert Printer Intermediate AA entry, and the Mead Johnson squirts — are out to bring Belleville its first OASA title in 15 years.

TIM SOULE

BOB ETHIER

Not since a Belleville peewee team won provincial honors in 1967 has an OASA title been brought to the city and there have been only three others: Intermediate AA in 1955, Junior A in 1945, and intermediate A back in 1936.

But after weekend action, Belleville stands a good chance of adding to the local softball honor roll.

Saturday, the Mead Johnson squirts moved to within one win of provincial honors, riding Tim Soule's one-hitter to a 3-1 win over Sarnia in the first game of the best-of-three OASA final series.

Soule, who threw a 9-0 no-hitter at Sarnia in a June tournament, had another one going into the seventh and final inning at the Alemite Field Saturday. But a couple of errors, a walk, and Carman's single gave Sarnia their only run of the game. Soule struck out Dillon to end it.

Feature Race Not Fastest

KINGSTON (Staff) — The featured race of the day Sunday afternoon at Frontenac Downs was the eighth — and usually the fastest attraction are supposed to record the fastest time of the day.

Well Dandy Duke, driven by dash leader Hugh Wamp won the race in 2:08 flat but it wasn't the fastest of the day.

That honor belinged to Johnny Command who won in almost two seconds faster than Dandy Duke.

The regular performer at the Belleville Raceway was in 2:07 4-5 by beating Willbrook May to the wire. Owner Al Vance of Cortyville drove the grey year-old gelding to victory.

The day officially titled Gananoque Day at the Downs was successful for the Gananoque's with Gananoque resident, Stacey showing up in the winners circle. Marshall as an owner (Dominion K Rose) and Stacey as a driver (Dandy Dandy).

Racing resumes Wednesday night with another Ladies Night card. Post time is 7:45 p.m.

Other Sunday winners were Helen G. Vonlas in the first, Betting Lass in the third, Prince Goldie (4), Gypsy M. Gratias Derby Day (6), and Babe's Girl in the 10th and final heat.

Meanwhile, Belleville's harness racing season ended on a damp note, with weather conditions cancelling Saturday's last of the Quinte Exhibition Raceway's 22-card season.

Kingston Frontenac goalie Tom O'Toole appears to be praying for the Belleville Bobcats scoring thrust to be stopped. This one, led by Belleville forward Mike Watt, were, but seven others weren't as the Bobcats dumped Kingston's new entry in the Metro Toronto Tier 2 Junior A League 7-1. Watt, here receiving extra defensive attention from Kingston's Bruce Jennings and Shawn Wight, contributed two goals and an assist to the Bobcat attack.

Bobcat Hustle Too Much for Kingston

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Coach Murray "Moe" Hunter might be having trouble picking three stars from his crediting overall team bustle with such results as Sunday night's 7-1 exhibition win over Kingston Frontenacs.

But there was no doubt in his mind when it came to pinpointing the turning point that enabled the Bobcats, newcomers in the Metro Junior B league this season, to bring down the Frontenacs, former Eastern Ontario B League rivals making a jump to Tier 2 Junior A ranks this winter.

"That goal by Meagher was the big turning point for us," Hunter noted, referring to rookie Rick Meagher's late second-period burst from his own end to catch up with Wallbridge, Dalnard's defensive pair. Meagher flashed by a Kingston defenceman and beat goalie Joe Myles with 25 seconds remaining in the period.

Dalnard's power-play point shot early in the opening period had been the game's only scoring play to that point, but Meagher's goal seemed to bring the Bobcats to life as they came out with five goals in the last 20 minutes, firing 21 shots on the Kingston net.

Overall, Belleville outshot the visitors 48-23, and Phil Marshall's power - play goal at 13.03 of the final period was the only Kingston shot to make Bobcat goalie Bob Moore.

The Bobcats had to win their second of three exhibition starts without much help from their power - play. Dalnard's goal and Rick Meagher's second of the game marked the only time the Bobcats could take advantage of nine Kingston manpower shortages.

"No, the powerplay isn't working for us like it should be," conceded coach Hunter. "But I've been trying to work everybody on it this past week so they'll know how we want it to work."

"Pretty soon I'll cut it back to our five best."

Hunter expressed delight over the play of winger Mike Watt's play, that earned the midget graduate two goals and an assist. Larry McQuaid who also scored in Friday night's 10-4 shellacking of Whitby added another Sunday, with the other Bobcat goal coming from defenceman Neil Turner.

Defenceman Dave Flesch, another midget grad, came in for some praise for his steady blueline play.

Dave's playing really well for us back there," noted Hunter. "The other defencemen we have — Dalnard, John and Turner — are rushers, and Flesch fits in real well."

The Bobcats hope to improve upon their 2-1 pre-season record Friday night when they are at home to Ottawa Vaniers in a 9 o'clock Memorial Arena game.

Webster Own Worst Enemy

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

OAK HILL LAKE — Speedboat racing veteran John Webster was his own worst enemy in Sunday's Canadian National Stock Hydroplane Racing Championships.

The Scarborough competitor, defending points champion in A, B and D Stock classes on the Canadian Rowing Federation circuit, entered the B and D events of the season's culminating event here Sunday, but jumped the gun to disqualify himself from the A Stock final.

"I was ahead in B point standings before today," the greying Webster noted. "But I'm back in D this season.

"In my last race — at Sala — I smashed up my D boat and had to dig out an old one. It worked out all right today."

Webster won the D Stock class by the narrowest of margins, nipping rival Ted Abel by a second in combined results of two heats.

It was no competition in the B heats, with Webster leading from start to finish, clocking up times of 2.58 and 2.55 around the 2 ¾-mile oval course for a healthy lead over runner-up Bill Bolton of Windsor.

"There haven't been that many races, this season," Webster recalled "But of eight races I've been in, I must have won six."

Abel took C Stock honors while Ron France of Rexdale drove home in front of the A Stock pack in Sunday's final, which counts double points towards winners' season totals.

An exhibition Grand Prix open race drew only four entries, with Willowdale driver Steve Allison winning handily

Juveniles Stay One Step Ahead

The Western Tire juvenile stickers stayed a step ahead of the Blake Kerr Imperial midget wizards Sunday, winning a 5-4 exhibition over their younger OMHA counterparts.

Senior Luck Better

Belleville's senior hockey picture is getting brighter and none too soon.

With the '44-game OHA Senior A schedule slated to get underway Friday, there was good news on several Quintes' fronts Sunday.

Not only did the Belleville seniors dump Kingston Aces 8-3 in their own backyard, but the Quintes appear to have regained the playing services of a couple of key lineup members for the past several years.

Perennial 20 - goal scorer Lorne O'Donnell, who has been attending the New England Whalers WHA camp the past couple of weeks, was expected to sign with the Quintes today.

Popular centre George Godson, out the last part of last season with a knee injury, after piling up 36 points in 23 games, was a spectator at Sunday night's Kingston game and will be making his first training camp appearance at tonight's 8.30 Quintes' practice at the Memorial Arena.

Accompanying Godson is supposed to be a player who attended Atlanta Flames's Peterborough NHL camp.

Sunday's 3-2 Belleville win, courtesy goals by Mike Rezo, John McConnell and Al Perrazzo, atoned for the Quintes' 4-3 home ice loss to the Aces last Tuesday.

It also set the stage Friday's schedule opener in Kingston.

Flag Race Down To Three Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American League schedule maker didn't know it last winter when he drew up the calendar, but he has created one dandy wrapup to the 1972 regular season.

The East Division race, five months and some 150 games after it started, has come down to the final three games of the baseball season. The contenders are Boston, Red Sox and Detroit Tigers and the battle will be settled as it should be—head to head.

The Red Sox are in Detroit for the start of a three-game series tonight. The team that wins two of those games will advance to the playoffs to face Oakland Athletics.

Boston's first-place edge was trimmed to one-half game Sunday when the Red Sox dropped a 2-1 decision to Baltimore Orioles while Detroit was whipping Milwaukee Brewers 5-1.

"It's plain and simple," said Boston's Carl Yastrzemski. "We have to win two out of three games in Detroit."

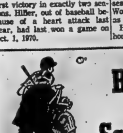
Baltimore's starter Mike Cuellar was having none of that. He scattered eight hits and Bobby Grich's sixth-inning homer gave the Orioles the victory.

On the other scoreboard, the Sox watched Detroit's John Hiller, the Toronto native, mow down Milwaukee on five hits for his first victory in exactly two seasons. Hiller, out of baseball because of a heart attack last year, had last won a game on Oct. 1, 1970.

Aurelio Rodriguez cracked a three-run homer and Dick McAuliffe and Al Kaline added solo shots to account for the Tiger runs.

"It was a big thrill coming back to baseball," Hiller said, "but maybe it's a bigger thrill being in the race."

When the Boston-Baltimore score was posted on the scoreboard at Tiger stadium, a beer can went up from the crowd of 17,409.



"No, I didn't turn around," said Hiller, who was on the mound at the time. "I knew what happened. I knew they weren't cheering for me."

Williams Now Adviser

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Ted Williams has decided not to manage Texas Rangers of the American League after the season, team president Robert E. Short announced Saturday.

Williams, who had a five-year managerial contract, will terminate it after four years but will remain with the club in an advisory capacity. During his playing career with Boston Red Sox, 1939-60, Williams banged 344 and his 521 home runs, despite missing all or part of five seasons during the Second World War and the Korean War as a marine combat pilot.

He is eighth on the all-time homer list.

Gullett Proves He's Recuperated

Southpaw Don Gullett, the Cincinnati Reds left-hander who had hepatitis earlier this season, proved Sunday that he's fit to start the National League playoffs by beating Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0.

Steve Blass, the obvious choice to start next Saturday for Pittsburgh's Pirates, was possibly knocked out of the assignment when struck by a line drive on his right elbow in a 7-3 loss to New York Mets.

"The doctor told me to keep moving it so that it wouldn't tighten up," said Blass; a 19-game winner after catching John Milner's drive on his pitching arm in the first inning Sunday.

Blass' arm was x-rayed at a hospital and the examination proved negative.

In the other Sunday games Montreal Expos defeated Philadelphia Phillies 10-6, Chicago Cubs trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 3-0, San Diego Padres turned back Houston Astros 3-1 and San Francisco Giants beat Atlanta Braves 6-2.

The Phillies and Montreal split Saturday. Philadelphia taking the opener of their doubleheader 3-0 and the losing 8-4. Elsewhere, St.Louis edged Chicago 3-1 in 10 innings, San Francisco trimmed Atlanta 3-1, Pittsburgh blanked New York 5-0, Houston nipped San Diego 4-3 and Los Angeles downed Cincinnati 4-2.

Milner's hit off Blass' elbow drove in New York's third run of the inning. The Mets then put the game away with a four-run third inning highlighted by Ted Martinez' three-run homer.

The defeat frustrated Blass' efforts to become the first 20-game winner at Pittsburgh since Vernon Law in 1960.

Gullett, whose hepatitis to mid-summer knocked him out of action for several weeks, appeared to be as strong as ever with a one-hit performance through eight innings Sunday.

Clay Carroll finished up in the ninth and recorded his 36th save of the year, a major league record.

Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson said:

"I made up my mind to give Carroll every chance to get that record because he certainly deserved it."

Clemente Was Worth $4,000

PITTSBURGH (AP) — On Nov. 22, 1954, Pittsburgh Pirates paid $4,000 to draft a young, obscure Puerto Rican from the Montreal farm team of Brooklyn Dodgers.

Eighteen seasons later, that player, Roberto Clemente, has reached baseball's exclusive 3,000 hit plateau, an achievement shared by only 10 other players in major-league baseball history.

Many observers link the Pirate coup to scouring Clemente from the Dodgers to the quota system which once restricted the entry of blacks into the big leagues.

The 38-year-old Clemente, born in Carolina, Puerto Rico, was signed to a free-agent contract by the Dodgers in 1953—seven years after Jackie Robinson broke baseball's color barrier.

There were five black players on the Dodger parent club that year, and Clemente was signed to a minor-league contract—even though it meant the risk of losing him in the draft.

Though he batted just 148 times for a .257 average in his only season at Montreal, Clemente caught the eyes of Pirate scouts.

Pittsburgh finished last in the National League last year and made the 20-year-old outfielder its No. 1 choice in the draft.

Since then, Clemente has compiled a .318 lifetime average, won four batting titles and hit .300 a dozen times. He has more hits, runs - batted - in and total bases than any player in Pirate history.

Plunkett Grows More Grey Hair

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I don't like these endings," says Jim Plunkett, said. "Between this week and last week, I'm getting gray hairs."

Last week, it was a missed 19-yard field goal in the final minute that gave his New England Patriots a 20-19 victory over Atlanta Falcons.

The 24-year-old quarterback put New England ahead Sunday with a remarkable scrambling touchdown pass, then had to wait out four frantic minutes before the Patriots pulled out it.

Ticats Now 3-for-3 Against Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bruce Smith came up grinning. Angelo Mosca appeared a little miffed, but the Hamilton team-mates were elated after the Tiger-Cats pulled out a 25-20 win Sunday over Ottawa Rough Riders.

The Hamilton victory vaulted them into a first-place tie with Ottawa in the Eastern Football Conference, each with 7-3 records. All three Ottawa losses have been to the Ticats.

In the only other weekend action, Toronto Argonauts put on their finest offensive display of the season but new their playoff hopes take another jolt when they lost a 31-30 squeaker to Edmonton Eskimos in Canadian Football League inter-locking action.

What Smith and Big Angie were so keyed up over was the Ticats' third touchdown, when Mosca sketchy kicked a loose ball into the Ottawa end zone and appeared set to fall on it for his first ever touchdown.

Instead, the ball eluded him. Ottawa's Tom Schmidt flew past it and Smith grabbed it to send the Ticats into a 21-6 lead.

Hamilton's other touchdown was scored by quarterback Chuck Ealey on a one-yard run. Ian Sclater converted all three, added a 46-yard field goal and a single.

Ottawa got touchdowns in the final quarter from Hugh Oldbert and Terry Wellesley. Gerry Organ, who kicked both converts, earlier had two field goals of 40 and 46 yards.

Joe Theismann's return to the Toronto lineup appeared to stimulate the Argo offence, but has been sputtering under a number of quarterbacks since Theismann broke his ankle in the season opener against Montreal.

The latest bretender, and most successful in terms of longevity, was Wally Gabler, who started against the Eskimos but gave way to Masterson to start the second quarter with Edmonton in front 7-3.

Masterson had the Argos in front 19-14 in the third quarter when he was brought down by Edmonton's Tom Gay, reinjuring the same ankle.

Quarterback Tom Wilkinson, traded away two years ago, passed for three touchdowns—to Tyrone Walls, George McGowan and ex-Argo Bobby Taylor. Harry Abels, a running back who's dropped by the Argos a few weeks ago and converted to a defensive back by Edmonton, snuffed out a Toronto drive in the final minute when he intercepted a Gabler pass.

Mims Gallops Way Through Rider Holes

CALGARY (CP) — Coach Jim Duncan was thankful for a quick first-quarter start and praised halfback Jesse Mims as Calgary Stampeders whipped Saskatchewan Roughriders 31-14 in a Western Football Conference game Sunday.

"When Mims is right he makes things happen," said Duncan, whose fourth-place Stampeders kept their hopes alive for the third and final playoff berth.

Mims, 5-year-old New Mexico State graduate, scored two touchdowns on a pair of 30-yard runs and collected 125 yards running on 20 carries.

Since coming off the 30-day injured list, Mims has picked up 316 yards on 56 carries in Calgary's last three games.

Duncan also credited fullback Fritz Seyferth, who got 80 yards on 18 carries against Saskatchewan.

"Seyferth's blocking has made a big difference to Mims' running," said Duncan.

The victory was the Stampeders' fourth in 10 starts and moved them within four points of the Roughriders and four ahead of the last-place British Columbia Lions.

Better Coach

CALGARY (CP) — Defensive back Frank Andrunki, who intercepted two key passes for Calgary Stampeders Sunday as they bounced Saskatchewan Roughriders 31-14, is even better as a coach.

The bantam team he coaches has won all of its six games this season, scoring 301 points and blanking all opponents.

Cadet Drowns In Competition

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The search for the body of a young officer cadet who drowned on an obstacle course competition was delayed because he was believed to have gone hitch-hiking, the commandant of Royal Military College said Sunday.

Provincial police divers recovered the body of Anthony Bowie, 18, of Antigonish, N.S., in Navy Bay Sunday, three days after he was reported missing.

Brig-Gen. W. K. Lye of the military college told a news conference that college officials notified police of the cadet's absence Friday, when he failed to turn up after a 25-minute obstacle course.

The college commandant said police were told to watch local highways for the cadet, who was believed to be hitch-hiking.

He said that when police failed to find the first-year cadet, they decided to search the bay for his body.

Brig-Gen Lye said a two-man board of inquiry has been appointed from the college, and he will base his decision on whether to continue the obstacle course partially on the findings of the inquiry.

Governor Stuart Patterson criticized the competitions, saying, "I think this belongs to the 19th century."

"I'm sure the army has obstacle tests—and I do not disagree with this as a training method, but at the college, it's not just finishing, it's finishing with glory that counts."

The competitive nature of the course, the coroner said in an interview, plus the hazards of some of the obstacles, create a very dangerous activity.

For 50 years Canadian Tire has said, "We make your dollars go farther"...

SUMMER RADIALS Built stronger for Canadian roads. (Available most stores) now let's prove it — here's how

- Pick the tire that best suits your requirements
- Compare quality ... compare advertised price
- Our challenge: Canadian Tire shows you savings up to 45%

And we mean exactly what we say. For instance, buy a pair of competitive tires and if they are equal to, or better than the quality we here advertise, and our competitor's price is less—we will buy them back from you, pay you the invoice price and double the saving. If necessary we will cut your tire to prove quality difference and that we have more tire. We will buy back the cut tire—but only if it's equal to or better than ours.

All Their Own Work

The house is dwarfed by this seven - storey balloon as Mike Adams and Harold Carter inflate it to test it before trying to make their first balloon flight over Atlanta Saturday. The two men built the 124 balloon in their carport. They said it cost them over $3,000 and many weeks of hard work, but they believe this will soon be the coming thing. (AP Photo)

Genesis Play Is Banned

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — A play based on the book of Genesis has been banned by South African censors because it contains brief nude scenes.

The publications control board told playwright Donald Howarth this weekend that his 55-minute play Scarboro,ugh was unsuitable, could give offence and was not in the interests of the public.

The play was performed four as "sensitively handled and inoffensive."

Yardmen Prizes Are $16,500

Out-of-town winners made a clean sweep of all three prizes in the September Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund.

First prize of $9,000 was won by R. Paynter of Kingston with second prize of $4,750 going to Barbara Gover of Ottawa. Winner of the $2,750 third prize went to B. Lajeunesse of Ville Dolery, Quebec. Sellers of the two top prize tickets received $500 each and the third prize seller, $700.

Prize money in the Yardmen's October draw will be increased to $19,500.

Car Hits Deer

BRIGHTON (Staff) — A Toronto man motorist was driving along county road 40 near here at 7:25 p.m. Sunday when a deer ran from the path of his car.

Carl Francis White, 26, of 253 Dundas St. East, was uninjured. The deer was killed. Its carcass was sent by Brighton detachment OPP to the ministry of natural resources for disposal. The car sustained $150 damage.

Loved Singer Dead

NEW YORK (CP) — Richard Crooks, the tenor many music lovers in the 1920s and 1930s called the American John McCormack, died Friday of cancer in his California home. He was 72.

Crooks was a star of the Metropolitan Opera for many years and familiar to millions of radio listeners as the featured singer for 14 years on the Voice of Firestone weekly concert hour, where he sang popular ballads.

Crooks retired in 1946 after a career that spanned several continents and made him one of the first American singers to star at The Met.

Born in Trenton, N.J., he began as a boy soprano at a local church and, after serving in The First World War, made his singing debut in 1922 with the New York Symphony.

Crooks was an established singer with a world reputation when Guillo Gatti-Casazza, then general manager of the Met, announced in 1932 he would be one of eight new singers in the season ahead.

With the Met's invitation his reputation gained even more stature and for 10 years he was heard regularly in many operas. Among them were Tosca, Manon, La Traviata, Lindi di Chamounix, Mignon, Romeo and Juliet and Don Giovanni.

But the public knew him better as the singer of sweet songs in the Voice of Firestone, and his radio appearances made him one of the most famous entertainers in North America. On his radio programs, as well as recordings, he concentrated on the lighter and more accessible side of the repertory, singing ballads, popular tunes and other established favorites.

Schonberg wrote: "In this too, his career resembled that of McCormack. Mr. Crooks had the ability to sing any kind of music with such exquisite taste that it emerged dignified. He handled this kind of material as a Kreisler on the violin, with impeccable phrasing and musical dignity. And he also was one of the great vocal technicians."

Crooks died in his home at Portola Valley, Calif. He is survived by his wife of 51 years, Mildred, and two children and eight grandchildren.

Iceberg Study Begins in East

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Memorial University's school of engineering has mounted a combined land, sea and air study of icebergs off Newfoundland's Labrador Coast.

Dr. John Allen, Memorial's group leader of ocean engineering, said the main objective of the study is to test a way to predict the probability of a moving iceberg colliding with a fixed marine structure.

Studies are also being made of the grounding, shape, stability and water column in the vicinity of an iceberg.

Dr. Allen said the land-based contingent is responsible for tracking the movement of icebergs, using radar and making visual and photographic observations.

The Bedford Institute of Oceanography in Dartmouth, N.S., has provided the Dawson, a research ship, to obtain environmental information on moving icebergs and ocean currents.

Dr. Allen said the Dawson's special cameras can photograph the above-water portion of the iceberg and "er some can de termine the sub-surface shape.

The land-based team will report a stationary iceberg to the sea groups who will determine if it has grounded and whether or not it has gouged a track in the bottom sediment.

Dr. Allen said the dimensions of the iceberg, the extent and nature of its gouge track, will be measured and recorded and samples of sediment will be gathered.

The land group would provide information on the iceberg's behavior prior to its grounding.

The Canadian Forces Maritime Command would provide general charts of iceberg distribution and information on surface temperatures and currents at the beginning and the end of the study.

CANADIAN DRAMAS

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Grand River Cable Television has initiated a program of videotaping Canadian dramas for television. The first production is a 30-minute comedy written by a resident of Tillsonburg, Ont. A spokesman for the company said a script had been received from as far away as Nova Scotia. The company will offer the taped dramas to outlets in Canada and the United States.

RODERICK H. ROLLINS CONSTRUCTION LIMITED

APARTMENT FOR RENT

One and two bedroom luxury apartments in various locations of the city. Some with immediate possession. Also two and three bedroom townhouses for $142.00 and $152.00 per month including services.

THINK SPRING

If you are contemplating moving, building, or trading your home next spring now is the time to start your ground work. Avoid the summer rush and let us build at our leisure over the winter months.

LOCATION IS THE NAME OF THE GAME

And we have it in our "Foxton Park Phase II" sub-division. Only minutes from public and high schools, Richard Ellis arena, curling club, and bus service. Numerous homes under construction but there still is an excellent choice of lots on which we could build your home.

MORTGAGES

Easy Mortgage Money from Associates

EASY TO GET. The amount is limited only by the equity you have in your home. It could be $5,000 or $50,000 maybe $100,000. Ask us how we never say "no" and borrowers say brokerages love to deal.

EASY TO TALK TO because you may be eligible for a special rate of interest.

EASY TO PAY BACK. We can spread the load over many years — which means lower monthly payments. Ask us how we never say "no" — and it's a lot of fun! Mortgage Loans is easy money!

Too Many Tourists Says British MP

LONDON (CP) — There may be arguments over whether London is overcrowded with tourists but Labor MP Sir Geoffrey Tucker apparently has no doubts.

When I have great difficulty in crossing the road to this House because of swarms of tourists, I think that enough is enough and that this corner of the island is beginning to sink under the weight of visitors," de Freitas told the Commons.

They're beginning to feel that way in Westminster, too, where the deputy municipal clerk, Jack Pigeon, called the state of local hotels "appalling."

"We feel that something will have to be done urgently," said Pigeon in a reference to growing traffic problems caused by the influx of visitors to the historic town 25 miles west of London.

Some two million visitors — 500,000 more than in 1971—are expected in the area around Windsor Castle this year, all of which creates parking and driving in the adjacent community a monumental headache for the police.

Crown officials have called in what are grandly termed "leisure management" experts to report on how public access to the castle can be made easier for all concerned.

What compounds the street complications in Windsor, London and other parts of tourist-thronged Britain is the vast fleet of buses which convey gawking visitors from sight to picturesque sight.

In the process, the cumbersome vehicles block precious traffic lanes as they crawl through narrow streets like that of Windsor rococococococo to that of Windsor Castle or St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

In the Common discussion about this unsavory topic, de Freitas suggested that the biggest touristic task facing the government is to encourage the British Travel Association to try spreading the mass of visitors more evenly over the country as a whole.

Britain's problem, de Freitas said, is not a question of too many tourists but of too many in too few places.

But the parliamentary debate also saw expressions of worry about the alleged overtiming of foreign visitors in Britain — a country which usually is considered a haven for North Americans and European travellers seeking host nations they can just.

In this connection, Conservative Joan Hall singled out unlicensed street traders who sell souvenirs and other wares but are particularly prominent in Oxford Street and around Parliament's headquarters in Westminster.

The mass of the hawkers she contended, are vendors of ice cream and hot dogs but she added that other culprits abound as well in a variety of trades.

Yet she insisted that such unscrupulous elements make up only a small proportion of Britons currently living off tourism.

Bearing this out, Anthony Grant, a spokesman for the government's Department of Industrial development, recalled that British had earned $600 million (about $1.25 billion) in foreign currency from overseas visitors last year.

This year, predictions are that the number of visitors run as high as eight million.

In 1911, Parliament Buildings alone were, a magnet for 50,000 tourists, and 190,000 guided-tours watched parliamentary debates from what is officially called the Strangers' Gallery.

Grant said the government even now has a policy of helping the development of tourism in regions outside London.

This would assist the processes of spreading the benefits more evenly throughout the country, and so avoiding the instances of congestion cited by de Freitas and other worried Britons.

DUSEPIC STORMS

"MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A government spokesman said President Ferdinand E. Marcos has invited other Asian countries to a conference to discuss the possibility of combating the force of typhoons by seeding the storms with chemical particles.

Federal Action Is Requested

OTTAWA (CP) — Call it garbage, rubbish, trash, litter, junk, refuse—the federal government should be playing a greater role in its management and re-use, says Dr. Asit K. Biswas, chief of the environment department's ecological systems research division.

Although garbage is primarily a municipal responsibility there are several areas in which the federal government may be involved, he said in an interview. These included research and development programs, dissemination of information and development of markets for products from waste.

Sale of products from waste material offers considerable potential for the government is a major purchaser and is able to give a strong boost to recycled products and thus an incentive to free enterprise to get involved, he said.

As well, the federal government could provide subsidies or tax incentives if there are precedents in other fields—and so contribute to more efficient utilization of natural and human resources involved in the disposal of large amounts of garbage in Canada.

Dr. Biswas is an internationally-known expert in resources management and computer modelling techniques.

He and bo-author Herach Jacobs, now a University of Toronto civil engineering student, listed these points in a recent environment department publication, Eur. Dr. Biswas added the conclusions are their own and do not imply departmental policy.

In the 356-page mimeographed book called Solid Waste Management: Problems and Perspectives, the authors say garbage is one of the world's most pressing problems, that it has "reached critical proportions" and that there is "considerable public attention to the matter."

The average amount of waste produced each day worked out for every man, woman and child in Canada is 4.5 pounds, they say.

"By the year 2000, the figure will increase to 7.5 pounds."

Dumping is called an unsatisfactory practice "since it may seldom convert" with soil; open burning often creates air pollution problems; and ignorance of geologic conditions in site selection frequently leads to pollution of water.

The supporting material in the first 209 pages describes where modern technology stands in waste management, including that of industrial wastes, litter, household garbage, and other refuse. Dr. Biswas sums it up in one word: Research.

For example, the ways of collecting and transporting household garbage, which account for 75 to 80 per cent of disposal costs, have not shown any major changes for two decades, he says.

"Even a 12-per-cent saving there would be a major one."

Sweden had developed an experimental vacuum system for transporting refuse through transport tubes connected to apartment chutes connected to disposal stations.

Dr. Biswas said other such methods of technology approaches must be looked at, and the federal government should support such research.

"No single level or agency has sufficient capacity to solve the solid waste problems in Canada," the authors say. "Industries and regions" the authors say.

"Newspapers, for example, may be more efficiently processed by recycling than if remanufactured into newsprint. Moreover, . . . recycling newsprint saves trees, but it also drains off more fuel energy than if the material were converted to another form such as fertilizer.

"Similarly, household garbage for power saves fossil fuels and nickel; however, the saving might be greater by converting garbage to fuel oil."

Dr. Biswas and Mr. Jacobs conclude that there must be consideration to other industries and of satisfactory compromise between economic benefits and social benefits.

So the federal government is seen as having a role, especially in leadership, initiation of projects and goal formation.

Rice Hits Top With Superstar

LONDON (CP) — Inside a turnstile-blown house in the west London district of Bayswater, Tim Rice, tall and well-built, leaned over a jolt of tea and detected the idea Jesus Christ Superstar.

As the familiar sounds of the theme song to one of the most acclaimed rock operas pound out of loudspeakers, Rice listened, detached.

"At last," he said. "I'm in the final throes of superstarring."

When he wrote Jesus Christ Superstar more than three years ago with fellow Lancashire Andrew Lloyd Webber, the two young men had little idea that they were on the threshold of a remarkable success.

"We never envisaged it all this," Rice said glancing at piles of London newspapers advertising the album and the show, respectively.

"I suppose the one thing that must have snowballed the work was the Jesus movement in the States. The album appeared there just as that was getting under way and, naturally, rocketed to the top of the charts in a very perfect timing, I admit, but quite unintentional."

Now, after countless successes in a dozen countries the album has soaked and more than six million album, yules later, Rice is looking to the future.

Superstar has at last been staged in a London theatre," and it's the most accurate version that's ever been, Rice said.

Critics had mixed feelings about the show. One complained it was "startling and unsettling." Another said he enjoyed the foot-stomping rock numbers but the rest. Critic Times praised "the undeniable devotion and excitement that went into this remarkable opera."

Rice is relaxed he's "happy with the way everything has turned out" but is also grief feel part of it all now."

Nevertheless, it is not easy to escape from the success of a show which practically thru the twenty-year-old lyricist and bi-lionaire bracket overnight.

A constant stream of letters pours into Rice's home from young and old admirers, praising him for "putting Christ in the right perspective," as one note said.

Others, however, are stressed that Superstar "has no messages for anyone."

It's just a story taken from the Bible and if there are any messages in it, you'll find them in the Bible's version of the last seven days in Christ's life, not in mine.

"I think the basic point of Superstar is the portrayal of Christ as Christ) was a good but as a man.

This attitude, he said has "literally Christianity out into the open and now youngsters can discuss J. C. freely and maybe enjoy reading some of the really great Bible stories. The Bible is a fascinating book, and at last kids are beginning to catch onto that."

The 27-year-old Rice rarely goes to church and described himself as "on the verge of atheism." Since his days at an exclusive public school in Sussex and as a student at the university of the Sorbonne in Paris, he has been disillusioned by the idea of writing for the churches.

Deroille fely moderate success as a librettist before Superstar, Rice expects the out-of-file sensation only "is a logical progression in my development."

Some of his previous collaboration with Lloyd Webber, was also barred on a religious theme, Joseph and his Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, a musical on the Bible story of Joseph and his coat of many colors. It was popular three-piece schools in Britain and the United States, its success there where it was performed at end-of-term concerts by school choirs backed by orchestras and sometimes pop groups.

The first Rice-Lloyd Webber oratorio, a musical based on the life of Barnardo, failed to get off the ground in 1965. The two went on to write pop songs together during the next two years and although some were recorded, none achieved success.

They are currently working on an opera based on Evita Peron.

RELY ON SELVES

TORONTO (CP) — Individuals must rely on themselves first, and not on governments, to begin meeting the demands of consumer-oriented societies, Rev. Michael Beacon of St. Andrew's United Church told his congregation recently. "Can we continue to consume more and more goods and services in the naive belief that this good earth will somehow take care of the demand, or that we can make synthetic substitutes or run off to another planet when this one wears out!"

Public Getting Wrong Impression

MONTREAL (CP) — The public is being given the incorrect impression that advances in medicine and biochemistry will overcome all the problems associated with mental retardation and mental handicaps, Yvonne Peterman of Sarnia, Ont., head, president of the Ontario Association of Societies for the Mentally Handicapped, said Sunday.

She told the opening session of a four-day international congress on mental retardation that, although science is offering some tremendous advances, there always will be handicapped persons.

And an immediate practical problem caused by the mis-taken faith in genetic control is reduction in public funds for support of programs for the handicapped.

"Genetic counselling, preventive measures during pregnancy, better prenatal diagnosis and cure bring new hope in reducing the numbers of mentally retarded," she said. "But there also raise serious considerations about ethics."

Efficiency must also face the ethical questions associated with genetic control, she told about 5,500 delegates from 47 countries.

But the public is, little by little, getting the idea of a future world where human beings will all be geniuses, olympic champions, world beauties or perfect members of Team Canada.

"This is a false notion, she said. Now genetic problems leading to new kinds of handicaps, are discovered every few weeks.

Mrs. Peterson said she had several questions she hoped doctor delegates could answer during the three following days:

—Why do doctors give up on mentally retarded and mentally handicapped persons and put them away without helping them to progress to the extent of their abilities?

—Why are food expenditures less in hospitals and institutions for the mentally retarded than they are in homes for other kinds of illnesses or other institutions?

—Why are some children with mental handicaps considered by doctor-researchers as candidates for experiments to cure?

The opening session combined speeches of welcome from the federal and Quebec governments, addresses by the congress chairman and the president of the Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Claude Castonguay, Quebec social affairs minister, said his government would support the co-ordination, care and training for handicapped individuals, but it also wanted to see parental responsibility maintained wherever possible.

The declaration of greens, and special rights for the mentally retarded, approved last December by the United Nations, was read to delegates and a film showing both bad and good care situations was shown.

The achievements so far—including the adoption of the declaration—are only the "beginning of the movement" to meet the many needs of the mentally retarded, said Dorothy MacPherson of Regina, CAMR president.

"The mentally retarded are an oppressed minority who need others to speak for and to be said. More involvement, both by individuals and governments are needed if the mentally retarded are to have "the miracle of emancipation."

Cosmonaut Says Capsules to Link

MOSCOW (AP) — A veteran Russian cosmonaut has disclosed that the first Soviet-American manned space venture will last three days and include a 48-hour linkup of the spacecraft and an exchange of crews.

If it is successful it could be the forerunner of a joint U.S.-Soviet expedition to the planet Mars by the end of the century, said Vladimir Shatalov, commander of two Soviet manned flights.

Shatalov, 43, disclosed in a report released Sunday in Austin, the Soviet news agency, that plans for the first joint manned space effort call for an American Apollo spacecraft with three astronauts and a Russian Soyuz capsule with two crew members to be linked in a "single spacecraft" for two days while the spacemen perform joint scientific experiments.

Shatalov did not give the launch date. But his information was the most complete made public to date here on the planned space spectacular and indicated a definite flight plan and schedule had been worked out.

Members of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Soviet Academy of Sciences were believed to have given the green light on the joint flight earlier this year.

A Soyuz spacecraft manned by two cosmonauts will first be launched," Shatalov said. "In 7½ hours, an Apollo spacecraft, manned by three astronauts, will be launched from Cape Kennedy.

"Twenty-four hours after the Apollo will approach the Soyuz ship and a linkup will be performed. The system formed by the linkup will then be operated as a single spacecraft.

"For two days, spacemen will transfer from one ship to the other.

"At the end of the third day, the spaceships will be undocked and will proceed to land on their respective territories."

The two spaceships will be fitted with compatible lighting and communications systems for the rendezvous and docking.

Attacks Heavier In South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon command reported today 100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong rocket, mortar and automatic weapon attacks across South Vietnam.

It was the highest number of enemy incidents in a single day in more than two months, although most of them were small, a spokesman said.

In Thailand, B-52 bombers flew about 36 mortars into the U.S. air base at Udorn, 300 miles northeast of Bangkok, from Communist positions in Laos where Vietnam are launched. A U.S. embassy spokesman said a radar station was slightly damaged but U.S. planes and personnel were untouched.

The U.S. cruiser Newport News and the destroyer Hull steamed off the former Norman McConnell farm. Mrs. Wilkins was introduced to the audience sitting at a party held at Island Park Pavilion.

Mrs. Frank Andrews has left to attend the funeral of her brother, Gordon McKenzie at Penetanguishene, Ontario. While there, she will also visit her daughter and husband at Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Shaw entertained several dinner guests recently in honor of the 25th wedding anniversary of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw.

Attacks Heavier In South Vietnam

Washington Wednesday to report to Kissinger and Nixon on his conference with Thieu, officials said.

The secrecy and import of the talks were underscored also by the fact that only one other official from each side sat in with Thieu and Haig.

U.S. and South Vietnamese officials reported the heaviest blows by U.S. planes against North Vietnam's Hanoi-Haiphong corridor.

U.S. Navy pilots said they laid a shipyard in flames on the southwestern edge of Haiphong. U.S. jets flew more than 250 strikes across North Vietnam Sunday, hitting supply lines, depots, barracks and other military facilities, the U.S. command said.

North Vietnam claimed it shot down six American planes.

Danes Voting To Join ECM

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — Denmark's 2,400,000 electors appear set to vote the country into the European Common Market today—possibly one of the biggest political demonstrations in modern Danish history and neighboring Norway's recent rejection of membership.

Opinion surveys predicted a majority in the national referendum on whether Denmark should join the European Economic Community.

The poll findings surprised many observers because it was expected that Norway's "No" decision in a similar referendum on Sept. 26 and 27 would influence Danish voters.

But there has been no significant anti-Market swing, although the anti-Marketeers put on an unprecedented show of strength Sunday by drawing a crowd estimated at between 50,000 and 80,000 to a rally in Copenhagen's main square.

It was the biggest public demonstration since King Frederik died last January.

At one stage, bystanders were amazed at the sight of a tall man walking past fully looked after for a tiny, scientifically-placed piece of paper saying, "No to the EEC."

The rally protest was peaceful and good natured. There paraded almost to the music of a rock band while partents walked about wheeling babies in carriages and carrying children on their shoulders.

But it seems unlikely to affect much effect. The majority of Danes appear to have accepted that membership is the price of the Common Market.

The country's reliance on farm exports, particularly to the British market, could make staying out disastrously economic suicide. Many Danish hog and dairy farmers could face ruin in the absence of alternative markets.

Danish prime Minister Jens Otto Krag has warned that saying no to the Common Market would mean an immediate 30 per cent increase of his currency.

The rules of the Danish referendum, which is binding on the government, specify that the negative vote, as well as obtaining a simple majority, must total 30 per cent of the electorate to prevent Denmark going into the market.

Should just the "Noes" therefore has to obtain 1,206,681 votes, says the ministry for home affairs which is in charge of the referendum.

Firecrackers Kill Five

JAKARTA (Reuter) — Five children were killed when a big pile of firecrackers exploded in Surabaya, east Java, the Kni news agency reported Monday.

Pope Hopeful

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul says a much desired peace has existed for off in many countries. The pontiff did not mention specific countries in his address to a crowd assembled in St. Peter's Square for the traditional Sunday noon blessing.

Abortion Issue In Demonstrations

HAMILTON (CP) — Opponents and supporters of abortion held separate demonstrations Sunday outside Henderson General Hospital here.

The anti-abortica march of about 150 persons, sponsored by the Hamilton Right to Live, included representatives from the Ontario centres of Kitchener, Waterloo, Galt, Guelph and Brantford.

Another 180 anti-abortionists held an hour-long silent vigil outside Joseph Brant Memorial Hospital in Burlington, sponsored by the Burlington Right to Live.

"It's the beginning of a real developing people's crusade," one of the organizers said.

In Toronto, several hundred people representing the Toronto Right to Life Association staged a silent vigil outside the Toronto General Hospital while a small group of pro-abortionists staged a counter-demonstration.

No other demonstrations were reported elsewhere in Canada, but in Toronto a group called the Canadian Women's Coalition to Repeal the Abortion Laws said rallies and demonstrations are planned for Oct. 21 across the country.

Newlyweds Get Books

PARIS (AP) — The village mayor has banned all the newlyweds in the town hall and said: "Here, to start your library, are six books from the government."

He handed across richly bound copies of Les Miserables, by Victor Hugo, Memories from Beyond the Grave, by Rene de Chateaubriand, and other classics by such authors as Honore de Balzac and Gustave Flaubert.

They thanked him politely. Then later confided their mission "prefer cash to help us buy a refrigerator or a vacuum cleaner," Mayor Jean Pouzenc of Chaniers reports.

The government has allocated 6½ million francs, about $1.3 million, to give six books to each of 250,000 couples being married in France this year. The program, run by the ministry of education, seeks to stimulate reading. It is tied with International Book Year, sponsored by a United Nations agency.

"I bet most of the farmers here carefully put away the books in a drawer and will never open them," said Pouzenc. He. "The ministry thought the operation could develop culture, but they did not realize that most of the people, especially in rural areas, lack sufficient knowledge or cultural background to appreciate classics."

Officer Saved Castro's /ife

HAVANA (Reuter) — An officer who probably saved Fidel Castro's life in 1953 by refusing to turn him over to army officers died Saturday at the age of 73, Capt. Pedro Sarria, then a second Lieutenant, captured Castro and other young revolutionaries July 30, 1953, four days after they had attacked the Moncada barracks in Santiago. Rather than hand his prisoners over to officers who wanted to kill them on the spot, he took them to police headquarters. They were jailed and later tried.

Franco Head For 36 Years

Plan Rejected

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A developer's plans to build "Florida's largest apartment" have been ruled out of bounds by he Palm Beach County zoning board of adjustment. Developers of Villa Delray appealed to the board, to allow construction of the 74-foot-high, three dimensional, golf ball to promote a 5,000-home project. But, acting on complaints by area residents, the board refused to allow construction of the plexiglas and steel ball.

Pistols Sold

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two gunbloggers said to have been owned by frontiersman William Frederick (Buffalo Bill) Cody were sold Sunday to a California antique-firearms dealer for $2,000.

The two specimens are .41-calibre pocket pistols and about 150 other firearms were auctioned from the firearms collection of the late Buffalo Bill. Cody, a friend of Tucson, Ariz., the firm of Sotheby, Parke, Bernet said. The buyer of the derringers was not identified.

Utah Shakes

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An earthquake hitting 4.0 on the Richter scale shook northern Utah Sunday afternoon, and authorities said there were no injuries and only minor damage. But scientists placed the epicentre of the quake at Kimball Junction, about 25 miles east-southeast of Salt Lake City, in the Wasatch Mountains.

Young American Is Guitar Maker

FREDERICTON (CP) — A year ago, Jon Soderman was safely ensconced in a middle-class existence in Detroit, hitting the books at the Rochester Institute of Technology.

Then, the 22-year-old native of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., "cut out" with a $1,000 poke and an eye on the outback lands of New Brunswick.

Today he lives in a house he built himself for $300 in materials and with borrowed tools and labors over his art—the production of hand-crafted guitars.

The 14-by-17-foot cabin stands on a section of land he bought with $700 of his original stake and is a safe same time home and workshop.

Jon spent most of his time these days on his land, outside this capital city, and works his small plot of vegetables while away from guitar-making.

He is trying to sell to serious musicians," he says. "They're the ones to appreciate this. I don't want to build a guitar for just anyone."

The art of building guitars came through long study of books on the subject and he has spent hours in university libraries pouring over anything to do with his art.

"I'd like to get to know the person before I make a guitar for him, to know his interests, to know his talents."

He can turn out two guitars a month "from the finest materials."

"I find no pleasure in working with poor materials and I find I can take no pride in creating inferior instruments."

Each sells for about $250 and he hopes to make only one a year to earn the $1,000 he feels he needs in a year.

Jon claims his instruments are superior to factory-made guitars.

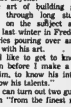
"I make them with so much more sensitivity. Commercial guitars are built at such a rate they can't afford to be perfect. I build mine so they vibrate, resonate."

But his craft is only the beginning.

"I'm not basking on this as my sole source of income," he says. "I'm not into the work ethic. I like to bake my bread ubor done and get into some personal things.

"I want to stay here and I want to do something for society but I don't know how I'll do it yet. This is a beginning."

Police Demand Haircuts



TAIPEI (Reuter) — Taiwan police, reviving a campaign against long hair, have given 50 youths a trim in the last month. Youngsters rounded up by police patrols outside places of entertainment in the city get a haircut before they are freed.

Jet in Trouble

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A United Air Lines jet carrying 99 persons veered off the runway Sunday when its landing gear landing, forcing a two-hour air traffic shutdown at San Francisco International Airport, officials said. Nine of the 31 passengers were treated for minor injuries.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

TUESDAY, OCT. 3

Aries (March 21-April 19): Not a day for explaining plans. For the single a lively series of romantic excitement, for the married, a moment of tension.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It may be time for your answers as publishers, lawyers, digest correspondents come to closer attention. Express your gentler side.

Gemini (May 21 — June 20): You are well advised not to act hastily. Taking care of family needs while you think things over is helpful in getting insight.

Cancer (June 21 — July 22): Whatever attention you now pay to your appearance and public image pays off. New clothing helps, and it needn't be expensive.

Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22): The morning's flights run their course into reconciliation by nightfall — if you let them do so, and get in a sound day's work.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Lets pressure should inspire you to advance career. Confidential arrangements should be early evening.

Libra (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Being somewhat less busy gives you a chance to notice some fine stuff of meaning in the stories you are hearing.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Participation in your community's welfare brings recognition, co-operation. Worthwhile new contacts. Invite friends to your home.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Early hours are fruitful if you exert yourself. Taper off as the day progresses, make evening hours a holiday.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may think you have full agreement about jointly held or managed resources. Keep exact records and give matters time to settle.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): You may stir rumors with unexpected behavior. Friends have financial ideas with little-hard information to back them.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Gather all who are willing to help early in the day, get something done, but quit early as unsettled conditions go awry in the afternoon.

To Your Good Health

VD Infection May Reappear

By G.C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I became pregnant five months ago, and a smear test showed I had gonorrhea. I had been having a discharge so I assumed I had one sign of gonorrhea, but also knew that discharges were common during pregnancy, so I didn't suspect that I had a venereal disease.

I was treated with penicillin and told I was cured. Now after one month the discharge have started again. Is it possible that V. D. can recur after treatment or is the excessive discharge common during the last months of pregnancy.

You aren't alone. There's a great deal more undiagnosed gonorrhea in women than had been suspected until fairly recently.

Your "smear test" really should be called a culture—and that's the way to find these hidden cases of gonorrhea, just as a blood test will disclose syphilis while the patient may or may not know she has.

If these cultures were used more frequently than they are, we surely could put a considerable dent in the present frightening epidemic of venereal disease. Not stop it—but reduce it. That much for that: Now your questions.

Penicillin usually provides a successful cure for gonorrhea, but over the years it has proved necessary to increase the dosages considerably. Even so, there are some cases that require a second course of treatment is necessary. You may need it.

But—and this is the important point—you need—and should have—another culture to make sure whether this discharge is that disease or something else. There is no other way to be certain.

Of course there's a possibility that you may have been infected all over again. Being cured doesn't protect you from subsequent exposure to the disease.

There is also the possibility that the discharge this time is a fungal (yeast-like) infection which is not unusual late in pregnancy.

Anyway, report the discharge to your doctor and have another test to make sure what it is.

Gonorrhea is not passed from mother to child in the same sense that syphilis is, but it can affect the baby's eyes, which is why, for many years, infants' eyes have been treated with silver nitrate. Without this treatment, blindness can result.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Three of my friends are taking garlic pills for hypertension. They want me to take them too, but don't want to without a doctor's approval and am afraid my own doctor would laugh at me. How beneficial are they—M.G.

I dare say your doctor, if you asked him, would just say, "If you want to, go ahead and try them, but don't expect them to do anything for your hypertension." It was in vogue years ago, but not now.

Dear Sir: My old-fashioned parents taught me to chew each mouthful of food 30 times. This was to break up the food particles to digestible size, provide enough saliva for the quantity of food, and mix food sufficiently with the saliva. My wife says this is ridiculous although she admits that some chewing doctor would laugh at me. How is necessary for proper digestion. What do you say—C.L.E.

Excessive chewing—and counting the chews—was called "bolting" when I was a man who dreamed up the notion 68 or more years ago. The idea was soon abandoned as not doing any good. Your wife is right. Sunny-side chewing. But not 30 times for every mouthful.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♠	2♥	3♠	4♥
5♦	Pass	6♦

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

Board No. 21 in the finals of the Olympiad proved to be a dead tie, but both teams missed an opportunity to gain 1,470 points!

When Forquet and Garozzo were North-South for Italy, they got to six clubs on the bidding shown. Lawrence led a heart and Garozzo ruffed the A.K, discarding a spade, and easily made the slam after ruffing two diamonds in dummy. The only trick he lost was a trump.

Had West led a spade, or had East (Coldman) switched to a spade, declarer would have gone down one.

When Wolff and Jacoby held the North-South cards for the U.S., the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Dbl	Redbl	1 NT
2♦	2♥	3♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	6♦

Here, also, the opening lead was a heart, and again declarer made the slam for a score of 1,370 points.

It is easy to argue that East should have doubled six clubs conventionally to compel a spade lead. As a matter of fact, there were several hundred specialists in the Vu-Graph audience — who could see all four hands on the screen — who considered wishbly that East should have doubled.

But in all fairness, and despite the outcome, the fact is that neither East thought a double was in order and both of them passed six clubs.

They were of course not green hands at the game, and it was obviously their judgment that a pass rather than a double was technically the right bid. Apparently the right bid turned out wrong, and the wrong bid would have cost them a bundle, that is one of the intangibles of the game that will always haunt our greatest experts.

Separatism, Toronto Airport, Drug Costs Campaign Themes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Party leaders keep saying separation of Quebec is not an issue in the federal election, but the question keeps popping up just the same.

Both Prime Minister Trudeau and Social Credit Leader Real Caouette handled questions on it over the weekend.

Mr. Caouette told questioners on CTV's public affairs program Encounter Festival he believed Quebecers alone should decide whether the province should leave Canada.

And if a majority of them voted to do it alone, he personally would live elsewhere in Canada.

Mr. Trudeau said in Quebec City that if Quebec separated—and he didn't believe it would—it would return to the province to try to reunite it with Canada.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who took Sunday off, leaped into the ardent of an environment scrap Saturday when he indicated that a Conservative government would not continue with plans for a second Toronto-area airport at Pickering.

NDP Leader David Lewis told a New Liskeard, Ont., audience Saturday that he favored establishment of a Crown corporation to produce and sell prescription drugs at near cost prices.

Sunday night he attended a workers' rally in Toronto.

Mr. Trudeau took a break from campaigning to welcome Team Canada when it arrived in Montreal Sunday from its hockey successes in Sovi.t Russia, Sweden and Czechoslovakia.

One of the players pulled the prime minister aboard one of three fire engines which took the team around the airport tarmac.

Mr. Caouette was by far the busiest leader over the weekend. In addition to his prerecorded appearances on CTV and the CBC's French network, he was a guest on the CBC open-line radio show Cross-Country Checkup and attended a rally at Anna. Qué.

The Socred leader said on radio he would spend money now used to buy military equipment to refine standards of living in the country.

At Anna he took several swipes at CBC French-language reporters for what he called favored treatment of Parti Québecois Leader Rene Levesque.

He said Mr. Levesque got two minutes of air time on a recent newscast while he and Mr. Lewis received only brief mention.

On television, Mr. Caouette said Quebec separatism should be decided by a referendum, not by an election. Once a province voted to separate, he added, there was little the other provinces could do to stop it.

Mr. Trudeau was reluctant to answer questions about Quebec separatism. It simply wasn't an issue.

He repeated that his government had given French-Canada strong federal voice, citing prominent Quebec cabinet ministers and CBC president Laurent Picard.

In Toronto Mr. Stanfield waded into the airport controversy saying he really didn't know what the political consequences would be.

But, he said, no case yet had been made for the proposed second airport at Pickering. He added that the estimated $200 million cost probably would be doubled.

A Conservative government would concentrate on improving ground transportation and passenger facilities at the existing Malton airport.

He labelled as "a political accident" Ottawa's present policy of continuing land expropriation while holding studies on whether the project should go ahead.

He said his views were not inconsistent with those of Ontario Premier William Davis.

Mr. Lewis told his New Liskeard audience, which included a number of senior citizens, that the elderly pay too much for prescription drugs.

He also called for an inquiry into food costs and blames packaging, supermarket profits and food processing for the sizable increases in beef prices.

"The price of beef went up 10 per cent and the price to the farmer reduced by 10 per cent between 1971 and 1972, he said. Instead Mr. Lewis told an open-line radio program at Kirkland Lake that the Unemployment Insurance Commission was in an administrative mess. This in itself was an invitation to abuse the payments it made.

Wet 80,000 Greet Team Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Some 80,000 Torontonians risked pneumonia in a steady downpour Sunday night to say thank you to Team Canada.

Assembled for hours in downtown Nathan Phillips Square before the team arrived, they blew horns, waved flags, chanted "We're No. 1" and jockeyed for position under the nearest umbrella until their heroes arrived.

When they came, the crowd roared its welcome to them, collectively and individually, with climactic cadenzas for Phil Esposito and Paul Henderson for their key efforts in the eight-game series against the Soviet national team.

Earlier, Prime Minister Trudeau and Mayor Jean Drapeau headed a party of 10,000 who greeted the team at Montreal International Airport with equal warmth.

Pete Mahovlich dragged the prime minister aboard one of four fire trucks that took the team on a triumphal tour around the airport's inner tarmac.

Mr. Trudeau said the team had shown that Canadian athletes can match athletes "anywhere in the world."

But it was the players who made most of the speeches

"You're all beautiful," defenceman Gary Bergman told the crowd.

"Toronto is the best place I've ever been," said Brad Park, a native son who plays defence for New York Rangers.

"You fans are just unbelievable," said Henderson, who scored the winning goal in each of the three Canadian victories in Moscow.

Esposito, who had expressed resentment when Team Canada was booed as it suffered a fiasco to the Russians in Vancouver, made his peace with the fans.

"You people have proved me wrong and have proved the rest of us wrong," he said. "I thank you very much for your support."

Each player in turn received his round of applause as he stepped forward to accept the city's official gold cuff links from Mayor Dennison. Earlier, at the crowd's insistence, Henderson and Esposito had been hoisted on the shoulders of their team-mates.

Then the cheers resumed as coach Harry Sinden took the microphone and said:

"I'm speechless. You people are remarkable. Without you we'd be nowhere."

The only solemn moment came when the crowd almost reverently sang O Canada just after the players appeared on the stage overlooking the square.

OPP Arrest Six In Motel Melee

SARNIA (CP) — Six persons were arrested early Sunday after a glass-smashing spree in the bar of a local motel developed into a rock-and bottle-throwing fight between about 300 young persons and 18 policemen.

The melee ended at about 1:30 a.m., an hour and a half after it began, when police "just took off," a provincial police spokesman said.

The incident began when a customer began smashing glasses against the walls and floor of the bar in the Canterbury Motel, two miles east of Sarnia.

A provincial police officer from Petrolia and Sarnia Township policeman were called to the scene and arrested one person. The motel owner then closed down the bar.

"The whole place just emptied out into the parking lot," after police took the arrested man to a waiting cruiser, the OPP spokesman said.

The two policemen immediately called for reinforcements.

A fight then broke out between a youth and a motel guest, and police arrested the youth.

Reinforcements arrived and four officers took the two arrested men away in separate cruisers.

The remaining 16 officers from the Petrolia OPP detachment, Sarnia and Sarnia Township attempted to quell "a series of skirmishes and disturbances," the spokesman said.

They were able to make four more arrests "then the kids just turned on us," the spokesman said.

"So we figured if we took off, they'd take off," he said. "So we just took off."

When all officers jumped into their cruisers and got their wagons, some of which has windshields and headlights smashed by rocks and bottles, and drove a quarter mile down the road.

The spokesman said the crowd "took off" shortly after the police did.

The six persons arrested, all between the ages of 18 and 21, were taken to the Petrolia OPP office and were later released after being charged with either malicious damage, or causing a disturbance in a public place by fighting.

Game Fatal

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A 14-year-old boy played "a dangerous game"—one participated in by youths for years—and lost his life in the Niagara gorge, police said Saturday.

The game, said Detective Leslie Dunn, involved climbing the three 60-foot wall rapids previously by the boy's two companions.

The body of Kenneth Karch, who was reported missing Thursday night, was found Friday in dense underbrush.

Arms Limit In Effect

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Accords between the United States and the Soviet Union to limit offensive and defensive nuclear weapons will come into force today and open the way for a new round of negotiations placing more curbs on the arms race.

President Nixon and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will meet in the East Room of the White House to exchange documents putting the seal on the achievements of the Moscow summit—a treaty limiting anti-ballistic missile systems and a preliminary five-year agreement limiting offensive long-range missiles.

The ceremony will begin immediately after the president and Gromyko return to the White House from nearby Camp David, where they stayed overnight following an unusual dinner conference that underlined growing U.S.-Soviet friendship.

It was the first time that any foreign minister not accompanying a visiting head of government had been asked to stay at the presidential retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains. The president's invitation was viewed as an extraordinary gesture emphasizing his desire to open a new era of peaceful relations with the Russians.

The White House ceremony will see the president and Gromyko exchange instruments of ratification of the defensive weapons treaty, limiting each country to 200 anti-ballistic missiles at two sites—one each around Washington and Moscow and the other protecting an offensive missile launching site in each country.

The treaty was ratified by the United States Senate Aug. 3 and by the Supreme Soviet Sept. 29.

There also will be an exchange of letters between Nixon and Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny, bringing into effect the interim offensive weapons agreement limiting the United States and the Soviet Union to their present levels for three years to those intercontinental missiles under construction or already deployed.

The treaty and the agreement were signed in Moscow last May.

All-out Search On

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Police said they may have to make a "leave-to-cave" search today of a bush area north of here for a man suspected of raping and strangling a housewife and killing her 10-month-old son.

The rugged, two-to three-square-mile portion of the Bruce Trail is largely wooded, has much undergrowth and many caves in which a man could hide.

The province-wide search for William Hales, 40, for whom warrants have been issued charging him with two counts of non-capital murder, focussed on the area after reports of a house break-in.

The extensive manhunt by officers on foot, police tracking dogs and search aircraft Monday eased off at night but a persistent search of the area was conducted and continued today.

The warrants were issued following the slaying Saturday of Hoklen's neighbor, Rafaella DiCocca, 19, of Burlington and her infant son Rocco. The baby died of head injuries, police said.

Severina DiCocca, 31, husband of the dead woman, was reported today in fair condition in hospital after having been shot in the face by a man with a 22-calibre rifle as he tried to remove a rope knotted about his wife's neck.

Jet Down In Russia

MOSCOW (Reuter) — A Soviet Ilyushin airliner has crashed on an internal flight from Sochi to Moscow, killing everyone on board, reliable sources said today.

The four-engined turbo-prop aircraft crashed Monday soon after leaving the Soviet Black Sea resort, the sources said.

Casualty figures were not immediately known. The Ilyushin-18 entered service in the late 1950s and services on the Moscow-Sochi run are understood to seat some 80 passengers.

There was no way of checking reports of the crash.

Uganda Expulsion Deadline Stands

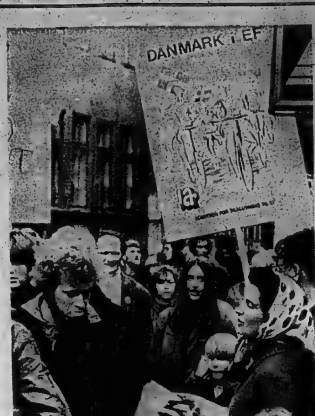
KAMPALA (Reuter) — President Idi Amin has told Zaire's President Mobutu Sese Seko his three-month deadline for the expulsion of non-citizen Asians from Uganda will not be changed.

Radio Uganda quoted Amin as saying: "The three months' deadline for the expulsion of the non-citizen Asians still stands, and the sooner they leave Uganda the better for Uganda and her citizens."

The radio said he was briefing the Zaire leader on Uganda's "economic war" to transfer the control of its economy into the hands of indigenous Africans.

"The Asians' stay in Uganda is no longer pleasant to the people of Uganda," it quoted Amin as saying. "The longer they stay, the more Uganda will suffer."

The Asians have been told to leave by Nov. 8. The radio said Amin later bestowed on President Mobutu the Order of the Source of the Nile, Uganda's highest honor, saying that he was "a true brother and friend of the people of Uganda."



When Mobutu arrived here Monday for a 24-hour visit, he denied that the expulsion of non-citizen Asians had prompted his visit. He said Uganda's economy was its own affair, and added: "There is no reason for me to come here simply to discuss Uganda's economy."

None-before, the Uganda government has been at pains during Mobutu's visit to demonstrate not only the justness of the expulsion program, but also the level of popular support the policy enjoys.

Mobutu said on arrival that he would discuss the conflict between Uganda and Tanzania following last month's invasion of Uganda.

In Mogadishu, Somalia, peace talks between Tanzania and Uganda due to start today were delayed for another 24 hours as the arrival of Ugandan Foreign Minister Wanume Kibedi was postponed.

Reports from Kampala said that Kibedi would not be arriving until later this week.

Danish PM Resigns

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — Danish Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag announced his resignation to parliament today but said the government would stay in office.

The resignation came only hours after the government had gained overwhelming support from the Danish voters in a national referendum on entry into the European Common Market.

Krag, 58, told parliament he had long wanted to withdraw from his post when an opportunity arose and added he would present his resignation to Queen Margrethe later today.

No announcement of his successor was immediately made.

Krag has led Denmark's efforts to join the European Market since he first took office in 1962.

Except for a three-year spell from 1968 to 1971, he has remained continuously in office.

There was speculation that Krag would seek a senior position in Common Market administration—possibly as Denmark's member of the European Economic Community's executive commission.

His announcement came immediately after he had finished delivering the government's "state of the nation" message at the opening session of the Danish parliament.

Krag said in a radio interview later that Foreign Minister Knud Boerge Aderse would be the caretaker prime minister until a successor could be found by the Social Democratic party.

British Agents New IRA Target

BELFAST (CP) — Irish Republican Army gunmen stepped up their drive against a new target today—British army undercover agents posing as truce workers to spy out guerrilla territory.

The IRA campaign was launched Monday when gunmen shot and killed a British soldier disguised as a laundryman as he sat in his delivery van near a housing project.

An unarmed woman assistant—a member of the Women's Royal Army Corps—died for cover at a nearby house where she was picking up laundry as two men raked the green van with automatic fire. She escaped unhurt.

The soldier, Sapper Ted Stuart, 38, slumped dying over the steering wheel without having a chance to draw his pistol.

The van was marked Four Square Laundry—a non-existent company. Its light armor plating was not strong enough to stand up to the burst of five which came from a passing car.

The killing brought to light the existence of 50 men IRP (Immediate Reaction Force) teams attached to regiments serving in Northern Ireland. All the men are volunteers and some highly trained army girls, believed to number about six, operated with them.

UIC Deficit $544 Million

Election Issue Said 'Tragedy'

MONTREAL (CP) — Bryce Mackasey, federal manpower minister, said Monday the Unemployment Insurance Commission's deficit stands at about $544 million but he intends to defend the government's handling of the program to the hilt in the election campaign.

"I'm going to defend it because I think it is a tragedy to have it become part of the election campaign," he said in an interview.

He called the deficit a "drop in the bucket" from national revenues and attributed it to increased benefits now being offered by the UIC.

Mr. Mackasey also criticized people who stress abuses of the insurance scheme. These people "create awful consequences," he said.

"The people who get unemployment insurance have a right to it, because they have worked and contributed to it. This isn't a welfare plan. It's insurance against loss of income by being out of work."

The number who abuse the plan is minute, the minister said.

He also released a report from the Unemployment Insurance Commission which showed steps are being taken to tighten the checks on illegitimate claims.

There were 741,000 claims disallowed in the 12 months ended July 29 this year compared with 393,000 in the previous 12 months.

The number of claims rose to nearly 1.98 million from under 1.93 million in the earlier period.

The commission is also adding 50 more claims investigators to bring its investigation staff to 207 by mid-November.

The minister said he has put a "bit of a ban" on officials of his department talking about the issue "because reporters won't taken an objective look at the whole question of unemployment insurance."

He said he did not know the amount of fraud "to the exact dollar" but offered a file labelled "cents to dollar" which indicated the plan paid out $1.164 million for the first seven months this year—$344 million more than the same period last year.

"It is also the approximate amount we are in the red," Mr. Mackasey said.

He objected to the term "deficit" used by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, saying that the government is merely transferring funds from one account to another.

Under the new Unemployment Insurance Act passed in 1970, the contributions of employers and employees pay for the plan when up to four per cent of the labor force is unemployed and the federal government pays all the additional cost when the rate is higher.

The unemployment rate has been averaging close to six per cent this year.

The plan has been costing more than originally expected, Mr. Mackasey said, partly because incomes have risen faster than expected.

The government thought income would rise about five per cent by 1972 but they have risen by about eight per cent.

"I ran into our local candidate today!"

Timmins Biggest Next Jan. 1

TIMMINS (CP) — This town of 27,000 will become Ontario's—and perhaps North America's—biggest city in area on Jan. 1, 1973, voters decided Monday in a plebiscite.

On that day, it will become a city of 40,000 with an area of 1,220 square miles by swallowing up 34 geographical townships surrounding it. All will lose their names to become parts of wards of the city, each represented by aldermen. More than half the townships have no population.

By comparison, Metropolitan Toronto, with a population of more than 2,000,000 has an area of about 270 square miles.

The voters rejected two other names—Timmins-Porcupine and Porcupine—to select Timmins, named in 1912 after two brothers, Noah A. Timmins and Henry. The brothers established Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd., one of Canada's greatest.

Biggest city by area in the United States now is Jacksonville, Fla., which, at 827 square miles, has spread to exceed the previous largest, metropolitan Los Angeles, 461 square miles.

Monoxide Blamed

The gas that poisoned two Toronto hunters near Conception Sandbay was not propane but carbon monoxide, a government inspector said today.

But John Stoneman, local inspector with the department of mines and energy branch, said the cause of death was a buildup of carbon monoxide a preheated pail the man had placed on the stove. The flame, licking at the carbon, released toxic carbon monoxide into the sealed room, quickly overcoming the men. the stove was built to take natural gas, not propane. As a result, too much fuel was being supplied to the burner, causing even larger carbon buildups inside the pail than the normal propane stove would create.

A third man, Wilhelm Tersch, is still in the intensive care unit of Trenton Memorial Hospital where his condition is reported to be progressing.

Breath Tester Not Likely

PICTON (Staff) — Lack of specially trained personnel makes it unlikely that a breathalyzer machine will be introduced at the Picton police department.

Mayor Margaret Ackerman last night told town council Picton police commission has considered buying a breathalyzer but no member of the town police force would be qualified to operate it.

She said only one constable at the local provincial police detachment is trained to use the machine.

It's Honey Again In Northumberland

COBOURG (Staff) — Russell Honey, sitting member for Northumberland riding since 1962, will once again carry the Liberal banner in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Mr. Honey was given the nomination at a Liberal riding association meeting here last night.

Deputy Speaker in the House of Commons, he faces strong opposition in seeking his fifth term of office.

Opposing him is Allan Lawrence, former secretary of state, Justice in Premier William Davis's provincial cabinet. Mr. Lawrence left Queen's Park to seek a federal seat for the Progressive Conservatives.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Turner answered questions on a Kingston open-line radio program before driving to Napanee where he cut the ribbon opening Liberal headquarters for Peter McKinnon, candidate in Frontenac - Lennox and Addington.

In Napanee, the finance minister made a comment directly affecting much of the Quinte area's rural population. Speaking about the current unemployment situation, he said:

"At least in Ontario and Quebec, it has partly been caused by poor weather conditions this past summer. Some 70,000 fewer people are employed in agriculture and in agriculture - related industries since there is little corn, tomatoes and other canning crops to be picked and processed."

Commenting on the prime minister, Turner said:

"Mr. Trudeau is frank and outright. He is sometimes too frank and outright, but then you don't have to compare him with the Almighty. You only have to compare him with the alternatives."

Ticket Ruling Upheld

TORONTO (Staff) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday dismissed an appeal by the Crown arising from the acquittal of a Trenton motorist convicted July 11 of careless driving.

The decision confirms an earlier ruling which could initialize widespread appeals against the current system of traffic ticketing in Ontario, says the Belleville lawyer who launched the action.

Peter Charles Fry, 27, White's Road, had originally been convicted in provincial court by Judge T. Y. Wills, but the conviction was quashed last month by Mr. Justice Maurice Lacourciere on the ground that the ticket information was "duplicitous" and confusing.

The court of appeal upheld Mr. Justice Lacourciere's decision Monday by dismissing an appeal by the Crown.

While the tribunal of Supreme Court judges did not rule the whole form invalid, they recommended a new form of ticket be introduced that would spell out more clearly to the accused the offence with which he is charged.

The uniform traffic ticket is used by all police forces in the province. Since Mr. Justice Lacourciere's ruling, provincial police have been instructed to cross out inapplicable portions of the ticket when issuing a summons. Belleville city police, however, have gone back to issuing long summons for all offences other than speeding.

Peter Ticktin, Belleville lawyer and counsel for Fry, questioned the legality of police tampering with the ticket.

"That's another case," he said.

Although the Crown could appeal once more, to the Supreme Court of Canada, Mr. Ticktin felt sure the Lacourciere decision would stand, leading to appeals across the province for offences other than speeding.

The ruling could have similar consequences in other provinces and in the United States where traffic tickets take much the same form as Ontario's ticket, said the lawyer.

Too Fast For Dogs

PICTON (Staff) — A report submitted to council by animal control officer Donald Tucker last night showed one dog impounded in the month of September.

The canine apprehended during a five-day patrol was promptly claimed by his owner.

He said the major problem with the present animal control program is in educating the public in how to use it.

Persons with complaints concerning dogs running at large should contact police who will call the animal control officer.

If a dog wearing a tag is picked up, police will be notified of the tag number and the animal's owner informed.

Councillor Harry Abram suggested the patrol could be more successful if it slowed down.

"When they patrol they go so damned fast they could go past four dogs and never see them," he said.

"They go around 40 miles an hour," he added.

London Trip Prize In Contest

A 14-day trip for two to London, England is the grand prize in a new contest starting today in The Intelligencer.

The contest, which involves a draw, is sponsored by Air Canada, British Overseas Airways Corporation and The Intelligencer. To enter this contest simply fill in a ballot available from participating merchants. No purchase is required.

During each of the 15 weeks of the contest two draws will take place for $5 merchandise certificates.

The draw for the March trip to England takes place at the end of the contest from among all entries received.

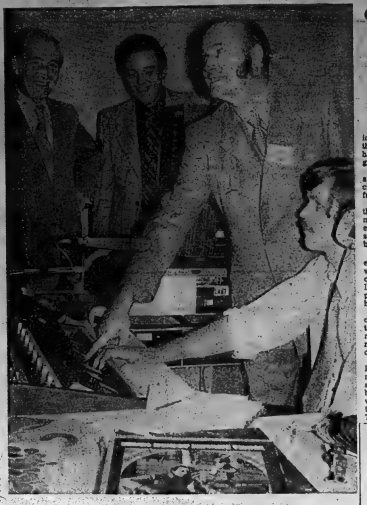
Details of the exciting contest are found in the Air Canada - BOAC London Super Show Tour Contest advertisement on pages 6 and 7.

Councillor Critical Of Tender Procedures

PICTON (Staff) — Town councillor Ross Cronkwright last night criticized council for bypassing Picton businessmen in favor of outsiders when tenders are awarded.

Councillor Cronkwright objected to a recommendation by the public works committee to accept a tender for 15,000 gallons of gasoline submitted by a Northport fuel company agent.

He said a difference of approximately $150 separated the tenders of two town fuel dealers from the lower tender of the Northport agent and suggested such a difference could be ignored in the interests of maintaining local trade.



Councillor Cronkwright declared, "My main beef is that you took bread and butter out of every service station operator in town."

Picton reeve Albert Piroth countered councillor Cronkwright's remarks by stating then a monopoly would be created if only in-town tenders received consideration.

"In there much point in calling for tenders if you don't take the lowest", he demanded.

He observed a tender submitted by B. P. Oil Ltd. was the lowest but was not a firm price so the tenders of the Murphy Oil Company was recommended instead.

Deputy - reeve James Bird told Councillor Cronkwright if only local bids were considered the practice of calling for tenders might as well be discarded.

Making the Connection

College Goes on the Air

Yesterday marked a new departure in radio training at Loyalist College. With operating Loyalist students will broadcast live, two hours a day to Bay of Quinte residents. Dave Hall (seated) and dean of faculty Paul King switch the show while Frank Murray, CJBQ station manager and Bryan Olney teacher, watch on.

Loyalist College has taken seriously to the air.

Starting yesterday, students began live broadcasts to Bay of Quinte residents, two hours daily beginning at noon, five days a week, over Radio Station CJBQ FM.

Using sophisticated equipment of the college radio studio, students will completely program a two-hour FM show, directly from their facilities, to the station downtown where it will be relayed to CJBQ transmitters.

Bryan Olney, member of college radio teaching staff, said students will handle everything except commercials which will come from CJBQ.

"We aren't playing games now," said dean of faculty Paul King. "With this opportunity the students will be taking part in a uniquely practical program."

Frank Murray, CJBQ station manager, and Mr. King said this was the first program of its kind in Canada.

A major consideration was the maturing effect the program would have on students.

"You are performing publically, you're not talking to each other now and there is a pretty critical audience out there," said Phil Flagler, CJBQ assistant manager.

A second phase of the program started yesterday with an "internship" project.

Four students will stay at the downtown studios, working with the staff, getting the feel of professional radio.

"I was told to show them everything and ask them to do anything relevant to the station," a CJBQ employee said, "Show it like it is and don't make it easy."

While half the class is at the station, the remainder will be at college programming the show.

Students will switch locations each month and by the end of the year will have worked in every major department of the radio operation.

Dutch Settler Group Seeking Descendants

An association of descendants of a Dutch settler in North America is seeking to reach other lineal family members for an anniversary celebration in the United States.

The group marks its 10th anniversary Oct. 21 at the Old Paramus Church, Ridgewood New Jersey—an early Dutch Reformed Church.

The family name originally was Akkerman, and the association counts more than 600 members in the U.S. and Canada — all lineal descendants of the original David Ackerman, who came to what was then New Amsterdam in 1662 as a schoolmaster.

The association is urging all persons who believe they may have ancestral Ackerman in eastern New Jersey to contact its membership, chairman, Samuel H. Ackerman, Rich Court, Ho-Ho-Kus, New Jersey.

Quinte Planning Area Will Be Kept Intact

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Quinte Planning Board municipalities will be told soon that the provincial government has decided to keep the regional planning unit intact.

The QPB will not be split, a provincial government official told The Intelligencer from Queen's Park today.

Although not disclosing when the announcement would be made, he said provincial government departments were resolved the QPB should not be broken up.

Ministry staff have concluded that the unit is sound in view of its high degree of social and economic integration. It is a region and should be planned as one, the province has concluded, he added.

Decision to retain QPB is closely related to release by the ministry of a wholesale restructuring of local government in the combined counties of Northumberland-Durham.

Former provincial treasurer Darcy McKeough had told members of QPB this past summer he did not want to break up QPB until decisions were made on the area between Quinte and Metropolitan Toronto. He said the restructuring in Northumberland-Durham would have "indirect" but significant effect on QPB.

Cobourg - Port Hope was designated in the Toronto-Centred Region Report as a growth centre for the diversion of development away from Toronto. Possibility was mentioned today that the future of the Northumberland-Durham urban centre may not be receiving the full east - of - Toronto emphasis as the Toronto - Centred Region Report is implemented.

Although not inside the Toronto - centred region, Quinte may be considered as an eastern growth centre for Toronto. No decision has been made on this but it is known certain key provincial authorities have been rethinking the Cobourg - Port Hope designation.

One of the bases for this review is concern that Cobourg-Port Hope may be too close to Metropolitan Toronto to be considered for the degree of development contemplated for it.

Announcement of the governmental restructuring in Northumberland - Durham is only weeks away and may lead to the establishment of a regional government as Quinte's western neighbor, says a QPB official. It is partially this reason that has led the province to the decision that QPB should not be split to permit Trenton, Brighton, Murray and Brighton townships to set up their own planning area outside QPB.

The Northumberland - Durham restructuring will confirm the existing QPB western boundary, provincial authorities say.

It was also learned from the provincial government spokesmen that the question of double levies, by which QPB municipalities pay toward both regional and county planning, will be resolved. But it will take a revision of the Ontario Municipal Act to do it.

Major question remaining unanswered relates to the future of Cobourg - Port Hope in the Toronto - centred region: If stimulation of development there is not the central answer to diversion of growth, will Belleville - Trenton benefit in a large way?

Quinte Planning Board will meet Thursday night. With a short agenda, full discussion of the Quinte regional future is expected but the real answers will lie with the provincial decisions on Northumberland - Durham.

It makes absolutely no sense to buy a one year investment certificate.

A Guaranty Trust GO-5 investment certificate pays exactly the same interest (6%) as an ordinary one year investment certificate. But if you don't cash in your GO-5 after one year and keep it for another year, you'll get 6¾% interest the second year. If you don't cash in your GO-5 after two years, you'll get 7% interest the third year. If you don't cash in your GO-5 after three years, you'll get 7½% interest the fourth year. If you don't cash in your GO-5 after four years, you'll get 7¾% interest the fifth year. Interest payable semi-annually.
Minimum investment $500. Guaranty Trust GO-5

Canada's Image Abroad

Now that the agony and the ecstasy over Team Canada's great effort are beginning to wane, we may expect a week or so of lingering euphoria and then all of a sudden we will come down to earth again and life will follow its same old humdrum pattern. The late autumn days are closing in and Monday mornings will become more and more oppressive.

At best our hockey men and officials are heroes and the more horrendous displays of bad behavior merely eloquent of good psychology — don't repress . . . but let it out — at worst, well put it down to the nature of the beast. After all ice hockey is the fastest game in the world, one in which the adrenalin flows and fitness counts and manto-man reactions are instantaneous and not infrequently brutal.

But let's keep things in proportion. The Times of London gave the event a paragraph and a short one at that. But then we don't get the results say of Britain's international rugby football championship featuring teams from the four national entities in Britain together with France. Nor do we read much of the doings of the New Zealand All Blacks or the South African Springboks.

So what else is new in Canada? We have an election coming up and the chances are the result will not make much more than a paragraph or two in Britain or even the United States. That is, to judge from past performance at least. Yes hockey may be the national game and source of much of our pride, but we need to project a wider spectrum of the nation's fabric, cut a larger swath as it were.

In some ways we have been doing just that. For instance the National Ballet company has won acclaim in Britain and there are individual Canadian performers there and on the international entertainment scene who are widely known here but who also help maintain our good name overseas. We think of opera stars Jan Vickers and Teresa Stratas and U.K.-resident singers Edmund Hockridge and Robert Goulet, comedians Bernard Braden and Barbara Kelly and orchestra leader and arranger-composer Robert Farnon, not to mention Percy Faith.

And let us not forget our fine group Olympic performers in Munich those few weeks ago. During two World Wars also the men and women of Canada fought for freedom and helped forge a nation fit to be proud of. We trust these days are secure enough that our young people-never again will have to embark on such a task. However we would like to see more groups of young Canadians going overseas to represent Canada in one way or another. Say choral groups or youth orchestras. It has been done before, but there are not enough excursions of this nature. The economic and the individual provinces need to project the best of the Canadian scene abroad.

This way we will broaden the image of Canada overseas. Here is the main reason why, in the words of Nesmin Nanji, a young Asian accountant who has just arrived from Uganda: "Many people don't know Canada as any more than an outline on the map but it has a kind of reputation . . . we think it is a place to work hard and progress."

Crosswalks

At last action is to be taken on accident prone pedestrian crossings in Belleville.

The city traffic and light committee has approved a report on crosswalks by Police Chief Crosbie. The committee says traffic volumes on Pinnacle Street have increased to the point where pedestrian crosswalks are necessary at Market and Campbell Streets.

It is not-so long ago that a woman was injured at the Pinnacle crossing near Loblaws. And only the other day we came upon a taxi and a car from West Virginia which had been in collision at the same spot. Nothing serious but this sort of thing is inconvenient to the parties involved, a police cruiser was there and no doubt it will be the out-of-towner, since his was the rear vehicle, who will come off worst.

Traffic and light committee chairman Arthur Keegan is quoted as saying such crosswalks were not considered warranted two years ago but now they are. He is right of course about the current need — and the sooner the better. Presumably now the crossings in question will be made more easily identifiable. A flashing light for one thing would not be inappropriate.

Japan and China Bury the Hatchet

Some Rays of Hope Observed in A Chaotic World

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In a world full of chaos, the Munich murders, Middle East reprisals, Uganda's racism, urban terrorism, much is still happening which speaks of reason, humanity and hope. The visit of Japan's newly-elected Premier Kakuei Tanka to Peking to reopen diplomatic relations with China is such an event.

Surely no single episode dominated the 1920s and 1940s more than the Sino-Japanese War. It began with the Japanese invasion of Manchuria in 1931 and continued until Imperial Japan's surrender in August, 1945.

In that almost 16-year period, much of China was pillaged, destroyed and millions of Chinese were killed, tortured and executed by the invading armies of Imperial Japan.

The scale of Japan's barbarism against China can still be measured in the cities. We first saw from time to time the Japanese own filming in 1958 of their "rape of Nanking". In which hundreds of Chinese were executed and flung into graves they had to dig for themselves.

Overwhelmed as we are with the terrors of the 1970s, do they really equal what men did to each other in the Far East and finally in Western Europe during the rise and fall of Japan, Germany and Italy under fascism?

Premier Tanaka's visit therefore, has immense importance perhaps beyond that of the Nixon-Mao meetings of last winter. President Premier Giscard has gone to Peking to express Japan's deep regret for what she did to China in the 30s and 40s.

And with that apology, has come Premier Tanaka's request for opening diplomatic relations again between these two Asian super-powers, as a experience neither nation has shared since 1930.

Premier Tanaka's visit will also formalize the growing trade relations between Japan and China, with all kinds of implications for Western countries who think they are on the verge of selling high technology goods to Peking.

Since the spring of 1971, Swedish Canada, Australia, Italy have held trade fairs in Peking, emphasizing their industrial goods at the request of the Chinese.

But Japan has the ability to manufacture and export most of these products at lower cost than industrialized Western countries.

The United States, Chinese-Japanese diplomatic relations have even stronger implications. Since the 1951 peace treaty with Japan, signed at the height of both the cold war and the Korean War, capitalistic Japan has remained the major pro-American bulwark in the Far East economically and militarily.

Socalled Japanese "self-defence forces" on land, sea and air, technically in violation of that peace treaty, were formed in 1950 to protect Japan against any possible Communist invasion. That likelihood has gone. But the "self-defence forces" bolstered with United States military technology, have become a full-fledged military element in Japan.

What purpose, then a revived Japanese military potential of peace, friendship and trade ties mark the relationship between Japan and the world's most populous Communist state? One must presume that Premier Tanaka is emerging from the fact President Nixon did not inform Japan beforehand of his visit to Peking.

And the recent Tanaka-Nixon meetings in Hawaii were to advise the Japanese, in part, that a troubled U.S. economy with high unemployment can absorb only so much of Japan's excellent but lower-cost imports.

The past and future join hands with Mr. Tanaka in China.

"You won't find any job discrimination in Canada because of race, color or religion. Mind you, you won't find any job, either."

Ministers Own Up But What of Their Wives?

By DON O'BEARN
From The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

Cabinet ministers have made their first disclosures under the new conflict-of-interest procedure without any sensations.

Some ministers have land holdings and they disclosed them.

But in much detail, it is true, but it seems sufficiently to satisfy everyone.

Actually not much was to be looked for out of this disclosure. The sensation was in the fact that there had to be the public statement of holdings.

Being a precedent it was somewhat, at first glance, like asking the ministers to walk down the street in the raw.

But once done there was no discomfiture and in future this disclosure of land holdings will simply be accepted by everyone.

There is, however, one potential future trouble spot in this new ball game.

That concerns spouses.

The same rules apply to husbands and wives of ministers as to the ministers themselves.

And some possibly knotty problems can be foreseen because of this.

The first one is that any interest in private companies must be made public. And these companies must not do business with the government.

The second is that any shareholdings in public companies must be disclosed and then either sold or put in a blind trust.

This is a blind trust the entire management of the assets is in the hands of the trustee and the owner doesn't even know what the shareholdings are.

There is a feeling that this could deter some potentially good people from entering politics or if already a member, from going into the cabinet.

With most men it perhaps might not be of so much consequence.

But that many men who would enter politics have wealthy wives; particularly wives who shrink from letting it be known they are wealthy.

But it could be an important consideration with women. A proud many men would object to the fact that if their wives continued their profitable jobs they might not be able to handle the management of their stockholdings on a day-to-day basis.

Where this would become particularly contentious would be if the same rules which now apply to the cabinet were applied to the Legislature at large

This is something which has to be decided in the future.

Mystery surrounds the finding of three bags of grain on Front St. The grain, weighing about three hundred weight in all, was found lying on the street pavement by Constables Arnott and Wright.

From Trenton comes the story of a 200-pound school bell being stolen from the belfry of the York Road schoolhouse. Fred Poole, caretaker of the school, reported to the police that he traced where the bell has been rolled down from the belfry across the roof and dropped to the ground where it made quite an impression in the earth. It was later dragged along the highway for about 1½ miles to the farm of Fred Little, where apparently the thieves were tired, and there they left the bell.

Cheque Cashing Problems

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to seek the opinion of members of the public with regard to the way the Quinte Mall handles cashing of well-known payroll cheques.

The cheque I tried to cash was my husband's. I didn't mind showing my identification. Driving licence, Social Insurance Number etc., but that was not sufficient. The reason given by one store in particular, were that the company is losing thousands of dollars in NSF cheques. What puzzles me is the fact that it only stands to reason they would lose more on personal cheques, than a well-known payroll cheque, and yet they were quite willing to accept a personal cheque.

I cannot believe their statement that there are that many dishonest wives who would take their husband's cheques without written signature and acknowledgement. I was told if I had a photostatic copy of my husband's signature, they would cash it.

The bank also would not cash this cheque and from the information I could gather their customer relationship leaves something to be desired. As this bank is a branch of the bank we have all account with, I don't like the reputation it seems to have at the Mall.

It is a shame that they have rules so rigid it could restrict their profits from future customers. I certainly would appreciate some pros or cons on this from the public.

FIRST PART

P.S. I went downtown and had my cheque cashed at an unfamiliar bank.

The Virgin Islands

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The recent publicity on events in the United States' Virgin Islands was unfortunate, since the stories did not distinguish between the U.S. Virgin Islands and the British Virgin Islands.

What many visitors consider to be the more attractive islands in the British group will be harmed by this publicity.

The British Virgin Islands are beautiful islands in which to visit or do business and have not seen real violence since Robert Louis Stevenson decided to give them a reputation for this by selecting one of their group, Peter's Island, as the locale for his famous novel, "Treasure Island". That, of course, was fiction, based somewhat on fact, as BVI historians will tell you.

Canada and Australia Relatively Empty Lands As Others Burst at Seams

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

How long can a few million Canadians and Australians cling to two of the world's largest and richest underpopulated parts of the earth?

Canada and Australia have been colonized and industrialized by primarily white and largely Anglo-Saxon- communities. From the point of view of macro-economists (specialists in global movements of people), investment funds and human skills, Canada and Australia are societies in trouble.

A Palestinian Arab scholar who taught economic geography at the University of Waterloo wrote a doctoral thesis a few years ago by applying his economic model for growth for East Africa, to the Rocky Mountain Trench area of northern British Columbia.

In both cases he saw a potential from land, climate and export markets to sustain between 25 million and 30 million people. Climatic conditions in East Africa, (his study embraced the modern states of Tanzania, Uganda, Kenya and Rhodesia) are different from the northern British Columbia. But in neither case are they severe enough to inhibit major settlement in rich, cornmant regions of the world.

Peace River settlers and Ottawa agronomists know that this part of British Columbia has the proper weather and soil for major agricultural development. Then there is always the problem of markets for such goods, both domestically and internationally.

And where these kinds of admittedly forced-draft movements of people have taken place in other countries, governments largely bear the burden of cost and subsidization.

The short-term arguments about vast population increase in the huge land masses of Canada and Australia are overwhelmingly against; such eventuality. Both countries are currently in a low phase of high unemployment. And Canada has the fastest growing labor force in the world, originating from her present 22 million people.

The major opposition, however is from racial prejudice, from the large populations contemplated would come from the Third World, over-populated countries like India, Japan, Indonesia and various African countries.

The Australians are already showing signs of this. It is too many Mediterranean-area immigrants. "New Australians are facing the same problems of assimilation as "New Canadians" in two basically WASP-oriented societies.

The several thousand Ugandans currently coming to Canada, are largely acceptable because they possess the complex skills needed to survive in our high-technology society, and they speak English, the lingua franca of the scientific and professional world in both Canada and Australia.

A new threat also arises from the possibility of a long-term population explosion in our open, empty lands. This is the added pollution threats to new communities and the environment which such leaps in immigration, settlement and the growth of new industries would bring about.

By 1990, when we may have 30 billion human beings scrambling for living space, will the pressures suddenly become too great to stop a massive immigration?

Hockey Victory A Near Thing

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The fact that Canadian players and officials were able to browbeat their way to victory in the final against the runners up for the world's ice hockey championship ought not to lull hockey lovers into believing we are still the undisputed world's best.

Victims of their own ego and the propaganda of the sporting press, our players can be under no doubts now that the myth of Canadian ice hockey supremacy has been exploded.

Our pampered, overpaid and understrained darlings of the National Hockey League must be considered as they have emerged victorious. In fact, they were lucky to have been allowed to celebrate their disgraceful exhibition of bad manners and poor sportsmanship in the first period.

The obscene and threatening gestures toward officials, players and members of the public by the likes of Messrs. Ferguson, Sinden and even Alan Eagleson allied with the attempt by a Canadian player to strike the referee took the ice off the cake for me.

Until this series I was never a rabid hockey fan. Our team displayed all the expertise and skill needed without having to resort to the questionable tactics and outright violence that tended some of the games to an uncomfortable temperature.

After all, these players are representing us as Canadians and the image they project reflects directly on all of us.

The hooliganism that characterizes the play in the National Hockey League is best kept there. It has no place among mature sporting events of the world. Hockey is a tough game, but this does not mean that it should be allowed to sink to the level of a gladiatorial confrontation with petulance, bad manners and rudeness setting the norm.

I get very tired of sitting on the edge of the chair while some immature lout serves a penalty for a senseless unnecessary piece of violence that cost the game.

Likewise I get very impatient with bangers-on like Alan Eagleson, who use the TV cameras as a platform to inflate their own image while denigrating our country and our national games with infantile antics more related to the circus ring than to an international hockey arena.

'Pyramid' Selling

Get-Rich Sales Pitches Hit Controls

By RICHARD ANCO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Get rich quick is the promise in the sales pitch.

With a dizzying mixture of applied psychology, group pressure and commercial evangelism you can become convinced: Invest as a salesman in a distributorship and then simply collect cash bounties for recruiting other would-be salesmen.

In theory, this produces a rapidly growing network of salesmen-investors in a pyramid structure. Depending on your investment—anywhere up to $5,000—you can buy into various levels of the pyramid.

But just like the old-fashioned chain-letter scheme, most participants lose their money.

So promoters of pyramid selling operations in Canada are beginning to run into stiff legal opposition and controls.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows most provinces have laid down strict rules for such schemes.

Definition has been vital in drawing up legislation to control pyramid or multi-level selling.

An Ontario ministerial committee described it as a system of marketing goods or services by recruiting people to different levels of distribution, depending on the amount of their investment. Emphasis was on the sale of distributorships, not the sale of the product. Those high up the line profited from the unskilled investor.

The Ontario committee agreed with Alberta legislation on the essential distinguishing feature of pyramid schemes—that the investment brings with it a right to recruit other investors. In other words, recruitment for gain is their main element.

This excludes multi-level marketing based primarily on the sale of the product and where investment is limited to those who have the proven ability to sell it.

The flush of pyramid selling in the 1960s covered such products as cosmetics, car safety devices, pots and pans, self-improvement courses, description paintings and retail discount cards.

The crackdown of the 1970s parallels similar action in Britain and the United States. The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission recently asked that Koscot Interplanetary Inc., and Glenn W. Turner, its founder, be enjoined from future violations of securities registration and anti-fraud provisions of securities laws in selling participation in the cosmetic pyramid promotion scheme.

A British court earlier ordered the company to wind up its affairs, branding the operation "a gigantic swindle of the public."

Other Turner companies have included Dare to be Great (self-improvement), Kash In Best (discount cards) and Versilex Sales (detergents).

In general, government legislation is not aimed at product quality but at the company's internal structure and methods.

Paul Brown, Ontario's registrar of pyramid schemes since June, said: "The average guy hasn't a chance against the old revival-meeting techniques and modern psychological methods used by high-pressure salesmen."

The province's ministerial study of pyramid selling found these unacceptable characteristics:

—Schemes were so arranged that profits from distributorship sales were vastly greater than from commissions from product sales.

—Inadequate training in sales and little concern with the ability of the investor to market the product with which he was stocked.

—A tendency to promote distributorship sales "with almost evangelical fervor" and a disinclination to disclose relevant information on numbers and success of other investors.

—A contract "which reflects the persuasiveness (of the distributor) and gullibility (of the investor)" by requiring the latter to buy large quantities of the product, involve himself in further fees and leave little room for a refund if the scheme doesn't work.

—Mathematical difficulties involved in emphasizing recruitment ad infinitum, ignoring that there comes a time when it is physically impossible to obtain investors at lower levels.

Some provinces have had no apparent problem with pyramid promoters.

Newfoundland, for example, appears to have escaped their attention. A spokesman for the Better Business Bureau said there is no such operation in the province.

Gordon French, director of consumer affairs, said: "These companies find there is little outlet for their operations in Newfoundland."

G. L. Monkley, deputy provincial secretary of Prince Edward Island, said his province has no specific law governing pyramid schemes.

"We check pretty closely if anyone starts coming in," he added. But other firms were "not any problem right now."

A spokesman for Nova Scotia's legal department said the province could act against unwelcome multi-level schemes by using either the Securities Act or provisions of the Criminal Code, depending on the type of selling.

The lottery section of the criminal code was used in New Brunswick where Dare to be Great (1971) of Canada Ltd. pleaded guilty in September to a charge of conducting an illegal lottery and was fined $5,000.

All pyramid selling in Quebec is outlawed under sections of the Consumer Protection Act passed last year. It provides for fines up to $2,000 or a year in jail for individuals and fines up to $25,000 for companies.

Some companies, however, have continued to operate by changing their names and advertising and because of the slowness in judicial procedure.

Legislation requiring pyramid selling and abolishing referral selling came into effect in Ontario in June.

Pyramid promoters must file a prospectus—a statement of facts—with the Ontario registrar. After three months, only two companies had indicated they were moving in that direction, Mr. Brown, the registrar, is certain that many more are continuing their operations, claiming that their methods and corporate structures do not fall under definitions in the new act.

The act provides penalties for violations of up to $100,000 for companies and $5,000 for individuals. The bounty for recruiting a new participant is limited to 10 per cent of his investment and he must receive goods with a retail value at least equal to his total investment.

The warrior can back out of the deal at any time within six months and receive 75 per cent of his money back, less consideration for goods not returned.

Manitoba has had legislation since mid-1971 giving its Consumer's Bureau control over all direct or door-to-door salesmen. The bureau must grant a master vendor's license to a company before the company can hire such salesmen and it can limit the number of salesmen in any one company and require a policy outline before granting a license.

John Mason, the bureau's director, said about 25 companies had applied for licences but none using "the classic pyramid" was approved. Under an amendment this year the bureau can act against "border hoppers"—fly-by-night companies that drift over the border and then disappear after a short time by allowing authorities to apply for a restraining order while gathering evidence.

The Pyramid Franchises Act in Saskatchewan requires pyramid sellers to obtain a license to operate. They must post bonds that allow any person to cancel his distributorship with at least a partial refund.

Complaints were received early this year about Dare to be Great operations in the province, but Consumer Affairs Minister Ed Tchorzewski said in September: "They appear to have disappeared. We don't locate an office or anyone who has purchased a franchise."

In Alberta, Dare to be Great of Canada Ltd. was fined $20,000 in April and 11 employees were fined $5,000 each. Consol Interstate's of Canada was fined $7,500 in Edmonton the same month and now is not operating in the province.

The RCMP brought charges under the Criminal Code against detergent-selling Golden Canada Products Ltd. and nine of its principals and distributors in May, with the trial being set for this fall.

British Columbia has no legislation controlling pyramid selling. The B.C. Securities Commission took action against Best Line Products of Vancouver by issuing a restraining order, but it was over-ruled by the provincial Supreme Court.

No Rift with Area Says Picton Mayor

PICTON (Staff) — Mayor Margaret Ackerman last night rapped a recent headline in the local press implying relations between Hallowell township and Picton have degressed.

She claimed relations "have never been better" and referred to several inter-council meetings including one among Picton, Hallowell and Bloomfield councils last summer to discuss extension of services.

The mayor denied any rift and said annexation for certain areas was discussed by the councils and verbal approval given for further study of this proposal.

She explained there is "a problem" in the large disposal plant in Picton and it must be upgraded and enlarged to permit an extension of services.

Mayor Ackerman stressed her first responsibility is to the taxpayers of Picton and said the cost of upgrading the disposal plant should be shared by all benefiting from its use.

She suggested annexation as one method of ensuring payment. A second possibility is the inclusion of a share of disposal costs.

Mayor Ackerman recommended an agreement for extension of services drawn up between Hallowell and Picton in 1970 should be reconsidered.

The mayor noted the news story she protested stated that a house outside the town limits had been refused water service from Picton.

She thumped a piece of rusty pipe on her desk and declared, "This is not so."

Mayor Ackerman said the pipe was part of an inadequate line now being replaced by a new one to service the house.

"Picton honors agreements made," she stressed as she referred to the charge that extension of services had been denied to one homeowner in Hallowell.

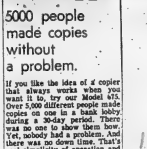
The news story drawing the mayor's criticism stated that having concluded an agreement with Hallowell (after years of negotiations to extend services) Picton town council now appears to be bent on scrapping the agreement.

Mayor Ackerman was termed the main proponent for the about-face move.

At the September session of council she moved that no extension of municipal services should be made beyond the corporation limits until the lands to be serviced were annexed to the town.

This motion was an amendment to an earlier one making service extension contingent on the consent of the builder, developer and the township of Hallowell that the land be annexed to Picton.

Council did not support Mayor Ackerman's proposed motion to force annexation.



Separate Ballots For Election

PICTON (Staff) — Picton town council last night passed a bylaw calling for separate ballots for the election of a mayor, reeve and deputy-reeve in December.

The bylaw was passed to prevent confusion which could result from having the names printed on a single ballot. Separate ballots are permitted by the Ontario Municipal Act.

Picton deputy-reeve James Bird noted booklets detailing the 1972 election act are available at the town clerk's office at a cost of $1.25.

But no-one has so many of them in models priced as low as ours. And that's something you can easily check for yourself.

PICTURE QUALITY FEATURES:

2. Automatic Picture Tuning. (We call it Total Picture Tuning. It's a single push-bar that controls and balances Color, Tint, Contrast, Brightness and Fine Tuning—automatically finds the best picture your set is capable of receiving on each channel. If you buy a set with this very worthwhile feature, you won't need the next three buttons. They seriously duplicated.)
3. Automatic Color Tuning. (It combines the functions of Automatic Tint Control and Automatic Fine Tuning—which between them determine the quality of the Color you get on each channel. We call it Total Color Lock. And it's on the set you choose, you won't need the next two features.)
4. Automatic Tint Control. (We call it Tint Lok. What it does is automatically adjust color values. So if a series of speech bubbles suddenly appear on your screen, you can just switch to Automatic Tint Control instead of trying to make the adjustment manually).
5. Automatic Fine Tuning. (It works like a push-button radio. You tune each station just once and your TV will automatically tune for itself after that. We call our AFT control Color Lok.)

RELIABILITY FEATURES:

6. A Solid State Chassis. (That's usually taken to mean a chassis that's at least 90% solid state. Translation: replaces those old-fashioned vacuum tubes in a solid state chassis—and transistors run cooler and thus eliminate overheating problems.)
7. Plug-in Transistors. (Because they're easier, faster and cheaper to replace than the solder-in kind. Fleetwood is the only manufacturer to use plug-in transistors right throughout the circuitry).
8. A Solid State Voltage Booster. (It boosts house current up to the high voltages needed to operate Color TV. You'll still find bulky and relatively unreliable voltage "ropes" in some sets. They take up a lot of space and give off a lot of heat. Avoid them.)

Campaign Roundup

Northern Policies Come Under Attack

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and New Democrat Leader David Lewis attacked Prime Minister Trudeau's policies of the government in federal election campaigning Monday night.

Meanwhile Prime Minister Trudeau spent the day in Newfoundland and New Brunswick where he urged voters to cast the "vision and doers" for conservatives who hold nine of the 15 seats in the two provinces and opt for the "confidence in Canada" Liberals.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette was in western Quebec where he said that Social Credit economic policies were the answer to what ails the country.

Mr. Stanfield did no active campaigning, but fired off a press release in Ottawa saying he was shocked to learn of discussions between the Canadian and West German governments concerning West German-designed ships to move iron ore from Baffin Island to Europe.

He said a Conservative government would give Canadian shipyards and shipping companies first crack at developing ice-breaking freighters nee ded to transport raw materials from the Canadian North.

Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien has said that the talks were informal and exploratory only.

In Toronto Mr. Lewis told a party meeting the proposed Mackenzie Valley gas pipeline was a mammoth plan to exploit American resources on a mindboggling scale.

He said 12 of the 16 companies in the consortium expected to build the pipeline are U.S.-controlled.

Mr. Lewis said Canada would be asked to find $1-billion for the project which would be controlled largely by the multinational corporations in the consortium.

The pipeline project "involves out economic and political independence, the ecology of our fragile North and Canada's entire future," said Mr. Lewis.

In Ottawa Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said gas reserves developed in the western Arctic were primarily for Canadian consumption.

Still to be decided was whether the pipeline, needed to bring the gas to southern markets, should be financed by selling surplus gas to U.S. customers.

In a reply directed at the Committee for an Independent Canada, Mr. Macdonald said he shared its concern that control of the pipeline rest in Canadian hands.

Legal control would rest with the National Energy Board. But the government also was concerned that corporate control rest in Canadian hands and that Canadians have the chance to hold a majority of the voting shares in the pipeline.

Mr. Trudeau started his day in St. John's, Nfld., where he said the Conservatives are a party of fear.

He charged the Conservatives with playing on the fears of people.

"Liberalism means confidence and freedom and liberty of the individual," said the prime minister. "Conservatism means let's go slowly, let's be careful, let's be conservative about it."

On the steps of city hall in Saint John, N.B., Mr. Trudeau said the Conservative party was made up "of gloomsters, doomsters and boomsters . . . doomy people who don't believe in the future of the country."

Winding up a whirlwind tour in Moncton, he promised his government would deliver "more fairness, economic security and self-fulfilment".

About 1,000 persons also were told that the Official Languages Act and the regional economic expansion department together added up to "nothing short of equality of opportunity for all Canadians."

In Gatineau, Que., Mr. Caouette said if Canadians controlled their own economy, there would be no talk of separation.

He said the U.S. leaks money on the basis of this country's natural resources and the Bank of Canada should do the same. Canadian social security plans now divide rather than unite Canada, he said. They should be replaced by a guaranteed annual income system.

Well, Hello There!

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — Local police, sent to Hamilton to supply officials here with information on two bank suspects happened to spot the bandits in a shopping mall and made the arrests themselves, authorities said today.

Acting on information that at least two of the four men being sought for the Sept. 11 bombing of the Beaver County courthouse here may have fled across the border in a stolen car, detective Bernard Castaldini and Pennsylvania trooper Lee went to Hamilton Friday.

On Saturday, Castaldini and the trooper were walking through a Hamilton shopping mall when they spotted the two men they were looking for.

As the policemen approached, the two men bolted but were apprehended following a brief chase and scuffle, Castaldini said.

Castaldini identified the suspects as Ronald Robert Bell, brothers from Weirton, W. Va., who were returned here Sunday night.

The men are accused of setting off a fireworks outside the old stone courthouse here. The bomb, 50 sticks of dynamite set on a alarm clock, caused heavy damage.

BASSOON CONCERT

TORONTO (CP) — A concert intended to show the musical potential of the bassoon and the range of compositions available for the instrument, is planned for Oct. 7, with Christopher Weait performing. Mr. Weait, currently with the Toronto Symphony, formerly served as principal bassoon at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Retarded Need Aid with Leisure

e.MONTREAL (CP) — Mentally retarded persons need to be taught how to spend their leisure time, but once they have learned the lessons they also find sports, socializing and other recreational activities enjoyable.

Two speakers in different fields and from different countries brought this same message to delegates to the International Congress on Mental Retardation Monday.

Kenneth Solly, deputy secretary-general for the British National Society for Mentally Handicapped Children, London and Inger Claesson, secretary of the Swedish minister of education and culture, Stockholm, both said that few mentally retarded persons have any meaningful spare-time activities.

As well, for mentally retarded persons to use their leisure in a meaningful way they need considerable help to learn how to do so, the two speakers said.

Mrs. Claesson described how a group of normal adolescents had begun to work with a group of mentally retarded adolescents.

"Most of the mentally retarded adolescents gained in self-confidence and learned quite a lot," she said. "There is a normal companions, too, learned a great deal: How important social training is; that it demands a carefully prepared educational method, and that most of the retarded adolescents were under-estimated by their parents."

The retarded group had to learn, in many instances through tedious repetition and rote, work with their normal companions, such seemingly simple things as how to get to a meeting place on a bus, for instance, or how to handle money or how to sing for a snack and chat at a coffee shop.

Mr. Solly said that some form of physical education is likely, no matter how limited to the abilities of the severely handicapped person: often "the opportunity to share in lively physical involvement in company with others." It should be a part of all programs, he added.

"Experience indicates the special need the retarded have for constant stimulation. The initiative is lacking which will enable a child to join in, or stay in, without continual encouragement."

This calls for special demands on the physical education staff, he said. But the rewards are worth it.

Mr. Solly described the results of some of the retarded groups he had worked with, including progress in table tennis, swimming and canoeing.

Leisure means the exercise of how one spends his time and the same is true for retarded persons, he said. But for the retarded there often is too much unused leisure.

During the business sessions of the International League of Societies for the Mentally Handicapped, 31 associations were admitted to membership.

Gets 5 Years

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Roland Vernon McDonald, 38, of no fixed address, was sentenced in provincial court Monday to five years in penitentiary for the $138 armed robbery of a milk store here Aug. 31. He was found guilty last week.

the league now represents 38 associations in 31 countries.

Yvonne Pasternak of Geneva, Switzerland, was re-elected president for a second two-year term during the business session.

Dublin, Ireland, will be the site of the next international congress, which will be held in 1975 delegates decided.

Still Walking

PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP) — Chief WO Philip Landique, 40, of Canadian Forces Base Petawawa has set out to break his own world record for non-stop walking. Chief WO Lefalque, who set the world record of 225 miles in April, began trudging around a quarter-mile cinder track at the base Sunday and is aiming at 300 miles this time. He is scheduled to complete the week-end Wednesday. Donations by sponsors go to research on cystic fibrosis.

Packaging Warning Issued

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Environment Minister Jarrett Auld warned industry Monday that the province will act unilaterally if it must in order to control the flow of containers, packages and other solid waste materials.

Mr. Auld said the province is concerned with the proliferation of packaging material and the strain it places on waste disposal facilities.

Figures indicate the quantity of packaging used and discarded is increasing faster than the growth of population, the minister said in a speech to the Canadian Corrugated Case Association.

The average person creates five pounds of garbage a day, double the amount of the individual waste load from 10 years ago, he said.

A desire for "convenience" packaging created the huge waste load, but "it would be unfair to say manufacturers and major retailers encouraged this trend in some degree instigated it through their advertising and merchandising."

Modern society had reached the stage where goods were "over-packaged."

Mr. Auld said his ministry

Visit Easier

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany has agreed to a new procedure enabling West Berliners to visit East Berlin and East Germany on the day of their choice, a city spokesman reported Monday. He said that beginning today, West Berliners may apply for a multiple-visit permit good for eight visits beyond the wall into the East.

and the government did not want to be part of the problem of making arbitrary, unilateral decisions and forcing measures upon the packaging industry.

"However, should it become obvious that the only way to bring about a reduction in the total amount of waste is by legislation and regulation, then, this is the way we will be forced to move."

Strike Looms

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Labor leaders of Italy's mechanical, textile and chemical workers decided Monday to go ahead with a joint strike despite calls for moderation from national union leaders in Rome. The strike was set for Oct. 16.

Social And Personal

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. Allen Johnston (nee Evelyn Chisholm) was honored at several showers and presented with several gifts. The staff at the Forest Ministry of Natural Resources entertained the bride at a dinner and presented her with a gift. Mrs. Kenneth Twiddy, as hostess, and Miss Evelyn and Mrs. Horace Knight, as co-hostesses, honored the bride with a miscellaneous shower. The staff at the Ministry of Natural Resources, Sioux Lookout presented the bride with a gift. A community shower and dance was held in the Orange Hall at Wallbridge in honor of the bride and bridegroom. The Senior and Junior Choirs at Foxboro Emmanuel United Church presented gifts to the bride. Following the rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. W. Johnston entertained the bridal party and several friends in the church hall.

Previous to her recent marriage, Mrs. William Hare (nee Catherine Gilhooley) was entertained at a kitchen shower held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Cook with Mrs. Karen Cook as hostess.

Bride-to-Be Honored By Community

RAWDON—Miss Joyce Jeffs an October bride - to - be was tendered a miscellaneous shower at Island Park recently. There were 58 women in attendance. Host hostesses were Campbellford, Springbrook and the former Alma Public School section at Mount Pleasant.

Corsages were provided for the bride-to-be and her mother, Mrs. Elsie Jeffs of Springbrook's mother, Mrs. Robert Cosbey; and three grandmothers, Mrs. Fred Smith, Mrs. J. R. Belshaw, Campbellford; and Mrs. William Rose, Bonarlaw. Mrs. Dave Potts of Island Park, was presented with corsages.

The reception hall was decorated in a large array of colorful bouquets, pink and white streamers. The dining table was centred with a large appropriately decorated cake.

Mrs. Claire Knight, the chairlady spoke briefly. Joyce was given a seat of honor where she unwrapped her gifts. Miss Bobbie Smith of Campbellford arranged the ribbons and bows on a three-tiered cardboard wedding cake.

Several women fashioned a bride's book where everyone placed their signature. Games of progressive euchre were played.

A small buffet luncheon and cake was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Claire Knight, Mrs. Ralph Carlisle, Mrs. Doug Campbell and Mrs. Garry Bateman.

FICTIONAL FAMILIES

VIENNA (AP) — An Austrian tax official was sentenced to three years in prison for pocketing $17,800 in family allowances for nonexisting Yugoslav workers he had created on paper.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM HARE

Hare – Gilhooley

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony of Catherine Ann Adele Gilhooley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Gilhooley, Belleville and William Harry Hare, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Hare, of RR 3 Welland. Father Ken Slitt performed the ceremony. Sister Lois Williams provided organ music to the accompaniment of guitarist Regan Crawford.

The bride given in marriage by her father selected a wedding gown fashioned of Ligeda with a sheer lace trimmed bodice which was decorated with seed pearls. Her long fitted sleeves were completed with a deep ruffled cuff which was edged with madeira lace. The deeply ruffled hem was edged with the same lace as the sleeves. A dainty pearl tiara headdress was caught to a cathedral length veil of silk illusion which was trimmed with matching lace to the gown. She carried a mixed colonial bouquet of red roses, purple statice, white stock and miniature pink carnations intermingled with ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Maureen Gilhooley, sister of the bride, wore a floor length gown enhanced by a mauve chiffon bodice and printed chiffon skirt. A ruffle trimmed the high neckline and bishop's cuffs of the long sleeves as well as the front of the bodice. A wide sash accented the skirt. She carried a bouquet of pink and white mums.

Bridesmaids, Miss Mary Ellen Beninger, Miss Colleen Gilhooley and Miss Loyola Gilhooley, sisters of the bride were dressed identically to the maid of honor and carried the same flowers.

Bruce Cook was best man. The ushers were Allan Flahburn, Scott Harris, and Patrick Gilhooley, brother of the bride.

For the reception held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, the bride's mother received guests wearing a purple crepe dress highlighted by a white crepe bodice and completed by a matching purple crepe jacket. White accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white carnations completed her ensemble.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a teal blue dress of polyester crepe with a matching hat and silver accessories. Her dress was complemented by a corsage of white carnations and pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Lake - on - the - Mountain, the bride donned a long navy blue dress accented by a white collar and enhanced with a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hare will reside at Foothill, Ontario.

DR. AND MRS. JOSEPH H. KLUGER

Kluger – Rose

Sons of Jacob Synagogue in Belleville was the setting recently for a double ring wedding ceremony when Penny Joy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney C. Rose, became the bride of Dr. Joseph H. Kluger, son of Mr. Reuben Kluger of Florida and Mrs. Betty Kluger of Montreal. Rabbi Reuben Sheslen of Toronto performed the ceremony and the organ music was provided by Mr. Stan Hawthorne.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Ritchie Original floor length gown of French crepe de chine featuring a fitted bodice wedding ring collar and long fitted sleeves. Her shoulder length two-tier veil of French illusion was delicately scalloped at the edges and fell to a full chapel train at the back of the bride's gown. She carried a spray of white roses and stephanotis.

The bridesmaids were: Misses Mindy Schoenberger of Toronto, cousin of the bride, Faye Ladner of Winnipeg, Judi Shulman and Shirley Yanover. The bride's attendants were dressed similarly to the matron of honor in long gowns fashioned in dark green chiffon velvet bodices, avocado chiffon skirts while large dark green velvet bows adorned their hair.

Miss Leslie Albert, the bride's niece, was the flower girl and wore a full length dotted Swiss gown in avocado green which was sashed and bowed in dark green velvet.

Dr. Sydney Kluger of Montreal was best man for his brother. Ushers were: Sheldon Rose, the bride's brother, Eric Smith, Laurie Morse of Montreal, David Stellar of Toronto and Mel Starr of Cincinnati.

Jeffrey Albert, nephew of the bride was the ring bearer.

A reception followed at the Four Seasons Hotel where the bride's mother received guests wearing a full length gown of daffodil yellow delustred satin topped off by a long sleeved brief Chanel jacket and a corsage of yellow roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted attired in a floor length gold green crepe gown elegantly enhanced at the neckline and cuff edges with a jewel trim. An orchid corsage completed her dress.

Mr. Ted Schwab, the bride's uncle acted as master of ceremonies and called upon Dr. Ronald Rankin to propose the toast to the bride.

For the wedding trip to Mexico, the bride donned a red plaid pantsuit with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

MR. AND MRS. ALLEN JOHNSTON

Johnston – Chisholm

Foxboro Emmanuel United Church was the setting for the recent wedding ceremony when Evelyn Joan Chisholm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Chisholm, RR 1 Belleville exchanged vows with Frederic Allen Johnston of Sioux Lookout, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnston, Foxboro. Rev. Abel Parsons officiated while Mrs. Fern Spence rendered organ music to the accompaniment of soloist Mr. Bruce Swan.

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a full length white gown reembroidered with imported Chantilly lace, which featured a gathered skirt and high waistline. Pearl beads accented the round neckline and her long lace sleeves ended in lily points at the wrists. A detachable train flowed from the back of the waistline. A satin floral cluster headdress which was trimmed with lace and pearls held her three-tiered scalloped illusion shoulder length veil. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. Robert Sills, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floor length pink moss crepe gown accented by full puffed sleeves and wide cuffs. A flower trim enhanced her waistline. She carried a colonial bouquet of white poms intermingled with lilac fluffs and encircled with lace doily. Small roses adorned her hair.

The bridesmaids, Miss Evelyn Knight, Mrs. Sharon Chambers, and Miss Barbara Brown were lilac moss crepe floor length gowns identically styled to the matron of honor's. Each bridal attendant carried a colonial bouquet of white poms and pink fluffs with lace doily.

Miss Deborah Sills, niece of the bride, as flower girl wore a pink moss crepe long waisted short dress which was accented by a wide flared skirt and flower trimming. She carried a basket of small white pinnochio poms.

Mr. Robert Sills, brother-in-law of the bride was the groomsman. Mr. James Johnston, Mr. Lloyd Johnston and Mr. John Chisholm ushered the guests while Master Dean Sills and Master Derek Johnston acted as ring bearers. Each carried a satin pillows. Mr. David Chisholm had the honor to light the candles just before the bridal procession.

For the reception which was held at Emmanuel Church Hall in Foxboro, the bride's mother received guests wearing a lilac floral dress of oriental sheer over taffeta. A lilac moss crepe sleeveless vest enhanced her dress. She wore beige accessories and carried a corsage of yellow roses and miniature carnations. Small roses, which were made from the same crepe as the dress, accented her hair.

The bridegroom's mother was attired in a rose floral dress of Oriental sheer over taffeta. While accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white miniature carnations enhanced her dress.

Following the reception in the church hall, the couple left for a wedding trip to western Canada. The bride chose a vibrant red and grey plaid bias-woven jacket and vest with a plain red skirt and turtleneck sweater. Her ensemble was enhanced by white accessories and a tinted orchid corsage.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will reside at 37 Prince Street, Sioux Lookout, Ontario (Box 1091).

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Who needs a dad more: a boy or girl?

A CHILD needs a father most of all, whether the youngster is a son or daughter. Nothing gives a greater sense of security than having both parents at hand, and a girl is just as insecure as a boy when it comes to devising stories to still the fears and deprivation brought on by a father's absence. Any excuse used by a little girl, "sexy," is better than thinking her own father left her because he did not love her enough to want to stay.

Must a good salesman be persistent?

YES, but not in the sense that he badgers his customers. A good salesman sets frequently learn everything possible about the product he is selling so that he can convince potential buyers of its value. If a salesman is persistent, he will get away with it if he is determined to sell that commodity not only because of the commission he will earn but also—and mainly—because he wants the customer to be pleased with the purchase.

Can secrets be kept from a wife?

NOT if a husband loves his wife; and not long-term happy secrets. Say a man doesn't tell his wife about a raise so he can surprise her when he has accumulated enough for a vacation trip. He spoils the bonus because she will get so much pleasure out of looking forward to the trip as he will. But the husband had better not tell her until he has saved enough to make the dream trip attainable. Otherwise the next gag will go for something "practical."

Ann Landers

Snapshots Are Incentive For This Weight-Watcher

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure there are thousands if not millions of people in your reading audience who are fat; know it, hate it, would love to lose weight but have no will power. This is the way I was until I got sick of myself and devised my own personal technique for staying away from ruinous rich foods (which I dearly love), and eating half portions instead of reaching for seconds—even thirds.

I had a friend take several snapshots of me in gazebos and bras—head back, side-view, every angle imaginable to reveal my fat dimensions. I carried these pictures with me and looked at them before every meal. It was enough to spoil my appetite.

I then recorded my true weight in red paint on a big placard. As my weight went down I crossed out the old number and wrote in the new.

It was a tremendous incentive. I do not keep candy, cookies, sweet rolls, cake or other tempting goodies in the house. Instead I stock the fridge with fruit, carrots and celery. And I've learned that water can quench my thirst. The pounds came off.

Now that I have a new body I intend to keep it by remembering the fat one that made me feel inferior and ashamed to the point I hated myself.—This Is Chicago

Dear This: A great many people do not realize that excessive eating is closely akin to alcoholism. This is why Weight Watchers often succeeds when everything else has failed—its concept is similar to A.A. My double congratulations to you for taking able to do it on your own. Few people can.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing for the benefit of that nut who wanted his eight-month-old nephew to be the best man at his wedding because he was his closest male blood relative.

Just yesterday I ran across an article that outlined in detail the duties of a best man. Here they are:

Help the groom dress. Hand him the bride's ring. Make the toast to the bride and groom. Dance with the bride after she has danced the first dance with the groom, the second dance with her father, and the third dance with her father-in-law. Make sure the groom has his honeymoon tickets and reservation. Give the clergyman a "token of appreciation." Send the bride's parents a thank-you telegram for the reception—in the groom's name, of course.

It's true that kids are awfully precocious these days but I doubt very much that any youngster could handle the aforementioned responsibilities. Tell the knot will you, Ann?—Mesbergen

Dear Mesk: I don't think it will do any good. Any guy who would want a baby in the wedding party (and as his best man yet) is not about to listen to you or me. So lots of luck to him.

Better Service For the Rich

FREDERICTON (CP) — Rich girl, poor girl: which one gets the best service when she goes shopping?

Susan Tweedie and Connie Hansen, students at the University of New Brunswick here, tried to find out in an experiment they did for a psychology class.

Susan wore cheap, baggy slacks, and oversized shirt, and carried a vulgar, showy purse for her "poor girl" role.

Connie wore a stylish new dress with matching white shoes and purse; her hair had been done and she was carefully made up.

The pair visited 29 local stores divided into four categories: shoe, jewelry, clothing, and other.

The result?

"I'd hate to be poor," said Susan.

"I felt really rejected at times. I didn't think people were that bad."

On their shopping excursion, the girls entered stores at the same time and stood close to be served, noted how they were each other while they handled articles to draw attention.

They then measured the length of time it took for each to be served, noted how they were addressed and the assistance each received.

Overall, "rich" Connie received service first in 85 per cent of stores visited.

At one clothing store, she said, "they stood on their heads and spit wooden nickels for me, as the saying goes, but for Susan they pointed and said, 'There's the rack.'"

WHA Dinner Dance Successful

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary held a delightful dinner dance at the Four Seasons Hotel recently to promote the opening of the coffee and gift shops in the near future at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. J. E. Nelles, president welcomed the full house which included members of the medical profession, hospital personnel and friends and members of the auxiliary.

Red roses and candles placed on gold tablecloths added to the elegance of the evening.

Mrs. S. E. Bochnek, convener for the dinner dance thanked the Four Seasons management for their donation of door prizes and their co-operation. She noted that all other prizes given were donated by suppliers of the gift shops and members of the handicraft committee of the WHA.

Assistants for the dinner dance were Mrs. Angus Duffy, Mrs. F. Stokmans, and Miss Lucy Stokmans, a junior volunteer. Miss Stokmans has also assisted in the Pediatric Wards and the library cart.

Several features of the shop: sweet treats, artificial soap and flower arrangements were on display at the dinner dance.

More Character Values Should Be Taught

By DORIS CLARK

Here's another of those character values which are not taught in school — and which should be taught some place, if we are to stem the growing tide of vandalism and irresponsibility among our young people.

It is Work Well Done. All of us have seen the spread of careless workmanship in recent years and been victimized by its prevalence.

We have clocks (guaranteed never) which simply will not keep ticking nor respond for long to treatments, radios, paint jobs, all manner of things which seem to fall apart with the slightest encouragement.

Students ought to be taught that it is a matter of self-respect, of pride, of personal satisfaction to do a job well; even if this means ripping out stitches, recopying essays, reshaping woodwork.

There is a lack of personal discipline in poor work — the kind which leads to a could-not-care-less attitude. By the time a young person becomes adult, he should have established some standards for himself in the work he does, and the backbone to live up to them.

Dear Doris: Enclosed is an envelope and 25 cents. Please send me your leaflet entitled, "Aging — Some Rules To Go By."

I am sure I will find it helpful as I am — Nearly Eighty.

Dear Nearly Eighty: If you are near 80 and willing to take help, good for you! I only despair of the oldsters who consider themselves washed up, shake their heads and figure they know the situation is hopeless anyway.

There are six rules listed in the leaflet. They are simple to follow — if you have the will to do it, ticking them all off every day.

Taken seriously, they can add happy and useful years to your life; and I am quite sure that those two adjectives go together. We need to feel useful to be happy.

Confidential to M.S.: Your older son sees the dog as a pet to play with and love, and a dog can indeed become that. But with joys come responsibilities. Put it up to him.

Either he takes on the job of training the pup, cleaning up the messes in the garden, feeding him; or he agrees to your finding him a more adequate home in the country.

There are fine Obedience Courses; books in the library; an organization called Kindness Clubs; all can help him do the job and make it possible for the whole family to enjoy a faithful pet.

He "talks to him as if he were a child"? Well, a dog has some intelligence and can learn to be well behaved. Give your son a deadline and challenge him.

There are Canadian regulars to help solve your problems. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Ontario Wheat Farmers' Payment System Needed

Kingston, ont. (CP) — An official of the federal agriculture department said Monday that 16,000 Ontario farmers are eligible for payments under the government's two-price system for wheat, but only about 11,000 have applied for them.

Harvy Leggett, director of the grains division of the department's production and marketing branch, discussed the wheat payment policy, inaugurated last January, at the annual meeting of the Ontario Wheat Producers' Marketing Board.

He said there is no problem distributing the supplementary payments for wheat sold for domestic consumption in Western Canada, where acreage figures for each producer are on record with the Canadian wheat board. But no similar figures have applied for them.

Population Rising

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario's population July 1 has been estimated at 21,854,000, up 1.3 per cent from July 1, last year, Statistics Canada reported Monday. The bureau said British Columbia had the fastest growth rate in the year, up 2.2 per cent. Saskatchewan was the only province to show a decline in population. Ontario was the most populous with 7,838,000, up from 7,737,000 a year earlier.

Arms Stolen

BRESCIA, Italy (AP) — Ancient arms, worth 800 million lire ($1,300,000) were stolen from a castle in this north Italian city Sunday night. The arms—rifles, pistols and swords of the 15th and 17th centuries— were part of a private collection bequeathed to the city.

Guns Seized

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has turned down a request by the Ottawa police to extradite three Americans from the Rochester, N.Y., area on charges of conspiracy to import unregistered and restricted firearms. A spokesman for the attorney-general's office said Monday conspiracy is not an extraditable offence. The 165 Italian sub-machine-guns were seized in June in a welding shop where they were being deactivated—for sale to collectors.

Bill Defeated

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The House of Representatives defeated Monday a bill designed to give President Nixon authority to recruit 50,000 Americans to any country that is engaged in armed conflict with the United States. The legislation was inspired by recent visits to Hanoi by actress Jane Fonda and former attorney-general Ramsey Clark, who later criticized American bombing of North Vietnam. While a majority of members — 330 to 141 — supported the measure; it lacked the needed two thirds majority.

Mayor Retiring

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Mackenzie Chown, St. Catharines mayor since 1958 and a 26-year veteran of city council, announced Monday his retirement from municipal politics. The 51-year-old lawyer cited his family and law practice as the principal reasons for his decision not to seek another term in the Dec. 4 election.

Recaptured

KINGSTON (CP) — Walter Stanley Murray, 51, was captured Monday about nine hours after escaping through a cell window of the Joyceville correctional institution. A prison spokesman said Murray, serving an indeterminate sentence for parole violation, reportedly kicked out his light iron bars in the window.

Release Asked

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Noel Barbeau of Court of Queen's Bench received a written defence motion Monday asking that the four capital murder charges against Jacques Rose be dropped. He said he would rule on the motion Friday. Robert Lemieux, Rose's lawyer, made a verbal motion earlier in the day that "the judge should ask the Crown whether it has any evidence to offer in the murder case and, if not, then Rose should be acquitted." Rose is charged with murdering Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister, abducted and slain in October, 1970.

Murder Witness Reports

MONTREAL (CP) — A 38-year-old woman telephoned Montreal police Monday and said she was the target of a purse snatcher during the weekend shortly before a man who claimed her handbag was killed.

A police spokesman said the woman, whose identity is being withheld, contacted police at the urging of her friends.

Det.-Lieut. Emile Boire said a youth appeared before Coroner Laurin Lapointe and was held on a coroner's warrants. No inquest date was set.

Daniel Rudberg, 38, a suburban Westmount millionaire, was stabbed twice near the heart with a three-inch switchblade when he chased the youth in some hostes after spoiling the attempted snatch.

Mr. Rudberg was driving in the downtown area with his wife and two other couples Saturday night when they spotted the woman being knocked down.

The three men followed the youth into an alley. Ralph Bernier went to call police after telling the others not to pursue the suspect.

"While I was away phoning the police, evidently Dan went after the fellow and he was stabbed," Mr. Bernier said.

Funeral services for Mr. Rudberg are to be held today.

Grim Milestone

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States is speeding toward a grim milestone recording its two millionth highway death since the car became a part of the American scene 75 years ago, Transport Secretary John Volpe said Monday. He said in a speech that at the rate of a thousand deaths a week, the milestone will be reached in the coming months.

MEASURE UP!

Dominion Puts It All Together! Deep Discount Prices—Plus A Brand New Measure Of Meat Value!

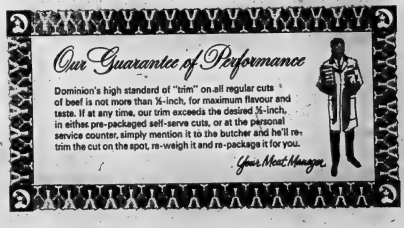
We've taken Dominion's famous Red Brand Beef...naturally aged for maximum flavour, taste and tenderness...and we've added a brand new standard of performance that guarantees you top meat value when you shop Dominion.

Our standard of trim on all fresh cuts of beef is ONE-HALF INCH. Any less fat and you loose taste and cookability. Any more and you're probably paying too much.

YOU be the judge!

We set the new standard of meat excellence and we've backed it up with our written guarantee of performance, so you the shopper can measure meat value for yourself.

We can't speak for others but at Dominion, either we measure up to our long famous reputation for meat quality and trim...or we make it good...on the spot.



Take The "King" Of Roasts For Example.

A Dominion Prime Rib has long been regarded as "the King of roasts" and with good reason. Very few cuts offer as much total satisfaction. A Naturally aged Dominion Prime Rib...at Deep Discount Prices...is truly great meat value at any time. Now, let's take a look at the extra measure of value you get with Dominion's Guarantee of Performance...

EXAMPLE No. 3 (As Illustrated Above)

Dominion Prime Rib Roasts are a good example of what we mean by "performance". Our policy on "trim" is clear, simple and designed to save you money. Here's what to look for:

- Spinal cord and chine bone removed.
- Blade bone and back strap removed.
- All excess interior fat removed.
- Outside fat trim must not exceed one-half inch in any given area.
- 1st to 5th rib portion must not exceed 7 inches in length.
- 6th and 7th rib portion must not exceed 3 inches in length.

DOMINION

...If you didn't shop Dominion last week you probably paid too much.

Nominations Close in Boondocks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Liberals and Progressive Conservatives had full slates in the running after nominations for the Oct. 30 federal election closed Monday in 21 ridings. The New Democratic Party had candidates in all but the vast Ungava constituency in Quebec.

A total of 84 candidates was nominated in the recently-settled ridings where nominations closed early, to allow distribution of election material in out-of-the-way communities. Nominations in the remaining 343 ridings close Oct. 10.

The 21 ridings are scattered across the northern part of the country from Labrador to the Queen Charlotte Islands. They cover 30 per cent of Canada's land area but contain only seven per cent of the population and eligible voters.

Only one cabinet minister was involved—Don Jamieson in the Newfoundland riding of Burin-Burgeo, who is transport minister in the Liberal cabinet of Prime Minister Trudeau.

Two prominent members of the Conservative Opposition are also seeking election in those distant ridings.

Gerlad Baldwin, Progressive Conservative House leader in the last Parliament, is running again in Peace River in Alberta. Erik Nielsen, who has introduced questions of national security in the Commons, is seeking re-election in Yukon.

Danes Endorse ECM Tie 2-1

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — The Danish people decided a margin of nearly two to one that their future lies alongside Britain and the Republic of Ireland in the European Economic Community, and as a result the Common Market will be expanded to nine members next Jan. 1.

Undeterred by neighboring Norway's decision not to join the market, a total of 1,953,932 Danes voted "Yes" to EEC entry Monday in a national referendum that is binding on the country.

The "No" vote in a record 89.4 per cent turnout of Denmark's 3,400,000 registered electorate was 1,194,166.

Percentages were 63.5 in favor and 36.5 against.

The only formality now is for Queen Margrethe to give her assent and that is expected Oct. 11.

Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag will be making a "state of the nation" address to the Folketing (parliament) when it reopens Wednesday, and he will announce his government's policies in the light of the referendum decision.

But the resounding "yes" already has removed much uncertainty over Denmark's immediate economic future.

Krag had warned that the Danish krone would be revalued if Denmark voted against membership. But he confirmed at a news conference that the Danish currency would retain its parity and that the foreign exchange market, closed since last Tuesday, would reopen today.

The Copenhagen stock market has been showing some spectacular gains in anticipation of the positive vote.

For Denmark, a big farm-producing nation, stands to gain some solid cash benefits from Common Market membership. Staying out could have meant economic suicide.

Tigers Win from Flag

Tiant Can't Afford Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Luis Tiant carries the fate of Boston Red Sox in baseball's American League East showdown with him tonight when he pitches "the most important game of my life," against Detroit Tigers.

The Sox hope he doesn't slip.

It was a disastrous slip by usually sure-footed Luis Aparicio that short-circuited a Boston rally Monday night and enabled Detroit to whip the Sox 4-1.

One more Detroit victory, either tonight or Wednesday, will give the Tigers the title.

While Detroit was getting the jump on Boston in their head-to-head confrontation for the East flag, Montreal Expos' Bill Stoneman stole some of the spotlight with the second no-hitter of his major league career, defeating New York Mets 7-0 in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader. The Mets won the second game, 2-1.

Elsewhere on an abbreviated schedule Monday, Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 in the National League, Milwaukee Brewers took New York Yankees 6-1 and Chicago White Sox tripped Minnesota Twins 6-4 in the American League.

Mickey Lolich struck out 13 batters and limited Boston to six hits while Aurelio Rodriguez drove in three runs for the Tigers with a homer and two singles. Al Kaline also had a homer and two other hits.

The Sox seemed to be getting to Lolich in the third. Tommy Harper singled and raced to third on Aparicio's hit. Then Carl Yastrzemski boomed a 400-foot drive that scored Harper—to the left field wall—and Aparicio around third, headed for home.

"I had to push around second base to make sure that the ball wouldn't be caught," said Aparicio, "and then I turned on the speed.

"I started to round third, but hit the bag on top. I stumbled and tried to keep going. Instead, I slipped on the grass and had to scramble back to the bag."

There he met Yastrzemski and the Tigers hogged Yaz for the second out of the inning. Then Lolich struck out Reggie Smith to end the threat.

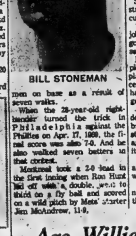
After that, the ball game belonged to Lolich and Rodriguez. In the fifth, Rodriguez homered. In the sixth, Kaline singled and came around to score on a hit by Rodriguez. In the seventh, Kaline singled again and again the Tigers scored on a two-out single by Rodriguez.

The three hits gave Kaline 20 hits in his last 42 at bat.

Elsewhere, Buddy Bradford drilled a pinch-hit grand slam homer in the eighth inning to give the White Sox their victory over Minnesota.

Mel Stottlemyre limited New York to six hits and pitched Milwaukee to its victory over the Yankees.

Pete Lacock drove in three runs and Bill North tripped three hits as the Cubs defeated Philadelphia.



Stoneman's No-Hitter Has Familiar Aspects

MONTREAL (CP) — The coincidences were evident Monday night when Bill Stoneman pitched a no-hitter against New York Mets as Montreal Expos clinched a 7-0 victory in the first game of their National League doubleheader.

New York won the second game 2-1.

It was Stoneman's second no-hitter since Montreal began play although he held the Mets hitless, he often found himself with men on base as a result of seven walks.

When the 28-year-old right-hander turned the trick in Philadelphia against the Phillies on April 17, 1969, the first score was also 7-0. And he also walked seven batters on that circuit.

Montreal took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Don Hahn led off with a double, went to third on a fly ball and scored on a wild pitch by Mets' starter Jim McAndrew, 11-9.

Ron Fairly homered one out later and Montreal added four more runs in the third, three on Boots Day's bases-loaded triple.

The 7,184 fans did not make much noise until the six-inning when they realized that their pitcher had a shot at a no-hitter.

From that inning on, every strike was vigorously applauded and every ball was heartily booed.

"It's nice to pitch one here," Stoneman said after the game. "They're the best people in baseball and they were behind me all the way."

Asked to compare this effort with his first no-hitter, Stoneman said there was a lot of difference.

"I'm a much better pitcher now; I feel I'm more mature than I was in the first game," he said.

"I didn't have a slider in that game and I use today and I used it a lot."

Stoneman kept the Mets off stride with a smattering of curves, sliders and fastballs.

"My curve was doing the job—not too many batters get a good wood on it," Stoneman said.

Most balls hit by New York players were at a favorite player and only two, both hit to centre fielder Day in the ninth, left the infield with any thrust behind them.

One, a towering fly ball to deep centre by Ed Kranepool brought a groan out of the fans and a cheer rose up again when Day camped under it.

Another questionable ball was a line drive by Dave Schneck which Day caught up to.

"Just another routine everyday Stoneman job," said Day in the clubhouse.

"No sweat."

Clemente Could Decide Series

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The question of who will win the 1972 National League baseball playoff between Cincinnati Reds Pittsburgh Pirates has drawn varied opinions in recent weeks from visiting players and managers.

"I'll take Cincinnati," said Don Zimmer, manager of San Diego Padres. "Of course, they're both great clubs, but I believe Cincinnati has a little better defence."

Manager Gene Mauch of Montreal Expos picks the Pirates.

"Because of one man—Roberto Clemente," he said.

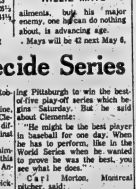
"With the chips on the line, there is nobody better than Clemente. He can make all the difference in the playoffs against the Reds."

Mauch's appraisal was similar to that made earlier this season by manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati.

Anderson certainly isn't pick

Lions Chased

DETROIT (AP) — Baseball's Detroit Tigers could chase football's Detroit Lions right out of the ballpark if they win their current three-game series against the Boston Red Sox.



The Lions are scheduled to face Green Bay in a National Football League game here Oct. 16. But, if the Tigers get into the World Series, there'll be baseball played at Tiger Stadium Oct. 14.

Stadium officials would be unable to ready the field for the Tigers' opener, a spokesman said.

If the Tigers get into the Series, the Lions will change the location of the Oct. 16 game from Milwaukee or Green Bay, and will meet the Packers in Detroit on Dec. 3, he continued. The Dec. 3 game is currently scheduled for Wisconsin.

Czechs Criticize 'Rude' Canadians

PRAGUE (AP) — The Czechoslovak press was critical Monday of what it described as rudeness by the Canadian hockey team toward referees.

The Canadian professionals tied the Czechoslovak national team 3-3 in an exhibition game here Saturday night.

There was a mixed appraisal here of the officiating by Czech referee Rudolf Batia.

Rude Pravo, the Czechoslovak Communist party paper, said Batia "overlooked roughness and brutality and ... damaged the Czech team in many cases."

The trade union daily Prace praised Batia for being equally strict with both sides.

The youth daily Mlada Fronta said Batia was "rudely attacked and insulted on his way to the dressing room by coach Harry Sinden who abused his insults in the presence of dozens of people as if he entirely forgot hockey was played by civilized people."

palla was "pushed about, insulted and showered with chicken bones and paper" by the Canadian team during the Moscow-Prague plane trip.

The Canadians refused to have him officiate the match, preferring an all-Czech trio.

College Tourney Draws 40 Teams

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey Canada announced Monday that 40 universities have accepted invitations to participate in the 1972 intercollegiate tournament.

The large entry list means there will be nine regional tournaments the weekend of Nov. 3-5. The nine winners go to the final Dec. 16-18 in Hamilton.

Last year's tournament involved 34 universities.

Hockey Canada said it had arranged with Big Brothers of Canada to help organize a national program to promote the regional and final tournaments and all proceeds will go to the social service organization.

Here is the list of regional tournament sites and participating teams:

Halifax—Dalhousie, Acadia, Memorial, St. Francis Xavier and St. Mary's;

Moncton—N.B.—Moncton, Mount Allison, St. Thomas, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick;

Lennoxville, Que.—Bishop's, Collège Militaire Royal, Ottawa, Sherbrooke;

Kingston, Ont. — Queen's, McGill, Trent, York;

Houston Wins Shot Marathon

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints dropped a 74 decision to Houston Aeros Monday night under the World Hockey Association's unusual shootout rule in break a tie.

The game was deadlocked 4-4 after regulation play and a scoreless 10-minute sudden-death overtime. Under the experimental ruling, both coaches picked a shooting gunner, whose players go in for penalty shots. The visiting team is allowed 9 shots, then the home team. It took 24 penalty shots to decide the winner when Houston's Don Grierson scored and Minnesota's Barry Gibbs missed. Jimmy Johnson and Ted Hampson of the Saints matched goals for Houston. Lund and Harvey Hill of the Aeros to keep the second shot during the shootout before Ball's shot was stopped by goalie Don McLeod. The Saints held a first-period lead 2-0 on goals by Terry Ryan and Mike McMahon. Houston came back with three goals in the second period, but Ball and McMahon scored to put the Saints back in front late in the first period. Frank Hughes tied it for Houston with 1:09 left in regulation play.

Crusaders Lack Coach

CLEVELAND (AP) — Only nine days are left until Cleveland Crusaders play their first World Hockey Association game and one problem still is unsolved: the club doesn't have a coach.

A team spokesman said Monday that several possibilities are under consideration, but the team hasn't been bothered as the search continues.

"Only one guy has asked who the coach is going to be, and that's good," said player personnel director George Caito.

"It shows all they want to do is play hockey."

Under consideration for the coaching job are Caito, as well as current acting coach Bill Needham, who was hired as a scout but who has worked with the rarely rookie members of the Cleveland club.

Also rumored to be under consideration is Harry Sinden, coach of Team Canada in the recent series against the Soviet Union, and former coach of Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League.

Lefley Led Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Coach Lefley's goal with 3:09 left to play climaxed a third-period four-goal rally and gave Montreal Canadiens a 6-5 victory over New Yorkers in an NHL exhibition National Hockey League game Monday night.

A crowd of 16,201 at Madison Square Garden watched the Rangers take a 4-1 lead and hold a 5-1 advantage before the Canadiens rallied.

Lefley converted Jacques Lemaire's pass for the winning goal at 16:51 of the last period. Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal was leaving the penalty box.

Hadfield, making his first appearance since he left Team Canada, scored the Rangers' first goal at 9:30 of the opening period. Glen Sather made it 2-0 at 5:28 and two goals in succession by Peter Stemkowski at 1:03 and 7:21 in the second period made it 4-0 before Lefley broke the ice for the Canadiens.

Snead Snubs Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — New York Giants quarterback Norm Snead, with a big assist from running back Ron Johnson, made Philadelphia Eagles and their owner, Leonard Tose, eat humble pie Monday night.

Snead rubbed it in with 12 of 18 pass completions for 167 yards and three touchdowns. He led the Giants to a 27-13 victory over the winless Eagles.

Johnson, the 205-pound running back who set out most of best season with an injured knee, caught all three of Snead's touchdown passes, and ran the ball 36 times for 128 yards. It was the first victory for New York in three 1972 games.

Tose, the wealthy trucking firm owner, put his foot in his mouth early last week in his defence of head coach Kheyat, he "guaranteed" the Eagles would beat the Giants.

Tose has little respect for Snead as a quarterback. He'd like to trade Snead from the Eagles to Minnesota Vikings after the 1970 season.

Snead came back last year and was the quarterback as the Vikings blanked the Eagles 17-0. He was traded this year to New York, and Monday night he burned again on Tose, a man who had described Snead as a loser.

Snead refused to shoot. The 31-year NFL veteran basked in the victory rather than in recriminations. His 164 yards gave him a career total of 20,046, the eighth player in NFL history to go over 20,000 passing yards.

"I feel nothing against the Eagles," said Snead after the game.

"Maybe last year, but not now.

Lions Facing Team Holding 81-14 Margin

VANCOUVER (CP) — What do you mean when you're facing a team that has outscored you 81-14 in two games

That's the problem facing Eagle Keys and British Columbia Lions as they prepare to meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers tonight in a Western Football Conference game.

Bomber coach Bud Grant has whipped the Lions 39-7 in the first meeting between the two teams here, then turned or even more scoring power in thumping the Lions 42-7 at Winnipeg.

The Lions have had their problems with every team in the Western division, but the Bombers have humiliated them. In fact, the other three western clubs have been content to squabble among themselves for fourth place, as they and the rest of his pride would like nothing better than to put a string in the Bombers' hopes for a first-place finish.

Winnipeg is 8-3 on the season, the exact reverse of the B.C. record, and holds down top spot in the WFC over Edmonton Eskimos, who are 7-3.

The Lions' job the Lions face, Keys says, is stopping Mack Herron, the Bombers' big gun this year, who has scored more than 1,500 yards rushing.

Herron has been called the best running back in Canadian football, and if the Lions would agree.

He rushed for more than 100 yards against the Lions in each game and added a pair of touchdowns on each occasion to lead the Bombers to their lop sided victories.

But aside from the running of Herron, Keys also respects the Winnipeg passing attack.

Winnipeg quarterback Don Jones has solved the Lions' pass defence with little trouble, tossing for more than 500 yards total in the two games and clicking for four touchdown passes.

The Lions haven't planned any big surprises for the Bombers, with no roster changes planned and the only lineup change seeing Canadian Al Wilson at centre in place of the injured Willie Fraser.

Don Moorhead, who has had his problems this season, will start at quarterback with Dave Bunce in reserve.

The Lions have put on a better offensive performance in their recent games, coming close against Saskatchewan Roughriders, Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders and managed a win against Toronto Argonauts.

The Lions must have their running attack going if they hope to win against the Bombers, and that may prove a problem.

B.C. managed only 52 yards rushing against the Bombers in Winnipeg and had only 40 yards on the ground in the first game.

Buchanan Overlooked Cat

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Chuck Ealey is the man most often pointed out as the one most responsible for Hamilton Tiger-Cats' return to prominence in the Eastern Football Conference this season.

But the improved performance of a number of other Ticat players can't be overlooked, as the Canadian Football League statistics illustrate.

The statistics show Ticat halfback Dave Buchan leading the EFC rushing parade with 335 yards on 201 carries—almost two-thirds of Hamilton's total rushing yardage in 1971 when they finished second with a 7-7 won-lost record.

And while the statistics don't show it, Buchanan's record is also a tribute to the work of running mate Dave Fleming, quarterback Garney Henley and guards Ed Chalupka and John Hobman, among others, who have provided the blocking for Buchanan.

Another 165 yards, easy enough to gain with four games remaining, will put Buchanan in the 1,000-yards-a-year club, only the second Ticat ever to reach the mark.

Ticat Gerry McDougall carried for 1,000 yards or more in each of 1967, 68 and 69 but on Hamilton player has made it since.

Mack Herron of Winnipeg Blue Bombers has already notched the 1,000-yard mark this season and George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders is right in range of making it for the seventh time in his career.

Herron leads the Western Conference with 1,070 yards on 174 carries, followed by Reed with 787 yards on 168 tries.

Meanwhile, Ealey, the rookie from Toledo University, is the EFC's leading passer with 52 completions in 135 attempts for 1,736 yards and 14 touchdowns. He's had only six passes intercepted in 19 games.

Ealey also ranks fifth among EFC rushers with 272 yards on 54 carries.

Buchanan's scoring lead in the West—94 points on 14 touchdowns—is being threatened by Edmonton Eskimo kicker Dave Cutler who now has 81 points on 26 converts, 14 field goals and 13 singles.

Retirement Bettors' Loss

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Jim Ingue N. is due to retire at the end of the year, to the distress of patrons who have been wagering on him lately on the Golden Horseshoe circuit.

Driven by Gary Feagan, subsilluting for his elder brother Ron, who usually handles the chore, Intrigue N. increased his winnings for the year to $14,226.

Ross Curran drove Walkers Knight to a second-place finish and Eastwood Tux, handled by Tom Artandi, was third.

Madoc Seniors Enjoy Selves

Centre Hastings Secondary School's senior football team is losing less and enjoying their Bay of Quinte conference schedule more.

The Madoc seniors, who last year tolled through a dismal 0-8 season, trounced Napanee 41-0 Monday night to boost their season's record to 2-1.

Quarterback Doug Robermel spearheaded the Madoc attack, scoring one touchdown and two point conversion himself, and tossing a 25-yard marker to Jim Gaylord.

Art Reid, Bill Neale and Randy Rivers also contributed touchdowns to the Madoc offense.

Corner linebacker Tom Leonard got some scoreboard glory for the tough defensive squad, picking off a Napanee pass and running it in for the winners' sixth touchdown.

Meanwhile, Madoc juniors went down to their second defeat in three starts, absorbing a 18-6 loss to Albert College in a game decided by kicks. All the scoring came in the first quarter, with Albert jumping off to a 10-0 lead. Quarterback Paul Macleod tumped a broken play into an end-around keeper good for six points.

Bob Strasser's conversion and field goal added to the Albert lead, before Madoc flanker Randy Trumble closed the gap on a reverse near the end of the opening quarter.

Both defenses closed the scoring door after that, and Albert emerged with their second win in three starts.

Major juniors got some measure of revenge against Bayside on Monday, trimming them 13-6 at Shannahan Park from last year's conference playoffs 20-6.

Fullbacks Rick North paved the way for the junior Trojans' third straight win with a pair of touchdowns. Pull-back Gutzall and Rick Barbeau also scored majors, as did linebacker Rick Growden on a blocked kick.

Moira, where 6-6 regular season record last season went out the window when Bayside defeated them in the playoffs, Monday made a third straight loss on them.

Quintes Enjoy Manpower Edge

Normally, about the only time Belleville senior Hockey teams have manpower surpluses is when another team has penalties.

But now, three days away from the opening game of their 44 game OHA Senior A schedule, the Quintes actually have to worry about having too many hockey players.

"We're likely going to carry around 18," noted team veteran Lionel Boily who is one of 16 players signed to Belleville coach to date.

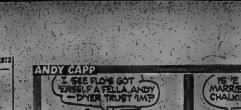
The most recent additions to the club's roster include goaltender Randie Reid, a Peterborough commuter who played with Little Britain intermediates last winter; Paul Grills, who played with the Eastern League's Salem Rebels; familiar Peterborough lineup boys Greg Marchen, Lorne O'Donnell, and George Godson; and Wayne McConnell, last season's 34-goal scorer.

RANDIE REID

er back in town after attending Flames National WHA training camp.

In addition, Boily noted, another four or five tryouts are expected to attend Memorial Arena workouts prior to Friday night's season opener in Kingston.

The first home action for the Quintes is a Sunday night fixture set for 7:30.



Quinte Shows Heels

Quinte Secondary School had on their long distance legs in the Central Ontario Track and Field Association Cross Country Championships at Don Mills.

Running against such competition as Canadian Olympian Abigail Hoffman, Quinte won the women's open 4,000-metre team title, getting a first place finish from Cindy Ross, 12th from Heather Melbourne, 15th from Mary Ann Farrell and 18th from Jan Hayman.

In junior events, Gerald Kennelly placed 18th in the bantam boys' 3,000 metres; John Sheppard was 19th in a 4,000-metre field of 134 midget boys; and Gerard Farrell placed tenth in the juvenile 6.10-metre event; Ivan Robinson finished in 18th place in the junior 8.00-metre run, and Barbara Chapman was 32nd in the midget girls' 3,000 metres.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 4 —

Aries (March 21-April 19): Forward with the best elements of yesterday's campaign, allowing short breaks for insight. Romantic interest flickers.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pull back from close collaboration, do things that lend themselves to single-handed effort. Careful review may reveal flaws.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It seems to you others are more involved in personal problems than business or career striving. Let well enough alone.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accept an unpressured day as time for reflection, calm perspective, suggestions intended to bring results somewhat later on.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The slightest suggestion is anybody on what to do next, or how to do it provoke an over-reaction. Let others learn from experience.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): The more insistent you are, the further away you are from getting what you think you want. New acceptances arise from cooperation.

Libra (Sep. 23-Oct. 22): Press forward with the best elements of yesterday's campaign, allowing short breaks for insight. Romantic interest flickers.

Iodine in Salt Can't Be Harmful

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have always been of the opinion that a person should use iodized salt unless he lives in the section of the country in which the water contains iodine naturally, thereby seeing people with goiters. I am very concerned.

My husband insists that one should use iodized salt only when a doctor says one should, and since my doctor has told him to use it, he uses plain salt. Having a baby is packing up when I buy iodized salt.—E.H.

You have the right idea: hubby is a bit confused. It's not just iodine in the water, but in the soil. In some parts of the country (and in other parts of the world, too), iodine has gradually leached out of the soil and virtually none is left.

Elsewhere there is some iodine, and vegetables will have traces of it—all the body needs is small traces of it. But without those traces, the thyroid gland enlarges and the result is that swelling that we call a goiter.

The amount of iodine in iodized salt is so slight that it isn't going to be harmful— but it can be mighty helpful.

Use of iodized salt started nearly half a century ago, and the ills of goiter was greatly reduced. Today, we have vastly greater and wider transportation of food (seafood shipped in, vegetables and fruits from regions all over the country) so people in the iodine-poor areas are more likely to get at least a little iodine. But use of iodized salt continues to be a good precaution.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it likely for one to feel cramps and aching around an injured knee that occurred several years ago there has been no pain in the intervening time, between recovery from the injury and now.—Mrs. C.W.D.

The very common cramps in the calf of the leg, or the foot, or feet, is a matter of muscular irregularity. Worst time for such cramps, of course, is after you've gone to bed or while walking.

About that knee. I have to ask whether you really mean cramps, or whether you mean aching. True muscle cramps around the knee are not very common. Stiffness and pain, however, quite prevalent.

What I'm getting at is that the knee pain may be arthritis. There is such a thing as "traumatic arthritis," and it is very common.

That is, injury occurs to a joint. The injury heals, but there still can be some change in the bone shape which can develop into arthritis some years later, although there has been no discomfort in between.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please explain to us what "cranks" actually is —A.B. and L.V.

Short term for "crab lice," one of several types of lice, the crab lice primarily infesting the hairy area around the genitals. The pests can spread elsewhere, however.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My lower eyelids are inflamed and sore. I believe I have a boric acid and a mild salt solution medicine has worked well. What should I do—J.E.G.

It sounds like an infection of some sort. (Allergy is a possibility, too.) Better have your doctor or an eye specialist, diagnose the trouble. Eyes are too important to risk with hit-or-miss treatment.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A Z R
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♠	Pass	2♠
Pass	3♠	Pass	4♠
Dble	Redble	Pass	4♥
Pass	4♠	Pass	5NT
Pass	7♠

Opening lead — four of diamonds.

The United States had 10 hops to Italy on Deal No. 62 when Forquet and Garozzo, bidding with tuntionary precision, arrived at a grand slam on the sequence shown.

Garozzo opened one spade and Forquet responded modestly enough with two clubs. Garozzo redid his spades and Forquet made the first of several wild bids directed towards reaching a grand slam.

He jumped to four diamonds, an artificial bid accepting spades as the trump suit and at the same time expressing great interest in either a small or grand slam.

East decided, which had the unfortunate effect of permitting Garozzo to redouble and then announce first round control of diamonds, figuring that by the redouble that his partner had either the ace of diamonds or a void in the suit, Forquet confidently bore before leaping to five notrump over Garozzo's signoff bid of four spades.

Five notrump was the grand slam force, requiring partner to bid seven spades if he had two of the three top trump honors. Garozzo dutifully bid seven, which proved to be laydown.

When the U.S. North-South played the hand, the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♠	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5♦	Pass	6 NT
Pass	7 NT

Lawrence responded to the preemptive four spade bid with Blackwood, but when Cashman failed an ace by bidding five clubs, Lawrence quite sensibly settled for six notrump as the final contract. He had no way of knowing that Goldman had a magic hand that included a void in diamonds.

East led the ace of diamonds and the United States lost 230 points, or 11 imps on the deal.

HERE'S A NEW IDEA

We are going to start a number of new houses for spring possession. If you are thinking about a new house, let us include it in our inventory. You can select a lot and a model that's our's or your's. We will then build it to your specifications. You can then sell your existing house at your leisure, if you are unable to sell, we aren't out anything as we can list the new house in another area. This will solve the old problem of — "How can I build a new house when I haven't sold my old one".

CONDOMINIUM IS THE WAY TO GO!

For the active mad who wants to confine his activities to the curtsing rink, the golf course or anywhere else that doesn't involve cutting grass, shovelling snow, painting, etc. This is all done for you.

We have units available for immediate possession. These are located on Prince Edward Drive. On you! Down payments run from $711. to $2500 down selection of houses in the Quinte area. All in fully serviced subdivisions. Come to a showing. We have 3 and 4 bedroom models. Let us show you our selection.

EAST OR WEST WE HAVE THE BEST

Wives Active In Campaigns

OTTAWA (CP) — Does a wife's participation help a party leader in an election campaign?

No national, say Liberal spokesmen in keeping with Prime Minister Trudeau's vigilant stand against what he considers any encroachment on his private life.

"That's for the press to judge," says Tom Sloan, a senior aide to Robert Stanfield, Progressive Conservative leader. Mary Stanfield is given with her husband, active in her own way.

"We think she does," says Lewis Seale, press secretary to David Lewis of the New Democrats in referring to the non-constant attendance of the leader's wife, Sophie.

Susanna Cazoulte, wife of Social Credit Leader Real Cazoulte, is frequently with him when he travels within his native Quebec. The economics of campaign spending have something to do with her absences outside the province, since Mr. Cazoulte is saying the party budget is limited.

The Liberals, as always, are reluctant to speak of Margaret Trudeau, saying what she does on or off the campaign trail is a family affair.

But for better or for worse, the pretty 24-year-old wife of the prime minister seems to be reaping the most publicity with the least knowledge among the wives of party leaders.

Here is a rundown of what the wives have been doing in the Oct. 30 election campaign so far:

Since the election campaign started in early September, Mrs. Trudeau, the daughter of former Liberal cabinet minister Jeanne Sauvé, has been with her husband on tour twice, in Montreal and in Vancouver and Calgary.

Yet she reaped more publicity than the other wives because of a near fainting spell, an adventurous run and a socially-conscious hotel staff.

She comes across as a charming woman who is not comfortable in the crowds that often jam around the prime minister.

Both Trudeaus have had tiffs with photographers about pictures but she appears downright eager to have Justin photographed wherever possible.

She appeared on the stage twice so far, once at Mr. Trudeau's nominating and campaign-opening meeting in the Montreal-area constituency of Mount Royal and once in Vancouver, her hometown.

She almost fainted at the Mount Royal meeting and had to leave the stage for fresh air while her husband was speaking. Liberal officials said it was the heat in the crowded hall.

In Vancouver the staff of the Hotel Vancouver wouldn't tell Mrs. Trudeau the number of her husband's room—they didn't recognize her.

Then, while flying home from the Vancouver-Calgary trip, she met Mr. and Mrs. Leslie and Justin Frazelle of the NDP leader's plane. He wouldn't let go, pulling himself into the bassinet.

Lewis commented: "Two nice kids."

Robert Stanfield is not reticent about acknowledging his wife's presence on his tours along urban streets, shaking hands.

"Sit. How are you? My wife's back there somewhere."

Mary Stanfield may be as much in half a block behind, admiring a baby or chatting with some elderly woman.

Meanwhile, daughter Mimi Cat is either close to hand or following generally silently, but speaking when spoken to, behind her mother or her father.

Mrs. Stanfield, a small grey-haired woman with a ready smile, seems at ease with strangers than her husband.

Mrs. Stanfield, the daughter of the late Judge W. L. Hall of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, is Mr. Stanfield's second wife. His first wife was the late Joyce Fraser of Vancouver.

Mrs. Stanfield grew up as a politically-oriented as any woman in the country, a member of the CCF before it became the NDP; she is well-known in the Halifax area for her work for her husband in York South, the Toronto-area constituency where Mr. Lewis is seeking re-election.

But now she has joined him for the duration of the campaign, to be with her husband and to fill in in places where her husband can't be.

Mrs. Lewis is a grey-haired, energetic mother, two of whose three sons have followed their parents' footsteps into politics—Stephen, now Ontario NDP leader, and David, as the York South campaign manager.

It is not unusual to see the Lewises holding hands or delivering a little peck to the cheek when Mrs

McGovern Escalating Corruption Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator George McGovern is escalating allegations of White House corruption, saying government scandals of the past were "child's play compared to what's going on in this administration."

The Democratic presidential nominee evidently has decided to make that a major theme in what he said will be an all-out campaign against President Nixon during the five weeks until election day, Nov. 7.

McGovern asserted that, while the president talks of law and order, "I submit the permissiveness toward a breakdown of high moral standards in this country begins right with Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew."

McGovern pressed that as his issue Monday in Washington, Lyndhurst, N.J., and at a $500-a-plate fund-raising dinner in New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

"The Nixon administration is the most morally bankrupt administration in the entire history of our country," he told the fund-raising-dinner crowd, estimated at more than 1,000. Monday night. He also said it is the worst administration.

"At no time in the history of our land has corruption been so deep, so pervasive as it is today."

"The influence of big money in corrupting the integrity of government on a scale never seen before."

The chief components in McGoverrin's corruption charges are those he has been raising for weeks—the Justice Department settlement of the International Telephone and Telegraph anti-trust case; "this smelly wheat deal" with the Soviet Union, and campaign contributions to Nixon from anonymous donors which the Democratic candidate said may total 300-million.

New Liquor Overseer Would Update Laws

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, the newly-appointed overseer of Ontario's liquor laws, said Monday he hopes to bring those laws more in step with the times.

"People are a little more sophisticated today and I think we should reflect on that," he told reporters just after being sworn in as minister of consumer and commercial relations, the ministry responsible for the Liquor Control Board of Ontario.

He said liquor should be more readily available in tourist areas and at recreational facilities, such as golf and ski clubs.

Mr. Clement, 44, sipping a glass of sherry as he spoke, said he was reflecting his own views on the subject and had not discussed it with government House Speaker Allan Grossman or other cabinet ministers.

However, he added that he was in favor of the government retaining close control over the liquor industry.

Mr. Clement said he had not considered establishing grocery stores to sell beer and wine, but I can assure you I will give it some thought."

Mr. Clement, a Niagara Falls, Ont., lawyer, was appointed to the cabinet last week, but was not sworn in by Lt.-Gov. Ross Macdonald until Monday as he was in Europe with the legislature's committee on company law.

In line with disclosures by other cabinet ministers, Mr. Clement said his family home is in his wife's name and that he owns another house that is rented. He said he also owns a 50-per-cent interest in a holding company in Niagara Falls that owns the building housing his law office.

However, he said that within a few days he will end his activity with the law firm.

Corporate Grants Defended

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner accused David Lewis, leader of the federal New Democratic Party, Monday of "sloganeering in his campaign against "corporate welfare bums".

"I don't like slick phrases," Mr. Turner said at the nomination meeting which chose Russell Honey as Liberal candidate for Northumberland - Durham.

He said that tax incentives and grants to corporations, which Mr. Lewis has criticized, are designed to help the expansion of the economy which creates more jobs.

The finance minister also touched on the subject of food prices as he had done earlier in the day while talking with students at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont.

"We are all being hurt by what it costs to do our weekly shopping," he said, adding that it is no comfort to find that prices are high throughout the world.

Mr. Turner said that price controls are "obviously not the answer." He had made a similar statement in Kingston when asked to comment on a newspaper advertisement in which Flora MacDonald, Progressive Conservative candidate for Kingston and the Islands in the Oct. 30 election, criticizing the government for not imposing controls.

"The only way to control the situation is by food rationing and I wonder if Miss MacDonald would approved of that."

Charges Said 'Unfounded'

MONTREAL (CP) — Charges that the Iron Ore. of Canada has transferred profits from its Quebec mines to its Newfoundland operations are "completely unfounded," company president W. J. Bennett said Monday.

Jacques Parizeau, Parti Quebecois economist, told a weekend news conference that the company was making the transfers to take advantage of lower tax rates in Newfoundland.

Newfoundland levies a five-per-cent tax on mining profits while Quebec has a graded tax rate which starts at nine per cent for the first $1 million and goes up to 15 per cent for amounts over $5 million.

In a statement, Mr. Bennett invited Mr. Parizeau and Parti Quebecois leaders to examine company records and discuss the matter with company officers.

Mr. Parizeau said that in 1971 the company declared only $514,000 in profits in Quebec and 109 times that amount in Newfoundland.

Play Money Fraud Gets Six Months

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A man who received gasoline and $5.08 in change when he gave a gasoline station attendant a $1,000 bill in play money was sentenced to six months in jail after pleading guilty to fraud in provincial court Monday.

Donald Cecil Mitchell, 41, no fixed address, was also sentenced to a concurrent term of six months for the attempted theft of a car.

The United States of Arcmia" currency has been involved in several similar cases in Michigan, Assistant Crown Attorney Roger Rivait told the court.

In Monday's case, the gas station attendant mistook the phoney currency for a $100 bill.

Team Canada Upsets Distinguished Doctor

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Wilder Penfield, a top Canadian physician and a foreign member of the Soviet Academy of Science, says today in a letter to the editor of the Gazette that he might not attend an assembly session next month because of the behavior last week of Team Canada.

The world-famous Penfield says he "would be embarrassed to say I am Canadian" lest he go unrecognized by Moscow next month for the session.

His letter reads:

"Sir,

Like most Canadians, I watched the Canadian-Soviet hockey game Thursday on television, from beginning to end, and was thrilled by the beautiful, fast skating, the team work, when it materialized, and the winning goal scored by Henderson who seems to be a good sportsman.

But I was saddened and shamed by the behavior of our team on the ice in the first and last games, when I was disappointed and when they were. None of these young children comported themselves unreasonably. They have done a great deal of harm to the image of Canada throughout the world.

I was once the coach of a university football team. In sport, as distinguished from war, we should teach something more than skill.

It has fallen to me to visit the Soviet Union more than once. I am a foreign member of the Soviet Academy of Science. If I should accept the invitation that has just come to attend the Academy's Jubilee Session of their General Assembly in November 30, 1972, I would be embarrassed to say the least.

It is excellent to promote exchange visits of our citizens with their opposite numbers in other nations. Until now, I have been proud of the behavior of Canadians abroad.

Wilder Penfield, M.D.

Monsignor Candidate 'Federalist-Separatist'

QUEBE (CP) — Rt. Rev. Raymond Lavoie, the independent candidate in the Quebec City riding of Montmorency in the Oct. 30 federal election, describes his platform as "federalist-separatist in practice."

"It is necessary to accept separatism as a probably inevitable step towards a new form of federalism," says Magr. Lavoie who belongs to both the Parti Quebecois and the Ralliement Creditiste but whose membership application to the provincial Liberal party was rejected.

The Lower Town district of St. Roch, the poorest part of the provincial capital, has been his parish for the last seven years. Forty per cent of the people there receive social welfare and 50 per cent unemployment.

Magr. Lavoie, 51, chose not to run in the riding of Langelier where his parish is because of his admiration for its MP, Ex-pansion Minister Jean Marchand, who he describes as one of the rare men of value in politics.

Magr. Lavoie considers it important that Quebec MPs demand Ottawa grant the principle of self determination to Quebecers.

While Quebec independence is inevitable as the first stage of a new confederation it could also be torn into a bloody civil war if "the Quebecers of value have not prepared the rest of the country.

He said he was entering politics because he was baptized and like all baptized persons I should carry the truth as any cost.

"I am charged with the truth," says Magr. Lavoie who makes no distinction between his role as a priest and that of a Christian layman.

"The truth does not last long, especially in politics. Nevertheless, the living conditions of people depend more and more on the truth. If I want my truth to last, I must take it to the public."

"What good does it do me to preach in my church? All my parishioners have made up their minds before I begin to speak."

$80-million LIP To Be Announced

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government will unveil an $80-million Local Initiatives Program here Wednesday, Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said Monday.

Mr. Mackasey said in an interview with The Gazette the new plan will be year-round and cross-Canada in scope.

The Trudeau government introduced the LIP program last year as a stimulant to the economy during winter months.

It granted $100 million for work on locally-inspired projects such as parks, homes for the elderly and civic works. It expired in May but was revived until Sept. 30 with an infusion of $20 million.

The Gazette says the new LIP plan will place greater emphasis on needs of people on unemployment insurance.

"I think you can safely say there will be closer links with Manpower centres," Mr. Mack asey said. "The main purpose for the plan, after all, is providing jobs for those who most need them."

"But we don't want to take away the feeling that the money is given for local initiatives," he said.

The grants can cover up to 75 per cent of construction costs of projects, depending on the area, the type of people employed and the type of project.

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported very striking improvement." Pain was generally and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was recurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, healing. Tissues so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal damaged cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Environmental Action Plan Urged As Canadian Priority

OTTAWA (CP) — Deputy ministers from across Canada have agreed to ask their governments to permit establishment of a national group to formulate an environmental action plan for Canada.

The group would, if approved, seek to show ways the recommendations passed at the world environment conference in Stockholm in June can be implemented domestically.

The agreement of the deputy ministers at a Monday meeting was announced by R. F. Shaw, federal deputy minister of the environment, at a meeting held Tuesday to discuss the Stockholm conference and Canada's contribution to it.

Mr. Shaw emphasized hat neither he nor any of the other deputies—who have responsibility in their own provinces for environmental matters—had any instructions from their governments on creation of the group.

But he said they did agree to suggest that each provincial government and the federal government appoint two or three "thoughtful, skilful men" to a group that would deal with matters that particularly interest Canada.

The deputies agreed that all the Stockholm recommendations could not be implemented at once and that their major task would be to establish priorities and consider available finances.

Shots Miss Truth Leader

BELFAST (CP) — Protestant leader William Craig escaped assassination today when three shots struck his car while he was driving through the outskirts of Belfast. He was unhurt.

Police said all three bullets hit Craig's auto near Lisburn, where the British army has its Northern Ireland headquarters. He was on his way to his law office in Lurgan.

The assailant escaped in another car.

Craig, 48, heads the Ulster Vanguard Movement which claims it can command a private army of 200,000 men. He is one of the most powerful leaders of the million-strong Protestant community in Northern Ireland.

Liberals Planning 4-week Offensive

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal party sources say that as Prime Minister Trudeau increases the tempo of his campaign for the Oct. 30 general election, there will be a series of major announcements on policies and new programs.

In some cases, they say, the announcements will be made by responsible ministers, such as External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, who is expected to issue a series of foreign policy statements, particularly in connection with Canada-United States relations.

Meanwhile, Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey already has said he will be making an announcement today on an expanded Local Initiatives Program.

Sources say that policy statements and programs will be announced by other ministers, and the prime minister, before the election. They say this is part of Mr. Trudeau's "offensive" in the final four weeks of the campaign.

Prior to the vote, they say, Mr. Trudeau will be able to wrap up all the announcements into a "package of plans" for the next five years. Apart from Mr. Sharp's foreign policy statements, most of the announcements will deal with domestic issues, particularly the economy.

Monarchy Emerging

Nader Tags Congress 'American Default'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader released Tuesday the first volume of what he promised will be an encyclopedic study of the United States Congress, declaring it is the great American default.

"The White House and the president are energized in the United States as a new kind of monarchy," said Nader in a news conference heralding the release of a paperback book called, Who Runs Congress: The President, Big Business or You?

The overall conclusion of the eight that it is extremely unlikely that these pleasures and book is that the president and big business dominate" Congress, but the people could cut it if they would lobby their congressmen vigorously, vote out the bad ones and hold the others accountable.

"But until they do so, the proud fools of legislation can frolic in the pool, sleep quietly at their desk, vote themselves pork-barrel legislation, accept the money of special interests, capitulate to the president, obstruct important legislation, and be reassured by the lip-service they will ever be taken away," says the book.

In his news conference Nader summarized the who-runs-Congress question this way:

"We are in the midst of a serious constitutional crisis. Congress under the constitution is really the pre-eminent branch. Unfortunately . . . Congress has abdicated its responsibilities to powerful committee chairmen, executive bureaucracy and special-interest groups."

The book is just a small part of a planned series of 20 to 30 volumes, involving the work of more than 1,400 volunteers and costing nearly $200,000. Nader said the series is intended as a tool to enable citizens to recapture control of government.

Nader proposed that Congress begin recapturing its power by scheduling a special session for late 1973 to tackle one issue: congressional reform.

The book, published at $1.95 by Bantam, is written by Mark J. Green, James M. Fellows and David R. Zwick, all products of Harvard University or its law school.

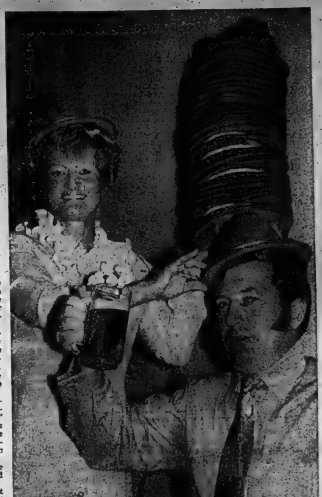
The project also includes profiles of 435 senators and congressmen—which are published at $1 each by Grossman, with discounts for quantity.

The profiles are based in part on 96-page questionnaires submitted to every senator and congressman. At least a dozen refused to fill them out, and others would answer only some of the 633 questions.

Driver Abuse High

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will begin early in the new year suspending the licences of motorists who have piled up "long strings" of traffic convictions and have not paid their fines, Attorney-General Dalton Bales said Tuesday.

Unpaid fines in the provincial court's criminal division at the end of 1971 totalled more than $10,293,000, Mr. Bales told the legislature in June. Eighty per cent was owed by traffic violators.



Mr. Bales said in an interview the suspensions will take the form of a refusal by the motion vehicles branch to renew licences when they expire. The licences are valid for three years and expire on the holder's birthday.

A bill passed in the legislature in June gave the government power to suspend drivers' licences for failure to pay fines following conviction under the Highway Traffic Act, the Public Vehicles Act and the Public Commercial Vehicles Act.

The last two statutes regulate such things as buses, taxis and trucks.

Mr. Bales said Tuesday night the bill hasn't been proclaimed law because "a lot of people will have had convictions at widely separated points in the province and we have to set up a central tracking system into which all this information can be fed and then correlated."

"Where we find a person with a great many unpaid convictions, we will screen him and then we will refer the issue to the highway traffic people and he will not then be able to renew his licence until he pays his fines."

Asian Deadline Remains

From AP-REUTER

KAMPALA, Uganda (CP) — President Idi Amin decided today he told Zaire's President Mobutu he will extend the deadline for the expulsion of Uganda's non-citizen Asians, in a statement broadcast by the government radio. Amin said the Nov. 8 deadline has not been changed and he has "no intention whatsoever of extending it."

New Terms Readied

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — The Opposition Labor party today bound a future Labor government to seek sweeping new terms for Britain's continued membership in the European Common Market. But the demands were so tough that it seemed immediately clear they would stand little chance of acceptance by existing members of the trade and economic bloc.

Integrated Trading Block Urged

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (CP) — Canada and the United States have no alternative but to integrate their combined resources, the president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association said today.

Speaking to the National Hardwood Lumber Association, W. W. Gillespie said the two countries should create a North American trading bloc similar to the European Common Market.

He noted that both countries suffer from unemployment, but blamed U.S. Canadian policy figures on people who don't want to work.

In expanding his theme of "two countries, one industry," he called for collaboration at all levels of government and the timber industries in both countries to face problems of pollution, inflation and economic stability.

"If the market is common, why are we joining?"

Job Plan Back

OTTAWA (CP) — A revised Local Initiatives Program in effect from Dec. 1, 1972, to May 31, 1973, was announced today by Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey, with emphasis on the number of jobs that will be created.

The $65 million program will allow a maximum of $500,000 for each project, instead of with the $500,000 limit made available last year. Project sponsors must list their hiring intentions when applying for support.

The amount announced came as no surprise as Mr. Mackasey said last month that a new L.I.P. program and the federal on-the-job training plan would be financed by funds "equal to the initial amount we started with for the two programs last year."

Last week Mr. Mackasey said an on-the-job training program would receive $5 million this winter.

Mr. Mackasey said in a news release today that deadlines for the new L.I.P. applications will be Dec. 31, 1972. Application forms and detailed criteria by which projects will be evaluated are available at Canada Manpower centres.

He said the projects carried over from last year will be given no special preference when applications open Dec. 1 and must compete on the same basis as new schemes.

Projects receiving money will have to hire unemployed persons through manpower centres and show that they are willing to take persons on unemployment insurance or social assistance.

Home Warranty

VANCOUVER (CP) — A national system of new home warranties to ensure that the home buyer gets what he's paying for was promised Tuesday by Ron Basford, minister of state for urban affairs.

Mr. Basford told the Canadian Real Estate Association:

"It has always seemed a little inconsistent to me that you can get all kinds of warranties and guarantees when you buy a $20 steam iron, or a car."

"But when you buy a house—the largest and most complex purchase in an individual making—you are entirely on your own."

U.S. Hopefuls Trade Peace Hints

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator George McGovern will announce Tuesday a plan to end the Indochina war, his campaign aides say. It will be part of an intensive anti-war campaign by his supporters during the Columbus Day weekend.

McGovern "will tell America what Richard Nixon cannot, how a president of the United States can bring all of our servicemen out of Vietnam and bring the prisoners home," Lawrence O'Brien, chairman of McGovern's Democratic presidential campaign.

But Vice-President Spiro Agnew insisted that the Nixon administration may have some new announcement of its own to announce. There are "some things I can't relate" concerning the end of the war, he told reporters in Great Falls, Mont., Tuesday.

McGovern described as a "political con game" administration calls for a $250-billion federal-spending ceiling.

Even with such a ceiling, McGovern said, it is a good bet that Soviet Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu "will get every penny he wants."

"And Mr. Nixon will continue his frustrating, wasteful habits on military overkill and waste," he said.

Women Exel As School Bus Drivers

That long-standing joke about the capability of women drivers doesn't hold water when it comes to handling a school bus.

Not only are the women bus drivers careful and capable, but also they have fewer discipline problems among their youthful passengers than do the men.

The above is vouched for by Franklin Smith, of Marmora, operator of a fleet of school buses for more than 30 years, and also by Jean Bancroft, manager of transportation for the Hastings County Board of Education.

Mr. Smith recently sold his fleet of school buses but he has nothing but praise for women drivers.

"They are very careful and for some reason are able to maintain better discipline," he said.

Mr. Smith had six women drivers for his fleet of 22 buses which transported students to schools at Marmora, Madoc, Stirling, Tweed and Belleville.

And Mr. Bancroft bears out Mr. Smith's praise of women school bus drivers.

He believes that the reason women bus drivers have fewer discipline problems is that they are more used to dealing with children than are the men.

"The students are more reluctant to be unmannerly with women drivers than they are with the men," Mr. Bancroft says.

The number of women

Passenger Hurt In 2-Car Crash

BLACK CREEK (Staff) — A young Milford woman was treated at Prince Edward Memorial Hospital for scalp injuries following a two-car collision Tuesday on the Black Creek Road. Damage to the two cars totalled $3,000.

Injured was 19-year-old Suzanne Fraser, passenger in the car driven by William McGiffin, Jr., aged 22, of Picton. The driver of the second car, a station wagon, was Gerald Nye, 34 of RR3, Picton.

Damage to the Nye vehicle was estimated at $2,000 and to the McGiffin vehicle, $1,000.

The radios, however, are not a requirement of the operators' contract with the school board.

With radio equipment Mr. Bancroft says operators are able to advise schools if the bus is going to be late because of road conditions or for some other reason.

Approximately 10,000 county school children are transported daily to schools in the county's public school system.

And Mr. Bancroft also has a word of praise for township road maintenance personnel for keeping the roads in good shape.

They do an excellent job

— summer and winter," he said.

Ten per cent, but Mr. Bancroft expects this percentage to increase.

"I can see more women being used in the future because of the difficulty in getting part-time men drivers," he said.

The 197 vehicles used in the transportation of Hastings county elementary and secondary students include private automobiles, station wagons, minibuses and buses with up to 80 passenger buses.

The cars, station wagons and mini-buses are used for special purposes, such as transporting mentally retarded children to schools, and an existing narrow gauge route in some northern parts of the county.

Job Plan

Any program that continues past May 31, 1973, must show it is financially self-sufficient from other sources. Projects beyond that date will require a deficit budget to be considered, Mr. Maclaney said.

Large construction projects with total costs more than $300,000 will not be eligible, Maclaney added. Only $1,000 a week per person, and an operating expense of up to $17 a week per person will be permitted.

The minimum size project will be 20 man-weeks, or at least 15 man-months of employment.

Applications from municipalities must have the approval of their municipal governments.

Mr. Maclaney said the department would seek co-operation with the municipal boards in the projects affecting objectives and priorities of other governments with an LIP project into governmental consultation.

LIP requires work to begin within two weeks of the date of the most approval of an application and the program is primarily to create employment during the winter months.

The manpower department said LIP grants under consideration about 92,000 jobs and 62,000 persons beneficiaries under the on-the-job training programs. Latest statistics show 503,000 unemployed in August.

Under the on-the-job training program, companies receive grants or tax credits covering 75 per cent of payroll costs of new employees. The program was to have expired last March, but was made permanent by legislation passed last summer.

The government has given no indication of other winter work programs will be renewed.

Truck, Bus Collide in Fog

TWEED (Special) — The heavy fog which blanketed the Tweed area in the early morning was blamed for a two vehicle accident at the intersection of Highways 7 and 37 at Actinolite involving a Hastings county school bus.

No one was injured but damage to the side of the school bus amounted to approximately $600.

The loaded school bus, driven by Stratton Arnold of Marmora, was northbound on Highway 37 and was making a left turn on Highway 7 toward Tweed, when it was in collision with a Cooney Haulage transport driven by Trenton, driven by Donald Johnston.

Chamber Says Industry Key to County Growth

PICTON (Staff) — Industry must provide Prince Edward County with the job opportunities needed for residents on a full-time, year-round basis.

This was the theme of a brief presented recently by Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce for submission to provincial cabinet ministers MacNaughton and the minister of tourism and industry.

The report noted tourist operators have endeavored to provide facilities and attract visitors here but this development is not of sufficiently employment needed locally.

"It is clear to us that the provincial parks do very little to help tourism. Unlike cottagers and people who stay in hotels and motels, the campers and trailers who come to the parks spend practically nothing in the county. While it is desirable that people have recreational areas that are inexpensive for them, we oppose any extension of provincial parks presently situated in the county. This would, in our view, be putting our land to unproductive use," stated the brief.

Prince Edward Heights, the Northbrook Businessman Heads Tourist Association

TWEED — Doug. Butson, a Northbrook businessman, was elected president of the Land O'Lakes Tourist Association at the annual meeting recently held in the Kaladar Community Hall with Jim Arbuckle, R. No 4, Ardoch, re-elected to the office of Vice-President for another term.

Directors for the association's several districts are as follows: — Arden — Ernie Bec, James Arbuckle: Sharbot Lake — Harrasmith, Ray Kennedy; Harlowe — Henderson, Jim Wright; Farmersville, Erinsville, Wayne McLean; Napanee — Hay Bay, Bruce Huyck and Ted Smart; Napanee, Don Hogarth; Tweed-Bungendore, Guy B. Hughes; Kaladar — Flinton North-brook, Doug Butson; Cloyne — Madoc — Denbigh — John Swayze.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Ed Duddle, Kingston branch manager of the Industrial Development Bank.

Mr. Duddle reviewed the history of development bank, and said that until 1961, the act establishing the IDB permitted only manufacturing to receive IDB loans. Since that date, however, the bank can make loans to a wider group of organizations, including the tourist industry.

"Every year" Mr. Duddle said "the Industrial Development Bank is lending more and more in the tourist operators".

The IDB has booklets and literature available for small businessmen that will help them in their operation of their business. Loans are available to finance change of ownership, enlarging and developing a business, and starting a new business. At the present time, interest is 9 per cent on loans up to $50,000.00 and 9½ per cent on loans from $50,000 to $100,000. The interest rate is fixed for the term of the loan.

The association was told the tourist information booth at Napanee had not been opened during the past summer. It was indicated, however, that the Napanee Jaycees would be glad to work with the association to ensure the booth is open next summer.

Membership now totals 321, said Mr. Butson. Six camps and lodges, Kaladay, Sheffield and Ernestown were the only townships to make a grant to the Association this year. Lennox and Addington and the county council did not contribute. Tweed, Hungerford and Hastings County made favorable grants.

Promotion and advertising had been extended during the past season. In addition to the Toronto area, advertising had been placed in Windsor, Woodstock, Ottawa. Results included 1,383 inquiries so far this season. The Association had helped with the Sharbot Lake Tourist Information Booth in co-operation with the Sharbot Lake Chamber of Commerce.

New features in this year's booklet showed sightseeing routes. As present local photographs are being taken to have postcards made for next season. Regional and national attractions were discussed. Special events were listed. It was given these subjects at later meetings.

On-job Training Program Begins

Both to create jobs in high unemployment periods and to rehabilitate people into continuing positions, the federal government has announced its Training On the Job Program will begin its second season immediately.

The program is unique in that it does not lump all trainees into one mold. It suits the co-operation of local industry to train individuals through a partial federal subsidy.

The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the trainees' wages during the first half of the authorized training period and 50 per cent for the remaining time.

Training periods may vary in length from six to 40 weeks but the projected average will be about 22.

While it is left to the discretion of the employer what wages will be paid during enrollment, the federal government has set a maximum for their contribution of $128 a week and the employer can generate a program that will cost Canada no more than $100,000.

More than 30 Quinte businesses took part in the project last year.

During the program, trainees receive instruction in all trades and were given certificates proving their achievements in the various fields to which they aspired.

Chamber's Role Described

PICTON (Staff) — William Silver, president of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce yesterday outlined the organization's role in community life to Picton Rotarians.

Unlike service clubs, the chamber is not welded together by membership, he said. Its aim is to find a common interest in some aspect of the community and «assisting others, to help in conflict in projects between service clubs and the business organization. Mr. Silver added that there are chamber members concerned only with their personal interests.

A wide diversity of political philosophies of life can be found in each chamber of commerce since the prime goal is promotion of the community, he said.

All members share a common interest in commerce and in making the community a good place for family life.

A commercial unit is part of its local chamber if employment and industry are to be promoted.

The Prince Edward chamber of commerce is aware of the problems that can be created by new industry as well as the opportunities and an industrial committee has been appointed to study matters such as pollution.

The small businessman is helped through the chamber of commerce, which often creates friendships and contacts for members.

Mr. Silver said the chamber of commerce expresses "a viewpoint of business" but is usually cautious, since a decision is reached by all members. He advised that a petition now is being circulated by the Prince Edward chamber supporting the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. in its quarry operations at Glenora Ferry. Mr. Silver said the cement plant has endured "harassment" in mining sand and gravel.

The Prince Edward chamber also is involved in community life through preparation of a brief for presentation to provincial government concerning the county's development "not as a playground for others" but as an area offering opportunity and jobs to residents. "We participate in presenting the viewpoint of the business community at large," said Mr. Silver.

He said all chambers of commerce combine to represent "a very broad section of our country" and "the people who make things work."

Guidance is sought from philosophers, theologians, lyricists and "great moral teachers" but the medal is

"deluged" with the views of people intellectually according to Mr. Silver.

For the reason the chairman president declared it is important for "the voice of the people to be heard."

He observed the Prince Edward chamber of commerce has a membership of 70 businessmen representing roughly one third of its potential size.

Damage $1,575

PICTON (Staff) — Two motorists escaped injury Tuesday in a three-car collision causing $1,575 damage, at the intersection of Main and Paul Streets.

A car driven by George R. Bell, 33, of 19 Tavistock Road, Downsview, was westbound on Main Street when it collided with a car driven by John W. C. Lewis, of RR2, Picton.

The impact drove the Lewis car back, forcing it into a parked car on Paul Street.

The pile-up occurred when the Lewis car attempted to turn left from Main Street and collided with the oncoming vehicle. Mr. Lewis has been charged with failing to yield.

Damage to the Bell car amounted to $1,000, to the Lewis vehicle, $500 and to the parked auto, owned by David Daubney of Demorestville, $75.

Trenton Worker Survives Fall

TRENTON (Staff) — Roy Nicholls, 37, of 19 Trent Street, Trenton escaped serious injury Tuesday when he fell between 20 and 30 feet from the top of a downtown building under construction.

Witnesses report the Beneraline Construction employees was working on demolition of the second storey of the Sayer Block, that until recently had housed Bill Shaw Men's Wear. He fell shortly after noon Tuesday.

Mr. Nicholls informed police he was unable to stop the small elevator he was operating at the time and was forced to jump clear as it toppled from the upper level.

Both he and the tractor landed on a pile of rubble, the machine pinning his ankle. He was treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital for a sprained ankle, cuts and bruises, and was released.

Following the accident, Norman Mallory, the town building inspector, ordered the company to refrain from using the small demolition tractor above the ground to prevent further similar accidents.

Panel Ready

The four-member panel fielding questions at Quinte-area federal election candidates Oct. 11 has now been announced.

They are William Hockley and Bert Gerling of Belleville, Loyalist student Carl Eisenberg and Kevin Quinn, student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

The Quinte District Labor Council, organizers of the night, have chosen assignees from all six candidates in Hastings and Prince Edward - Hastings ridings that they will attend.

The public is also invited to participate in the meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. at Centennial Secondary School auditorium.

More Stop Signs For Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Town council had eight agreed to urge four-way stops at four corners in Picton. A stop sign will be the crossing for Peregrine.

Jesse Mason, chairman of the Picton police commission requested the stops at a letter to council, noting they fall in school zones where youngsters use the crossings frequently.

He recommended stop signs at the corners of Paul and Queen streets, Centre and Queen streets, Bridge and Queen streets and Princess and Paul streets.

Mr. Mason noted both Queen Elizabeth school and Prince Edward Collegiate Institute are dismissed at the same hour each day creating a great deal of traffic on these streets.

350 Miles -- If His Knees Last

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

A party can be more than just a good time. Occasionally life - changing decisions arise out of the most innocent cocktail conversations.

Harold Arviv found out the hard way. He was at a Toronto party last April when he ran into a committee worker for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

In a moment of inspiration, the Yonge Street clothing merchant proposed to Harsh for money on behalf of the society — say from Oshawa to Toronto.

Nearby, another imbiber heard the gesture and halfheartedly suggested Arviv up his scope — by walking from Montreal to Toronto.

Never one to shirk a challenge, Arviv agreed, and before he knew the price of sneakers, he was in training for the 350-mile marathon.

Setting out last Thursday, the 27 - year - old philanthropist pushed through Belleville today, more than half way to his distant goal.

He's been averaging about 35 miles each day, although aching knees could take their toll. At Kingston, advance man Manny Escott telephoned fitness expert Lloyd Percival for advice and for the past 48 hours, Arviv has worn adhesive bandages, dabbed himself in balm and swallowed plenty of Vitamin C.

The walker says his feet feel fine — he wears either light infantry boots or running shoes — but he's afraid to stop for fear his knees will seize. A support car carrying fresh clothes, nourishment and foot powder is beside him every step along Highway 2.

Under terms established by Arviv himself, the hitherto hiker must complete his mission. If he doesn't, none of the $100,000 organizers hope for in pledges can be collected.

Arviv has another reason for continuing. His wife Kathy was due to give birth to their first child Saturday but the baby seems to be awaiting its father's arrival.

When he finally reaches Toronto — hopefully at 6:15 p.m. Saturday — he'll be whisked to CFTO studios in Agincourt where a 48-hour telethon for crippled children will be getting under way.

The largest television show in Canadian history, it hopes to raise $7 million on behalf of the society, which this month is celebrating its 50th anniversary. Scheduled to make appearances are such celebrities as Mia Farrow, Lorne Green, Paul Anka, Elton John and possibly John Lennon. The appearance will be seen here on Channel 9.

Arviv is in for a treat in Belleville as well. The chef at the Four Seasons Hotel is preparing a gourmet fare of health foods to be consumed at the end of today's jaunt.

Then, after a night's rest, he'll be driven to the point west of the city where he left off, pointed toward Toronto and ringed there are hundreds who are counting on him — including one supporter not yet born.

Applications Sought For Federal Grants

The federal government today opened its Local Initiatives Program wallet, sparked big activity and hopes at the Canada Manpower Centre in Belleville.

James Staveley, recently retired from the CMC after being responsible for such projects, came back to work today proclaiming, "we are damn fools if we don't take full advantage of the program which helps so much in the winter months."

Areas of concern are: can the project begin quickly with full employment impact between Dec. 1 and May 31; the minimum size of the program is set at at least 15 man-months of work; projects must be socially and efficiently managed and each man must make an average of about $100 a week before deductions.

"This program last year sponsored about 13 projects, providing employment for several hundred people, and gave on — the - job training to others in 13 companies," Mr. Staveley said.

"We hope there are lots of applications because we can't afford to miss out on the best we can get," said Mr. Staveley.

In an outline received by the manpower office, projects that are mentioned include community store - front services which may be expanded or improved by having facilities repaired or adding support staff; community groups may wish to develop services for young children, the old or the handicapped; groups may wish to carry out projects for the improvement of the environment.

In conversation, Mr. Staveley mentioned the application of the LIP funds to helping facelift the downtown area and the probability of applying for additional funds for the Hastings - Prince Edward Trail.

Mr. Staveley, active with the trail since its beginnings, said the trail still needed more markers and shelters that could be put up if the money was available.

Last winter the trail employed as many as 145 men.

The federal government will refuse grants which require a federal conciliation of more than $200,000 and those projects which subsidize profit-making enterprises.

The government will grant funds up to $500,000 for large construction projects, if the total cost exceeds that figure.

Applications are available at the Manpower Centre on Dundas Street east.

Trenton Agrees To Pay QPB Levy

TRENTON (Staff) — Despite the recorded negative vote of councillor Stan Ketcheson, town council last night approved a motion to pay the Quinte Planning Board $5,000 — representing levies as members of the board until October 15.

Trenton was one of four members QPB municipalities that expressed a desire several months ago to opt out of membership. The four-Trenton, Brighton, Murray and Brighton townships — were asked by the province to remain with board for the time being.

Since then, meetings with municipal heads involved, have been held to help iron out differences. Reactions to these meetings have been mixed.

Councillor Ketcheson went on record as being against paying any money to QPB.

Councillor Ted Parker, acting on further business concerning the planning board, asked for cost estimates of preparing the town's long-awaited new zoning bylaw.

Acting mayor Paul Tripp, a member of the QPB told council the board meets this Thursday and said either he or councillor George Greer would be in attendance and would bring up this question.

Gerry O'Connor Named Director

Member of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission and past chairman of the local PUC, E. Gerry O'Connor has been named a director of District No. 1 (Eastern) Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

Mr. O'Connor's election was at the association's meeting in Peterborough on Monday of this week. He will serve for the 1972-1973 fiscal year.

Mayor Reports On Police

PICTON (Staff) — Monthly reports from Picton police chief George Fitz will be given town council through mayor Margaret Ackerman, a member of the local police commission.

At the September session of council it was noted the chief's report no longer would be included in the regular agenda forwarded to councillors.

Jesse Mason, police commission chairman, told council the chief's report to the commission will be forwarded monthly to Mayor Ackerman "for her consideration at council."

Deputy-reeve James Bird observed last night "it is important that council keep its eye on all facets of town business."

He explained the report formerly issued to all councillors often provided information used as a guideline for certain action by council.

Eight Years' Work

$300,000 Water Reservoir Officially Open Friday

A $300,000 water reservoir project of the Moira River Conservation Authority in Kaladar township, which was nearly eight years from the planning stage to completion, will be officially opened Friday afternoon.

It is the Deercock Reservoir dam project on Partridge Creek northeast of Flinton, which will be opened by John Hughes, parliamentary assistant to the Hon. Leo Bernier, Minister of Natural Resources.

The official opening of the reservoir is being staged as part of the authority's 25th anniversary.

The Deercock reservoir, forming a lake at 1,000 acres on the Skootamatta River branch of the watershed, is not only the biggest single project attempted by the authority, but in the words of one official, also "resulted in the most headaches".

The project was initiated back in 1964 and funds were provided in the authority's 196 budget for preliminary work and foundation testing.

The budget for preliminary engineering was completed at $46,360 with the cost of the dam and other associated work was far beyond the financial resources of the authority, even on a 7 per cent provincial grant basis.

As a result, a brief was prepared by the ARDA directorate and ultimately the provincial and federal governments agreed to share 90 per cent of the cost, with the balance to be paid by member municipalities of the authority.

But progress on the project was delayed pending an agreement with the department of lands and forests concerning flooding and the use of crown land.

Lands and forests presented specifications for close-cutting of tree stumps to a maximum of four inches and, when tenders were called, prices for reservoir clearing came in at $225,000 — much higher than the original estimates.

The estimated cost of the project was revised accordingly and an application was made to ARDA for grant approval of the additional cost.

ARDA rejected the request for more money but agreed to allow the clearing request to stand if a satisfactory solution could be worked out with lands and forests.

This department finally agreed to reduce the acreage to be cleared from 600 to 200 acres and a new clearing contract was awarded for $183,000.

The contract price for the construction of the dam was $120,534, which, with engineering and associated construction costs of $46,360, brought the total cost of the project to $220,862.

Storage area of the completed dam is 8,371 acre feet at 859 feet above sea level.

However, provision was made in the concrete spillway weir to install flashboards to increase the holding capacity of the reservoir above the 850 foot elevation.

Water stored in the reservoir will be used to help maintain summer flow in the lower reaches of the watershed.

The release of water from the reservoir during low flow periods will be through a steel gate valve positioned in the base of the dam structure.

Tourist Boom

Britain, it seems, is being overrun with tourists, to the point that Labor MP Sir Geoffrey de Freitas says enough is enough. He says he has great difficulty crossing the road to enter Parliament and is afraid that "this corner of the island is beginning to sink under the weight of visitors."

It is the same at other popular tourist spots such as Windsor Castle which by the end of the year will have had some two million visitors, or half-a-million more than in 1971, and St. Paul's Cathedral. There are countless other attractions of course and one of the problems is tour buses clogging narrow streets and traffic generally. And all this, despite government efforts to spread the tourist rush more evenly throughout the country.

Here at home we don't lack for tourists either. In fact we seem to recall a news item not long ago pointing out that Canada was top dog in the international tourist stakes. However, we occupy that position because of the big influx of Americans every year and not by reason of any comparable flow from Europe.

Meanwhile from Brighton (Ontario) comes word that a vacation-area developer, Fred Anderson, is planning to establish a campground on the Telephone Road where he has bought property. A former tourist executive, Mr. Anderson has obtained a franchise from a U.S. firm which has 700 of these operations in the States and 16 in Canada. Another 155 are due to be in operation in Canada by next year.

According to Mr. Anderson, who plans to spend $150,000 on the project, transient camping is growing about 25 per cent a year because of the limited number of such facilities as well as the high cost of motel rooms and cottage lots.

In Canada we still have wide open spaces. There is room for more vacation facilities of every description and for tourists. Camping has been growing in popularity for some years and this new type of facility is clearly one that will find a place in the ever-evolving pattern of tourism in this country.

Downtown Scene

We share Downtown Association president Roger Porter's concern about the plight of Bridge Street businesses affected by the current excavation work.

Installation of sanitary and storm sewers, begun two weeks ago, is not expected to be completed until early in December. With the Christmas season (and hopefully, another Santa Claus parade) not far away this represents a serious lapse in shopping time for merchants. The stock is just not moving in the way that could be anticipated had it not been for these road works.

The project is necessary of course and some inconvenience is to be expected. But it comes at a bad time and for this reason the merchants deserve consideration. City Manager J. R. Reynolds is said to be conferring with the City Engineer with a view to having the job speeded up and we trust this will have the desired result.

CBC Bias

Campaigning in Quebec, Creditiste leader Real Caouette has criticized French-language reporters for what he called favoured treatment of Parti Quebecois leader Rene Levesque. He said Levesque got four minutes of air time on a recent newscast while he and NDP leader David Lewis received only brief mention.

Well we have seen Mr. Caouette at least once on TV this election time around and we have seen and heard Mr. Lewis a great deal more. In fact we believe the CBC has a distinct bias toward the left-wing, toward anti-Americanism at the international level and toward support of left-wing spokesmen — and particularly of Mr. Lewis — at the national level.

Sometimes we wonder if the CBC recognizes the existence of a leader of the Opposition — namely Mr. Stanfield. Indeed the latter was moved recently to complain about the CBC's poor coverage of a recent swing by the Conservative chief through the Maritimes.

Close Fight Foreseen in Some Ridings

Eight of Ten Provinces Should Show Little Change

By FARMER TISSINGTON
Ottawa Bureau

A survey of the national scene suggests that while there will be some shuffling of seats between parties, the Oct. 30 results are fairly obvious in eight of the 10 provinces. Six of Newfoundland's seven seats were won by the Conservatives in 1968. The same result is expected this time; with only transport minister Don Jamieson providing the Liberals with a voice in the province. The only real question is the long-recent Bonavista-Trinity-Conception riding won by the present provincial premier, Frank Moores, by nearly 5,000 votes in 1968.

Prince Edward Island returned four Conservatives last time. With one retiring, the Liberals could pick up Cardigan as they have a strong candidate in provincial agriculture minister Daniel MacDonald.

Nova Scotia's 11 seats went 10 to one for the Tories last time. The Dalhousie home ground will likely remain loyal. The only Liberal, privy council president and government house leader Allan MacEachen, won by only 536 votes and could lose.

New Brunswick was more kind to the Liberals and they split its 10 seats evenly with the Conservatives. Two or three resignations of 1968 winners add some element of doubt. The Social Credit party claims it has a chance in one or two seats in the French-speaking northern ridings but this is discounted here. Little change is expected overall.

Entry of Claude Wagner in Quebec is the big question mark in that province. It is a risky gamble for the Tories for he will appeal to many people who normally might vote Social Credit. If he splits the Social Credit vote, particularly in rural ridings, he could help elect Liberals.

To be worthwhile for the Conservatives, Mr. Wagner will have to lead between 10 and 15 Conservatives into the commons. No fewer than three Quebec cabinet ministers may be in trouble. DREE boss Jean Marchand, Indian and Northern Affairs minister Jean Chretien and Industry and Trade minister Jean-Luc Pepin won by very slim margins in 1968.

In Manitoba, the situation looks fairly static. The split was 5-5-3 in 1968 and two subsequent byelections were won by Conservative and New Democratic candidates, resulting in no change in the original standings. Liberals won two seats by margins of only 1.9 and 5.5 per cent of the total vote and could be in trouble. But they lost two others by only 2.8 and 6.1 per cent. Again, little change.

Some interesting contests shape up in Saskatchewan. A year ago Justice Minister Otto Lang was believed to be a goner, particularly as he won by only 555 votes and government policies were finding little favor with grain farmers. With the two price system for wheat and the Crow grain rates, his stature has improved.

At dissolution, the NDP held seven Saskatchewan seats to five for the Conservatives plus Mr. Lang. Alvin Hamilton on the comeback trail, should hold Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain for Conservative and New Democratic candidates, resulting in no change in the original standings. Liberals won two seats by margins of only 1.9 and 5.5 per cent of the total vote and could be in trouble. But they lost two others by only 2.8 and 6.1 per cent. Again, little change.

The NDP's John Burton may have trouble in Regina East where the widow of former premier Ross Thatcher is running for the Liberals. Retirement of Jack McIntosh raises some questions about the Conservatives holding Swift Current-Maple Creek. Some shuffling but no major change in party strength.

The Conservatives have been nursing some food hopes of sweeping all 18 Alberta seats. They won 15 in 1968 with the Liberals taking four. If the Tories can find the right candidate in Medicine Hat they think they can knock off agriculture minister Hurd Olson who won by only 208 votes. Allen Sulatycky in Rocky Mountain, Hu Harries in Edmonton-Strathcona and even cabinet minister Pat Mahoney, with a 736-vote edge in 1968 are all vulnerable.

The two provinces where the greatest changes may occur are Ontario and British Columbia. A look at them soon.

Hecklers Missing Link in Election 1972-Style

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau
TORONTO—As we have found out in our recent provincial elections and are now seeing in the federal election, there has been a great change in the past dozen years or so in political campaigning.

Instead of the old mass meetings, sometimes three or four of them a day, there now is marathoning and great emphasis on television interviews, hot-line radio shows and press conferences.

This is testimony to the fact that the general public today just won't go to political meetings and what the communications experts who have taken over, have decided on shotgun type campaigns . . . backed up by their own massive publicity programs.

Which means that a leader's skill on the campaign platform is not nearly as important as it used to be.

A good rattle, handshake and quick wit now are more valuable than the fire in debate which in the leaders of the past used to be all important.

One consequence of this is that some of the old-time techniques and political arts are now largely missing.

And of these none can be missed more by those of us who have lived a life of politics than the heckler.

In the old days, of course, heckling was a prime part of any election campaign.

It was used by all parties. And if a candidate couldn't stand up to it he didn't have much of a chance.

I recall a good man with a heckler could almost win elections on his technique alone.

The late George Dunbar of Ottawa, one of the most astute politicians it was ever my good fortune to know, was one such, in fact, that he carried his own heckler around with him.

He was wise at every meeting, and would present questions which George could knock down pointedly and with humor.

Those who watched the B circles Tim Reuth Deade have been probably the best great living ot heckling. And witnessed few important it could be.

Louis St. Laurent was completely bewildered by it and probably lost a great many votes because of this.

John Diefenbaker had perhaps the sharpest wit with a heckler Canada has ever seen and used this to tremendous advantage.

And Lester Pearson, though he had no adeptness, by standing up to it and facing it out won gains from it.

We haven't seen any good heckling in a campaign in Ontario for years.

It's unlikely we will in this federal election either.

To at least one observer this is a loss. It would be interesting to see how Pierre Trudeau, Robert Stanfield and David Lewis stood up to hecklers.

And it could give quite a measure of the men.

Delta Mill to Be Restored

Brockville Recorder and Times

We would join with those people in this area who are pleased that the old mill at Delta will be restored. It is a graceful relic of the past, one that deserves to be preserved for posterity. Indeed, the special character of Delta, with its trees on the old mill and its main street, should be preserved.

The old mill is the second edifice of its type in Ontario and has importance as an historic site as well as a pioneer architectural landmark. Efforts to restore the mill have been going on for some years with the member for Leeds, Environment Minister Auld playing a prominent role in those efforts. His efforts and those of the Delta Mill Society resulted in the mill being declared of national and historic importance in 1970 and a plaque was erected to recognize these facts. This provided support for efforts to get the Ontario Heritage Foundation to assist with financial support.

The village of Delta itself has a character which is that of a pioneer settlement and offers untold possibilities as a tourist attraction. To drive or walk its streets, especially its main street, is to step back into the past. For this reason it would be a shame if the mill were done up on for some years with the help of Leeds, Environment Minister Auld playing a prominent role in those efforts. His efforts and those of the Delta Mill Society resulted in the mill being declared of national and historic importance in 1970 and a plaque was erected to recognize these facts. Terrorism's Twisted Logic

The Economist

The world had better educate itself to see the terrorist for what he is—in a curious document broadcast from Damascus, the Black September terrorists responsible for the Munich killings are said to have declared that "this world is for the strong". Some people will say that this is a violent engendered by the violent, shiftless life of the Palestinian refugee camps, and that it is the "violence of the system" that breeds political terrorism. It is time that we purged the language of words that confuse terrorists with freedom fighters or excuse them as mixed-up kids, and hammer out the twisted logic that professes to rationalize the murder of innocents as a response to social injustice.

Snowmobile Code in Quebec

Montreal Gazette

Forty-two of the 53 snowmobile fatalities last winter occurred on roads and highways where snowmobile use is prohibited by law. The statistic illustrates the most frustrating obstacle to satisfactory regulation of snowmobile use. It is found in the nature of the vehicle itself. It can move on swiftly beyond the range or normal police surveillance that a normal enforcement procedures become useless.

This seems to have been recognized in the new snowmobile code. While the code introduces tougher regulations, including the requirements for registration and limits on the age of drivers, the main emphasis being placed on educating snowmobile users through the 800 clubs now in existence. Additionally, $300,000 is available for trail improvement and $900,000 for trail markers and other signalling equipment. A team of 20 expert snowmobile users has been created to publish the techniques of club mastructors.

It is a constructive approach. The question is whether it can be taken far enough to signify really reduce abuse of the vehicle. Abuses can never be eradicated. There is something about the snowmobile, as there is about high-powered motorboats which often brings out the worst in their users. All the authorities can really hope for, as they say, they must deal with humanity's follies as well as its virtues, is to contain the former.

Scientists Dispute Darwin's Theories

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

To comment on the recent writings of "Interested" regarding "religious Education" I must agree with all that was said and would like to add a few points of my own.

Much controversy has surrounded the theory of evolution ever since Charles Darwin first published his ideas and is now taught in the schools as proven, that humans, as well as all plants and animals evolved from a primeval glob.

Scientists have offered great quantities of 'evidence' to support their theories. Whenever the supporting evidence is proven to be fraudulent or inaccurate, they simply try to "uncover" more missing links.

In recent years scholars and scientists have begun to have doubts about the evidence supporting the evolutionary theory and have expressed their doubts in books and publications.

(Men like W. R. Thomas, physicist and professor of chemistry at the University of Alberta are outstanding scholars of the Bible and have proclaimed their faith in God through a personal experience.)

It may surprise many students of the Bible to learn that at the end of his life Charles Darwin returned to his faith in the Bible.

The following account is told by Lady Hope, a missionary, who was often at his bedside before he died:

"His features lit up with pleasure as I entered the room. He waved his hand toward the window as he pointed out the beautiful sunset, saying, 'Hope.' In his other hand he held an open Bible which he was always studying.

"'What are you reading now?' I asked. "Hebrews,' he replied. "The Royal Book, I call it.' He then spoke affiliately to the strong opinions expressed by many on the history of the creation, and then their treatment of the earlier chapters of the book of Genesis. He seemed distressed, his fingers twitched nervously and a look of agony came over his face as he said, "I was a young man with unformed ideas. My mind was filled with suggestions, wondering all the while if the Bible which he was holding, authenticate the ideas took life in my brain. People made a religion of them.'

Then he paused and after a few moments looking at the Bible of this Book" looking tenderly at the Bible which he was holding all the time, he said: I have a summer house in the garden which holds about 20 people. I want you very much to speak here, if you may read the Bible in the villages. Tomorrow afternoon I should like the servants on the place, some tenants, and a few neighbors to gather here. Will you speak to them?"

"What shall I speak about?" I asked. "Christ Jesus," he replied in a clear, emphatic voice and looking at a lower tone, "and His Salvation".

Ottawa Report Suggests Growth Be Specialized

OTTAWA (CP) — Some form of specialized growth may be the best answer for revitalizing eastern Ontario's economy, suggests a government report made public Tuesday.

The 39-page study, eighth in a series on southern and eastern Ontario regions, proposes three alternatives to current growth trends in the 18,000-square-mile eastern area with a population of 692,200.

Ottawa dominates the region, which has 108 municipalities, ranging from cities and counties to rural townships and villages.

The alternatives would be to concentrate growth in a few cities, such as Ottawa and Kingston; disperse growth throughout the region, allotting developments proportionately to cities, towns, villages and hamlets; or encourage the major urban centres to grow, thus slightly reducing Ottawa's predominance over the region.

Claude Bennett, minister without portfolio who represents Ottawa South in the legislature, released the report at a public meeting at the Skyline Hotel.

"The report is not a plan," he said. "It is a study of the growth potential and options for development and is designed to facilitate public discussion on planning and future development of eastern Ontario."

The report noted that if present trends continue, Pembroke, Renfrew and Perth will stagnate and most other communities will not be able to produce enough jobs to match the rise in population.

Steady growth would continue in Ottawa, Kingston, Brockville and, "to a lesser extent, Cornwall, Hawkesbury and Smiths Falls," at the expense of the other communities.

Population in the rural northern areas of the region would continue to decline. These areas would be characterized by a concentration of two groups, identified as "elderly people, and people living at a below-average standard with little chance of doing better in an urban environment."

While the study is intended mainly to promote debate, it appears to lean toward specialized growth as a solution to the area's problems.

"Some form of specialized growth would probably make the most of existing opportunities," the report said. Ottawa would continue to expand its government sector, while towns and large cities could attract more industrial and commercial development. At the same time, tourism, farming and forestry industries would have a better chance to develop independently.

"The result would be an increase in overall productivity to the benefit of all the people in the region."

In contrast, the study said, widespread growth would mean little change in the life style of people, with the variety of jobs limited and number of job openings small.

By concentrating growth in a few cities, agriculture would be intensified in dairy-belt areas and other regions also would be encouraged to specialize. For instance, the Rideau waterway, the Thousand Islands, and much of the St. Lawrence and upper Ottawa River Valley would be developed substantially to tourism.

The region's smaller towns and villages "would simply serve the basic needs of local people, surrounding farm families and tourists."

Undertaker Faces Disciplinary Action

TORONTO (CP) — Disciplinary charges will be laid against a Toronto undertaker under the Embalmers and Funeral Directors Act of using inadequate procedures in the burial of unclaimed bodies, Metropolitan Toronto council was told Tuesday.

Donald Stealson, registrar of the board of administration under the act, said no similar disciplinary action has been taken in Ontario for at least 15 years.

He said the charges deal with the material used in the coffins and the way the burial was performed.

Thomas Anderson, social services commissioner for Metro, said the charges deal with Type B funerals, for which the $177 cost is equally shared by the provincial and municipal governments. They provide burial in a one-inch-thick silk-lined pine box with grey covering and without service or flowers.

Type A funerals are usually provided when the deceased has no money and his body is unclaimed.

Controller Mel Lastman of North York demanded an investigation into burial practices for unclaimed bodies. He said that in some cases boxes resembling orange crates are used, hours are not called down and bodies are placed three in one plot.

Council was considering an increase in payments to undertakers for the burial of indigent persons.

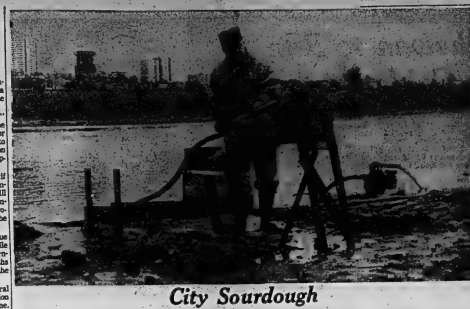
Mr. Anderson said the Type A payment would be increased to $186, including a $55 coffin.' He said a Type B funeral, which includes a clergyman, embalming, an automobile and lying in a funeral home, is provided for indigent persons with relatives and friends. Type B payments would be increased $12 to $177.

The commissioner said his department has asked all undertakers to advise it when they plan to conduct an unscheduled burial at an unclaimed body and that a system of spot checks will be introduced to ensure that proper procedures are followed.

Bed Treatment Said Too Costly

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)— Ontario Premier William Davis said Tuesday the government may have to reduce the number of active treatment beds in hospitals to trim escalating health costs.

He told the Brampton-Caledon-Georgetown Chamber of Commerce that government can no longer afford continuing increases in health service costs.



"We have put ceilings on school costs and tightened government expenditures in other areas," he said.

Mr. Davis said most tax increases are due to the public's demand for additional services.

He suggested that Britain's entry into the European Common Market will mean that Canadians will have to become more competitive and productive in order to compete in the world markets.

The premier also said the government will make proposals this fall for the regional government in the area west of Toronto.

"Our concern is not to have an urban sprawl from the lakeshore going too far north," he said.

City Sourdough

Joe Hollis, a 54-year-old Edmonton steam fitter, pursues his unusual hobby on the shore of the North Saskatchewan River Friday — panning for gold. He says on the average he makes about $1 or $2 a day and it's a way of enjoying the outdoor life. He's been using the system since he was 13 and used to make spending money that way during the depression. But he only pans on weekends and in his spare time. He manages 10 or 12 days during the summer. (CP Wirephoto)

Reducing Salons Fined

OTTAWA (CP) — Figur Magic, a city weight-reducing salon, has been fined $1,000 under the federal Combines Act on a charge of false advertising, and given a suspended sentence on six other similar charges.

A second part of the judgment handed down Monday has been adjourned to Oct. 16.

Judge J. P. Beaulne will give his decision then as to whether federal or provincial authorities should investigate the producers of weight-reducing solutions who claim the expiration of their product will take off fat.

Figur Magic was charged last spring by the consumer affairs department after clients complained they didn't lose fat as promised in newspaper advertisements.

Medical witnesses testified at the trial that solutions used in the Figur Magic method had no fat reducing powers and that treatment could induce loss of body water and salt through perspiration but no long-term fat loss.

Weight loss involved in the process would be regained in 12 hours of normal eating and drinking, court was told.

The treatments, which cost $22.50 each, involved being wrapped in bandages, sipped into a perspiring suit, covered with electric blankets and then a special cream applied.

$75-Million Sports Stadium Declared Feasible

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says construction of a $75-million sports stadium on about 55 acres of surplus Downsview airport land has been declared feasible by a consulting team working for a provincial - Metro study committee.

The newspaper says the report will be reviewed soon by the Ontario cabinet before a joint provincial-Metro announcement of the study results.

The Globe and Mail says it is believed the consultants have proposed a stadium which would be open air in initial stages, but with provision for a dome or some other form of roof.

The newspaper says the report was expected to be available Sept. 15, but provincial officials want to examine the implications of provincial involvement in the financing. The study is being financed on a 50-50 basis by Metro and the province.

The consultants had been asked to determine what facilities should be included in the stadium and also what sort of transportation system would be needed to service a stadium in the Downsview area in Metro's northwest section.

Saskatchewan to Run Its Own Cable System

REGINA (CP) — The provincial government will install a cable television system to be operated as a public utility through Sask Tel, Government Services Minister John Brockelbank said Tuesday.

While details of its operation still are to be worked out, the system will take advantage of facilities owned by Sask Tel, the provincially-owned telecommunications system.

Initially, the service will be provided in Regina and Saskatoon and should be operative in a "couple of years," Mr. Brockelbank said at a news conference.

The reason for the province's entry into the cable television field, he said, is to ensure the service is not confined only to larger centres.

"Privately owned cable operators would have taken excessive profits in Regina and Saskatoon and would not have extended cable television services or systems to the smaller centres."

The system will cost "millions of dollars" but an exact figure won't be known until possibly the end of this year.

The decision by the government effectively rules out any possibility of private operators moving into the field and using Sask Tel facilities.

It will be up to non-profit community organizations to apply for the service. They must obtain a licence from the Canadian Radio and Television Commission.

In Edmonton, CRTC vice-chairman Harry Boyle said he could see no reason why the commission would object to the proposal.

Although he said he could not be more specific until he had seen the proposal in detail, he said the Saskatchewan government has made it clear the province is not challenging the CRTC's authority.

The commission is hearing applications for radio and television licences and licence renewals in Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and the Northwest Territories.

Proposed Leader Man of the People

COPENHAGEN (CP) — Anker Joergensen, Denmark's prime minister-designate, is a man of the working people, who knows about poverty and hard manual labor.

His nomination goes before the Social Democratic party's general executive for approval today 24 hours after Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag announced he was resigning for personal reasons.

Krag's resignation after 25 years in the forefront of Danish political life, including seven years as prime minister, came only hours after the electorate swept Denmark into the European Common Market in a national referendum.

The change in government leadership has overshadowed the referendum result which was the crowning achievement in Krag's long political career.

Joergensen, a member of parliament and chairman of the country's largest trade union, the Gggeral and Skille-Workers Union, was nominated as prime minister by Krag. Before he can formally take over, this nomination must be approved at a meeting of the Social Democratic party's executive.

Also meeting today are the leaders of the five parliamentary party groups to decide whether there continues to be a parliamentary basis for a minority Social Democratic government.

There is little doubt among political observers here that the 59-year-old Joergensen—a moderate, slightly left-of-centre Social Democrat—will clear these hurdles.

The only possible obstacle to a continued Social Democratic government would be a withdrawal of support from it by the 17 members of the Folketing (parliament) for the Socialist People's party, on whom the Social Democrats rely for their working majority of one vote.

But at a meeting of the Socialist People's party executive committee Tuesday night there was no sign that it would back down on Joergensen and force a general election.

Minister A Dropout

TORONTO (CP) — With 15 of the 17 credits he needs for his BA, Jack McNie has become a college dropout.

At 52, he is being forced to abandon his part-time study at the University of Toronto to take the full-time job of running the Ontario ministry of colleges and universities.

The new minister, who was sworn in Thursday, is the owner of a Hamilton public relations firm and was elected to the legislature last October.

Mr. McNie, whose studies began with his discharge from the RCAF after the Second World War, says "It's the job of the legislator to ask questions, to challenge the sacred cows."

One of his first pronouncements when he was appointed was that "a disproportionate amount of our efforts and money is going into the ages 5 to 20."

He urged that more older persons and more low-income families be encouraged to go into higher education.

Mr. McNie was advertising manager for the Salada Tea Co. before joining the RCAF and joined the Russell T. Kelley Co. in 1946.

Assassins Kill Two in Belfast

BELFAST (CP) — Assassins killed two more men early today after a 500-pound bomb blasted two Roman Catholic taverns, wrecking 33 homes.

The body of one of the men was found in an alley in the Lower Falls district of Belfast, Catholic zone where the bar bombings occurred.

Police said the man, aged about 25 and believed to be a Catholic, had been beaten and shot in the head.

The other body was found lying in Protestant east Belfast. The body was headed and the police said the man also had been shot in the head.

The slayings raised Northern Ireland's death toll from three dozen victims of violence to at least 75 of them victims of sectarian assassination squads in the last three months.

The bombing was blamed on the Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army supporters. But some security sources speculated Loyalist gunmen had been another IRA bomb that exploded prematurely.

The bomb exploded late Tuesday night just as the bars were crowded with persons buying a last drink before closing. The bomb apparently was planted in a car parked outside the bars, which were only yards apart.

There was no warning given," said an army spokesman. As victims of the explosion staggered, cut and shocked, from the two bars, an angry crowd gathered. The crowd, shouting that it was a "UDA" bomb, attacked the Protestant Ulster Defence Association, the paramilitary organization said Britain troops must reach the scene.

As it went off, flying glass showered the street and the bars' interiors extensively damaged. About 20 nearby homes also were hit.

Earlier Tuesday, guerrillas used the biggest bomb ever exploded in Ulster to attack a nearly-completed police station in Londonderry.

Three gunmen hijacked a dump truck, forced the driver to take them to the outskirts of the city where they loaded aboard six suitcases, each containing 100 pounds of explosives, and drove them back to the police station.

Forty yards from the station, all four bunged clear and the truck exploded, blowing the front gate. The suitcases exploded 90 minutes later.

The blast did surprisingly little damage to the $2.4 million building, but it shattered the fronts of other buildings nearby and was heard a mile away.

Jesse James Is Protector

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Jesse James Jr. is a hero today.

Jesse, a four-year-old pedigreed German shepherd, attacked one of his namesake's would - be followers Monday night, when the armed man threatened Jesse's owner.

Sixty-year-old Mrs. Ann Nemes was walking Jesse, nicknamed Tiger, under a city bridge, when two men approached. They demanded money, but Mrs. Nemes refused.

He leapt at the gunman, grabbing his wrist. The gun discharged, and the would-be robbers fled.

Neither Mrs. Nemes nor Jesse was hurt.

Ordination For Women

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Free Press says a seven-member committee of the Anglican Church of Canada has recommended the ordination of women to the priesthood in the church.

The newspaper says the committee's report, to be presented to the church's committee on ministry early next month, recommends that the church accept the principle of admission of women to the ministry, that appropriate steps be taken to implement the principle and that the decision be communicated to church members as soon as possible.

The issue was debated at the General Synod in 1969 and referred to the committee, set up in 1970, for study.

Toronto Appeal Faces Do-or-Die Crisis Year

TORONTO (CP) — The campaign chairman of the United Appeal here said Tuesday the fund-raising organization will fold within two years if it fails again in 1972 to meet its goal.

Norman Paton of Toronto said that the drive for money for charitable organizations has failed short of its target for the last two years. Cash realized in 1970 was six per cent below expectations, and in 1971, it was nine per cent short of the target.

"I'm working on the assumption that if this situation keeps up, the United Appeal is going to die. I'm not just crying wolf. I have the conviction that it will die. It's serious."

The organization will attempt to raise $14.12 million by Nov. 1, through donations from corporations and individuals.

After both of the last two campaigns, the United Appeal transferred money—$600,000 in 1971—to its 79 member agencies from reserves built up through bequests and interest on bank deposits.

The reserves now stand at $600,000, the lowest level in recent years, and Mr. Paton said in an interview one more campaign failure will wipe out the reserve fund.

The annual United Appeal campaign is run jointly by the United Community Fund and the Red Cross. It was established in 1932 to eliminate multiple fund raising and, on average, meets one-third of the budget of its member agencies.

Mr. Paton says if the appeal fails again, he expects the larger agencies to disassociate themselves from the organization and run their own money-raising drives.

Search Started

TOBERMORY, Ont. (CP) — An air and water search for two Grimsby men, missing since the crash of their light plane Saturday didn't turn up any clue to their fate Tuesday.

Pilot Bill Fisher, 40, and passenger Frank Bentinger, 52, were flying to a northern hunting camp when their plane went down in Georgian Bay about 75 miles north of Owen Sound.

The aircraft was spotted Sunday and towed into Tobermory harbor. When the aircraft was found, the doors were open and the seat belts were unfastened.

A search of the shoreline was abandoned Monday when police and coast guard boats joined the search.

Woman Insane

TORONTO (CP) — A 28-year-old Toronto woman who killed her four-month-old son last year by putting him in boiling water was found not guilty of non-capital murder Tuesday by reason of insanity.

Mr. Justice Donald Morand remanded Mary Kwan to the Queen Street Mental Health Centre in Toronto where she has been held since her arrest Oct. 30, 1971.

"The doctors say she will be in hospital for many, many years," Mr. Justice Morand told the all-male Ontario Supreme Court jury.

Ad Ban Urged

MELBOURNE (Reuter) — Doctors from Australia, Britain and Canada passed a resolution Tuesday calling for a ban on all advertising for cigarettes and tobacco. The motion was passed during the fifth World Conference on General Practice.

Police 'Steak-Out' Ends In Gun Fight

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — An escaped bull pursuing cattle truck overnight culminated Tuesday in a bullfight with shotguns, a cow with an overdose of tranquilizers, a bruised newspaper photographer and a traffic jam on a busy highway.

Police received their first call at about 4 a.m. when somebody spotted large creatures moving about their front lawns.

Police arrived and kept the animals under surveillance—a "steak-out" as it were—until 10 a.m. when the cow got a little rambunctious and began to roam. The chase covered further afield and a newspaper photographer got in his act.

The photographer and the cow met at the corner of a residential cow way. Bruce Jones of Oshawa Times suffered facial cuts, abrasions and a couple of bruises.

A veterinarian with a tranquilizer gun entered the pasture.

The drug finally took effect to the middle of a main street and a traffic jam resulted.

Meanwhile, back in the residential district the bull was still free. The stun gun failed again so detectives ended the chase with shotgun pellets.

On Tenterhooks

SION, Switzerland (Reuter) — A massive hanging glacier, 13,000 feet up on the Wiess Horn Mountain, is threatening to break off and crush the village of Randa, local authorities said Tuesday. A deep crevasse in the Biegletscher glacier has widened and other cracks are appearing. Authorities are considering artificially breaking off the glacier snout, estimated to weigh several hundred thousand tons.

Band Council's Approach Leads to New Challenge

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A feeling by Indian band councils that native children were being "short-changed" on education resulted in "an exciting challenge" for Richard Young.

Mr. Young is an instructor in counselling theory and practice at the University of Western Ontario's Althouse College of Education.

This year, he is assisting nine Indian students in gaining skills to return to their reserves and "help their people attain educational and personal goals."

"One thing we have learned in education is that native people can help native people best, just as blacks can help blacks best and poor people can help poor people best," Mr. Young said in an interview.

"What's particularly important is that this program resulted from the band councils approaching the department of Indian affairs who in turn approached the universities," he said. "It wasn't something that was foisted on them."

The one-year social counselling course for native people was started here last year with 18 students, most of whom upon graduation were hired by local-area Indian bands. Two others accepted positions with the Indian affairs department and two of the graduates remained in London—one with the board of education and the other to work at a boys' home.

This year's students, seven men and two women who range from 23 to 30, are taking such subjects as introductory sociology, health and physical education, guidance and elementary education, remedial reading and Indian culture and history featuring a native lecturer, as well as the counselling course.

Requirements of the program are the same as for university entrance — either successful completion of Grade 12 or Grade 12 diploma with the student being more than 23 years of age.

Tuition is paid directly to the university by the Indian affairs department. Financial arrangements for books and lodging are made between the department and the individual students.

In addition to his academic studies, the student spends two weeks in the field, working with counsellors in the various school systems in southwestern Ontario.

While the social counselling course is run in conjunction with the regular program at Althouse College, there is also a steering committee made up of federal officials and members of various Indian bands.

CHAMPMAN - TWEED WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

TWEED — The recent meeting of the Chapman-Tweed Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. M. McNeil.

The president, Mrs. Harold Foster, welcomed the members after the summer recess and extended a special welcome to the guest speaker, Mrs. F. E. Wellman, district president of Hastings East.

The secretary, Mrs. L. Jardine, read a letter from Mrs. J. Whitfield concerning a "Color Tour" to Ottawa and the Gatineau Hills, early in October and a trip to New York on Thanksgiving weekend, October 8. She also received the program for the Trent Valley Area Rally which will be held at Northminster United Church, Peterborough, October 24 and 25. A motion was passed for the continuation of the $10. donation to "Chapman Chums" Girls' Homemaking Club.

Names were taken, at this time, for entries in the project "Bakeshop Window for the Fair." Prizes for Tweed students at Centre Hastings Secondary School will be discussed further at the next meeting of the W. I.

The convener of the program was Mrs. G. Butterill. The topic was consumer affairs. A paper on "Money Management" was given by Mrs. Sam Dafoe. Home ownership vs renting and family budgeting were discussed.

Mrs. Roy Jones read a paper on the "influence of Advertising" which makes you buy things you don't need and posed the question, "How much food do you throw away?" Mrs. Lyman Holmes gave "Tips on Shopping for Groceries". This dealt with resisting impulse buying and in being quality conscious rather than price conscious.

The district president was introduced by Mrs. Sam Dafoe. Mrs. Wellman spoke on the motto "No one is rich enough to live without his neighbor". She developed the theme in an interesting way, bringing out the ideas that anyone in need is a neighbor and one should give what he has not matter how little.

Mrs. Butterill thanked Mrs. Wellman and presented her with a gift.

Lunch was served by the committee. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. M. Lambert.

CANNIFTON — CORBYVILLE WI

The September meeting of Canniton - Corbyville WI was held in the hall with 12 members present. The president Mrs. C. Avery opened in the usual manner and received the various reports.

During the business discussion Mrs. D. Meale and Mrs. D. Milton were nominated as delegates to the area convention in Peterborough. Mrs. Moore was nominated as alternate.

The speaker at the October meeting will be Grant Ketcheson who will tell of her recent experience while in England.

Mrs. K. Bowers had charge of the program. The motto was, "Give our Christian Love to our United Nations and fellow people." She also gave a paper telling of one couple who adopted three children from three different countries, making a large family. She also spoke of the many new citizens who were to arrive from Uganda. Two poems were read. One on family re-union. One was a farmer's meditation pertaining to the reaping of the harvest.

The hostess Mrs. D. Milton assisted by Mrs. A. Evers and Mrs. C. Ellsworth served a dainty lunch and all enjoyed a social half hour.

CARMEL WI

The September meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. Lucas with 18 members present. Four visitors were also in attendance.

During the business portion of the meeting, Mrs. E. Ross mentioned the Trent Valley Area convention which is to be held on October 24 and 25 in Peterborough. Mrs. E. Gowthorpe, convener for Agriculture and Canadian Industries has arranged for a tour of Brooks-Bond on Nov. 5.

Mrs. Carl Thompson, convener for resolutions introduced the guest speaker, John Lennen, public relations officer with the Income Tax Department. With the aid of slides, Mr. Lennen pointed out some of the differences in the new tax system. Some of these include an increase in basic exemption to $1,500 and child care deduction for children to age 14. It was noted that unemployment insurance benefits are now a taxable income. Capital gains tax was discussed as well as depreciation. The new tax form for 1972 was on display.

A question and answer period followed after which Mrs. A. Whitmore thanked Mr. Lennen and presented him with a small gift. Lunch was served by the hostess and assistants.

HOWARD — MITCHELL

FRANKFORD — The Frankford United Church was the scene of the recent wedding when Debora Lynn Mitchell was united in marriage with Lloyd George Howard.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mitchell, R. R. 2, Frankford, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Howard, Frankford.

Rev. Ernest Brown officiated at the ceremony while appropriate wedding music was played by Mrs. Barbara Scruton who accompanied Mrs. Connie Gaskin as soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length peau de soie gown with empire styled waistline, long sleeves ending with deep puff, and a dainty band of lace bolads at the waistline. The sheath styled skirt was trimmed with a vertical daisy chain running from the neck to the hemline. Her illusion veil, edged with lace daisies, was held with a floral headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses with fern.

The maid of honor, Helen Rogers, and the bridesmaids, Carol Howard and Eileen Mitchell, were attired alike in floor length gowns of imported taffeta organza in multi-colored shades of yellow, pink, green and lemon with full skirts softly pleated and long sleeves trimmed with moss green velvet ribbon, large mohair hats, and they carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom was attended by Brian Miller, Frankford, as best man while the ushers were Randy Mitchell and Michael Howard.

A reception was held at the Lower Trent United Church Gospel Lamb room where the guests were received by the mother of the bride. She wore a green brocade dress with matching coat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore an off-white crimplene dress with matching bell, beige accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Club Activities

QUINTE WHITE CANE CLUB

The September recreation and business meetings of the Quinte White Cane Club were held at the Recreation Centre with the vice-president, Floyd Reid presiding in the absence of the president, Pat Haverstock.

At the recreation meeting, Wilma Morris announced the names of members observing birthdays. The birthday song was sung and prizes distributed. A minute of silence was observed in memory of the late Gladys Seldon. An appreciative prayer was given by Maude Rollins and membership comments by Mel Buckingham.

The Kiwanis women served a tasty lunch and were later thanked by Floyd Reid.

During the business meeting, a CCB news letter was read which stated that library and bookmobiles throughout Canada carry 1,000 larger type books for the partially sighted. The Belleville public library carried these books also. It was also noted that changes in the Canadian elections have now made it possible for handicapped citizens to vote in the federal elections.

A very lengthy and concise report was read by Helen Wickerson who attended the CCB Division conference held at Kitchener. One recommendation was that a joint committee of CCB and CNIB draft a brief to the provincial government enabling the CNIB to operate stands and canteens in hospitals with exclusive rights to sell all commercial merchandise. This would allow the blind auxiliaries to, raise their funds by other means. This recommendation was unanimous. Another recommendation accepted was that a mini-product of the canteen division: small stores or tuck shops, be located in high-rise apartment buildings or senior citizen apartments. In this way, more job opportunities would be available. The next conference will be held in Kingston in 1973.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN REID

Reid — Hofstra

Rev. Douglas Wilson performed the recent wedding ceremony in the Bethel Evangelical Presbyterian Church Trenton when Jeanette Paulyna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hofstra, Trenton exchanged vows with John Reid, son of Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Reid of RR 1 Springbrook.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a princess style floor length gown of white peau de soie with an A-line skirt and attached chapel length train. A pale pink satin ribbon and white lace outlined the squared illusion yoke, sleeves and hem. Her lace-covered floor length veil was held in place by a cluster of roses and petals outlined in pink embroidery and she carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses accented with stephanotis and ivy.

Veronica Farrell, of Kingston attended the bride wearing a floor length gown accented by a pink peau de soie bodice, short puffed sleeves and a long skirt with embroidered embalsed pink roses on organdy. Wearing short white gloves, she carried a nosegay of pink carnations and wore a pink floppy hat.

The bridesmaids: Linda Hartbridge, Brideport, Janice Reid, Springbrook and Charlene Betrim, of Belleville were dressed similarly to the maid of honor except in pink and yellow and carried nosetays of pink and yellow carnations.

Misses Susan Reid, niece of the bridegroom and Lori Hofstra, niece of the bride were seed identically to the maid of honor, but in yellow. They carried nosegays of yellow carnations and were yellow and white flowers in their hair.

For the reception, which was held at the Fish and Game Club, Frankford followed by a dance, the bride's mother received guests wearing a long pink dress of heavy silk with a lace bodice and sheer long sleeves. A fore-shortened empire waistline while a corsage of white carnations with white ribbon accented the gown.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a multicolor floral print long dress. Her gown was enhanced by long bell sleeves and a corsage of white carnations and gold ribbons.

For the wedding trip to points north and U.S.A., the bride donned a two-piece knitted checkered suit completed by black accessories and a corsage of baby pink sweetheart roses.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Reid will reside at 6A 318 Westdale Ave., Kingston.

MR. AND MRS. DALE AKEY

Akey. — Leween

St. John's Anglican Church, Point Anne was the setting for the recent wedding ceremony when Cheryl Darlene Leween exchanged vows with Dale Gordon Akey. The bride is the daughter of Gussie and Altha Leween while the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Akey, Point Anne. Rev. F. C. Bell performed the ceremony while Mrs. Roger Milton, bridegroom's sister provided organ music during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. Gordon Zechariah, wore a floor length gown designed by herself in polyester satin with a wide bead trim on the sleeves and a short train. Her cathedral length veil was held in place by a dainty headdress of small silk roses embroidered with lace. The bride carried a bouquet of pink trailing ivy.

Mrs. Brian Drumm, matron of honor, was attired in a long sleeved floor length gown of mauve flowered polyester, which was trimmed with mauve velvet ribbon. A wide picture hat and a bouquet of mauve and white mums with shasta daisies enhanced her gown.

Bridesmaids, Miss Lorraine Wade, Miss Patsy Green and Miss Patricia Akey, sister of the bridegroom, were dressed identically to the matron of honor. The flower girls, Misses Julie Whan and Trisha Whan, nieces of the bride, were dresses of the same material and design as the senior bridal attendants. Each flower girl carried a basket of flowers in complementing colors and wore flower headpieces.

David Akey, the bridegroom's eldest brother was best man. Dana and Danne Akey, brothers of the bridegroom and Leon Leween, brother of the bride ushered the guests.

For the reception which was held at St. John's Parish Hall in Point Anne, Mrs. Carl Whan, the bride's sister greeted guests wearing a floor length gown of baby blue duchess accented by a corsage of pink and white carnations.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a street-length dress and jacket of apricot brocade with a matching hat. A Woburn Abbey rose corsage enhanced her dress.

For the honeymoon to points east, the bride donned a green pant suit with matching accessories.

FRANKFORD SENIOR CITIZENS

FRANKFORD — The senior citizens met at the Lion's Centre on Wednesday afternoon for their weekly game of euchre.

A special welcome was given to a visitor, Mrs. Olive VanFleet of Burlington.

There were five tables in play, with winners Mrs. Harold Carr, Frankford for ladies and Mrs. Mabel Free, of Frankford, for gents.

The door prize went to Mr. G. Thurston, Frankford.

MISS ELLEN JAYNE RODGERS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rodgers, Stirling, graduated recently from Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing. Miss Rodgers has accepted a position on staff of the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

IODE Chapter Marks 30th Anniversary

MARMORA — "Be proud of the past but look forward to the future", was the challenge given by Mrs. E. F. MacKay, Provincial President of the I.O.D.E. to a meeting of members on Thursday evening, September 28 at Sacred Heart Church Hall.

Mrs. MacKay was guest speaker at a celebration marking the 30th anniversary of the founding of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E., combined with an area meeting of district chapters. About 150 members were present at the dinner representing chapters from Belleville, Trenton, Stirling, Campbellford, Norwood, Peterborough and Marmora.

Mrs. MacKay, who was introduced by Miss Rosa Spry of Stirling, sketched briefly the history of I.O.D.E., reminding her audience that since the I.O.D.E. was founded in 1900, its members have worked very hard, to provide comforts for those serving their country in the first and second world wars and the Korean conflict.

Mrs. MacKay said she was very pleased to be able to take part in Marmora Chapter's anniversary and brought greetings and best wishes from the Provincial Chapter. Messages of congratulations were also received from the Municipal Chapter in Peterborough and Norwood Chapter.

The guest speaker mentioned two new projects the Provincial Chapter has initiated. An educational VD program in the schools is underway for the 12-13 age group. A display using a projector, cassette recorder and literature will soon be available by the I.O.D.E. in the larger centres for use in meetings and fairs.

The other project Mrs. MacKay mentioned concerned assistance for the Indian women at Attawapiskat on James Bay.

Using building materials and equipment supplied by I.O.D.E. the Indian people built a community hall at Attawapiskat. Now the I.O.D.E. hopes to fulfil a request made by one woman on behalf of all the others—that a washer and dryer, sewing machines and sewing lessons could be made available at their community centre.

Mrs. MacKay was thanked by Regent Alice Ayler of the Marmora Chapter and presented with a copy of "Historic Hastings."

The following head table guests were introduced by Mrs. Ayler: Mrs. E. F. MacKay, provincial president; Mrs. E. P. Diemert provincial secretary; Mrs. Stan McBride regent Municipal Chapter Peterborough; Mrs. D. R. Maybee, Regent, Campbellford Chapter; Mrs. C. R. Link, regent St. Julian Chapter, Belleville; Mrs. Ernest Ward, regent, Picton Chapter; Miss Rosa Spry, provincial councillor, Stirling; Mrs. John W. Auckland, regent, Norwood Chapter; Mrs. Carl Boxall, regent, Stirling Chapter and Mrs. Andrew, regent, Major Bennett Chapter, Peterborough.

A medley of songs by a choir of Grade 8 students from Marmora Senior School, under the direction of Mrs. Robert Sanderson, was much enjoyed following dinner.

Four charter members of Marmora Chapter, Mrs. Jack Reynolds, Mrs. William Regan, Mrs. A. M. Jones and Mrs. Don Morrell were present for the occasion. One other charter member Mrs. Charles Brady, was not able to be present.

Members of Sacred Heart Catholic Women's League served a turkey dinner. The draw on a quilt which was made by Mrs. MacKay, won by 8-year-old Mary Howell of Elmira, New York, granddaughter of Judge and Mrs. R. Heller.

Door prizes were won by Mrd. Olive Smith of Belleville, Mrs. Jack Stewart of Norwood and Mrs. Vera Hughes of Picton.

A lovely floral centrepiece in the shape of a cake, made by Mrs. Mary Lavender, was won by Mrs. Peggy Cleveland of Peterborough.

Sacred Heart Church Hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion in purple and gold, Marmora Chapter's chosen colors. A large IODE crest was flanked on either side by the Union Jack and Canadian flag. Marmora's charter was also given a place of honor on the stage.

Registrations at the door were handled by Mrs. Sid Demorse and Mrs. Vaughn Glover and draw tickets were sold by Mrs. F. V. Walters. A social hour from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. was held with Mrs. Glen Wentworth and Mrs. A. M. Jones in charge of the punch bowl.

Bride-to-Be Honored By Community

RAWDON — Mount Pleasant Sunday School honored Miss Joyce Jeffs, an October bride-to-be recently with a farewell remembrance. Each of the primary class presented her with flowers for a colorful bouquet. Lynn Joslin and Linda Hoard read an appreciative address. Dale Harry presents an engraved New Unified Church Hymnary also. The recipient graciously voiced thanks and the superintendant, Mrs. Herbert Smith spoke briefly.

Joyce who has been a primary Sunday School teacher for the past few years will be married at Mount Pleasant Sunday School.

Outpatient Care May Curb Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — Some medical experts believe that many medical and surgical procedures traditionally calling for hospital stay might be done on an outpatient basis just as safely but with less disruption to patients' lives and less cost to the taxpayers.

The problem has been to decide just which cases could be done outside hospital or without an overnight stay and a recent issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal concentrates on the issue.

An editorial in the issue, titled Curbing the Costs, said determined efforts are being made within the profession to counteract a trend to treat every illness in hospital. It described six recent studies and two other articles in the same issue presented further evidence that doctors are taking steps to treat patients outside hospital more frequently.

Dr. Michael T. Richards of Edmonton described experiences with 200 cases in which uterine curettage was carried out in the doctor's office rather than in hospital. Curettage, often called dilation, involves the scraping of the interior walls of the womb.

Dr. Richards said careful assessment of each individual must be made, based on age, general condition, diagnosis of the specific condition and so on. But for certain women there were good reasons for not going to hospital.

"The advantages of this approach, in addition to economic conditions, are readily apparent. The saving of time to the patient is important for the woman is not obliged to be absent from her employment or to spend two to five days away from her home and domestic responsibilities.

"She is spared the anxiety which the need for any hospital admission is likely to provoke and which is even greater when, as so commonly happens, there is a delay before the operation can be arranged."

In another article, Drs. A. A. Yunpe, H. H. Allen and J. A. Collins of London, Ont., described the results of sterilization operations on 2,934 women performed on an outpatient basis at Victoria Hospital. The hospital wanted to provide women with safe and effective methods of sterilization but without tying up too many hospital beds.

Adapting the hospital procedures so women could have the operation and yet go home the same day has proved successful, the article said. Not having to remain in hospital "is particularly important to women with several small children at home."

The doctors also said it was important to the hospital "whose bed and nursing facilities thereby are made more available to handle other gynecological cases."

The women have their surgery, usually in the morning, and are discharged from the hospital after a rest the same day, the article said. A follow-up program is provided, whereby a nurse visits each patient at home that evening and is on call at all hours for the next three days.

"Utilization of the 'home-care program' has improved patient acceptance and convenience," the doctors concluded.

The editorial mentioned other studies, including one in which doctors in Vancouver showed that many surgical operations on children can be done safely on a day-care basis.

"This policy has proved entirely acceptable to the great majority of the parents concerned and it is agreed that it reflects less psychic trauma on the child," the editorial said. "Certainly it provides medical care at lower cost than conventional practices."

MacKay — McCorquodale

Holloway St. United Church was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony when Ann Christine McCorquodale, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. McCorquodale of Belleville exchanged vows with Allan Douglas MacKay, son of Rev. Dr. Lorne and Mrs. MacKay of Hamilton. Rev. Dr. Lorne MacKay performed the ceremony while Mrs. Hubbs rendered traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white eyelet cotton, accented by a stand-up collar with a frill on the puff sleeves and hemline. Her floor length veil was caught to her pearl encrusted headdress and she carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Allison Mueller, the maid of honor, was attired in a floor length gown of printed pink chiffon and she carried a basket of white shasta daisies and pink 'mums.

MR. AND MRS. ALLEN MacKAY

The bridesmaids, Miss Bev. McLaughlin and Miss Beth MacKay, sister of the bridegroom, were attired similarly to the maid of honor.

The best man was Paul Jagard, from Hamilton, while Bob Brucewell and Blaine McCorquodale, brother of the bride, ushered the guests.

For the reception held at Club Canara, the bride's mother wore a printed mauve silk gown enhanced by a floor length cape. A white orchid corsage accented her gown.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. MacKay will reside in Ottawa where the bride will resume her studies at Carleton University.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID PULVER

Pulver — Hannah

Major June Dwyer of London, Ontario assisted by Major Ray Nelson performed the September 23 wedding ceremony in Salvation Army Citadel of Sharlene Jean Hannah and David George Pulver. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hannah of Belleville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver of RR 1 Carrying Place. Mrs. A. Massey provided organ music to accompany the soloist, Mrs. Major R. Nelson.

The bride given in marriage by her father selected a floor length silk crepe gown enhanced by a Chantilly lace bodice and long sleeves. Her chapel train, also of Chantilly lace, was held together with tiny buttons. A shoulder length bouffant veil was attached to a chiffon rose headpiece. The bride carried a cascade of red roses interlaced with ivy.

Miss Cheryl Crain, as maid of honor, was attired in an orchid chiffon floor length gown featuring long puffed sleeves, and a deep purple French velvet bodice. A velvet bow accented the back of the gown. Her headpiece of orchid chiffon petals, tiny mauve flowers and beads held the orchid net veil. She carried a nosegay of white 'mums, pink roses and tiny purple flowers.

The bridesmaids were: Miss Diane Hannah, sister of the bride, Miss Linda Pulver, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Janice Hannah, sister of the bride. The bridal party were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Mr. Doug Hatfield was groomsman while ushers were Mr. Gary Howard, brother of the bride and Mr. Roger Pulver, brother of the bridegroom.

For the reception which was held at the Salvation Army reception room, the bride's mother greeted guests wearing an aqua polyester knit street length dress accented by black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a rose polyester knit street length dress, featuring long sleeves and a matching rope twist belt. Black accessories and a deep pink carnation corsage completed her dress.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points west, the bride donned a purple crepe and purple tweed polyester coat and dress ensemble which was accented by a pink and mauve carnation corsage.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Pulver will reside at 68A Charlotte st., Belleville.

Tips When Inviting Guest Speaker

By DORIS CLARK

Wants some ideas about inviting a prominent person to address your club?

1. Ask him well ahead of time — at least a month but preferably two, months or more. If he is much in demand, asking him a year ahead of time is one way of giving your club a good chance of not being turned down.

2. Name the topic desired or give the speaker a limited choice.

3. Give the "interest level" of the audience. Describe a little of what the club is doing and how it is made up.

4. Write a letter of confirmation about three weeks before the event, giving the time, name and address of hall and enclosing a map if necessary. Review the anticipated program, theme, length of address and arrangements for meeting and accommodating the guest.

Dear Doris: At the "pub" my husband's friends come over to talk about us. My problem is this: last weekend my husband was away. I went by myself to a social. I didn't have much to drink and I danced most of the night.

One of my husband's friends offered me a ride home. This guy and I went in his car and we talked all the way. Next thing I knew he was kissing me. I told him to stop it, but later I started kissing him back. Doris, this is as far as it what.

I want to tell my husband about this but he is a very jealous man: I am afraid that he will think that I would do all the way with someone else. My husband and I love each other very much but I tell him he will never trust me again.

Should I tell him or be quiet about the whole thing? My conscience is bothering me a lot. — In Trouble

Dear In Trouble: Sometimes the penalty for an indiscretion is to keep your burden of guilt to yourself. Unloading to him would be a relief to you — but whether he accepts your story or not, is it fair to hurt him by telling it?

Much depends on his personality and yours. This is a case for discussion with a social worker who can help you think it through.

Dear Doris: Whenever I call my 71-year - old mother in Chicago, she seems glad to hear from me. I am now upset because today I told her I was not able to return to the U.S. because I am a convinced pacifist and might have draft problems. This upset her.

I want to go to Austria and get a job on a farm there, but I didn't want to fly off with no letter, no phone call. How do I leave and let my Mom know I have to make up my own mind? — Don

Dear Don: Mothers don't like their children to get too far away. Natural, isn't it? Yet you must pursue your own life. Put your thoughts in a letter to her.

Promise to think of her daily and write often. Send little gifts. Give her something to look forward to in the mail and keep the letters coming.

It is possible to be just as close in spirit to those who are far away as to those we see daily. Especially for a good correspondent.

Give your letter time to reach her, then phone again before you board that plane. Try turning your trouble into triumph by getting help from a trained social worker. Doris can put you on the right track.

More Literature Requested For Feminism Collection

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — If you have an aunt or a grandmother or any family female whose letters and papers might be of interest to posterity, the University of Waterloo would like to hear from you.

It has a collection of books and papers by and about women which is growing by gift and by purchase.

Doris Lewis says: "We have probably the best feminism collection in Canada, and we do more with it. We have many courses centred around it.

"Feminism is difficult to define, but it is probably a good subjective word."

Mrs. Lewis was chief librarian when the collection was begun. She retired in 1961 and now is collection's development librarian.

She says she is not only looking for material on women who have been important.

We are interested in local material, particularly in the field of feminism."

But she has two requests. Don't censor any material. You don't protect your grandmother's reputation—you'll just destroy its value as research material. And ask the library if it would be interested before you ship material.

The university's collection of books on suffragettes and other feminist topics helped attract the Lady Aberdeen collection to it in 1967. The collection, about 3,000 volumes, was the Centennial Year project of the National Council of Women. It included material about women collected over 25 years by Elizabeth Long of Winnipeg. Miss Long is a former head of women's programs for the CBC.

Mrs. Lewis says: "It gave us a very useful nucleus on which to build and dovetailed nicely with what we already had."

The publicity concerning it also resulted in bequests of private papers. The library has among others, papers of Isabel Ecclestone McKay, a Vancouver poet, of Elizabeth Shortt, one of the first women graduates of medicine in Canada, and of Emily Murphy who wrote as Janey Canuck and was a noted feminis.

All of these and others include letters from other well-known people.

Since 1967 there have been grants from the Canadian Federation of University Women and the Kitchener-Waterloo University Women's Club plus money budgeted by the university.

Mrs. Lewis keeps an eye on antiquarian catalogues and second hand stores.

She has a $350 microfilmed edition of Herstory, a collection of women's journals, newspapers and newsletters from the Women's History Research Centre Library in Berkeley, Calif.

She also looks for material on topics related to women's social history, such as household management.

The material is available to serious researchers, so much of it is on the open shelves of the humanities and social science library.

LEGALLY WED

MILPA ALTA, Mexico (AP) — An elderly Mexican couple who fought in the 1910 revolution have made their marriage of six decades legal with a civil wedding ceremony. They were married in a church 60 years ago but the revolution led to a law requiring civil weddings.

Mirror of Your Mind
by JOHN CONWELL

Do all teeners need parental love?

ACTIVE or activist, involved or withdrawn, teenagers need to know that they have their parents' love and concern. The problem teenager, of course, clearly shows he must be reassured. Don't neglect the "good" teenager, though. As happy and busy as he seems, he, too, is approaching the critical point before adulthood. If he is denied parental love, he will suffer just as much as the chronically troubled teener.

Can a friendly person be friendless?

NO, not a truly friendly individual. The person who complains that he has no friends despite the fact that he is, as he claims, "the friendliest guy in the world," undoubtedly is not friendly at all. He may even be hostile—although he himself may not realize it—because he had been rebuffed in earlier attempts to be friendly. Now his unconscious enmity repulses anyone who might at first be attracted by his overt friendliness.

Has 'bad-mouthing' hurt marriage?

NO, marriage has survived every civilization and culture. The hearing it is taking today—or as they say, bad-mouthing—has little effect on most people in love who look to marriage to express that love. Indeed marriage seems headed for happier waters in an era that sees more husbands and wives eager to regard each other as human beings—an attitude which, of course, will get a marriage off on the right foot.

Ann Landers

Reader Has Solution for Trauma

Dear Ann landers: I was amused by the letter from the poor fellow who has a problem about urinating in the presence of others. He should go live in Paris for a while. If that doesn't cure his hang-up, nothing will. Sidewalk urinals are built so that a man standing in one can be seen by passers-by from the chest up. It is not uncommon for a gentleman inside a metal john to tip his hat to a lady passing by and for her to politely acknowledge the greeting. This may sound strange to your American readers, but it's true. —Texas Bean Meant

Dear Tex: How long has it been since you've been to Paris? Perhaps 40 years ago it was possible for a gentleman who was using a street urinal to tip his hat to a lady passing by, but the ones I've been seeing for the past 30 years are at least seven feet high. Even Will Chamberlain would have a tough time peering over the top of one. But thanks, anyway.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband owns a successful business. Working for him is the "indispensible woman." Over the years she has become his confidant, his right arm, and constant companion.

They drive each other to work every morning, work together all day, and sometimes they work together at night. At least four days a week she ends up at our house for "a drink" or dinner. He can't make a decision without her. He has let me know that her child-rearing and homemaking abilities, as well as her astuteness in business, are superior to mine. Her marriage is not a happy one and, according to my husband, this is why she gives so much of herself to her job.

The breaking point came when I discovered he has been confiding our family problems to her. I feel threatened by this woman and am afraid she is destroying my marriage. When I expressed these fears to my husband he could say nothing to me that might be interpreted as supportive or reassuring. I have lost confidence in my ability to think straight. What should I do?—The Other Wife

Dear Wife: The decision you must make is this: Do you want to remain married to a man knowing that another woman has edged you out of the position that rightfully belongs to a wife? Some wives would rather play second fiddle than drop out of the orchestra. I suggest you weigh the pros and cons and make your decision according to what is best for you and your children. A great deal depends on your age, the quality and intensity of your emotional investment and the chances for another life elsewhere.

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to Old Salt in Key West implied that only the super-rich own yachts. If you will look up the definition of 'Yacht' you will find it described as "a vessel employing either sail or power, used for pleasure or sport—varying from less than 20 feet to more than 100 feet in length. . . ." This makes my 12-year-old son a yacht owner. He has a ten foot dinghy with an outboard motor.

I don't want this kid of mine to grow up thinking he is super-rich. Please give yourself twenty inches with an old bow line or there will be no living with him. Thanks, Ann.—No Millionaires In Our Family

Dear No: Sorry I gave the wrong impression. Bring on the bow line, Buster. I'll die a few cheesecakes in the hawser for good measure.

Police Search In Dense Fog

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Dense fog "in which you can hardly see 10 feet ahead of you" covered the Hamilton area this morning as police continued a search for William Holden, 19, charged in a warrant with two counts of non-capital murder.

A police spokesman said the fog hampered the hunt for a black and green 1967 Ford car. Licence number 264-998, stolen from the Burlington home of Severin DiCosca after his wife and child were slain early Saturday.

Police Tuesday began a systematic search of north Burlington for the stolen car.

"We're going to search the whole north end of town," said Insp. William Smith of Burlington police. He said all main roads and side roads north of Highway 5 will be checked.

Six men in three cruisers patrolled the area, part of a province-wide search for a man wanted in connection with the raping and strangling of Mrs. Valeria Dicosca, 19, and the beating death of her baby son Rocco.

Police Chief Ken Skerrett said the search for the suspect, who is believed to have escaped recently in the Bronte Creek area, will extend to the creek, about five miles north of Lake Ontario, and the Mount Nemo conservation area.

The creek winds its way through Burlington to Bronte on the lakefront.

Surveillance of Rattlesnake Point in the north Burlington area will continue also. Thirty police, using a spotter plane and a tracker dog, made a vain search Monday after householder George Newell reported someone had stolen food from his house on No. 10 Sideroad. A police team took nine sets of fingerprints from the Newell home Monday but none belonged to the suspect.

About 40 Grade 8 pupils from Pinehurst public school were to take a dog-hong hike along the Bruce Trail in the area today but it was cancelled on police advice.

"We were informed yesterday that no children were to be allowed on the trail," Pinehurst school vice-principal Richard Andrews said.

The rugged countryside is heavily wooded in spots, with dense undergrowth. There are also caves in which a man could hide.

Police received several calls from worried north Burlington residents reporting prowlers but found nobody.

Mrs. Dicosca's husband was shot in the face when he surprised an intruder in the bedroom of his home where his wife's lay strangled, a rope around her neck and his 10-month-old son dying from a head wound.

Mr. Newell, 54, had returned home for lunch from work Monday when he heard footsteps in the kitchen. His wife was not working at the job in Milton.

"They'd have a hard time catching the man," he said. "He could hide up in the equipment for a week."

Local Hunters Bag Geese

McGovern for Environment Spending

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Senator George McGovern said Tuesday night more federal money should be devoted to environmental programs so that the beauty of Niagara Falls and other scenic treasures can be preserved.

He said that if military spending in Vietnam was stopped, more money could be allocated to cleaning up rivers, lakes and streams.

McGovern said he hoped to take a look at the falls today, before beginning a round of campaigning in nearby Buffalo.

Integration of Retarded Said Best of Answers

MONTREAL (CP) — Delegates from 47 countries wind up four days of business sessions tonight on measures they hope will help integrate the lot of mentally retarded persons around the world.

More than 400 delegates to the International Congress on Mental Retardation debated such topics as "special facilities versus community participation" through sessions on education, legal rights, residential schools and recreational and sports activities.

During Tuesday's sessions, journalist Ann Shearer of London said that an integrated pattern of services allows mentally retarded persons to take part in normal activities and that the rest of the population can gain by meeting them.

"Integration of all social services to mentally handicapped people is the only logical way if we mean to offer them as normal a life as possible," she said.

The consensus throughout the four-day congress was that the mentally retarded should be included in community activities to the fullest extent of their abilities, but that special facilities, such as special classes, should be available to help them to learn to cope and for the most severely handicapped.

Tuesday's session also dealt with the legal rights of the handicapped, with several speakers indicating that better legal protection for the mentally retarded is needed in most countries.

A major aim of the conference has been to develop a plan of action for all countries to try to adopt the declaration of rights for the mentally retarded, passed last December by the United Nations.

The declaration called for all mentally retarded persons to be granted their full rights as citizens, rather than being treated as "perpetual children" or "holy innocents," as speakers at the congress said is a prevailing attitude.

Today's session will deal with ways to bring about attitude change among the general public so that the mentally retarded need not be treated as "social lepers in the community."

Supreme Court to Study When Nudity Offensive

OTTAWA (CP) — What is nudity and is it offensive?

The Supreme Court of Canada decided Tuesday to look into those two points of law, its decision might mean the downfall of G-strings and pasties across the country.

The issue was brought before the court when a lawyer for Kelly Johnson, a Calgary stripper, asked the court for leave to appeal the woman's conviction last December for an immoral nightclub performance.

The Alberta Court of Appeal has upheld the conviction, ruling that total public nudity was, by its very nature, an "immoral, indecent or obscene performance."

In granting leave for the Supreme Court appeal, Mr. Justice Ronald Martland said the court will decide whether "nudity in a public place without lawful excuse is a breach of moral standards in Canada."

Under the Criminal Code "a person is nude who is so clad as to offend against public decency or order."

The judges now must decide whether public standards are basically unchanged since nudity was first outlawed in 1931.

If the decision rules that total nudity is within the bounds of public decency, it will mean some security for the numerous strip clubs now operating in uncertain legality.

In Danger

BOSTON (AP) — Evidence reported Tuesday suggests that anesthesia may interfere with some natural defence mechanisms, possibly making patients more susceptible to infection and the spread of some cancer cells. The study from the National Institute of Health provides additional evidence to other research which has suggested anesthesia's interference with the body's natural immune system, says Dr. Bruce F. Cullen of the University of Washington.

FOR THANKSGIVING — TURKEY OR PORK

Turkey is traditionally, first choice for Thanksgiving in most homes, but there's much to be said for pork as a delicious change.

There's something full-like and nostalgic about the smell of roasting stuffed pork — and most modern vegetables and fruits are equally at home with it or turkey.

Plan an old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner, whether you spend the weekend at home or at your cottage. Recipes in my bulletin this week at your Miracle Food Mart Information Desk will be sure to fit into one of the meals you plan for the holiday.

Tigers Clinch Flag

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Today's most pressing baseball puzzle is not which team will win the American League's East Division race but whether Tiger Stadium can survive a possible victory party by Detroit against Oakland Athletics.

When last Tigers clinched the pennant Tuesday night, 3-1 over Boston Red Sox, it set off a chaotic scene in the stands. Fans spilled all over the field, tearing up the bases and turf and crashing the jubilant players.

Detroit finally ended the month-long tug-of-war that started with four teams dwindled to three and finally two. And old pro Al Kaline was the hero.

The 38-year veteran drove in the deciding run with a two-out, ninth-inning single and then scored on a bizarre throw by Carl Yastrzemski's error.

Elsewhere Tuesday night, West Division champion Oakland Athletics lost to California Angels 3-2, Texas Rangers shut out Kansas City Royals 3-0, Milwaukee Braves hammered New York Yankees 9-2, Chicago White Sox edged Minnesota Twins 5-4 and Cleveland split a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles, the Indians winning 6-5 before losing 4-3.

Firecrackers exploded as Kaline squeezed his ball for the out that made the Tigers East champions. The fans stormed over the field, celebrating wildly. When they left, Tiger Stadium was a mess with patches of grass gone and about 50 broken chairs littered the field.

Kaline was the man most responsible for the surge to the division pennant. His seventeenth-inning single gave the 37-year-old veteran 22 hits in his last 22 at bats.

Blass Pirates' Playoff Pick

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"No pain at all. I'm ready," says Steve Blass, indicating his willingness to start the National League playoffs Wednesday against Cincinnati Reds.

Pittsburgh's bread-and-butter pitcher, struck in the elbow by a line drive last Sunday, tested the arm in a short relief appearance Tuesday night as the Pirates defeated St. Louis Cardinals 6-2.

"The main thing was that the arm felt good and there was no pain," said Blass after giving up a run and walking three batters in two innings.

The performance was good enough for manager Bill Virdon who confirmed Blass' nomination as the Pittsburgh starter in playoff Game No. 1.

The Reds tuned up for the playoffs by trimming Houston Astros 6-1. In other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies clouted Chicago Cubs 11-4, Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Atlanta Braves 6-5, New York Mets won a doubleheader from the Montreal Expos 5-2 and 4-3 in 12 innings and San Francisco Giants turned back San Diego Padres 7-4.

Bob Moose, another likely starter in one of the playoff games, pitched the first five innings for Pittsburgh Tuesday night and allowed just one hit as the Pirates took a 6-0 lead.

Blass then came on and retired the side in order in the sixth before giving up a single and three straight walks in the seventh.

Al Oliver and Richie Hebner each drove in two runs to supply most of the offensive power as the Pirates teed off on Al Santorini.

Cesar Geronimo and Joe Morgan knocked in two runs apiece to lead Cincinnati over Houston.

Gary Nolan, who missed several games recently because of a bad tooth and pulled muscle inside his first star since Sept. 7 in a tuneup for the playoffs.

"I was extremely pleased with my performance," said Nolan, who won his 15th game in 20 decisions.

Steve Carlton notched his 27th victory and Don Money and Greg Luzinski each slugged two home runs to lead Philadelphia over Chicago. Carlton, who has lost 19 games, yielded nine hits and struck out seven to bring his league-leading strikeout total to 310.

Carlton's 27 victories tied Sandy Koufax's modern National League record for a left-hander.

Bill Buckner laced three hits, scored three times and drove in two runs in Los Angeles' triumph over Atlanta. Tom Seaver got his 21st game as New York beat Montreal in the first game and the Mets took the nightcap on Ken Boswell's RBI single in the 12th.

Baseball Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos' management rewarded right-hander Bill Stoneman Tuesday for his second National League no-hitter with a bonus of $2,000. The no-hitter, achieved in the opening game of Monday nights doubleheader against the Mets, was the first in Jarry Park and the first ever pitched in the major leagues outside the United States.

PITTSBURGH (CP) — The 1972 Pittsburgh Pirates are the first team in major league baseball history to have nine players collect more than 100 hits each in a single season, the National League's official statisticians report. The players are Gene Clines, Rennie Stennett, Dave Cash, Roberto Clemente, Richie Hebner, Willie Stargell, Manny Sanguillen, Al Oliver and Vic Davalillo, in 1930, St. Louis Cardinals had eight players with more than 100 hits.

Team Canada Series Nets CAHA $100,000

CALGARY (CP) — More international hockey series like that between Canada and Russia will undoubtedly be played, says president Joe Kryczka of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

"It's inevitable. The public will demand them.

"The sad part is I don't think the public cares how or under whose auspices. They won't be worrying about where the money goes."

The CAHA, which helped arrange the series, would like to see any profit from the games used to develop the sport.

The association is to receive $100,000 from the recent series after expenses with the remainder divided between the National Hockey League, the Players' Association and Hockey Canada.

The form that future confrontations will take might come into focus as soon as Oct. 14-15 when the CAHA meets in Toronto, Kryczka said. Discussions would be held then among the CAHA, Hockey Canada, the NHL and the Players' Association.

"Don't be surprised if Hockey Canada is the original form it dissolved right then.

"I understand government officials are having second thoughts about it. The CAHA has regarded it as a somewhat unnecessary concept and has made it clear it is willing to accept the responsibility of working toward its aims."

The rumored visit of a Russian team to New York, Boston and Chicago in February is another area for discussion, Kryczka said in an interview Monday, but the U.S. amateur body would have to handle talks with U.S.-based teams.

The amateur organizations are not aiming to cut the professionals out of the action, he said.

"They own the best-Canadian players and merit a piece of the cake. Our concern is that they don't overdo the picture and arrange their own international pro regime.

"That would be a disaster, particularly in Europe, because it wouldn't take the pros nearly so long to dilute the calibre of hockey over there.

"Of course, we haven't been doing all the spade work with view toward lining the pockets of the pro team owners."

Kryczka said the team owners are probably looking now to ease the amateurs out but that it will not be simple because of good amateur relations with the pros.

Bruins Wooing Sinden

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins are negotiating to rehire Harry Sinden, the coach who led the National Hockey League team to the Stanley Cup championship in 1970.

A Bruins spokesman said he was "100-per-cent sure" that Sinden will return. It would be in a capacity other than coach.

Tom Johnston, government officials are having second thoughts about it. The CAHA has regarded it as a somewhat unnecessary concept and has made it clear it is willing to accept the responsibility of working toward its aims."

The rumored visit of a Russian team to New York, Boston and Chicago in February is another area for discussion, Kryczka said in an interview Monday, but the U.S. amateur body would have to handle talks with U.S.-based teams.

The amateur organizations are not aiming to cut the pro-

Sinden will be signed to a contract that currently is under contract for another year.

Shape Power

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada must change the approach to training programs to compete successfully in international competition, says a dean of University of Ottawa physical fitness experts.

Assistant Prof. Maurice Jette, head of a six-man research team on hockey in Canada, told a news conference Tuesday the record Canada-Russia series has proven "beyond a doubt" that the coaching of National Hockey League players is far from satisfactory.

Argonauts Down, But Cahill and Theismann Keep Fighting

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts may be down but their coach and quarterback are determined to keep fighting "as long as there is still hope of salvaging something from a disastrous Canadian Football League season.

Head coach Leo Cahill, while trying to keep the club in contention for an Eastern Conference playoff berth, has the added distraction of fighting off rumors he will lose his job at the end of the season.

Quarterback Joe Theismann, who had little trouble inspiring his team-mates, or the club directors, still has ankle problems.

The former Notre Dame University star fractured his right ankle in the first game of the season and Argos have managed only one win in 10 starts. Theismann was back in uniform for the last loss, a 31-30 squeaker to Edmonton Eskimos last Saturday.

He went into the game in the second quarter, replacing Wally Gabler, and the immediate effect on the team was remarkable, as Theismann directed them to two quick touchdowns.

"All I know is that I want to win more than anything else and maybe the guys sense that," said Theismann, when asked to explain his influence on the Argos.

"I felt good against Edmonton and I thought we could walk all over them. I went into the huddle the first time and told the guys: 'My life is in your hands.'

"Funny thing, they gave me all the protection I needed and then some."

But when Theismann took off with the ball himself in the third quarter, his ankle was re-injured when he was tackled near the sidelines.

"The play I was hurt, I should have gone out of bounds but my instinct got the better of me, and I turned up to get another couple of yards."

The injury turned out to be a minor sprain in the right ankle and Theismann said he was determined to be back in action here Sunday against Montreal Alouettes.

Another loss Sunday, would mean the Als would clinch the third and final playoff berth over the Argos.

Meanwhile, Cahill says he is becoming annoyed by reports that club directors have already decided he is to be replaced at the end of the season. He said only club owner John Bassett, chairman of the board of directors, can make such a decision.

"I have been told by Mr. Bassett on two different occasions that as long as he owned the football team I would be here," said Cahill.

Fans Honor Filion

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Harness driver Herve Filion, one of the world's richest athletes, will be honored in a special ceremony at Garden City Raceway Sunday night.

Filion, who has averaged one trotter or pacer every four hours, will steer 12 half-dozen racers on Sunday's 18-race program.

In announcing the special ceremony for Filion, John J. Mooney, president of the Ontario Jockey Club, said:

"Mr. Filion's tireless efforts to dominate the world's harness drivers during the past five years has helped focus the attention of the entire North American sports fraternity and writers and broadcasters, on harness racing.

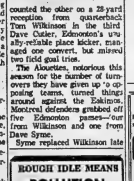
"His numerous, record-breaking feats on the race track and personal contributions in driving at smaller tracks to help promote the sport, is deserving of recognition and acclaim by all segments of the harness racing industry."

Filion, 35-year-old native of Angers, Que., won his first race at the age of 13 at Rigaud, Que. Since then he has driven 3,881 winners, more than any other driver in the history of the sport. His efforts have netted race purses totalling $9,438,251.

Als Closer to Playoffs

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Etcheverry insists it's still too early to start talking about Montreal Alouettes repeating their 1970 performance and winding up with the Grey Cup.

But Edmonton coach Ray Jauch appears to have another problem today other than reaching the national final. He must be wondering where he'll find enough able bodies to finish out the Western Football Conference season opener.



Etcheverry's club took a positive step in the direction of the Eastern Football Conference playoffs Tuesday night when the Als literally walloped Jauch's injury-plagued Eskimos 39-13 in a rough Canadian Football League barnburning game before 11,718 fans.

Moses Denson led the Montreal attack as he bulled over from the one-yard line in the first quarter and then broke a series of tackles to score his second touchdown of the game—27 yards up the sideline—in the final quarter.

Dave Brown, Denson's running mate in the Montreal backfield most of the night, ran over from the three-yard line early in the opening quarter, while split end John Eagan grabbed a 47-yard pass from Sonny Wade in the first half for the fourth Montreal major.

Edmonton quarterback Sam Scarber scored the Eskimos' first touchdown on a one-yard run at 1:09 of the second quarter, while tight end Tyrone Walls in the fourth quarter when the latter suffered a bruised ankle. Wilkinson stumbled over a water pipe at the edge of the field after being run out of bounds on a play.

Scarber, fresh from the 33-day injury list, re-damaged his right shoulder, while centre Chip Kell suffered an injury to his right knee during the first half. Kell was taken to hospital by ambulance following the game, but was expected to be released in time to return with the team to Edmonton this morning. To add to Jauch's worries, backup fullback Bob MacGregor suffered a broken collarbone.

Lions Make Prophet of Spavital

Spavital proved himself a prophet, much to his regret, as the Lions got a field goal from Ted Gerela with 31 seconds remaining for a 26-24 victory over the Bombers before 20,315 fans.

A bomber win would have been undeserved as they were outplayed by the Lions, except in the second quarter, with Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas and running back Mack Herron both having off nights.

Jonas clicked for three touchdown passes in the second quarter, two of them to Bob Larose and the other to Jim Thorpe, but was hurt by interception. Jonas also kicked a field goal and three converts.

The Lions picked off four of his passes and added another interception on a toss by Larose.

The Lions got two touchdowns from Jim Evenson on short-yardage running plays, another on a past from quarterback Don Moorhead to Jim Young, two field goals from Gerela and a pair of converts by the B.C. kicker.

The Lions showed signs of being tamed in the second quarter but a key defensive change by coach Eagle Keys at half time seemed to baffle the Bombers.

"We switched to zone coverage on passes in the second half and it was highly effective," Keys said.

"We've been improving all the time and it was just a matter of time until we won one. We've played some good ball lately and most of our games could have gone either way."

The Lions now are 3-8 on the season, the exact reverse of the Bombers. Winnipeg holds down first place in the West by a one-game margin over Edmonton Eskimos. The Klans are last, one game behind Calgary Stampeders.

Moorhead, who was good on 15 of 26 passes, made the key play leading to Gerela's winning field goal.

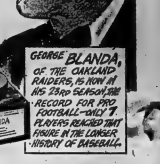
With the ball on the B.C. 14, he fired a 15-yard strike to Young which brought the play into the Winnipeg end of the field.

Young said he "ran a fly pattern and Donny laid it right in there."

Moorhead then went back to his running game, utilizing Evenson, Monroe Eley and Johnny Musso to bring the ball down to the Winnipeg 11, making Gerela's field goal almost a sure thing.

The Lions won the battle in the trenches, consistently dominating the Winnipeg defensive front four when B.C. had the ball and shutting down the Winnipeg running attack while on defence.

Herron, who personally destroyed the Lions in earlier 39-7 and 42-7 wins by the Bombers, was held to only 74 yards rushing on 13 carries, with his longest gain only nine yards.



Meanwhile, the Lions charged 141 yards in total offence. 234 on Moorhead's passes.

Moorhead, who has been plagued by interceptions in earlier games, had only two passes picked off, neither of them crucial, although one interception, at the Winnipeg goal-line, snuffed out a B.C. drive.

"We showed a big improvement, especially defensively," Keys said.

"I was really happy with our play, especially Ray Nobles at middle linebacker, Our line also put good pressure on Jonas."

Herron Still Tops

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dave Cutler managed only one convert in Edmonton's 30-26 loss to Montreal Alouettes Tuesday night but it moved the Eskimo placekicker to within three points of the Western Football Conference scoring lead.

Cutler now has 81 points compared to 84 for Winnipeg's Mack Herron, held scoreless for the second time this season by the Blue Bombers' 26-24 loss to British Columbia Lions.

Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas, the defending champion, up six points to boost his third-place total to 75.

Desjardins' Sweater Retired

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes officially retired sweater No. 63 Tuesday night and honored its long-time wearer, lineman Pierre Desjardins.

Desjardins received gifts that included a trip to Jamaica, two oil paintings, a television set. An $8,000 scholarship fund is being set up in his name.

And, to top it all, the Alouettes came through in fine style as they defeated Edmonton Eskimos 39-13 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Desjardins, a member of the Alouettes for almost a decade, had been sidelined almost continuously since the club won the Grey Cup in 1970 because of repeated knee injuries and operations.

Only defensive halfback Larry Fairbairn remains with the club from the group that was here when Desjarons joined the team.

O'Brien Hurt In Big Spill

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Joe O'Brien, a member of the Harness Racing Hall of Fame, suffered a fractured collar bone and five broken ribs Tuesday in a five-horse spill at the Lexington Red Mile.

O'Brien, 55, a native of Alberton, P.E.I., was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington after the mishap.

Another driver, Dave McClain of Lima, Ohio, was treated and released. The other three drivers and the five horses were not injured. The pile-up occurred during the fifth race.

Quinte Saints Find Strength in Numbers

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

For Rick Locke, coach of the defending Central Ontario Secondary School Athletic Association senior football champions, there can be more important numbers than appear on the scoreboard.

Tuesday, for instance, while his Quinte Saints were running up an impressive 42-7 total over BCI, Locke explained that part of the reason for his team's success — they've been Bay of Quinte district champions the past three years — is that they find strength in numbers.

"Look at this game — we've got 35 players — 15 back from last year — and they only had about 26. Besides, our kids are in pretty fair condition — we really stress that," noted Locke.

"And numbers and conditioning are a tough combination to beat."

The fact the Saints have lost only one regular season game in four years, including their 2-0 record so far this fall, would seem to indicate that Quinte coaching is also pretty tough to beat.

But Locke is quick to give credit to his players when it is due.

In Tuesday's romp over BCI, for example, it appeared the entire Quinte strategy was built around quarterback Rick Meagher using first - year flanker John Masterson as a primary receiver.

"Well, Rick is calling all the plays now — really for the first time in a couple of years," noted Locke. "Before, they'd been called from the bench — that's the way he wanted it."

Meagher started the potent Quinte offence by finding Masterson on two passed for a touchdown on Quinte's first offensive series.

The game ended on a similar note, with Masterson running in a 15-yard toss.

In between, Meagher engineered a 35-yard scoring screen pass to Stan Brooks, hit Steve McDowell for a 20-yard touchdown, scored himself on an end - around keeper, and booted a field goal and three converts.

Charlie Geen's converted 40-yd. run play accounted for the only BCI points early in the first quarter, but the 9-7 deficit was the smallest they faced in the game.

Minutes after Geen narrowed the Quinte lead, George Rymers intercepted a LeBaron aerial at his own 45-yard line and raf it all the way to give the Saints a 13-7 edge and start their momentum rolling.

Locke had plenty of praise for the entire defensive unit, many of whom he said were "just learning their positions."

"Everybody watches the guy with the ball, but those are the people who can win for you."

The Quinte coach was similarly aware of the offensive line's contributions.

"There was tremendous pass blocking for Rick," he noted. "Guys like Greg Wilde, Mike McKenna, and John Cody were giving great protection. I don't think Meagher was hit all day."

Meanwhile, Mike Taylor did all the damage as Quinte's junior Saints evened their season's record at 1-1 with a 14-6 comeback win over BCI.

With the Collegians holding a 6-0 lead in the last minute of the first half, Taylor scooped up a BCI fumble near his own goal line and ran over 100 yards to tie the score.

Quarterback Steve Hale engineered a Quinte second-half drive that Taylor capped by bulling his way over for the go-ahead touchdown.

'But That Was Mine!'

Quinte defender Dave Begley leaps in front of intended BCI receiver Charlie Geen to pick off one of four interceptions the senior Saints made in running up a 42-7 Bay of Quinte conference win Tuesday. Quinte, who have now won their first two starts, are gunning for a fourth straight district title.

Costly Miss

Quinte flanker John Masterson eludes this BCI tackler en route to his second touchdown of the game that gave the Saints a 42-7 Bay of Quinte conference senior football win. Masterson was a prime target for Quinte quarterback Rick Meagher as the defending OCSSAA champions won their second straight game of the season.

Earlylakes John Tackles Tough Field

KINGSTON — Earlylakes John returns to Frontenac Downs Wednesday night and as always he will be tackled with some tough opposition.

John, the former track record - holder at the Downs, will find plenty of problems with the rest of the six-horse field race secretary Bob Morgan has scheduled to go in the ninth race on the 10-race card.

Of the six horses, three are coming off winning performances and when a horse is hot he often rises to the occasion to perform better than average.

Juna Gay Lass, Ruth's Daisy, and Dandy Duke all have recent preferred wins to their credit and could make things rough on the senior citizen.

The field is rounded out by pacesetter Glory Patch and Resin Bow.

Post time is 7:45 for the Wednesday Night Ladies Day, which allows all women to be admitted for free.

Once again the parking fee for the Downs' parking lot has been dropped.

Bye Bye Gone

Driven by Harold McKinley of Norval, Ont., Lynden Bye Bye was clocked at 1:58.1. The pacer was the upset winner, of the Grand Circuit pace at Greenwood raceway in Toronto last summer.

Harris Earns Big Billing

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

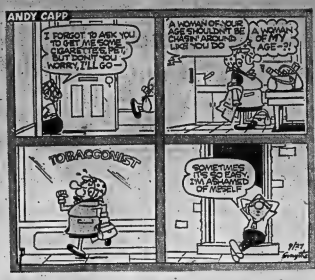
Phil Goyette said even before New York Islanders began their first training camp he was looking for big things from Billy Harris.

BILLY HARRIS

The Islanders, making their debut along with Atlanta Flames in the National Hockey League this year, chose Harris as their No. 1 junior draft.

Harris hasn't disappointed coach Goyette's early appraisal and Tuesday night scored the winner with less than three minutes remaining as the Islanders edged Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2 a Uniondale, N.Y. Elsewhere, Richmond Robins of the American Hockey League burned on their parent club, the NHL Philadelphia Flyers, by a 5-2 score while California Golden Seals rocked Phoenix of the Western League 6-1.

In the Nassau County rink, home of the Islanders, Harris beat Pittsburgh goaltender Jim Rutherford at 17:51 of the third period to finally subdue the Penguins.



Jim Mair and Andre Gagnon scored goals for the New Yorkers who came from a 1-0 deficit on Al McDonough's first-period score. After a scoreless second period, Bryan Hextall knotted the game at 2-2.

The Penguins move into Pittsburgh's Civic Center tonight for their first ever one-season clash on home ice, against Chicago Black Hawks, to complete their exhibition schedule. Tuesday's game marked the last of the Islanders' exhibition games.

The Seals, trailing 1-0, scored four goals in the second period to rout the Western League Roadrunners.

McNamara New Scout

TORONTO (CP) — Former goaltender Gerry McNamara was named Tuesday a full-time scout for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. McNamara, who played mostly minor pro in the Toronto organization, left his job as a salesman to accept the appointment, replacing George Armstrong who now coaches Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Ricketts Gets One Reply

In other league action, Detroit Junior Red Wings fired three goals in the space of a minute to gain a 5-3 come-from-behind victory over the visiting Windsor Spitfires.

Guelph's victory gave the teams a one-point margin over second-place Welland.

Tim Holder led the Biltmores with two goals. Single markers went to Bruce Boyd, Doug Riseborough, Dennis Neilly and Mike Zettle.

Andy Ricketts, Nick Favot, Jim Tunney and Jim McCave replied for the Sabres.

Sharks Swing With Oilers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles Sharks and Alberta Oilers made Team Canada's physical efforts against the Russians, Swedes and Czechoslovakians seem tame by comparison when their World Hockey Association game at Edmonton ended Tuesday night.

The grace-ending banner was the signal for Oilers' Doug Barrie and Howie Hoggenbeck of Los Angeles to start throwing punches. Both benches emptied and 1,200 fans witnessed a Pier Six brawl.

The donnybrook climaxed an already rugged game won by Los Angeles 4-3 on defenceman Jim Niekamp's second-period goal.

In other WHA pre-season action, Philadelphia's John McKenzie was taken to hospital after he slammed into a goal post and the Blazers' coach wasn't around to see Quebec Les Nordiques' 6-4 win.

Minnesota's prize rookie Bob MacMillan scored twice in front of 1,700 at Winnipeg to pace the Fighting Saints to a 5-3 win over the Jets, still without player-coach Bobby Hull who is awaiting a decision by U.S. courts on his playing status.

Earl Heiskala, J. P. Leblanc and Pete Sieker scored for Los Angeles at Edmonton while 56 penalty minutes were handed out in the first period and 46 more in the second. The third period was relatively quiet with only five minor penalties before the game ended.

No additional penalties were announced after the main event. Ed Joyal, Ron Anderson and Dennis Kassian scored for Alberta.

At Quebec, Yvo Bergeron's two goals led Les Nordiques before 6,100 fans. The Quebec club dominated play, outshooting the Blazers 39-20, and got additional goals from J. C. Tremblay, Pierre Guite, Alain Caron and Ronald Leclerc.

Danny Lawson, John Bennett and Brian Campbell replied for Philadelphia.

MacMillan was helped on the scoresheet at Winnipeg by George Morrison, George Konik and Fred Speck.

London Breaks Ice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Knights and Sudbury Wolves picked up their first victories of the young season Tuesday night in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Dennis Ververgaert scored five goals to lead London to a home-ice 7-4 win over Kitchener Rangers while Sudbury downed Hamilton Red Wings 5-2.

Paul Nicholson and Lou Nistic scored first-period goals for London before 2,342 fans. Ververgaert took over with four goals in the second period and one in the third and now has six goals in two games this season.

9 Habs Fined

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens has fined nine members of the National Hockey League club for breaking curfew. Bowman would not reveal the names of the players nor the amounts of the fines. "Let's just say it's part of a new policy I have for this year." Bowman also said Dave Gardner, John Van Boxmeer, Randy Rota and Bob Murray have been sent to Nova Scotia Voyageurs.

On Way South

WINDSOR (CP) — If monarch butterflies are your best pals the place to go this weekend is Point Pelee National Park, 20 miles southwest of here. This past weekend, they were clustering over the trees," says Frank Camp, new superintendent at the park. The orange-and-black butterflies congregate in the park before crossing Lake Erie in a migration trail which will end in northern California.

Dance Program

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Dance Theatre will premiere six new works in its fall season. Three of the works will be scored by Milton Barnes, conductor of the Toronto Repertory Orchestra. The 11-member performing company also will participate in the teaching of more than 60 permanent students of contemporary dance as well as 300 casual students.

Concorde Deal With Russia Could Open Door to SST

TORONTO (CP) — The key to Britain's gamble with the supersonic Concorde could be the Soviet Union, says David Nicholson, chairman of the British Airways Group.

The Russians have their own SST and want to introduce it to service in early 1975, about the same time as the British-French Concorde, he said in an interview.

If current conversations with the Soviets, Air France and Britain result in a pool agreement on trans-Siberian routes then "we've broken the back of supersonic travel."

Mr. Nicholson said the pool agreement would open up travel between London, Paris, Moscow and Tokyo.

"Then I believe the Japanese will want to join in. And if they get the Concorde they will want to use it in the Pacific. And hopefully we would go on west to New York."

Mr. Nicholson said it is possible to envisage a trunk route extending around two-thirds of the world, knocking on both sides of North America."

His guess is that this will force the United States to enter the supersonic era. Since it would probably take five or six years to produce their own SST, Americans would have to depend on the Concorde.

Until the imponderables are sorted out, it will continue to be difficult to forecast the future of Concorde operations, he said. The airlines still do not know what countries they will be allowed to fly over, where they'll be able to land or what other nations might come up with supersonic planes.

The Concorde will not be a low-fare plane. Its success will depend on flights with a high proportion of high-yield traffic. For the moment, this rules out Canada in future Concorde plans.

British Airways Group, which brings the operations of British Overseas Airways Corp., British European Airways and associated companies under one management, sees the Concorde as a pioneering job that will have benefits in the long term.

Mr. Nicholson said it will cut travelling time for international businessmen in half.

"We expect to get 90 per cent of our first-class passengers switching over to supersonics as well as attracting first-class passengers from other airlines that do not have the planes."

On competition from low-fare charter operations, the British Airways chairman said there is every reason to hope for agreement between Canada, Britain and the U.S. for a part-charter system that will allow major airlines to take charter groups on normal scheduled flights.

In that way both the businessman, who wants a choice in bookings on short notice of the right to cancel without losing money, and the cheaper fare passengers could benefit by greater utilization of available seats. The airlines would increase profitability.

Another major problem in the aviation industry has been the cyclical nature of over-capacity. Mr. Nicholson said, BOAC, for example, has been flying the North Atlantic route at 50 per cent capacity—as low as 35 per cent in winter and as high as 80 in summer.

The industry goes through stages when it builds up profitability and performance, gets too optimistic and then enters a period of, over-capacity when performance and profitability decline.

"I would say we've gone through the trough, in 1971, and if the past is anything to go on over-capacity should now level off" for the next five years.

Computer to Dispatch Longshoremen to Work

MONTREAL (CP) — A longshoreman telephoning the offices of the Maritime Employers Association here Sunday evening will begin a unique experiment in ship cargo handling aimed eventually to link the port with those of Quebec City and Trois-Rivieres.

The longshoreman will announce his work number and be assigned for duty Monday on a ship docked somewhere along Montreal's 12 miles of waterfront. The assignment will have been worked out on a computer.

"There's nothing like this system anywhere else in North America and as far as I know in the whole world," said Arnold Masters, president of the MEA. His association groups management of the three ports.

Under the new system the 51 companies using stevedores in the port will place their manpower needs at 4 p.m. for the following day.

When all the data is in, the computer is programmed to determine the freight-handling jobs available and to fill them under the provisions of the collective agreement within five minutes.

The computer will also be used to administer the $45-million annual payroll for the 3,200 longshoremen in the three St. Lawrence River ports.

A similar system, planned for Vancouver, has not yet been put into operation because management and labor cannot agree on how to do so.

Effective Oct. 15, as the result of a recent arbitration decision, the St. Lawrence River longshoremen have a job security provision in their contract guaranteeing them 40 hours of pay or $265 per week.

"In effect, we've created a normal, industrial, personnel-handling situation out of a pool labor force, which is quite a kick," Mr. Masters said.

Until now, there have been 96 different gangs of longshoremen working in the port with some 700 men working in the freight sheds.

No matter how many men were needed for an individual job, each gang foreman brought all his 17 men to work and their job was changed daily. There was no direct contact between the longshoremen and their employer.

Under the new system, every man will be assigned as an individual.

For management there is the advantage that each job will be handled by the exact number of men needed and not by an arbitrary group of 17 men, and with the men staying on one job until it is completed, efficiency should also be increased, Mr. Masters said.

He also noted that with a fairer distribution of work among the men, the working atmosphere should be improved.

The first stage of the program begins with Montreal's 42,500 stevedores.

The computer will be programmed with the longshoremen's special skills, age, weight, height, marital status—"the sort of thing every company here or like about its employees but we've never had before."

By early November, longshoremen in Quebec City and into the system. By the end of the year, other cargo handlers should be included in the system with the changes that flow from it."

The computer is serviced by 35 people and will cost about $300,000 per year to operate.

Capt. Vilis Aaro, general manager operations of Inter-Lake Shipping, said not as confident in the program as Mr. Masters.

He said the program depends on shipping companies knowing their exact labor needs the day before the longshoremen are called, but in his experience the number of men needed to handle cargo was usually not known until the vessel arrived in port.

"I think we can overcome that," Mr. Masters said. "I know the program will work. The big question is how we will cope with the changes that flow from it."

Large Estate

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Herbert Bostow, retired president of the 3M Co., left an estate totalling $11,543,726, it was reported Tuesday by Judge Andrew A. Glenn of Ramsey County probate court. Bostow, who died last Jan. 8 at 73, headed 3M from 1953 until 1963.

Snow Geese Die

MONTMAGNY, Que. (CP) — Biologists fear for migrating snow geese after finding 17 dead birds Tuesday along the shores of this St. Lawrence River community 50 miles northeast of Quebec City. The shoreline is being cleaned of about 55 gallons of fuel oil spilled from a ferry Wednesday. A spokesman for the Canadian Wildlife Service said the birds are part of a resting areas used by the geese here had been polluted.

Turner Says Growth Needed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner told a press conference Tuesday that continued economic growth would help reduce Canada's unemployment problems.

Canada, he said, had the fastest-growing economy in the world, along with the United States and Japan.

"Had we not had an economy that was growing we wouldn't have been able to keep pace," he said.

Mr. Turner said government programs had provided 400,000 new jobs in a six-year period despite a growing labor force that put 1.4 million new people into the labor market.

Mr. Turner flew to Windsor by private aircraft for more campaigning.

Four Arrested

MONTREAL (CP) — Four more persons were arrested Tuesday in connection with the death of Westmount millionaire Daniel Rudberg, stabbed to death on the weekend while trying to apprehend a pursesnatcher.

An unidentified male and three juveniles, one of them a 17 year old girl, are being held on coroner's warrant and are to appear before Coroner Laurin Lapointe when an inquest into the slayings begins Tuesday.

Police also are holding a 17-year-old youth picked up soon after Rudberg's death. Police said the youth was a Baltimore, Md. native.

Coroner Lapointe said the inquest into Rudberg's death is to be held in camera because a detained witness is a minor.

Race Not Over: China

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — China charged Tuesday that the new Soviet-United States arms agreements will not lead to a lessening in international tensions but instead to want "the beginning of a new stage" in the nuclear arms race.

Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua told the General Assembly the agreements, which formally went into force only hours before he spoke, "are being blown up as tremendous achievements on the road to reducing the threat of nuclear war."

But Chiao said the pact between the two "superpowers" will have little meaning for the rest of the world.

"These agreements only slightly relax tension on the question of certain categories of nuclear weapons in the possession of the Soviet Union and the United States, but improve no similarity at all on their quality," Chiao said. "Nor do they mention a single word about the destruction of nuclear weapons.

Clampdown

KITCHENER (CP) — Tough regulations should be introduced to make the non-medical possession of amphetamines (speed) illegal, delegates to the Ontario Health Unit Association voted here Tuesday. The convention also recommended more effective enforcement of existing laws against drug traffickers and called for deeper involvement by health units in alcohol and drug addiction treatment centres.

Belleville Corps Leads Shooters

Belleville sea cadets crushed all opponents recently at a marksmen competition held in Port Colborne by a margin of more than 100 points.

In a confirming series of competitions, Canadian shooters had a marked advantage over the lone United States cadet corps who could not bring their own weapons across the border.

Total of team points for Belleville was 539 against the best corps RSCSS Valiant of Port Colborne, 464. The U. S. team scored 411.

Barry Bevins, commanding officer of the Belleville group said the Buffalo crew was at a distinct disadvantage by not being able to use the guns they are acquainted with and the strange range.

"It might be a totally different picture when we return to the states later in the year," he said.

The Belleville cadets have a long line of merits on the range, highlighted by possession of the Regional Trophy for marksmanship since 1963 for senior ranks.

During last year's training season, 18 Belleville cadets attained marksman status of 90 or better, a record unequalled by any other corps in the province.

Dutch Mill Sold

TRENTON (Staff)— Gordon Shoniker until Oct. 1, the owner of Trenton's Dutch Mill Inn, has announced the sale of his Dundas Street East business.

When Mr. Shoniker purchased the Inn 17 years ago, after operating a restaurant across the street, the business consisted of a two-storey, frame building.

Since then, 50 motel apartments exist, a swimming pool, a lounge and dining room have been added. In fact, Mr. Shoniker says the Dutch Mill Inn was the first such establishment in Trenton to receive a dining lounge liquor licence, in 1965 and had the first live entertainment in the town.

October 1 marked the 25th anniversary of Shoniker's business endeavors in Trenton. However, both the former owner and his wife Elsie, have no wish to go back into the hotel business. They're completely retired, for now, they say, happy to sit back and harvest their 100 apple trees at their spacious home west of Consecon Valley.

At present there are 28 staff members working in the Dutch Mill Inn motel complex.

City Kiwanians Induct Officers

Local insurance representative Clarence Fuzzen was inducted as president of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville at its regular meeting held Tuesday. Lieut.-Governor Jack Wilson of Trenton inducted club officer for the new Kiwanis year.

Other club officers are Gerald A. Brennan, past president; Dr. E. L. Dixon and Armin Quickert are vice-presidents with Lawrence A. Kelly, secretary and Roy Dulmage, treasurer.

Directors include Friedrich Bellstedt, Richard Lumbers, Ralph Morton, Fred Nelles, Albert Van Reewyk, Murray Coles and Charles Cooke.

Lieut.- Governor Wilson expressed his appreciation to club officers, directors and committee members for their efforts during the past year and asked for similar support during his term of office.

"No one would join a Kiwanis Club unless he were willing to serve his club and community," he said.

Past president Gerry Brennan thanked club members for their assistance during the year, while president - elect Clarence Fuzzen advised members that club committees would be changed somewhat and that new projects would be introduced.

Interclub members from Trenton accompanied the Lieut-Governor to the meeting.

Profit $1,365 In Peanut Drive

Rotarians raised a gross total of $2,702 in a door-to-door peanut sale.

Net profits totalled $1,365, the largest sum ever raised through this annual fundraising project.

50-pound Haul Leads to Arrests

Royal Canadian Mounted Police seized more than 50 pounds of marijuana — worth about $15,000 on the street — in a raid on a Highway 2 residence Monday night.

Four residents of the house, located half - way between Belleville and Trenton, have been charged under the Narcotics Control Act.

Steven George Watson, 22, is being held in Cobourg Jail on $500 bail. He was picked up there Monday and charged with possession for the purpose of trafficking.

Another resident, Bruce Michael Green, 22 faces the same charge. He was also charged with possession of one gram of hashish.

Sharon M. Poitas, 24 and Keith Harold Jewell, 19, were both charged with possession. Miss Poitas, police allege, had about a quarter ounce in her possession. Jewell was charged for possession of three ounces of marijuana.

Green, Miss Poitas and Jewell are being held under parental authority.

Watson, originally from Quebec, will appear in Cobourg provincial court Thursday to set a trial date.

RCMP Corporal Sam Pittman, who led the raid, said the marijuana was contained in 25 two pound (kilo) bags.

Dentists Seek Control Of Work of Denturists

The Ontario Legislature has given first reading to Bill 203 which will permit denturists to deal directly with the public, but members of the Ontario Dental Association are still hoping for an amendment which they say would guarantee oral health.

The amendment being sought would call for dental mechanics to work only under the direct supervision of dentists.

Without such supervision, dentists assert, there could be a serious threat to the oral health of an unsuspecting public such as occurred in Germany where dental mechanics were first allowed independent operation.

Today in Germany, as well as in the United States, Japan and England, and many other countries, dental mechanics are not permitted to deal directly with the public. The same is true in at least two Canadian provinces, says a dentist's spokesman.

The proposed Dental Technologists Act, if passed in its present form, would permit the licensing of "denturists" and would allow them to deal directly with the public— a role for which dentists claim they are unqualified.

Supporting this claim, dentists charge that the denturists' brief to the Ontario Department of Health in February 1971 disclosed not a shred of evidence of training in "in the mouth" procedures.

"Their seminars, study groups, lectures . . . have been devoted solely to technical procedures . . . but do not provide in any way the experience necessary to do oral procedures or to prepare anyone for the responsibilities of complete dental treatment," says a brochure prepared in September this year by the Ontario Dental Association.

A government - appointed task force earlier this year recommended that "no dental auxiliary personnel be permitted to work directly with the public except under direct supervision of a dentist".

This report was the fifth consecutive government-directed study in Canada to conclude that workmen who fabricate dentures should not be allowed to substitute for dentists in the field of prosthetic dentistry.

Despite the concerns, however, the Ontario government introduced Bill 203 which would permit members of the Denturist Society to operate independently.

Dentists claim that there are no qualifications or evidence of training required for membership in the Denturists Society — merely payment of a fee and a background of what they call doing "bootleg" dentistry.

Dentists agree that dental technicians perform a significant role when they are functioning as members of the dental team.

But they are extremely critical of what they term the "grandfather" clause in Bill 203 which would allow licensing of denturists simply by virtue of having previously been conducting an illegal trade.

Denturists claim they provide denture service at lower costs than at dental offices.

But dentists say this claim is open to question as lower-cost dentures are available in many dental offices at approximately the same fee as prices charged by denturists.

The average fee for dentures from dental offices is given as $245 while denturists advertise dentures for $150.

But, dentists claim, this advertised figure of $150 is a minimum with the actual cost in many cases being much more.

Also, dental offices are said to be constructing dentures for as little as $125 for people on low incomes and were doing so years before denturists appeared on the scene.

Dentists assert the title "denturist" is the unearned name assumed by dental mechanics who in Ontario have illegally been making dentures directly for the public. They say the term is an attempt by denturists to appear as representatives of a qualified profession developed in the traditional manner.

The history of denturists goes back to 1914 in Germany when dental mechanics were permitted to make complete dentures directly for the public.

But, as time went on, people insisted on having their teeth and the demand for complete dentures declined. The request for partial dentures and fixed bridges correspondingly increased.

Although the dental mechanics were not qualified to do this work, they did so illegally — and incompletely.

Finally, in 1952, the German government, in response to public pressure, abolished the right of these dental mechanics to deal directly with the public. All dentist services were placed in the hands of dentists.

About the same time, dental laboratories in Canada experienced an acute shortage of trained dental mechanics because of the lack of training schools and such persons were recruited in Europe.

After working in Canada a short time, many of these mechanics reverted to what they had been doing in their homeland and began to do bootleg dentistry in the evenings, say dentists. This practice spread with native-born mechanics, also without formal training or qualifications joining the trend.

The mechanics originally called themselves by their proper name — dental mechanics — but eventually they adopted the title denturists and organized the Denturist Society across Canada.

The use of the name is illegal in Manitoba.

Primitive Filipinos Documentary Subject

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Reynolds sat down in a glass-enclosed booth at the recording studio. He lit his pipe, checked the script again and started talking.

"This is a very special baby . . . a link between the present and the past. He is the latest member of a stone-age tribe. He has no name . . . for the time being his family simply calls him 'brother.'"

Reynolds was taping his narration for a special documentary, The Cave People of the Philippines, to be shown on NBC next Tuesday night at 10 p.m.

His words were about the Tasaday, a gentle tribe of 37 men, women and children whose home already has been the caves in a few miles north of rain forest on the rugged Philippine island of Mindanao.

They're the so-called Lost Tribe. Their discovery in June a year ago touched off front-page headlines and waves of excitement among anthropologists, linguists and social scientists.

Reynolds has been constantly writing and rewriting his script since coming to New York with the 30½ weeks of film he and his crew shot when they visited the Tasaday last August.

It was his third visit. He first filmed the tribe when the story of their discovery broke in June, 1971. He went back again in May.

All his visits have been at once and unobtrusive as possible. It could be the reason he's the only network television reporter the Philippine government has let film the Tasaday.

It has been determined by experts that the tribe isn't aggressive; its language has no words for weapon, anger, hostility or war."

All this fuss over a collection of half-naked savages. Why does he think the average viewer will care about them?

"The point," he said, "is that the Tasaday should give us some kind of clue as to what civilization has done to us.

"The prevailing popular theory is that man is an instinctive killer, that he has a built-in drive for territory and need to dominate other human beings.

"Theorists like this are based on second-hand evidence, plus the study of animals," he said. "The Tasaday are the first opportunity anybody has had for a look at stone-age man."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

THURSDAY, OCT.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Whatever was already started keeps rolling. Innovations fail or are misunderstood. It's your responsibility to stick to schedule.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Difficult goals, unforeseen circumstances upset your work—but much is lost, as little is new to constructive uses now.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Set this relatively unstressed day as a detour from your regular life experience; make a holiday-vacation out of it.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Make the most of a mixture of conflicting trends, coincidence, in which unsound ventures falter or burn in unplanned directions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You can have a touch of passing glory today if you leave the material side out of it going and coming. Travel is not productive.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Not as much comes of current activity as you expect. Experimental procedures are out of line with the needs of the day. Pray this evening.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cautious probing will show you the weak spots and what to do about them. Not as serious a mood deed gets you through the day.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Fewer demands on friends and family are on order. Avoid befriending any significant new venture or making any promise of participation.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Follow an orthodox path. Friends are edgy, leave them alone. Take yourself off when and where you can for solitary experience.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some delay is normal for today, but not an exaggerated reaction to waiting. Trifles offer irritation you needn't adopt.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You cannot keep secrets today. The ways most people think do not agree with your best welfare. Think problems out for yourself.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Care with money is standard operating procedure. The small events of the day are tokens, signals of more important matters.

Contact Wearer's Cornea Is Worn

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A few days ago I had a tremendous pain in my left eye and had to seek treatment at the hospital.

I had been wearing my contact lenses that day for about 18 hours. This is not unusual for me. I am mystified because I don't feel that this means they didn't have time to explain it to me and I can't find it in medical books.

Do I have to go to an eye doctor for further treatment or will it heal itself? How could corneal abrasion have happened? I am 23 and have been wearing contacts (wear regular glasses, too) for seven years.

My husband's job takes him away from home 18 hours a week so I do read an awful lot.—I.S.

"Abrasion" means a wearing away. A corneal abrasion means that it was the cornea of the eyeball, that got worn down.

Possibly nobody can ever tell exactly how it happened—but I would be surprised if your contacts didn't have something to do with it. Perhaps you got some very fine dust under one of them, perhaps not. Perhaps just the contact lens finally wore the cornea down.

Most wearers of contacts are warned at the outset that it isn't wise to wear them constantly. The amount of time they can be tolerated varies from person to person. It can take time before the damage makes itself known. It does not do to rely on pain to be tells you the cornea is healed. If, for instance, infection got into that abrased area it could do real damage.

Eighteen hours a day is a long time to wear contacts, and I would suggest that you limit it to much shorter periods (if the doctor lets you resume wearing them at all). On those long reading binges, why not wear your ordinary glasses instead of the contacts? It will be that much insurance against possible future trouble.

Even after the damaged eye heals, it wouldn't be a bad idea to have an eye specialist check the eye at intervals.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know if the use of iron and calcium together is harmful. Someone told me that it was for me due to my age. I am 34. Could you explain why it is bad?—B.J.D.

I guess you'll have to ask "someone." It is possible to get too much iron but that rarely happens in adults. There is no such a thing as iron poisoning in children.

As to any problem from taking calcium, too, I don't know of any, and I don't know why your age should be involved. Does "someone" say you are too old or too young?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Assuming that an individual drinks little or no liquids, except a cup of coffee at breakfast and tea for dinner, how much water should a person drink each day?

It has been my observation that elderly people get into the habit of drinking too little water.—C.D.S.

I think your observation tends to be correct.

A person should get at least a quart of water a day (More if he sweats a good deal) but it is of no consequence what form it is. It can be plain water, tea, coffee, milk, soup, juices, soft drinks or whatever. All are mostly water.

Most of our solid food contains water—cereal, fruits, vegetables. Have you ever watched someone make mashed potatoes from dried potato flakes? It will give you an idea of how much water is in potato. There's even more in a good many other vegetables.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♥	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	5 ♦	Pass

Opening lead - ace of hearts.

The United States team suffered severe losses in its slam bidding, a department in which the Italian Blue Team has always excelled and which stood them in good stead throughout the 1972 Olympiad.

But not every slam decision favored the Italians, for once in a while the sun would peek through and shine brightly on the Aces and they would score a sizable swing on a slam.

Lawrence and Goldman were North-South at this hand when the bidding went as shown. Lawrence's double of two hearts was negative, that is, it was not a penalty double but indicated a promising hand and suggested a suit other than spades as trump.

But Goldman had a one-suited hand that ranked well above a minimum opening bid, including first or second round control of every suit, and he forthwith suggested the possibility of a slam by leaping straight to four spades.

Lawrence had values well beyond those indicated by his negative double and he showed them by raising partner to five spades, a forward-going bid which at the same time implied that the slam was in the bag if both had control over hearts. Goldman, with a perfect type of hand for a slam, happily accepted the challenge and easily made twelve tricks.

When Dybbo and Pabla Ticci held the North-South cards for Italy, their bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass

Undoubtedly West's failure to bid two hearts made it more difficult for the Italians to realize they could make a slam with only 28 high-card points, and they never made a strong move to investigate that possibility. As a result, the Italians piled 500 points on the deck, worth 11 international match points.

HERE'S A NEW IDEA

We are going to start a number of new homes for spring possession. If you are thinking about a new house, let us include it in our inventory. You can select a lot and a model either our's or your's. We will then build it to your specifications. You can then sell your existing house at your leisure. If you are unable to sell, you aren't out anything as we can sell the new house to someone else. This will solve the old problem of — "How can I build a new house when I haven't sold my old one".

CONDOMINIUM IS THE ANSWER

For the active man who wants to confine his activities to the outing risk, the golf course or anywhere else that doesn't involve cutting grass, shoveling snow, painting, etc. This is all done for you.

We have units available for immediate possession. These are located on Prince Edward Drive. Oh yes! Down payments run from $751. to $986 down.

EAST OR WEST WE HAVE THE HOME

selection of houses in the Quinte area. All in fully serviced subdivisions. All close to schools. We have 2 and 4 bedroom models. Let us show you our selection.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Being enthusiastic photographers, we are most interested in capturing on film the fall in all its glory. could you please tell us some of the places we may visit in the month of autumn?

ANSWER: The most significant fall coloring is in the North Bay area where about 15 per cent of the leaves have turned and eight percent near Sudbury and French River. Future change in the Bruce Peninsula, Kawartha Lakes region, and Parry Sound is well under way with five per cent colorfall. In the southeastern portion of Ontario, there has been significant and rapid change only near Marmora and Hawkesbury. Maple trees are especially impressive near Arden and Haliburton, and there are frequent blazes of color in Lake Superior Provincial Park. Coloration is just starting and not begun in other areas of the province.

VERMONT -- In the State as a whole, the peak fall foliage color is usually the first two weeks of October. However, peak coloration in the mountains and northern portions of the state usually occurs in late September while good color is maintained in the southern and lower elevation areas until October 15. Of special beauty are the deep red sugar maple trees and brown and gold hues of wild cherry. Many communities have special detailed maps of backroad routes for fall foliage viewing which may be obtained from local Chambers of Commerce. For up-to-date Vermont foliage reports contact: (1) Vermont Welcome Center, Interstate 91, P.O. Box 805, Brattleboro, Vt., 05301. (2) New England Vacation Centre, Rockefeller Centre, New York, N.Y., 10020. (3) Vermont Information Centre, Laurentian Hotel, Montreal, Quebec.

Deficit Rises

The deficit in Canada's international balance of payments rose to $549 million at mid-year, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday. It compares with a surplus of $263 million in the first half of last year, and a surplus of $348 million in the whole of 1971. Statistics Canada said that, on a seasonally-adjusted basis the deficit improved substantially in April, May and June with an improvement in the commodity trade balance. (CP Newsmap)

Land-use Maps Presented

MARMORA (Special) — Members of Marmora and Lake township council got their first look Saturday at land-use maps of the two municipalities which have been prepared by Totem, Sims and Hubicki, planning consultants for Hastings county.

A meeting will be held soon to go over the maps to ensure that all information is correct and to give thought to planning of commercial, residential, recreation and rural areas.

Reeve John Wilkes stressed that a great deal of thought must be given to the designation of such area before adopting the final plan.

Public meetings will be held to allow residents to have a say in the planning. Once the final plan is adopted, amendments can be made only through the Ontario Municipal Board.

Council received notice that its county apportionment would be raised for 1973.

MORE

Based on an assessment of $1,167,077, an increase in assessment of $199,900, the new county apportionment will cost township taxpayers $3,566.23 more in 1973.

Marmora and Lake township will pay 3.36 per cent of the county total, up .19 per cent from 1971.

Because of the increased assessment, it is expected the township will be able to command a higher road bylaw next year and a meeting with Robert Sims, district highways engineer at Kingston is being requested as soon as possible.

Council spent some time discussing the problem of disposal site maintenance which will be done on a rotating monthly basis with Marmora village works department. Reeve Wilkes said it was going to be a real problem this winter to carry out the requirement for covering refuse twice weekly. It was recommended that the joint disposal site committee consider fixing up the old disposal site building for the use of caretakers.

A rate of $5 was proposed for the dumping of old cars at the new disposal site, also $2 for carloads of garbage and $10 for truckloads.

A claim by Douglas Bedore for damages done his car when a township road gave way last April has been turned down by the township's insurance company. Gordon Bennett of the Marmora Insurance Agency explained coverage only applied when the township was deemed liable. In this case the township was not felt liable as the washout was not apparent from the road surface and therefore would be considered an act of God.

Phase 2 of the Shawano development of lakes of the islands in Lake township by Bowes and Cocks Ltd. has been turned down by the ministry of treasury and economics. The Hastings county Planning Board had recommended the application be turned down.

Reeve Wilkes said he would recommend to the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority that more water sampling be done in the area. During earlier discussion council felt the present system of water testing was inadequate.

Mouth-feel Plays Part In Testing New Foods

OTTAWA (CP) — Mouth feeling is all in a day's work for maintenance men, tests, technicians and scientists at the agriculture department's food research institute.

Although it is not designated in any of their contracts, most workers submit happily when attractive young Elizabeth Larmond asks for help with her sensory-evaluation-of-food project.

Mrs. Larmond runs the program to test new or modified food products developed by department scientists. Since physical tests and chemical analyses don't tell everything there is to know about a new food, she recruits department workers to test the products.

"There's more involved than crush.

"The laboratory panel usually consists of about eight persons from various jobs in the research institute," Mrs. Larmond says. "The qualifications to sit on the panel are simple: Average taste buds, personal integrity, ability to concentrate, curiosity and willingness."

Although it doesn't answer whether people will like certain products, she says a panel does tell whether there is a difference between substances and what kind of difference there is.

"More than that, the panel measures eating quality of foods."

The panel helps to discover better processing procedures, proper cooking temperatures, effects of animal feeds on flavor and quality of meat and processing new varieties.

"Everyone involved on the panels has been interest in the subjects. I often have a secretary or other non-research worker stop by the office after a panel test to give me free advice. It's most stimulating for the scientists.

"Food for the tests is prepared by technicians in the laboratory. When ready, it is shipped through a small door to panelists in individual booths. Workers are asked to keep their evaluations as simple as possible.

Results are analysed with computers.

"Some of our panelists are becoming quite skilled in certain foods and come up with many useful suggestions," Mrs. Larmond says.

Tweed Fair Set For This Weekend

Featuring harness racing, livestock exhibits, crop and vegetable displays, the annual Tweed fall fair will be held this Friday and Saturday.

President William J. Woods with his board of directors look forward to what they hope will be the best show in the history of the fair.

Always a feature of the event the showing of driving horses will commence at 1 p.m. Saturday. Judging of the regular horse classes will start at 12.30 while the tractor drawing contest will get underway at 3 p.m.

There will be an old-time fiddlers' contest, ladies' safe driving, step-dancing and pie eating contest with prizes for the largest family on the grounds and for the oldest man and woman in attendance.

This year's fair officers in addition to Mr. Woods, include Roy Phillips, past president, Stan Genereaux and Dennis Hurst, vice-presidents and L. Charlton, secretary-treasurer.

Funeral

MISS T. FRANCES SAGER

Miss T. Frances Sager, 168 Dundas Street East, Trenton, died in Kingston General Hospital, Sept. 30.

In her 54th year, she was born in Trenton and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David H. Sager.

A life resident of Trenton, she had been in failing health for the past several months.

Miss Sager is survived by her brother, Robert J. Sager of Trenton.

She was employed as a secretary at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

The funeral service was held in the chapel of the Weaver Funeral Home, Sept. 30.

Rev. F. Hobbs, of Grace Church, conducted the service and interment was in White's cemetery.

NO MORE ADS

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — The government will stop printing commercial advertisements on the borders of sheets of postage stamps because public reaction to the practice has been unfavorable, a post office spokesman said.

SIMPSONS Sears

DIGI-matic 8

For under $100 we know of no other portable calculator that will give you office machine accuracy and convenience away from the office. The DIGI-MATIC 8 is the kind of personal-size calculator you've been waiting for. Fast, accurate, durable, attractive, the DIGI-MATIC 8 adds, subtracts, multiplies, divides and does mixed calculations anytime, anywhere. Instantly. Without any excuses. Here's why:

Floating decimal
Some portable calculators have a fixed decimal. The results: small errors when you multiply or divide using a few decimal places, gross errors when working with many decimal places. The DIGI-MATIC 8 has a floating decimal. Which means it doesn't round figures off to one or two decimals. The decimal point goes where it has to go to give you the correct answer.

Constant key
Special constant key permits continuous multiplication or division.

CE key
Say you're working to a final total through a long set of calculations. And you make a mistake on the last entry. The CE key allows you to clear the wrong entry and put in the correct one. There's no need to start all over from the beginning.

Portable power counts
Many portable calculators offer you only minutes of portable calculating time. The DIGI-MATIC 8 offers you up to 3 hours. You see, some other calculators use small throw-away batteries. Like some toys. But the DIGI-MATIC 8 is powered by rechargeable ni-cad batteries (recharger included). You simply plug it in and while you're using it, the DIGI-MATIC 8 is recharging itself.

The incomparable DIGI-MATIC 8 is sold only by SIMPSONS Sears

More
• Credit balance function allows you to get a minus read-out
• 8 digit read-out is in full-view when in use on a flat surface
• Overflow indicator tells you when total contains more than 8 digits
• Tough ABS plastic case; measures 5½"x3"x1", total weight is just 10 ozs.
• Cord and plug unit for recharging and for normal office use
• Attractive carrying case
• 1 year guarantee

PCs Plan Economic Group

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party proposed Tuesday establishment of a joint Canada-United States economic commission to improve relations between Ottawa and Washington and keep both countries better informed on mutual economic matters.

The proposal was made in two separate policy papers released by the party in its campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election. The papers, the latest in a series of Conservative policy statements, deal with international trade and Canada-U.S. relations.

Both papers say a key function of a joint economic commission would be to conduct specialized studies and hold consultations on economic policies.

"Such a commission would provide a useful means for exploring common problems and finding acceptable solutions," adds the paper on trade.

"It would help as well to make our position on mutual problems better known to the U.S. government which, in some cases, has adopted policies highly detrimental to Canada without appreciating beforehand their adverse affects on this country."

This was an apparent reference to economic measures imposed by President Nixon in August, 1971. Included was a 10-per-cent surcharge on imports—since dropped—which drew strong opposit on from Canada.

The trade paper said the proposed commission would help place the relationship between Canada and the U.S on a "more rational basis and ensure that Canada does not 2-ull into "a form of accommodation with the U.S." because of a lack of foresight and planning.

The paper said Canada-U.S. relations said the Trudeau government has allowed relations with Washington to deteriorate by failing to seek effective channels of communication.

Both papers noted that the two countries are each other's biggest trading partners and said "close and friendly relations" must be maintained.

"By more frequent and regular consultation with the U.S., Canada will be in a better position to protect its own interests and to formulate its own policies instead of simply reacting to American policy moves," said the paper on relations.

The trade paper said: "We must identify the industrial areas in which we excel and develop them to the full."

The paper said a Conservative government would begin immediately to plan policies to meet protectionist trends on both sides of the Atlantic.

It also said the Canadian trading picture is clouded by the presence of "substantial numbers of multi-national corporations which, in some instances, retard Canada's ability to make its own decisions and to develop its own technology for world markets."

"The increasing inability of the international monetary system to function effectively in complex trade relations also threatens our trading position," it said.

While it must keep in mind continually that the U.S. is Canada's biggest trading partner, the paper added, the Conservative party also recognizes the need for "greatly-increased efforts . . . to increase its trade relations with other parts of the world to offset the reliance on the U.S. market."

To this end, the party would strive for "a special relationship" with the European Common Market, "now the largest import market in the world."

The paper said a key topic in any expanded trade discussions with the U.S. would be the export of Canadian natural resources.

"Our party believes that Canada should concentrate on the sale of manufactured goods and renewable resources and that we must approach with caution proposals to sell our non-renewable natural resources."

The paper also said the Conservative party accepts the principle of a continental defence system, but favors a complete review of all Canada-U.S. defence arrangements.

Rapists Jailed

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Sentences ranging between six and 12 years were handed down Tuesday against four Windsor men recently convicted of raping a 26-year-old woman in a corn field near Colchester.

Clayton Lindsay Hall, 23, was sentenced to 12 years; Walter Conrows, 21, 7 years; David R. Reaney, 25, eight years; and Ernest Legault, 25, six years.

Mr. Justice Peter Wright of the Ontario Supreme Court said:

"Windsor and the county of Essex has a very unenviable reputation for the trial and conviction of citizens on these offences, and in circumstances that are sordid and violent."

Plowing Ahead

Spy's Son Fasts

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Edward Trepper, son of the former Soviet master spy, Leopold Trepper, began a hunger strike Tuesday in protest against continued Polish refusal to permit his ailing father to emigrate to Israel. It was the latest move in a family campaign to persuade the Polish government to allow Trepper to leave the country.

Columbus Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Tuesday proclaimed next Monday as Columbus Day and paid tribute to the navigator and explorer who "helped to write a new chapter in the history of mankind."

Stanfield:

Inflationary Psychology of Concern

EDMONTON (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has refined slightly his publicly-expressed position on price and wage controls, pledging that as prime minister he would impose them if necessary to stop the growth of an "inflationary psychology" among Canadians.

Mr. Stanfield explained his views in an interview taped Tuesday by Toronto's City-TV for screening later in the federal election campaign.

The leader of the parliamentary opposition also dealt with issues as disparate as capital punishment, strikes in essential services, and foreign investment during a busy five hours in Toronto.

Mr. Stanfield, in Toronto, elaborated on previous declarations that he would be prepared to invoke wage and price controls if necessary.

Noting that the cost of living has been rising sharply in recent months, he postulated a continuation of this trend.

"If it became apparent to me that this was triggering an active inflationary psychology, the humane way to deal with that would be price and wage controls."

He did not say what criteria he would use to determine whether an "inflationary psychology" had taken hold of the Canadian people.

Controls would have to be temporary; otherwise they would bestow undue economical power on "a relatively small number of bureaucrats in Ottawa."

Mr. Stanfield said he favors positive measures to encourage Canadians to make risk investments in their country's economy.

Observing that many Canadians "go to bed at night-praying" for more investment capital in their particular regions, he contended regulations to control foreign investment could be introduced without splitting the country down the middle.

He rejected the notion of a screening agency with wide-ranging authority to control investment from abroad.

The Conservatives leader attacked the Liberal government for disregarding the will of Parliament in commuting all the death sentences imposed by courts since a partial five-year ban on hanging took effect in 1967.

The experimental ban, which expires at the end of this year unless renewed, maintains the death penalty for murderers of policemen and prison guards.

The Trudeau government doesn't seem to respect the will of Parliament," said Mr. Stanfield, making clear that he personally would support a continuance of the partial ban "at least for the time being."

Mr. Stanfield said strikes in some essential services should be prohibited. The police are one group that he said should not be permitted to withdraw services.

If in defiance of such a ban, a police force were to stage a walkout, it might be necessary to call out the army to protect the public interest.

Four Parties To Tag Candidates

OTTAWA (CP) — Only four political parties, those represented in the last House of Commons, will be able to label their candidates on ballot papers in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Jean-Marc Hamel, chief electoral officer, sent a telegram to all returning officers Tuesday saying neither the Parti Canadien nor the Western Canada party had nominated the required 50 candidates to qualify under the Elections Act. The deadline was Oct. 2.

This leaves the Liberal, Progressive Conservative, New Democrat and Social Credit candidates as the only ones who will be identified by party label on the ballots.

Mr. Hamel said a candidate for the Western Canada party or Parti Canadien will appear on election documents as an Independent unless he or she asks in writing that the word be eliminated.

They have until noon today to make such a request to their constituency returning officer.

The Western Canada party has named several candidates in the Prairie provinces on a platform of greater autonomy for Western Canada. The Parti Canadian, also known as the Parti Canadian-Francais, is a Quebec nationalist group. Its organizers earlier expressed the hope of fielding 80 candidates in Quebec and New Brunswick.

Other parties that failed to qualify for ballot labelling are Action Canada, whose leader Paul Hellyer switched to the Conservatives, and the Moderation party, an Edmonton group.

O'Connel Admits UIC Problems Economic Growth to Help Jobs

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) — Federal Labor Minister Martin O'Connell said Tuesday there have been problems with the new unemployment insurance regulations.

Speaking on an open-line radio show on radio station CJAV, Mr. O'Connell said the new UIC program is only a year old and there are continuing efforts to improve administration.

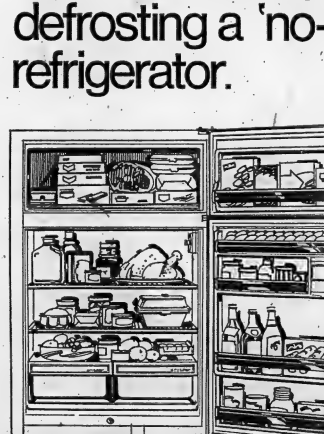
He said the program was difficult to get started because of the new levels of benefits, sickness and maternity benefits.

Mr. O'Connell received many calls during the show—most of them dealing with unemployment insurance and labor questions. He dismissed compulsory arbitration as a means to limit-ing the frequency—and preventing altogether—strikes and lockouts.

He said a way must be found to reduce the recourse to strike but not take away the right to strike.

Mr. O'Connell said he is investigating a system of voluntary arbitration involving a board of mediators. Under the system, he said, when both sides in a contract negotiation are bogged down he hopes they would voluntarily submit their differences to a mediator and accept his conclusions as final.

Back In Cairo



CAIRO (Reuter) — The Soviet ambassador to Egypt, Vladimir Vinogradov, returned here Tuesday to resume his post amid moves aimed at improving Soviet-Egyptian relations. Vinogradov was recalled to Moscow for consultations seven weeks ago following President Anwar Sadat's decision to expel 20,000 Soviet military advisers and experts from Egypt.

Ombudsman

PARIS (Reuter) — Premier Pierre Messmer, making the first general policy statement of his three-month-old government, announced Tuesday a wide-ranging package of measures to help consumers, women, youth and the unemployed. They include creating an ombudsman to represent the general public. A series of financial scandals have rocked the governing Gaullist party, and Messmer promised to be rigorous in dealing with any misdeeds.

Trudeau:

Goodies to Leave You Breathless

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau promised a leisure and recreation program "that will leave you breathless" during the Liberal nomination meeting Tuesday of the Indian affairs and northern development minister, Jean Chretien.

Before a sweat-soaked crowd of about 1,500 jammed into a local high school auditorium, Mr. Trudeau said his government would have goodies—or nonsense—to announce in the next week or two certainly before Oct. 30."

"I guarantee that it will leave you breathless."

The rest of the prime minister's 20-minute speech was devoted to praise of the 12-year-old cabinet minister, and government programs and policy-sophies.

Mr. Chretien, unopposed for the Liberal nomination in the St. Maurice that surrounds this town of 25,000, exemplifies the type of man in government now leading Canada, Mr. Trudeau said.

He had come to Ottawa to represent the riding in 1963 with little knowledge of English. Since then, he has held the national revenue portfolio and his current one.

He also has responsibility for national parks.

Mr. Chretien had treated Indians with equality, providing when he took over the department, to abolish it when the reasons no longer wanted it, Mr. Trudeau noted.

Mr. Trudeau, who also urged Canadians to remain united and working for a warmer, more human society, spoke one sentence in English, his first during the day of campaigning in this and two other north-shore communities, saying that Quebec must be bilingual in both official languages.

The east-splitting day in a packed nomination meeting was in stark contrast to a dinner appearance in the nearby community of Berthier, celebrating its 300th anniversary where Mr. Trudeau spoke politely and poetically about Canadian traditions and the need for a responsive government.

People must be free to make their own decisions about their community, he said at a community hall dinner for about 250.

Governments must not force values and ideas on people by dropping a dozen civil servants into a community to decide its future.

Instead, people must decide what projects they want, and if the plans are reasonable, useful and will work for people, the government will provide money to carry them through, he said.

Mr. Trudeau made one other stop during the first day of his current low-key, two-day tour of the province, appearing on an open-line radio show in Trois-Rivieres, where he reaffirmed his belief in the abolition of capital punishment and said he would probably vote to continue the ban against hanging when the matter comes up in the Commons later this year.

Hanging for all but convicted murderers of police and prison guards was suspended in 1963 for a five-year trial period.

Today, Mr. Trudeau travels by helicopter to three more small Quebec communities for a question period with students, a municipal reception and an evening speech prior to returning to Ottawa.

President Nixon holds the pen he used in signing the formal proclamation declaring the United States and Soviet Union have bound themselves by treaty to curb their antiballistic-missile activities. He announced a souvenir pen would be given to all participants at the ceremony in the White House East Room. At left is Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. (AP Wirephoto)

Lewis

Daycare Needed For Independence

MONTREAL (CP). — A New Democratic Party government would bring in firmer laws to improve the labor situation for women, NDP leader David Lewis said Tuesday.

Speaking on an open-line show on radio station CFMB, Mr. Lewis said he favors a comprehensive network of daycare centres and salaries for housewives "because we have to find ways to make women more independent of men."

"Our laws favor men and employers favor men," he said.

"Even when laws are egalitarian, many employers find a way of getting around them by, for example, creating different job classifications."

Asked to elaborate on the question of salaries for housewives, he told a caller he was talking about a social goal for which the program had not been worked out.

During the 75-minute show on the French-language station, five callers asked the NDP leader to defend his stand that it would take more than a provincial election for Quebec to secede.

When a caller asked why all federal leaders are afraid of the Parti Quebecois, Mr. Lewis replied that he is not afraid.

He said he hoped "with all his heart" Quebec would not choose separatism.

The federal government is to blame for the deficit in the Unemployment Insurance Commission, Mr. Lewis said.

"It's inevitable when the unemployment rate is as high as it is now."

Mr. Lewis returned to Ottawa after the show Tuesday night.

Treasurer Vetoes Enquiry

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton has been asked by the head of a citizens' group for a full explanation of his refusal to order an inquiry into management in this town just west of Toronto.

Hubert Wolf, chairman of the Port Credit Residents Association, said Tuesday he wants "a point-by-point reply" to a petition his group had circulated about municipal affairs.

The petition had questioned the council's 1971 investment overborrowing, the existence of separate bank accounts for some municipal departments and the dismissals in May of four senior staff members, including town clerk Alex Thomson.

Mr. MacNaughton said in letters to Mr. Wolf and to the town council, which were received Monday, that a commission of inquiry is not required because "the issues are basically mature and can best be resolved at the municipal level."

However, he said council should take a more active role in controlling Port Credit's finances and administration.

The 1971 audited statement showed that under the old administration, provincially-set short-term borrowing limits had been exceeded by $121,000.

Under the Ontario Municipal Act, any councillor who knowingly votes to approve short-term overborrowing can be barred from seeking re-election for two years.

Perrault Raps Lewis

Mr. Perrault, who sat on the Commons committee studying tax reforms, told a news conference Mr. Lewis was a "Christian whose illiterate attacks have become a source of acute embarrassment to his own party."

He said Mr. Lewis didn't make a single submission to the committee during its 175 sittings and charged that he is guilty of juggling figures to confuse the Canadian electorate.

"When we introduced tax reforms in the face of real and heavy criticism from the business community—where was Lewis?" Mr. Perrault asked.

Mr. Perrault said the NDP leader's statistics on alleged corporation "tax ripoffs" are based on inaccurate and out-of-date statistics.

He said Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer has been embarrassed by Lewis's corporate bum charges.

Mr. Perrault said the International Nickel Co., one of the firms attacked by Lewis, is being asked by Schreyer to invest another $100 million in Manitoba.

In New York It Has Been One Yak of A Year

NEW YORK (CP) — A special vehicle for carting off dead beasts is having a busy year.

With three months to go, the offal truck already has hauled in the carcasses of a herd of horses, four lions, three bears, three llamas, two calves, a cow, a polar bear, a donkey, a buffalo and a yak.

"It looks like one hell of a year," said a sanitation department man. "It's not every year that we get a yak."

In 1971, the truck carted away 120 dead horses, four bears, four lions and a cow — about a normal haul.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Police entering a home suspected of being a lottery headquarters were momentarily thwarted by the key suspect had reported for class at a local high school, where he is in the 10th grade.

"We knew we had a lottery headquarters," police said Tuesday. "But we had no idea what type headquarters it would be."

Police said they found the 15-year-old youths lottery records in a dresser drawer and four telephones in the home—one of them a private number in the boy's bedroom.

"His mother was furious," said one detective. "She insisted that she knew nothing about bets being received there."

The youth was turned over to juvenile authorities on charges of gambling, police said.

FORT MORGAN, Colo. (AP) — A 31-year-old woman was arrested in downtown Fort Morgan on charges of drunk driving—on a horse.

Police said Elaine Green was arrested Monday night after riding a horse through one bar and into another.

She was released after spending a night in a police cell.

Mother Jailed For Fraud

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Jean Dean, a mother of five, was sentenced Tuesday to 18 months indeterminate in prison after she pleaded guilty to defrauding a Kingston branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce of $11,971 over 15 months.

Mrs. Dean, 42, a bank employee for 20 years, also received two years' probation to take effect upon her release from prison.

The court was told that Mrs. Dean, a current account supervisor at the bank, used the money to pay for items purchased by her husband to support her family.

Her cheques at the branch where she was employed were credited to at least four other accounts of local businesses over a more-than-a-year period. Counsel said she managed the current accounts "virtually unattended."

Branch Manager A. M. Tierney discovered the fraud when a finance company queried on a monthly statement. He asked Mrs. Dean about the matter and she did not return to the bank after a noon - hour break last March.

Fruit Land Drops

TORONTO (CP) — Total acreage of tender fruit in Ontario has decreased in the last 10 years by about 5,000 acres, mainly in the strategic Niagara Peninsula, an industry committee report says.

Little tender fruit is grown in the Ontario region. But the district — notably Prince Edward County — produces about one third of Ontario's apple crop. A local growers' spokesman looked to the likelihood of some "bleak years ahead" for Quinte apple growers today.

Big problem facing Quinte growers are imports, said Jim Hughes, Quinte Fruit Growers Association president and Wauboos apple producer. The industry now was facing world market competition. A big concern was U.S. apples being sold in Canada on consignment — for whatever price could be obtained.

More efficient growing methods could rectify such problems over the years, he indicated, and the Quinte area need not face the same problems as the Niagara region.

"In Ontario, production is concentrated in the Niagara region which many demographers predict will be completely urbanized in 30 years," said the study committee, chaired by E. L. Chadleigh, market development specialist of the Ontario Food Council.

The study was undertaken to examine the situation for the 1970s for the industry, which grows peaches, pears, cherries, plums and prunes.

The report, Alternatives, for the Ontario Tender Fruit Industry, was released Wednesday by William Stewart, Ontario agriculture minister, along with another study entitled The Niagara Peninsula Study Fruit Belt Report, prepared by a group of planners and co-ordinated by L. O. Gertzler.

Mr. Stewart noted that action has been taken on the reports, one being their "vision of the Regional Municipality of Niagara which would "bring about the kind of cohesive administration necessary for local involvement in the planning process."

"These two important reports . . . call for action, immediate action, by the government of Canada, the government of Ontario and the local elected representatives as well as the growers and processors of tender fruit in the Niagara Peninsula," he said.

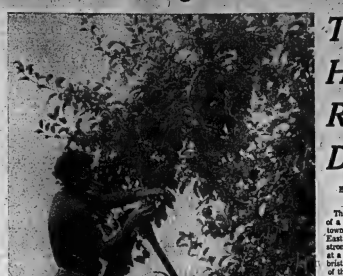
"The 10 townships comprising this fruit belt are unique in that they have a special type of soil and are blessed by favourable climatic conditions.

"No other area in Ontario possesses this unique combination of productive assets," Mr. Stewart said in a statement. "We cannot afford to allow this land to be diverted to other uses without serious considering the consequences. . . .

Realtor Decries Interference

VANCOUVER (CP) — Government intervention is threatening real estate organizations which have tried to set up standards and improve the business image, a real estate conference, the new president of the Canadian Real Estate Association said Wednesday.

Albert Fish of Guelph, Ont., told the seven province district of the CREA's annual convention that the industry has "very real fears" of not being able to operate in the future as freely as it had done in the past.



He pointed to a recent Prince Edward Island law governing the sales of land to non-residents and the federal competition act as "ominous examples of the trend to intervention.

If we went too far and the authority of real estate organizations were usurped by governments, "the problem of picking up the pieces, looking after the ethics and doing the things we are trying to do", would remain, he said.

He doubted that real estate men could gain recognition as professionals. "The government seems to be getting away from self-regulatory organizations in other professions. Perhaps it is not realistic for us to look for it at this time."

Town Houses Raise Doubts

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Thirty residents in the area of a proposed Maurice Rollins townhouse development in East Belleville came down strongly against the project at a public hearing last night, bristling councillors by some of their statements.

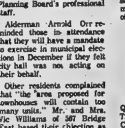
Rollins is seeking the rezoning of 4.85 acres south of Bridge St. East and east of Elizabeth Crescent and the Parrott Drive extension for the construction of 80 townhouse units. The property is now zoned R3 (single family residential) and he wants it redesignated R 4 G (townhouse).

Company official Bob Marcotte indicated last night the townhouse development here would be the best of its type in the city. The housing units would be for sale, not rent.

Four letters of objection were received on the rezoning issue and read to the hearing. One, signed H. McGee of 313 Bridge East, said many citizens, see city hall "as a dictatorship" and the public hearing as "a rubber stamp."

He said "existing taxpayers living in the area should have priority over those who are potential taxpayers", adding he believed such high-density housing (as the proposed project) would reduce home values.

In his letter, Mr McGee also made reference to what he called "hodge - podge planning." Certificate of planning drew Alderman Jack Ireland to rise in defence of Quinte Planning Board's professional staff.



Alderman Arnold Orr reminded those in attendance that they will have a mandate to exercise in municipal elections in December if they felt city hall was not acting on their behalf.

Other residents complained that the area proposed for townhouses will contain too many units. Mr. and Mrs. Vic Williams of 367 Bridge East based their objection as follows: "We bought in this area for the sole purpose of its being one-family residential homes and we would like it to stay that way."

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dack, of 64 Elizabeth Cresc., say the developer bought the land in the hope that it can be rezoned, "land that council in its wisdom zoned for single family detached dwellings just 12 years ago."

The Belleville Subdivision Planning Committee made no decisions to support or reject the development but instead referring the matter to Frank Soukmanis, senior planner with Quinte Planning Board, for a report.

It also subordinate planning committee and council approve the rezoning, the Ontario Municipal Board would call a hearing on the issue if it receives objections. Similarly, if it is rejected, an objection from the developer could initiate a hearing.

Stanfield Roasts PM

EDMONTON (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, in an unusually strong personal attack, accused Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday of evading responsibility for the policies of his government.

In a frequently-applauded address to an overflow election crowd in Edmonton's 2,759-seat Jubilee Auditorium, Mr. Stanfield reserved both Mr. Trudeau and Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey for the "scandalous" condition of the unemployment insurance fund.

"It is characteristic of the Trudeau government that it should announce its most dynamic program not in the field of jobs . . . but in a field in which there is compulsory absenteeism," said Mr. Stanfield, referring to the larger number of Canadians with leisure time due to unemployment.

Mr. Stanfield, introduced by Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed as "a wonderful national leader and a great Canadian," was interrupted 30 times or more in the course of a 20-minute speech.

The Conservative leader said he asked Mr. Trudeau two weeks ago to tell Canadians "the truth about the scandalous condition with respect to the unemployment insurance fund and its finances."

"Perhaps I should first have addressed my request to the angel Gabriel, or knocked on the door of Information Canada. In any event, Mr. Trudeau passed the buck to Mr. Mackasey."

"When a victorious hockey team returns to Canada, our prime minister is there to bask in the reflected glory of a Canadian achievement. Whenever he is asked to defend his policy or to explain his programs, he is out to lunch."

"If the government with the biggest bureaucracy in history could not know as little as eight months before this program went into full operation what the cost was going to be — within at least half a billion dollars—then this government and the officials advising it should be thrown out on grounds of total incompetence."

Trudeau Says Bilingualism Is Key To Brotherhood

ST. GEORGES de BEAUCE, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau slipped through Social Credit country Wednesday, preaching bilingualism and federalism as the keys to Canadian brotherhood.

At this community of 17,000, about 30 miles east of Quebec City, in Montmagny and in tiny La Pocatiere farther north along the St. Lawrence, Mr. Trudeau told French-Canadian audiences federalism is the way of the future". Bilingualism enriched the country culturally.

The only words of English spoken during the day—by the principal of a joint high school and junior college in La Pocatiere—were greeted by boos from about 1,100 students.

Mr. Trudeau scolded them for their outburst.

At a buffet supper for about 200 invited supporters here, his last stop during a two-day campaign tour of the province the prime minister repeated what he said is the choice Canadians must make on election day.

Either they can choose the Liberals again or elect parties who offer little more than promises. "It's easy to make promises at election time."

As well, he delivered what he called two messages which are a theme in his campaign.

One was that the law of the country is stronger than vio-ent minorities who wish to overthrow the state.

The other was that communities in other parts of the country if I were bored when I speak French in English," he said.

Federalism means respect for others, brotherhood and mutual help, he added at a meal in a sand-bench reception in nearby Montmagny.

Wagner Predicts Win

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP) — Claude Wagner said Wednesday night that the current federal election campaign has already reduced the Liberal government to a minority position.

"And by the time Oct. 30 rolls around, they will find themselves faced with the prospect of forming the Opposition."

The leader of the Progressive Conservative campaign in Quebec made the prediction during a local television interview in this city 183 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Asked on an open-line radio show earlier when he would do it he were defeated, Mr. Wagner replied "I don't expect that to happen," and said he is convinced he will be elected in the House of Commons with a group of other Tory Quebecers.

Mr. Wagner said his optimism that the Conservatives will form the next government was confirmed after a three-day tour of the Gaspe Peninsula by the response of the "fishermen, workers and miners" of the economically-depressed region.

Audiences throughout the days were warm and receptive. Students at La Pocatiere applauded when the prime minister finished lecturing them on their attitude to English.

He told them also he was "a bit ashamed" they had booed Rev. Arthur Ancell when the principal welcomed visiting English-language reporters in their own tongue.

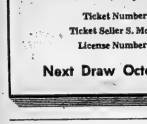
"I would really be encouraged about the future of the country if I were booed when I speak French in English," he said.

Federalism means respect for others, brotherhood and mutual help, he added at a meal in a sand-bench reception in nearby Montmagny.

Caouette Raps 'Candy' Offer

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP) — Real Caouette, Social Credit leader, said Wednesday that Prime Minister Trudeau's promises of "candy" for the voters is no way to conduct an election campaign.

Mr. Caouette was criticizing Mr. Trudeau's statement at Shawinigan, Que., Tuesday that within 15 days Mr. Trudeau would announce a leisure and recreation program "that will leave you breathless." He termed his programs "candy."



"Why didn't he make this gift two years ago, or four?" Mr. Caouette said at a Social Credit rally. "He could have done it then. But no. It always has to wait until just before the election."

He said the "candy" is like the suckers which he said the Liberals gave out in 1935 while the adults got drunk on whisky.

Hilton's House Hit

TRENTON - (Staff) — At 7:25 p.m. Wednesday, a car parked on a steep incline on Dufferin Ave., slipped 11 ft., brake, rolled down the hill across King St. and into the front of a house on the corner of the intersection.

This is the second time the front porch of Trenton PUC chairman Charles Hilton's home has been struck by a car.

Town police report the car, owned by Paul Bailey of 249 Dufferin Ave., received approximately $500 damage. An estimate on damage to the Hilton home, described as extensive, has not been released.

Poppy Fund In the Black

The Belleville Poppy Committee faces the 1972 Poppy Drive with a healthy $3,402.77 bank balance, according to the committee's 1971-2 financial report released recently.

The year's activities of the committee show that a total of $782.74 was spent during the year on assistance to dependents and survivors of veterans, and both residential and transient care.

This included assistance to dependents for food, clothing, home repairs, prescriptions and glasses. There was also aid to transient veterans for meals, accommodation, prescriptions and transportation costs.

The committee reports that in the 1971 drive sales of wreaths to businesses totalled $2,674 and street sales of poppies brought in $2,347.38. After campaign expenses were paid, this left a balance of $5253.51, of which $782.74 was spent on services until July 31.

Arvid Watches Arvid

Once into his room at the Four Seasons Hotel and off his feet, Harold Arvid settled down before the television to watch himself on yesterday's evening Toronto news. Mr. Arvin is in the process of walking from Montreal to Toronto in support of the crippled children's telethon he aired on CFTO this weekend. Doug Forbes and Bob Ord, representing the Rotary Easter Seal Campaign met with him in his room during the news to offer their support in his walk. More than 10 miles remain in the journey. Alderman Arthur Keegan represented city hall during the meeting.

Obituaries and Funerals

CECIL W. KLEINSTEUBER
West Lake

Well known West Lake farmer and sitesman at the Belleville farmers' market for almost three decades, Cecil Ward Kleinsteuber died during heart surgery at Kingston General Hospital. He was in his 53rd year.

Born at West Lake, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kleinsteuber and had operated a market garden farm specializing in strawberries and raspberries.

Funeral service was conducted by Rev. Nathan Bowering of Bloomfield with interment in West Lake Cemetery.

Bearers were Neil Parks, Merton Craig, Garry Dexter, Bill Mercer, Roland Kleinsteuber and James Latchford.

Mr. Kelnsteuber was a member of the United Church and served on the church board at West Lake and later on the Bloomfield church board. He was a former trustee for the Hallowell school board SS13, and was keenly interested in youth activities, although due to ill health had been unable to participate in recent years.

He was a lover of horses, and although the machine age had taken over much of the farm work, he enjoyed keeping horses for riding and driving pleasure.

Mr. Kleinsteuber is survived by his wife, the former Mabel Grier, a daughter Mrs. R. (Gale) Ellis, of Shilo, Manitoba, two grandsons Robbie and Michael; a sister Lynda of Belleville and two brothers, Russell of Bloomfield and Ronald of Wellesley N.Y.

MRS. CHARLES WALTERS

In failing health for the past several years, Mrs. Josephine Henrietta Walkers, formerly of Catherine Street, died Thursday morning in Belleville General Hospital. She was in her 85th year and had been a resident at the Shepherd Nursing Home.

Born at Fenelon Falls, Ont. Mrs. Walkers was, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Austin and had worked as a schoolteacher prior to her marriage. She had lived in the Belleville area for most of her life.

She was a member of Bridge Street United Church and was a life member of the United Church Women.

Predeceased by her husband Charles Walkers, Mrs. Walkers is survived only by a sister, Miss Jane Austin of Ottawa, four grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

A son, Dr. Austin Walkers of this city, predeceased her.

The funeral will be held Friday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home with service in the chapel at 3 p.m. conducted by Rev. G. K. Ward. Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

JOHN (JACK) GEORGE REPPARD

Suffering a heart attack while at work at the Station Street Layer Control Board store, John (Jack) George Reppard, 61, of Church St., died suddenly at Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday. He was in his 61th year.

Born at Napanee, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Reppard and had lived all his life in this area. He had worked as a clerk at the LCBO store for 21 years.

Mr. Reppard was a member of Christ Church and was a life member of The Belleville Lodge, AF and AM No. 122.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ethel Baker, a son John, Jr. of Geraldton, and one grandson, John.

A brother Wilbert James Reppard lives in Toronto while a sister, Mrs. Fred (Fay) Turner lives in Belleville.

The funeral will be held Saturday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home with service in the chapel at 10:30 a.m. conducted by Canon R. B. D. Wright. Interment Belleville Cemetery.

MRS. LEO LACHAPELLE
RR 1, Carlyle

Manager of Blessington General Store in Corbyville, Mrs. Madeline LaChapelle died Wednesday, Sept. 27, in Belleville General Hospital after a short illness. She was 58.

She was born in Hungerford Township, and had operated the store for the past ten years.

She was the daughter of the former Mr. and Mrs. Jules of Tweed and the late Henry Greereaux.

Mrs. LaChapelle was a member of Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville.

Her husband, Leo Lachapelle, predeceased her. She is survived by a daughter, Ann, of Corbyville and two sons, Reginald of Belleville and Gerald of Tweed.

She also leaves a sister, Mrs. Jack (Mary Ellen) Sherrard of Trenton, and three brothers, Leon Greereaux of Belleville and Joseph and Stan Greereaux, both of Tweed.

Mrs. LaChapelle rested at Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed, until Saturday, Sept. 30, at 10 a.m.

Requiem Mass was celebrated at St. Carthagh's Church in Tweed by Rev. C. E. Baker, with interment in the church cemetery.

Bearers were George Fallow, Joseph Quinlan and Brian, Dennis, Gerrard and Garry Greereaux.

GEORGE RICHMOND STEPHENS
Foxboro

A retired reckoman at Corby Distilleries where he had worked for 22 years, George Dermond Stephens of Foxboro died Wednesday in Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 68th year.

Born in England, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Stephens and had lived at Pembroke for the past 50 years. He came to Ontario from England 53 years ago, and was a member of the Anglican Church.

He retired five years ago and had been in failing health for the past four years.

He is survived by his wife, the former Dorothy May Hack three sons, Raymond of Scarborough, Philip, at home and Spencer of Belleville, and a daughter Mrs. John (Shirley) Bowerman of Unionville, and one grandson, Chad Oliver. A sister, Mrs. Elsie Cupples lives at St. Catharines.

The funeral will be held Saturday from the Graves Funeral Home where service in the chapel at 1 p.m. will be conducted by Rev. Noel Tetlow. Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

Accountants Meet Oct, 16

Employee behavioral science will be topic of the next meeting of the Quinte chapter, society of industrial accountants October 16. Speaker will be Mr. Peter Jarvis, son of Prince Edward Heights, Picton.

Provincial director of development and planning for the society, Robert Mattina, addressed the chapter's last meeting, outlining courses now available for accountants at Loyalist College.

Soup's On!

"Soup's on!" was the cry of Charley Butler last night.

Only trouble was, nobody opened the cans.

Charley is the owner of Charley's Chuckwagon, a mobile lunch truck that sells hot snacks to hungry workers arbund town.

After completing his day's work, Charlie parked the truck beside his 12 Grier St. residence.

Shortly after, the impromptu meal began and this time the treat was on the host.

Charley was alerted by popping sounds in the driveway nearby before 10 p.m. When he went outside to check on the noise, he discovered several tins of soup — contained in topless cans — already starting to boil.

He immediately called the Belleville Fire Department which rushed a truck to the scene, only to discover the switch for an electric stove had been left on.

IN MEMORIAM

BURSHAW — In loving memory of a dear grandmother and great grandmother, Lillian Burshaw, who passed away one year ago, October 5, 1971.
Days pass and years go by
Memories of you never die.
Sadly missed and always remembered
Though you lived one year ago.
Inserted by Grandchildren, Valerie, Dale and Darrell.

BURSHAW — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Lillian Burshaw, who passed away October 5, 1971.
You never said goodbye to us,
Neither did it pass in sleep,
For we never could have said good-bye,
Mother dear.
You were loved so much by all,
Our hearts still echo with sadness,
And tears will flow.
What we missed in you, mother,
No one will ever know.
They say time heals the sorrow,
And helps us to forget,
But they have not fully proved,
For much we miss you yet.
—Lovingly remembered by son Jack, daughter-in-law Ruth, grandchildren Pat, Kathy, Jamie, Gary and Doris.

BURSHAW — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Lillian Burshaw, who passed away Oct. 5, 1971.
In my heart your memory lingers,
Sweet and dear as ever more,
You are still the one I long for,
That I do not think of you.
—Inserted by granddaughter Hilda, son-in-law George and grandchildren.

BURSHAW
Sometimes beyond the shadows,
Death's door on another we pass,
And leave behind a memory
Of one who's gone at last.
But God called the one we loved best,
Forgot you grandma we never will.
—Inserted by Grandson Rob and great grandchildren Robert, Stuart, Tim and Kelly.

BURSHAW — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away Oct. 5, 1971.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We were unprepared for you were so near.
Only those who have lost can tell,
The pain, the parting and the sorrow.
That's God is good, He gave us strength to bear our bitter cross.
He is the only one who knows,
How much we miss you.
As long as life our hearts shall heed
We'll remember you indeed.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Rita and great grandchildren Robert, Stuart, Tim and Kelly.

BURSHAW — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away October 5, 1971.
Days pass and years go by
Memories of you never die.

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather who passed away October 6, 1970.
Days pass and years go by
Memories of you never die.
—Inserted by daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Ken Burshaw and family.

KECH — In sad and loving memory of our dear father, Harold Kech, who passed away October 5, 1970.
There's a silent place in our hearts,
Where thought and wishes meet,
No one but God can see it,
Where we keep our memories sweet.
—Lovingly remembered by daughters Doris, Vivian, Harold, Thomas, daughters-in-law Marion and Jean, grandchildren and great grandchildren.

KING, Nellie Irene — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away October 6, 1966.
Gone, sweet mother, from our sight,
Gone, but never from our mind,
A heart that loved us dearly,
Is now at peace and resting.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Irene, Freddie and children.

More Work For Airmen

TRENTON (Staff) — This week, forces at CFB Trenton began their second military exercise in recent weeks for the semi-annual Snow Goose operation to Cyprus.

Four 707 flights from Trenton's 437 (Husky) Squadron will airlift the 490-man Winnipeg - based 3rd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry to Nicosia. Before reaching Cyprus, the flights will pass through the base at Lahr, Germany.

This month's Snow Goose operation marks replacement of the Lord Strathcona Horse (Royal Canadians) of Calgary that has been serving on United Nations peacekeeping duties in Cyprus since last April.

The operation will conclude Oct. 13. Return flights to Calgary, will make fuel stops at Lahr and Sondestrom, Greenland.

This is not the first United Nations task for the 2nd Battalion. They were the first Canadian group to see action in the Korean war and the only Canadian unit ever to win a United States presidential unit citation.

Greek Church Growing

Greek Community Goal Meeting Place for All

Not simply a place to worship God, the church being built at the corner of Harder Drive and Avondale Road by the Belleville Greek community is to become the focal point of their way of life.

"The church means everything to the Greek people," said Peter Zegouras, an active worker in the church campaign.

"Our community, until now, was never strong enough in numbers to warrant a church," he said.

Through fund raising campaigns and ticket draws, the Greek community has raised nearly $40,000 ample funds to begin their church.

"We still need about another $30,000 to do the structure and even more additional funds to furnish the building once it is finished, but we are hopeful to be in the building for Christmas," said Mr. Zegouras.

If the weather holds, contractors agree that it is possible for the church to become a reality before that time.

The 30- by 80-foot church, with its foundations in place and basement walls near completion, will serve the double purpose of a church and a civic centre for the Greeks who are now using other churches and schools.

"We are just like a bunch of gypsies, traveling from one building to another in our worship and education," said Mr. Zegouras.

Since their need for a church rose, the Greeks have been invited to use several other places of worship in the city and have been using Loyalist College as a language and ethnic origins instruction centre for both youngsters and grownups who have into the Greek community.

"There are facilities in the new church that will allow us to bring all of this under one roof," said Mr. Zegouras.

Though the greater percentage of funds for the church was sought through private donations, more than $4,000 was raised from the ticket draws.

"We have had great support from all people of the area, not just the Greeks," said Mr. Zegouras.

"When we are finished building here, we will do everything to repay the hospitality of Belleville," he said.

"Belleville has helped us and we will help back," he said.

Once finished, the church will be available to any charitable organization.

The fund raising, under the management of Chris Tsoukalas, will continue Oct. 28 at the annual dinner for the Greeks at the Legion.

The evening will begin at 7 p.m. with a social hour, highlighted by a draw for a new Toyota.

The dinner and dance is open and all are invited to attend.

Only a cement - lined hole now, to Peter Zegouras (left) and the more than 400 Greeks living in the Quinte area it means the roots of their religious and social life. The church, at the corner of Avondale and Harder Drive, will serve this double purpose and is hoped to be finished by Christmas. Nearly $30,000 is still needed to complete construction.

Giant Sale To Help Arena

MARMORA (Special) — A giant auction and rummage sale is being organized by the Marmora Arena Reconstruction Committee for Saturday, Oct. 7, starting at 1 p.m. in the Marmora Arena. The proceeds will go toward the purchase of a $25,000 ice plant needed for the Arena.

Residents of the area are being asked for donations of furniture, clothing or anything that is of no further use to them. A number of people have volunteered to pick up the articles — Mike Logan, (Marmora Twp) Eric McIlroy (Deloro Village) George Osborne (Marmora Village), Mrs. Gerald Fox (Malone) and Mrs. Maurice McFall Marmora Township.)

Members of MARC will act as auctioneers and any articles that are not sold at the auction will be placed in the rummage section.

A number of money-raising events have been organized by MARC to raise money for the ice plant.

The committee urges everyone to support this event with their donations and attendance on Saturday afternoon.

OHC Seeks Rental Accommodation

TRENTON (Staff) — The Ontario Housing Corporation is going into the rental business and is now seeking any vacant family accommodations for its rent supplement program.

Designed to supplement its construction program, the OHC leases family housing units from landlords at market rates. The rents paid by these tenants selected from the waiting list of public housing applicants, will be based on their income. The housing corporation will pay the difference between rent paid and rent owing the landlord.

Housing being sought by OHC can be single or semi-detached houses, row housing or apartment units. The rental agreements will be for not less than a three-year period.

Landlords interested in this scheme are invited to meet with OHC officials on Oct. 16 at 10:30 a.m. in the Trenton municipal offices, 15 Dundas Street East. The deadline for rental submissions is 4:30 p.m., Oct. 17. Application forms can be obtained by writing to the Ontario Housing Corporation offices at 101 Bloor Street West, Toronto 5

The current rent supplement units in the hands of the OHC, program will place 1,000 such 500 in Toronto, the remainder in other municipalities. Half the subsidy involved will be paid by the federal government, 45% per cent by the province plus a remaining 7½ per cent by the municipalities involved.

These accommodations will have to meet certain standards. Those landlords restricting the age of children, will not be eligible under the scheme.

While long - term agreements are necessary for the program, provisions will be made for increases or decreases in the rents on an annual basis, based on tax hikes in the municipality.

The landlords will be given a chance to participate in the choice of prospective tenants, and normal landlord - tenant relationships regarding administration and care of the buildings, will be required.

One bonus for landlords entering into the OHC proposal: When the tenant moves out, the OHC will redecorate, if necessary.

A Dying Art

Queen's Park correspondent Don O'Hearn has put his finger on a dying political art — that of the heckler.

The demise of heckling is to be deplored, for the man and more rarely perhaps, the woman, who could interrupt, deride, question or pour scorn on a candidate's platform not only added spice to election campaigning but performed a useful service too.

Questioning of the candidate's views is necessary if we are not to become like so many sheep. Watching film of the candidates in Canada and in the United States saying their piece it is noticeable that opposition from audiences is virtually non-existent. In its place: cheers, applause, standing ovations, almost adoration — and not a heckler in sight. This is frightening, for it indicates an almost mass acceptance of what the candidate is saying. Whether it is David Lewis thumping his "corporate welfare bums" drum or George McGovern castigating the Nixon administration, audiences too often are swayed by an earnest manner here or a slick phrase there.

From out of the past we recall some ringing words of a red-blooded heckler. As we recall he was a student at one of our Ontario universities and the speaker was Rene Levesque of the Parti Quebecois. "It may have been the campaign of '68 but in any event there was this voice from the audience saying to Levesque: "You're just another bloody politician..."

It is something we might think about the next time we hear one or other political pitch. For us, that student could well be the last of the old-time hecklers. But in his place we might consider Ralph Nader's latest findings which suggest that the U.S. Congress no longer is fulfilling its basic democratic function of representing the people but is controlled by a powerful few. Isn't there a parallel here in the way party leaders make television, rather than Parliament, their forum for important pronouncements?

Montreal-Fatality

Millionaire Daniel Rudberg of Montreal, knifed to death by a purse snatcher last weekend, had been trying to perform his citizen duty in a way that few are prepared to do these days.

A 33 year-old civil engineer and consultant, the suburban Westmount resident and his wife were going out to dinner with two other couples when Rudberg spotted a youth trying to grab a woman's purse. He and his two male companions went after the youth, intending only to keep him in sight until police arrived. However, Rudberg apparently followed the youth into a clump of bushes where he was fatally stabbed.

A number of arrests have been made in connection with the affair, including a 17-year-old youth from Cote-St. Luc, Maryland.

One of Rudberg's companions said of him: "He was an exceptionally fine man. He was a man who, through all the difficulties in the province in 1970, never gave up his faith in his country or city and continued making plans to build and provide thousands of persons with jobs."

Now Daniel Rudberg has accomplished citizen, is dead at the hands of some small-time hoodlum. The Montrealer had come to Canada as a child from Romania. His father, fleeing the Nazis, was with him. Besides his wife, he leaves three pre-teenage children.

Racism in Uganda

Racism is not a prerogative of the much-maligned white man. We see where President Amin of Uganda has been busy getting rid of the Asian population and stripping them of virtually all their possessions.

On top of that he has thrown a lot of whites in jail, including a number of newspapermen covering the tense situation in the country, the invasion from Tanzania, and other events. A pregnant white woman as well as some children were also reported among the captives.

Amin is the kind of upstart adventurer that can mean only bad news for any emerging African nation, as well as for any Asians or whites who happen to stand in his way.

Visitors from Lahr

We see that tentative plans for the visit of the burgomaster of Lahr and other officials of the German city next month call among other things for a visit to Upper Canada Village. Well if such a trip comes off it will surely have to be a special one, or else a view from a distance. We understand the complex is closed to the public by then.

'Bank of the Just Society' Issues 'A Bill'

Liberals Kinked by Coin Dealer's Election Gimmick

By RICHARD JACKSON
from The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Remember the "Diefenbuck", the 82% dent in "Diefenbullar" of the election in 1962 when former Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his embattled Conservatives prevailed?

The Liberals capitalized on it, printing up thousands of these Canonized "Diefenbucks" little realizing at the time that very quickly devaluation was going to become a plus thing for the cuonnous segment of Canadian industry that works and lives for export.

It was a tremendous boost for the economy, but it did not develop in time — or the voters did not realize the prosperity potential soon enough — to restore the then-floundering, Conservatives from their impending minority mandate.

The "Diefenbuck" of course was an election gimmick and the Liberals quickly and successfully exploited it, picking up votes before devaluation began picking up the economy.

Now a different — but this time politically innocuous — money gimmick is being tried out, the "Just-a-Buck" issued on the authority of the 'Bank of the Just Society," and printed by the "Fudeo Dudeo Bank Note Company of Canada Limited."

The notes, printed with blue-green ink on paper not too dissimilar to that of ordinary Bank of Canada notes, are the same size as dollars.

These "Just-a-Bucks" are bilingual too, printed in English and French and instead of the portrait of Queen Elizabeth, carry a photo engraving of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau with the caption "Just let me try once more."

The message on the back of the note instructs the bearer to "deduct 10 percent a year for inflation".

That gimmick is entirely nonpartisan — although obviously aimed at the government — because it is being printed by the Liberals themselves.

There really is a great communications gap between government and the people.

And a good many people really do expect government to be big brother — big, big brother.

The first Citizens Inquiry has been a very limited operation. It has been engaged only in the Toronto area. It has not advertised. And its only source of inquiries has been the regular Queen's Park switchboard and mail.

Yet it has been servicing better than 1,000 inquiries a month.

On the second tier variety of requests show that people can't expect government to boil them out of practically anything.

The most unusual request that has been handled was one at two o'clock in the morning from a man whose landlord had turned off his power. He was a tropical fish fancier. And he claimed, in anguish that without power all his 3,000 fish would die in a few hours.

(The Inquiry man phoned the landlord. Told him it was illegal to cut off power and that he might be letting himself in for a damage suit. The fish were saved.)

Other inquires haven't been this off beat. But they have covered a wide spectrum and have included, in addition to many routine matters, such as adjusting health insurance and Workmen's Compensation problems, arranging to get a prisoner on leave married and getting a homemaker to train a widow in house-keeping so she could qualify for an Ontario Housing Corporation apartment.

Do the strength of the experience to date it is expected that Citizens Inquiry will be expand ed.

One proposal, by the Committee on Government Productivity, the body which has been shaking up government, has been that there be free phone service for citizens from anywhere in Ontario to Queen's Park.

MacFarlane personally does not favor this.

He would rather see an existing government office in every area designated to handle inquiries. And also an MPP's office in every riding (this is expensive now) so constituents are studying the Legislature reported).

Between them, he feels, they could handle a good many matters locally and when, they couldn't, the Citizens' Inquiry branch in Toronto would back them up.

(He also feels strongly that the main contact of citizens the same on a lot of pieces of paper and you could get 10 or 12 auto-graphs for 25 cents each. It wouldn't be bad to have a father who played-hockey.

Doctor's children aren't very impressed when they see father's handwriting: "I think they should have a course in writing because a heart surgeon as a brain surgeon has to cut very, very fertile tissue and if he slips, the guy's dead". That remark comfort to the patient.

Much more to the point was the eight-year-old who told Canadian Doctor, "I can't read my father's writing because I don't read any writing very fast yet."

Should doctors be able to get along with people better than "most of us", the children were asked.

"I think he should get along with people better because if he operates on them he should know them.

"Especially his patients. If he didn't like his patients, he might just cut off the X-ray light in the middle of and say 'operation'."

They all agree that a doctor should know the parts of the body very well and not be "nervous". "If you are nervous you might cut the wrong thing."

In an emergency when they get old, they keep working and they get a heart attack and they die. Also, they don't want to get sick they get older and that makes it hard for them to do a good job and they get more nervous breakdown."

On feeling good: "When things go well the doctor will feel good. The other day he delivered triplets and he thought that was great."

On Medicare: "I think it's good because the poor people couldn't get medical care they'd die more easily."

"I think they should pay a little money."

"What if somebody's dying and she can't afford an operation and she dies?"

Well if it's expensive and they're poor then they could get it free. I guess the government and they could pay a little and the rich people could pay the rest."

Kimberly: "Some doctors like to get rid of it once."

Amen, Kimberly.

'Citizens' Inquiry' Public's Hot Line to Government

By DON O'HEARN
from The Intelligencer's
Queen's Park Bureau

Your government (Ontario? wants to talk to you. And it wants you to talk to it.

It wants you to know about the many ways in which it can help you. (And also, of course, just what a benevolent lot they are it really is.)

One cynic says that these days government does everything for you except cut your toe-nails.

This is extreme. But there are dozens and probably hundreds of government services to people available. Varying from pensions to health insurance to telling you what's wrong with the soil in your garden.

The trouble is that not too many people know about them.

And those that do often do not know just where to go and what to do to take advantage of them.

Which is one of the two main reasons why the government wants some back and forth talk.

The second is that it wants to know how you feel about what it is doing now and what else you might want it to do.

Governments have been increasingly worried about this problem of communication for years as their scope has increased and their means of reaching the public has seemed to shrink.

Over the years millions of dollars have been spent on booklets and pamphlets, radio and television advertising and a bit of newspaper space.

But with it all there has been hardly a dent.

In fact as each year more services have been added (this year, for instance, has seen the introduction of nursing home care and day nurseries among other innovations) the problem has been confounded.

It is a problem which has all governments baffled.

The federal government, for example, tried to meet it with its costly Information Canada service to be created opinion this is a grand flop).

Even this didn't deter Premier Davis. During his election he said he was going to meet it.

His government and the people were going to get together.

This was a "seminar or other" promise, of course.

Mr. Davis didn't say just how he was going to pull this off. And from the evidence he didn't have the germ of an idea.

Yet the promise was made and he has been trying to fulfill it.

Well yes, trying.

And with some little success.

The effort so far consists of one experimental project.

This is a small operation called Citizens Inquiry.

It is an adaptation of the Action Line programs which some big-city daily newspapers feature.

A staff of five people do as one action lines do: they answer phone and mail inquiries and tell people what's available, where to go and at times lend an elbow to help them out with their problems.

(The operation is headed by Andrew MacFarlane, former managing editor of the Toronto first edition line in Canada).

The program is still only a few months old but to date it has been at least a modest success.

Experimental as it is it has made a strong case on two points:

1969, his wife in 1970. They married while students and lived on cadet pay while they were in the field. He has been with the Etobicoke Medical Centre, she with the Alcoa Medical Clinic, etc.

Jane explained: "We want a smaller centre in which to practice. We want to get out of the rush-rush pace and would like the old-fashioned type practice in a small town. A couple of my husband's classmates have gone to Wellington and they like it. We may be totally shocked when we get there but I don't think it's any hurry, we can always build a catamaran and sail back."

Envious?

Doctors' Children Are Air Views

Galt Reporter

Canadian Doctor magazine, following an interview with doctor's children between the ages of eight and 11, said that while the children approved of their father's job — only one of five children questioned want to be doctors.

All the children found their father's long hours difficult to cope with. Comments like "sometimes I wish he'd stay home to come on vacation with us", were common. It was obvious that late night calls bothered the children.

"One of the problems is that I don't get to see him very much. Sometimes he gets home late and had to go out later."

The kids agree that their doctor fathers "make money", but completely reject the idea that a doctor would enter the profession just to make money.

"I think that people become doctors because they like to take care of sick people." No matter how it was worded, each of the children held to that belief.

One lad had a ready answer when asked what he'd like to be. He like his father to be: "If he was a hockey player like Jean Beliveau he would get the same on a lot of pieces of paper and you could get 10 or 12 autographs for 25 cents each. It wouldn't be bad to have a father who played hockey.

Doctor's children aren't very impressed when they see father's handwriting: "I think they should have a course in writing because a heart surgeon as a brain surgeon has to cut very, very fertile tissue and if he slips, the guy's dead". That remark comfort to the patient.

Candidates' Hot Seat Program on the Air

The three candidates for the riding of Hastings in the October 30 federal election will be on the hot seat before Grade 12 and 13 students Centennial Secondary school on October 11.

The question period will be part of the day's CJBQ radio show, What Do You Think, with Milt Johnston as moderator. Broadcast time will be from 10 a.m. until noon.

Sitting in on the panel will be riding Progressive Conservative candidate John R. Ellis, Liberal Frank Follwell and NDP candidate Elridge Beyhour.

Hastings county Board of Education chairman Donald Williams of Stirling said that Grade 13 and 13 students from Bancroft and Madoc would be bused in to join students from the four Belleville high schools.

He said the exercise would give students — many of whom will be voting in the upcoming election — the opportunity of discussing election issues with the candidates.

Radio station manager Frank Murray said students with mobile microphones will be spotted through the audience in Centennial gymnasium to pick up students' questions.

Alkenbrack Denies Charge

A charge that he used House of Commons mailing privileges for election propaganda today was denied by Douglas Alkenbrack, MP Frontenac - Lennox and Addington.

Mr. Alkenbrack dubbed the charge "dirty politics".

The accusation came from Ross Baker, an Arden tourist operator who, in the past, has identified himself with Liberal politics in the area.

Mr. Baker linked his charge to a letter sent constituents on House of Commons stationery and dated Sept. 7.

The letter reminded constituents that although the House had been dissolved (Sept. 1. for the Oct. 30 general election) Mr. Alkenbrack would still be available to help with constituency problems. It also carried a reminder of the Progressive Conservative convention Sept. 23 at Cloyne, which subsequently renominated Mr. Alkenbrack.

"My hope and desire now is that I will have the opportunity to serve you once again when parliament recouvenes," it concluded.

In a note accompanying a photostat of the letter, Mr. Baker said the use of official stationery "clearly defies parliament" and involves use of government resources instead of party funds to fight an election.

Mr. Alkenbrack said today as an MP he was permitted to use his stationery for all purposes 12 days after an election adjournment.

He still is using his stationery to conduct business as an MP on behalf of his constituents until election day. Other MPs do the same, he said.

"I don't know what he's trying to accomplish," said Mr. Alkenbrack, of the Baker charge. "It's pretty dirty politics."

Something To Crow About

PICTON (Staff) — Investigation of a report of stolen car keys last week provided the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police with something to crow about.

A Scarborough resident called police on September 29 claiming his car keys were taken from the ignition as he asked directions in Consecon.

Detective work revealed the keys had been "stolen" by a tame crow who had dropped them in a nearby rain trough.

The delinquent crow's keeper was found and the keys recovered for the motorist.

Inspections Point to Safety

PICTON (Staff) — Inspections of commercial and industrial properties by the Picton fire department will emphasize the need for safety during fire prevention week, October 8 to 14. Some homes also will be inspected for potential fire hazards.

More Smoke Than Flames

Fire broke out last night at the 2 Russell Street residence of Bill Kuipers, after fat caught fire on the stove.

No estimate was available on damages, but a fire department spokesman said this morning damage was mainly caused by smoke.

Here, Jack Mathews helps Wally Istead into breathing equipment before entering the frame building.

Artists Team for Show

Two professional artists, one local the other locally oriented, are the exhibition in Belleville Friday.

The home-brew is Audrey Davies, well known for her work in ceramics and batik. She has changed her material in the past few months and the results should be even more stunning than her previous work.

Also on hand will be Tom Mathews of Brampton, whose Prince Edward County summer home has afforded him many opportunities to sketch local scenes.

The show's setting is 67-A Campbell St., Paul Bernard Interiors. Friday night's preview is by invitation only but the public is invited to browse from Saturday until Oct. 28.

Hours are 1 - 6 p.m. each day except Thursdays and Fridays when they are 1- 9 p.m.

Mrs. Davies, known throughout Ontario for her clay sculpturing, has begun to concentrate her efforts on porcelain, a finer substance requiring more concentration than earthenware or stoneware.

For centuries, raw porcelain has been turned into china and ornaments but Mrs. Davies has used it to fabricate, vases, plates, bowls and other abstract decorative pieces for the table or wall. She is also showing examples of her tie-dye silk work.

Mr. Mathews, on the other hand, is strictly a painter. He works in acrylics, oils and watercolors, capturing landscapes in semi - representational to abstract style.

On sale will be pictures of Picton and Belleville harbors as well as other examples of the type of work that led to the selection of one of his paintings for the permanent collection at Canada House in London, England.

Married to a Trenton girl, Mr. Mathews will display 16 of his Ontario scenes during the three-week show.

Schools to Mark Diamond Jubilees

Two of Belleville's schools, Queen Victoria and Queen Alexandra Public Schools, are 60 years old this year and both are preparing commemorative programs in conjunction with their Diamond Jubilees.

At Queen Alex several programs are being considered at various points throughout the year but Queen Vic will focus its attention on one day, although the theme of 60 years ago will be developed in the classroom as the year goes on.

It was on November 8, 1912 that Queen Victoria, on Belleville's Pine Street, opened officially and staff of the school headed by principal Claire Rapnow have scheduled an open house for the same day this fall.

The three generations of former students who have attended Queen Vic are invited to return during the day for tours presented by present-day students.

Displays of Queen Vic — past and present — will be located throughout the school and those who can help piece together the past of the sixty-year - old educational institution are requested to contact the school's office if they can lend any period clothing, school - related memorabilia or photographs for these displays. Recollections of the old school's past and anecdotes about it are also welcomed.

Bruce McKay of the Queen Vic Home and School Association says the Jubilee year offers a substantial opportunity for the students to develop a better understanding of the past by relating it to familiar ground — their school and their older neighbors in the community.

Open house day at Queen Vic will end with a stage presentation reflecting the history of the school and an audio - visual display. All former students are invited to attend.

LIP Help Available

The Belleville branch of the Canada Manpower Centre has acquired the services of experienced local initiatives program consultant Mrs. Susan Broil.

"Here since June, former Toronto CMC worker Mrs. Broil will confer with area people to discuss all facets of their proposals in application for a local initiatives program grant.

The federal government, responsible for the program, made public yesterday complete details of the scheme designed to offset high unemployment which occurs primarily in the winter months.

Complete information on LIP programs is available by calling Mrs. Broil at the Canada Manpower Centre, Dundas Street east, 962-8681.

News Column Not for Eating

Dear Ann Landers: My four-year-old sister loves your column. No, she doesn't read it. She eats it. And this is what I mean writing about. The little rascal devours not only chunks of newspaper, but dirt from the household, art-gum erasers, and table decorations.

My grandmother says to leave her alone—that this means her body needs certain elements and is not getting in her diet and it is nature's way of providing nutritional balance. My mother doesn't agree with her and our pediatrician is out of town. What about this? Is it harmful or beneficial? — Concerned Sis

Dear Sis: Young children should not be permitted to eat things they happen to find lying around. In fact, they should be taught at an early age to keep foreign objects and articles out of their mouths. The "nature needs it" theory is an old-wives tale and has no scientific validity. Thousands of children die every year because they ate toxic substances such as chips of paint, detergents and a whole host of household items that should have been kept under lock and key or out of reach.

I am glad your little sister loves my column but please keep it away from her until she can read it. It's not for eating.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter moved to California two years ago to teach in an elementary school. She taught here in Connecticut for three years and her students really loved her.

My husband and our young son visited Renee in California last year and we went to do so again this fall. But I just learned that Renee has a new roommate—a young man. I feel it would not be the proper environment for her 15-year-old brother. Furthermore, if my husband knew about this living arrangement he'd be very upset.

When I phoned Renee to tell her about my misgivings, she said it was nobody's business who she lives with but she would ask her boyfriend to move out while we were in town if I felt it would upset her parents so much. Last year her little brother stayed on with Renee a week after my husband and I returned home. I'm sure he'll want to do so again but I'm afraid Renee's boyfriend might move back with her. I'd hate for our son to see such goings on.

Renee is 26 and a nice girl. Maybe the new morality is something I'm not ready for. Please tell me what I should do in regard to our upcoming plans.—Old Fashioned Mo

Dear O.F.: Let Renee know that you, your husband and son will be coming to visit and that you appreciate her asking the boyfriend to leave elsewhere during your visit. Tell her it would be nice if her young brother could stay on for an additional week.

Renee is not the only thing I'm not ready for. Please tell me what I should do in regard to our upcoming plans.—Old Fashioned Mo

ALBURY 4H CLUB

ALBURY — The first meeting of the Albury 4H Club was held at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Peck on Saturday morning, September 30. There were 11 girls present for the project "Accessories for the Bedroom".

Election of officers were as follows: president, Elaine Wetherall; vice - president, Penny Weese treasurer, Anne Finlay; press reporter, Penny Weese; leaders, Evelyn Peck and Faye Wetherall.

The next meeting will be held Saturday, October 7 at the home of Evelyn Peck at 9.30 a.m.

UCW Meeting

TABERNACLE UCW

President, Mrs. R. Nelson welcomed everyone to the first meeting of Tabernacle UCW after summer holidays.

The minutes were read by Mrs. M. Lockyer and the treasurer, Mrs. D. Allchison reported a balance on hand. Several thank-you notes were read by the president. Mrs. Nelson. During the business, it was announced that future events for the UCW include: the Hastings Manor Bazaar, Church Week, October 15 and UCW rally at Canniffon on October 18.

The program convener Mrs. Weasels and her daughter, Doris Thain were in charge of the program. Pictures which were taken by Doris, her husband and family on their recent trip east were shown. In Quebec, there were several pictures of famous old churches, shrines, and public buildings. In Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the ocean scenes, tides, fishing and picturesque scenes were a view for all.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Lockyer.

The devotion period was in charge of Mrs. Stinson who gave readings from Proverbs. She closed with two poems on friendship and a hymn.

Rev. Dean pronounced the benediction and a social hour followed.

Old Time Story Books Requested

By DORIS CLARK

Three Requests:

1. A book called "The Now-A-Day Fairy Book" — a collection of stories about a family of children called Salsie, John and Charles and their adventures at grandmother's house.

2. A good used set of Uncle Arthur's Bible Story Books for Children.

3. Canadian Reader Books II and V, turned out 1927 to 1933.

As far as I can gather, all of these books are out of print but are fondly held in memory by grandmothers who would like to share the delight they had in them many years ago, with their own little ones. Would be willing, of course, to pay for them.

Dear Doris: Please give me some information about what types of jobs are available for persons with serious hearing loss. — Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: Mr. L. H. Parker of the Canadian Hearing Society says that except for the kind of work where easy means of communication is essential, the degree of the deaf is often superior when it comes to ability on the job.

Personally I have found that persons with a handicap often try harder to make a go of things.

For deaf employees Mr. Parker made some specific suggestions: Mail handler in post office; office clerk, copy typist) key punch operator; bookkeeping machine operator; dental mechanic assistant; lab technician assistant; general factory (machine operator or assembly); department store, (price tagging, display); housekeeping (hospital, hotel).

The important thing is to be willing to learn and have a good attitude- toward work, Hank Vicardi says "The only really handicapped person is the one who has lost the will to try."

Consult your Canada Manpower service or your local rehabilitation resource for guidance.

Dear Doris: My sister has asked me, what is love? I told her it is forgetting herself for the others. Being happy when he is, or sad when he is.

She has been going with him for some time. I suppose she is cautious, which is good. Since I am not an expert on the subject, I would like your leaflet "What is Love".? Thank you for doing such a good job. Twenty cents enclosed. — Just Wanting To Help

Dear Just Wanting: You are doing a pretty good job yourself. One counsellor I know says the essence of love is being more anxious for the loved one to be happy than for oneself. This is just another way of saying love makes one forget oneself in service to the beloved.

My leaflet "What Is Love?" goes into more detail; and tries to help the young people to distinguish between physical attraction and the kind of love which can last for life. Your copy is on its way.

We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular human problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Will homework triumph over TV?

THAT'S quite a challenge; homework has been fighting a losing battle for children's attention since long before little red schoolhouse days. Perhaps even the mere fact that you are still aware of it all in the form of the question, "Homework or TV?" is an indication of the validity of homework. That, of course, is not that homework keeps students occupied but that they can be motivated to continue to want to learn after school lets out.

Does love sabotage a woman's logic?

NO, although everyone, including the woman herself at times, will wonder what has got into a person who seems to let love change her completely—never, you can be sure, for the better. Love isn't blind; it is making her very, though. Meeting the man whose love seems to have changed her may have prompted the woman to restudy her goals. In the course of her striving to capture the love of that man, she may have developed attitudes that have altered her values.

Can owning a car change personality?

YES. The basic personality can become a tiger once he gets behind the wheel of his own car. Yet you wonder if he would have done flip-flops in personality even in the horse-and-carriage age. It's a funny thing, too, but the last someone knows about a car and how it works, the more easily his personality will change when he drives. Perhaps it's a person understood the mechanics of a car he would be less apt to let a mere machine embellish for any sense of his own deficiency.

Platform Soles Highlight Shoe Fashions

PARIS (Reuter) — Shoes clumsy enough to make a soldier's combat boot look as delicate as a ballerina's slipper are among the newest styles in women's footwear destined for the trendy youth brigade next year.

Footwear stood high on a platform at the 30th annual International Paris Leather Fair held here recently.

Soles measured two to three inches high, balanced by outsize heels or wedges towering up to six inches.

Despite drastic increases in the price of both raw and dressed leather, 1,304 exhibitors from 43 countries showed their wares at the fair, which established trends for next summer and set the scene as far ahead as winter 1973.

Britain sent its largest contingent ever—118 firms all anxious to gain a Common Market foothold before their country formally enters the market in January.

A South American embargo on the export of raw skins established earlier this year has seriously affected the international supply of leathers.

Snakeskin and reptiles are also in short supply for ecological reasons. A British tanner advocated the idea of establishing reptile farms in Asia or Africa to meet the current demand for exotic natural skins.

In women's shoes the over-all trend was a replay of Second World War styles with elevated soles, often rather Oriental in shaped like a crescent, for inspiration like Japanese clogs. Sandals and sabots occasionally resembled orthopaedic shoes.

Athletic track shoes were another major source of inspiration though not necessarily interpreted in the classic manner. Moccasins studded with nailheads or hardware trims were a further important trend.

Street shoes had the most fanciful heels and soles on record. One high point of the collection was a rocking-chair sole, which curved up at the front and back.

Platforms were also highlighted in the footwear collection which the wearer must develop an entirely new sense of balance.

News in leathers highlights a return to shiny patents, soft supple lustre leathers and the translucent sniffine kids. Suede is levelling off but is expected to pick up again by autumn 1973.

Pink is definitely the leading color for both footwear and apparel, followed by orange, the reds, poison green, violets, blues and chalky pastels.

MR. AND MRS. MURRAY SPENCER

Spencer — Gunning

St. John's United Church in Tweed was the scene of the recent marriage of Dianne Elizabeth Gunning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gunning, RR1, Tweed, and Murray Alan Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Spencer of Tweed. Rev. Ian Munro performed the marriage ceremony. The soloist, Mrs. Gwen Kingston, was accompanied by the organist Fred Porter.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a princess line gown of delustred peau de reine, the skirt falling into a chapel length train edged with re-embroidered lace. The neckline, long sleeves and pillow length veil which was caught to an orange blossom headdress, featured the same trim. She carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Miss Lorna Gunning, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her floor length gown was of triple georgette floral sheer in shades of apricot and dove grey, and featured leg-o'-mutton sleeves. She carried a basket of butterscotch daisies and baby's breath. The bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Spencer and Miss Barbara Spencer, sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Maureen Marshall and Mrs. Denise Havers, wore dresses identical to the maid of honor's. The flower girl, Lisa Marie Akey, niece of the bride, wore a long dress with puff sleeves in the same material as the bridesmaids.

Bill Spencer attended the bridegroom, his brother. The ushers were Jim Gunning, Kevin Fisher, Paul Lefebvre, and Doug Mohun. John Gunning, younger brother of the bride, as a special usher showed his mother to her seat. David Akey, nephew of the bride was ring bearer.

Following a social gathering at the bride's home, the bride's mother received guests at the reception held in the Tweed-Hungerford Senior School. She wore a floor-length gown of blue crepe with a mandarin collar and long sleeves, featuring a side pleat accentuated with pearl and sequin trim.

Silver accessories and a corsage composed of a gardenia and stephanotis completed her attire.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a floor length gown with a lime green chiffon top featuring Bishop sleeves. The scoop neckline and sleeves were banded in the same material as the skirt, variegated green embroidery on dark green nylon over lime green taffeta. She wore matching accessories with a gardenia and stephanotis corsage to complete her ensemble.

Leaving for a trip to Quebec City, the bride donned a floor length skirt in a mauve plaid with a beige Victorian-style blouse and mauve orchid.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer took up residence at 17 Edilou Drive, Toronto.

Club Activities

COLLEGE HILL WEDDING RING CLUB

College Hill Wedding Ring Club held their September meeting at the home of Boyd and June Moncrieff with group leaders, John and Kay Dowling in charge.

The new president, Lloyd Byrd welcomed all and began the meeting with an appropriate reading. He also welcomed a new couple to the club, David and Mavis Evans.

The minutes and roll call were given by the secretary, Evelyn McIlquham and Avis Dickens gave the treasurer's report.

Following the business, Frayne McDonald and Evelyn McIlquham took charge of devotions. A sing song was then conducted accompanied by William Sallins on the accordion.

Following the meeting, lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

Social And Personal

Prior to the wedding Mrs. Murray Spencer (nee Dianne Gunning) was honored at miscellaneous showers given by Mrs. Irene Bateman of Tweed, and by Mrs. Vincent Farrell of Tweed with Miss Marlene Farrell a co-hostess. Showers were held in Toronto by Miss Maureen Marshall, a bridesmaid, and by fellow staff members of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board. Before the wedding the bridegroom was entertained at a gathering of numerous friends in Tweed. A rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's parents Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Spencer.

Couple Wed 25 Years

A surprise 25th wedding anniversary party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Sprackett, Belleville in honor of Mrs. Sprackett's brother, Edward (Ted) Wessels and his wife, Muriel.

Approximately 40 relatives and friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. Wessels when they arrived. Parents of the honored couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Wessels and Mr. Herbert Peters were also in attendance.

Addresses were given by Mrs. Norman Wessels, Mr. William Wessels and Sharon Hall on the honored couple's behalf.

The honored couple was escorted to a linen covered table with a flower arrangement centrepiece and laden with gifts. Mrs. Wessels was the recipient of a corsage of red roses from her daughter, Lisa.

Ted and Muriel opened many beautiful gifts and thanked everyone for their thoughtfulness.

A musical program followed with accordion music provided by Nancy Post and Fred Wessels and Bill Lowry playing guitar. A very impressive mock wedding was performed where aunts, uncles, nephews and nieces of the honored couple took part, Mrs. Arnold Wessels conducted several games.

The program ended with everyone joining hands and singing with Mrs. Norman Wessels leading in the accompaniment of Bill Lowery on guitar.

The hostess and her helpers served the anniversary cake and lunch.

Mongoloid Child Needs Activity

EDMONTON (CP) — Parker Stewart was born a mongoloid 38 years ago and doctors considered him a complete idiot with no hope of improvement.

His brother, Winnifred, was told he had only three years to live and with their home-ledge, most patients would have lost hope. But the two women who later was to have a great impact on the public attitude concerning mental retardation.

"There was no room for bitterness— he was too sweet. Parker was just another baby who needed the same love, care and guidance as any other child."

Mrs. Stewart had a single-minded ambition—to provide her son a "happy and productive life."

She knew from her nursing experience that most mongoloid children die early of respiratory failure due to inactivity and was determined to overcome this problem—by keeping him physically and mentally active. Her son survived.

Her efforts were rewarded when, contrary to the doctors' warning that her son would never walk, Parker took his first steps at 18 months.

A daily routine slowly evolved that later formed the basis of an education program used in 16 schools for the mentally retarded across Canada and in several schools outside the country.

Parker's environment became his classroom. Meal times taught him manners and involved him with household chores. Large printed signs were placed by buns on furniture to help him identify words with objects. His toys were learning tools that taught him numbers and colorful books created by Mrs. Stewart further broadened his knowledge. Singing helped improve his pronunciation and dancing his co-ordination.

Mrs. Stewart took him on shopping trips, excursions to the zoo and to the occasional movie. She encouraged the neighborhood children to play with Parker by joining with him in their games.

"I refused to deny him an experience. He had to learn to live in his environment even if it meant a few bumps and bruises."

At seven, Parker had learned to talk, and she attempted to enrol him in public school. But the principal told her the system was not adapted to teaching mongoloid children.

Two years later, she thought she had found an institution that could help her son.

"I was so desperate that if the home had offered a good education program, I would have scrubbed floors for Parker's room and board."

But although the children there were happy, mom was as advanced as Parker and she decided to continue his education at home.

In January, 1953, a chance meeting with the head director of the Society for the Physically Handicapped led to a public flowering of Mrs. Stewart's ideas for educating the retarded.

When informed of her desire to organize a program for the mentally handicapped he provided the names of six parents in a similar situation. A short time later, the six men met to discuss their problems and interested persons met in Mrs. Stewart's home and the Edmonton Association for Retarded Children was born.

Mrs. Stewart's energies now were directed to getting public support for her program and the news media provided the vehicle for her campaign.

"My biggest problem was, and is still, to make people realize the retarded are individual human beings with every right to be happy and useful citizens."

In March, 1964, she was invited to speak before the Alberta legislature.

"I told the legislators the retarded had been cheated of their birthright. I related my own experience and told them financial aid was needed if a proper job was to be done and they replied with a standing ovation."

More rewarding than the ovation was the passage of Canada's first legislation providing financial aid to a school for the retarded.

A plot of land was donated by the city and in September, 1958, the Winnifred Stewart School for Retarded Children was opened. Six years later the present school was constructed, adjacent to the first building.

The latest addition is a $1.7-million Industrial Research and Training Centre sponsored by the Edmonton Association for Retarded Children and located on the Mecadets of the city. Children from the school for the retarded graduate into the institution where they learn industrial skills ranging from graphic arts to computer assembly.

Mrs. Stewart's reputation spread beyond Canada's borders. She has been asked by special educators officials from Russia, Australia, New Zealand, the United States and Thailand and has had inquiries from India, England, and Italy. Her honors include a citation as Edmonton's Citizen of the Year and the Medal of Service of the Order of Canada.

Mrs. Stewart feels that despite the progress made in educating the retarded, the public is losing sight of the need to develop the retarded child as a well-rounded individual.

"In many cases it seems the priority is to get a governmental institution which is more a workshop than a place to develop the complete individual.

"If the child is capable of working with a computer, why settle for having him place a nut on a bolt?"

One Should Check References

TORONTO (CP) — Choosing a repair man or a contractor can be a worrying business, especially if you consider wiring tiles or roofing or wiring dark mysteries.

Your own caution is your best protection, Lawrence Felton says. Take the time to comparison-shop and check references.

Mr. Felton is general manager of the Homeservice Club of Canada, which has a roster of service men to work for subscribers.

"The problem is that if a contractor comes to you to do a large job, chances are he'll never see you again," he said in an interview. "He has no interest in building goodwill. He may leave things undone, say 'so long' and good riddance to you.

"Then there are a lot of people with dollar signs for eyeballs. They try to suit the price of the job to the man's income. If they are called to an expensive home, they'll say the price is $400 when they'd tell anyone else $200, which is completely unfair.

"Call neighborhood firms if you can, and call firms that have been in business a long time.

"It's always best to get several bids, three is usually enough. If one bids $1,000, another $400 and a third $990, you know the $400 bidder isn't going to do a good job. But don't get 10 bids. That just adds to everyone's costs.

"If possible get addresses and go and have a look at the work, or phone numbers so you can call previous customers."

Mr. Felton had some other tips for the homeowner, especially one with a good-sized job under way.

"Look at the job every night and make a list of what you think is wrong," he said.

Have the work looked after the next morning. As Mr. Felton put it, "there is no point in being nice—you're going to pay full dollar for the work."

All of this was for the homeowner but there was another side to the coin.

Some householders try to hold up a firm's money afterward, claiming they were not satisfied.

This was unfair, he said.

Agreements should be in writing, said Mr. Felton, adding:

"If you're doing something like a recreation room, get a draughtsman or an architect to draw a plan and have half-a-dozen copies made so firms are bidding on the same thing.

"Sometimes a contractor will say he'll make you a set of plans. He does anything for nothing. Unless you pay him for them, they belong to him and you may feel a sense of obligation. Get plans from someone who doesn't do the work."

Mr. Felton said the same cautions approach is advisable even if you have an emergency problem with drains or electricity.

"Call three different people and let them diagnose your problem. It may well be worth while to pay the service charges.

"If you have a drain problem, call the city water works department and let them diagnose it. It may take longer, but it could turn out to be their problem."

Law to Protect People From Credit Report Abuse

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Eric Winkler, former Ontario minister of consumer and commercial relations, announced Wednesday the provincial government is preparing legislation to protect people from credit-reporting abuse.

Mr. Winkler told the Orangeville Chamber of Commerce the legislation is designed "to protect the individual and ensure his right not only to see, but also to correct all information about him used by reporting agencies."

He said the legislation "will attempt to be fair to all concerned, but it will be firm and it will be introduced as soon as possible."

Personal information reports compiled by consumer reporting agencies are used by many businessmen to make decisions on credit and employment applications.

"While we do not doubt that the majority of businesses gathering or using personal information do so responsibly, there is no set way to guarantee this and to correct mistakes," he said.

Undertaker Is Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Stenson, registrar of the board of administration of the Embalmers and Funeral Directors Act, said Wednesday three charges of unprofessional conduct have been laid against a Toronto undertaker.

He said the charges, concerning the burial of indigents in Metropolitan Toronto, will be heard in camera by the board, which consists of four undertakers and a Presbyterian minister.

Mr. Steenson said identification of the undertaker is being withheld because "if the name was made public now, the man could lose his entire business."

He said the disciplinary hearing, first in Ontario in at least 10 years, will be held within a month. Witnesses would be subpoenaed and would testify under oath and evidence would be recorded by a bonded clerk.

Controller Mel Lastman of the Borough of North York, who told Metropolitan Toronto council about the case Tuesday night, said Wednesday he has learned from health officials that investigation of the undertaker showed that some bodies of indigents were "wrapped in plastic that looked like garbage bags."

Courthouse 'Possible Firetrap'

BRANTFORD (CP) — A grand jury said Wednesday that the quarters of Brant County Judge Edward Fanjoy were "a disgrace and an insult" and the courthouse itself was "a possible firetrap."

The jury, which made its comments following a tour of the court facilities, recommended that a new courthouse be constructed.

It said the judge's quarters, especially the dressing room, are a disgrace . . . they are too small and are very musty and damp smelling."

The jury also said there was a shortage of fire extinguishers in the courthouse and only one fire escape.

Grimsby Told To Boil Drinking Water

GRIMSBY, Ont. (CP) — For the second time in five weeks residents of this town 15 miles west of St. Catharines have been told to boil their drinking water.

The warning was issued Wednesday by Dr. J. N. Burkholder of the Niagara regional health unit after tests of Grimsby's water supply showed dangerous levels of harmful bacteria.

Similar conditions in early September were corrected by flushing the water system and using increased amounts of chlorine.

Dr. Burkholder said health unit officials and waterworks employees are investigating the cause of the high coliform count.

The town draws its water from Lake Ontario.

Richardson Appeal Dismissed by Court

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada Wednesday dismissed an appeal by the Richardson family grain interests of Winnipeg against imposition of nearly $1.25 million in taxes on some of their 1952-53 income.

Mr. Justice D. C. Abbott, presiding over a panel of five judges, dismissed the case from the bench after hearing lawyers argue that arrangements made between Richardson Pipeline and Dredging Ltd., two Richardson firms, were proper and businesslike.

The family is that of James Richardson, federal minister of supply and services.

The $1,340,876 in taxes had already been paid. Richardson Terminals was appealing against the levy, and took the case to the Supreme Court after the Exchequer Court of Canada ruled against it last year.

Richardson Terminals appealed against corporate income tax levies on $1.66 million in profits from a grain terminal at the Lakehead, earned in 1953 to 1957 when the firm was acting as agent for Marine Province. A Richardson firm that previously had piled up losses totalling more than $1.38 million.

The two firms had made an arrangement which Richardson Terminals' lawyers said was intended to offset the losses against the profits.

All of the firms involved in the case were wholly-owned subsidiaries of James Richardson and Sons Ltd., Winnipeg which in turn was owned by brothers James and Gimpi Richardson and members of their families. James Richardson retired from the position of chief executive officer when he became a cabinet minister in 1968.

Roger Letourneau, lawyer for the Richardsons, said Marine Pipeline and Dredging had fallen on hard times because of slack pipeline construction business and had piled up large losses. Richardson Terminals showed a profit on its grain elevators.

The parent firm and the Richardson family were unwilling to wind up the pipeline company and were unlikely to find a buyer for it because of its losses and its involvement in two other court cases.

They were advised by tax lawyers and accountants to expand the pipeline company to take in some profitable enterprise and try to recover the losses. So agreements were made among the firms by which the pipeline company sold then engaged the elevator and then engaged the elevator company to operate the grain terminal as its agents.

Is this way, the Richardsons believed, the pipeline losses could be offset against the terminal profits for tax purposes. The revenue department, however, won lower court judgments that the agreements were, in effect, a sham and the profits made by the terminal should be taxed in the hands of the terminal company, and not the pipeline company.

Workers Gain Wage Parity

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The 55 civilians employed by the Niagara Regional police force have gained wage parity with Niagara regional police workers.

The Niagara regional police association announced Wednesday the 55 employees will receive wage increases ranging from $550 to $1,250 in a one-year contract effective retroactively from the beginning of this year to this December.

The agreement also provides for improved vacation, hospital and medical benefits and new shift premiums.

Negotiations concerning the force's 450 policemen have gone into provincial arbitration.

Striking Workers Charged

DOUGLAS POINT, Ont. (CP) — More than 200 workers at the Bruce nuclear power development here are being charged with participating in an illegal walkout last April.

Provincial police said Wednesday they began serving summonses Tuesday and that they expect it will take a couple of weeks to reach all the men being charged.

A court office spokesman said the exact number of summonses being served is not known, but the figure is "over 200."

The summonsed employees, all members of Local 1,285, Canadian Union of Public Employees, are to appear in provincial court in Walkerton Dec. 11.

In June, Ontario Hydro received permission from the Ontario Labor Relations Board to prosecute 223 employees who walked off their jobs April 3 and $ in a dispute over employment of non-CUPE workers on the power development.

The walkout halted work at the power station in this community about 35 miles southwest of Owen Sound. It had not been authorized by the CUPE executive, which ordered the men to return to their jobs.

The workers, all chemical equipment operators or maintenance workers, returned at noon April 6.

A spokesman for Local 1,600 said Wednesday, the timing of the summonses is "very near."

Although the charges involve a separate incident not connected with the present strike by Local 100 against Ontario Hydro, the spokesman said they will likely cause "backlash" in today's vote on a new contract by the 750 CUPE workers here.

The present strike has lasted 108 days. Voting on Hydro's new offer began across the province Tuesday. Results will be made public Oct. 16.

Midnight Reflection

Why should you have to sprint to get a hot shower?

An oil-fired heater can give you up to 30 gallons of hot shower water in 20 minutes.

It's morning shower time in some homes, this is what happens. Dad gets on his mark. Sets. And there he goes. If the family beats poor old Dad to the shower and uses up all the hot water, he may not get a hot shower at all. Not unless his house has an oil-fired water heater.

Oil can heat water 3 times as fast as gas; 6 times as fast as electricity. So it makes a lot of sense that an oil heater is going to give your family more hot water faster for hot showers, and washing soiled clothes. Not to mention the pile of breakfast dishes.

Oil really does heat faster. It's a fact we can prove. If you're not heating water with oil now, sprint to your phone and call us on our hot line.

IRA Says Spy Ring Smashed

BELFAST (CP) — The Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army said Wednesday night it smashed a British army intelligence undercover ring in Belfast and "executed" five agents, including the daughter of an army brigadier.

The British army called the IRA claim "ridiculous rubbish". But it followed the machine - gun slaying Monday of British undercover agent Tom Stewart, posing as a laundry van driver in Belfast. The Provisionals admitted they were responsible.

The agent and a girl soldier posing as his assistant were one of several undercover intelligence teams operating in Belfast.

The teams form the 50-strong MRF (Immediate Reaction Force), which is reputed to have scored several notable successes against the Provisionals in the last few months.

The army was reported to have launched a major security investigation into how the IRA learned the non-existent "Four Square Laundry" operation was an elaborate cover for an intelligence setup. There were fears the IRA had penetrated the undercover organization.

Sources said these fears were heightened Wednesday when the IRA said it had killed Stewart and four other agents, including the groups second in command, whom they identified as an army major known by the code-name "Bosman Jim".

The army admitted Stewart's death but the IRA said the army had hushed up the loss of the other four agents.

The army said it "announced the death of any army personnel killed." But a military intelligence officer was quoted as saying: "Like any other intelligence service, we employ people who are not in the army."

The IRA, which said it has organized its own counter-intelligence group to track down British agents, charged the army recruited local men and women who were arrested, then offered their freedom if they worked for MRF and identified IRA men at screening centres.

The Provisionals warned in their statement: "We know the identity of these men and women. They must be prepared to take the consequences."

BOMB KILLS ONE

Bomb explosions killed one man during another night of violence in Northern Ireland.

A 23-year-old Roman Catholic bricklayer, Patrick Connelly, was blown up in a bomb blast as he watched television with his family in Portadown, a predominantly Protestant industrial town south of Belfast.

Sarcastic Brief's Message Serious

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories has submitted a sarcastic brief to the territorial government to, parody the idea of legalized prostitution in the Canadian north.

The paper, aiming to condemn the idea through satirical praise, is designed to "expose the idiocy of the whole exercise," said a spokesman for the brotherhood.

Part of the paper says:

"The government of Canada had been prostituting this country to the Americans for years. Why should the native people not be given the opportunity to participate? They could then say at last that they were enjoying the full rights of Canadian citizenship."

The Territorial Council last summer asked for a report on the feasibility of licensing prostitutes. Tom Butters, elected member for Western Arctic said the plan could be a method for controlling the soaring venereal disease rate in the North.

The Indian brief says that typically in history, prostitution has been motivated by economic reasons and prostitutes and their protectors came from the ranks of the economically disadvantaged.

"It can be said that the merits of legalizing prostitution in the N.W.T. are obvious.

"Since the native people are the most disadvantaged in the N.W.T. from the economic viewpoint, and since the business of prostitution draws upon the ranks of disadvantaged, prostitution must be developed for the advantage of the native people."

The brief says that under federal guidelines, northern development must have as a first priority the welfare of the native people. Legalized prostitution, therefore, was the opportunity the government has been looking for.

"If oil companies are going to import 5,000 pipeline workers, surely they must be told to hold the line.

"Under no circumstances must they be allowed to import prostitutes from the south, thereby taking away traditional job opportunities from native people."

Continuing the sarcastic tone, the brotherhood paper recommends a three-point plan of action, starting with the establishment of a department of prostitution in the territorial government. An alternative would be a prostitution control board similar to provincial liquor control boards.

Mocking the territorial government's concern over the federal presence in the North and northern autonomy, the brotherhood says it would give all necessary assistance to the territorial government "to ensure that this valuable resource is not taken over by the federal government."

It goes on to call for training courses in prostitution at adult vocational colleges.

"The department of industry and development should make available large loans of money to native entrepreneurs through the small business loan fund to set up native - owned - and - operated houses of prostitution."

A brotherhood spokesman said there has been no response to the paper from the territorial government.

A government report of the feasibility of licensing prostitutes is expected to be tabled during a special session of the Territorial Council that starts Oct. 19 at Frobisher Bay.

Spadina Question Is Tricky

TORONTO (CP) — City solicitor William Callow was ordered Wednesday to find a legal way to place the question of completion of the Spadina expressway on ballots in the December Municipal election.

City council's executive committee ordered Mr. Callow to "frame a question that is legal and intelligible to the electorate."

The boroughs of York and North York have voted to include the question "Are you in favor of completion of the Spadina Expressway" on their ballot.

But the question is illegal since the issue is beyond the jurisdiction of any one borough or area in the West.

the city of Toronto.

Mr. Callow said the bylaw that put the question on the ballot could successfully be challenged by any citizen and all ballots then would have to be destroyed and reprinted before the election.

If the question were left on the ballot, he said, enough ballots could be ruined by people answering the Spadina question to "upset the whole election."

The expressway, which would have cut through a portion of midtown Toronto, was ordered stopped last year by the Ontario cabinet.

Sub Bases

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States Navy is considering one West Coast and three East Coast sites as possible locations for the first Trident nuclear missile submarine base, Senate sources said Wednesday. The sources said the sites under consideration are southern East Coast locations and in the Seattle, Wash., area in the West.

CNTU Faces Cutbacks

MONTREAL (CP) — President Marcel Pepin of the Confederation of National Trade Unions told his organization's executive council Wednesday the CNTU will have to face the possibility of budget cuts.

He said the CNTU would have to adopt a plan of action aimed at ending the movement towards disaffiliation by many CNTU members.

The council, the CNTU's major governing body between conventions, opened a four-day meeting here Wednesday.

The CNTU could suffer financially if the wave of disaffiliations by unions and member federations which began with the founding of the Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques last June by CNTU dissidents continues.

Last month the 28,000-member provincial civil servants union voted in a referendum to quit the federation. In most cases the unions which leave have objected to the CNTU's political affiliation.

Mr. Pepin said CNTU members should not be the disaffiliations distract them from the "reality of our union life and our objectives."

Mr. Pepin said CNTU leadership would present, the meeting with a plan of action whose primary aim will be to revitalize the CNTU among its members and to offer better services.

Bumpers Rate Discount

TORONTO (CP) — Better automobile bumpers deserve lower insurance costs, the Canadian Underwriters Association has decided.

The association has introduced a 10-per-cent reduction in collision coverage premiums on 1973 model cars with improved impact-resistant bumpers.

The reduction applies to all 1973 model cars that meet collision standards developed by the U. S. department of transportation, and now approved in Canada. These standards stipulate that the vehicle's bumpers must be capable of withstanding a straight-on or barrier collision of five miles an hour to the front end and 2.5 miles an hour to the rear end.

Stirling

STIRLING — A memorial window depicting the "Flight into Egypt" was dedicated in St. John's Anglican Church recently. Rev. Charles Staples and the venerable Nicholas Stout, now retired and living in Peterborough, conducted the festival service.

Mrs. Ira David, Miss Debbie David, Mrs. Herb David and Miss Lenora Williams attended the wedding of the former's daughter, Miss Raye David and Mr. William Wallace in Rosedale United Church, Toronto on Saturday.

Stirling Encampment No 80 IOOF held a very successful chicken barbecue at the lodge hall. There were 275 people in attendance who enjoyed a very tasty meal. The De Vries brothers cooked the chicken.

Mrs. Andrew Tait, Montreal and Mrs. Charles Banks, Moose Jaw, Sask. spent last week with Mrs. J. B. Thompson.

Marmora

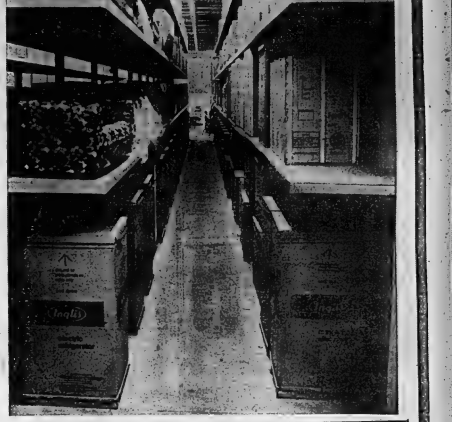
MARMORA—Mr. and Mrs. Ron Brown of Bonarlaw and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Caverly of Marmora spent Saturday at the International Hockey Match in Stratford. They stayed overnight in Orangeville and enjoyed a visit of the area on Sunday before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Micklejohn have returned home from visiting Sandra and Doug Trumble and their family in Winnipeg.

Mrs. E. F. MacKay and Mrs. E. P. Diemert of Hamilton, Provincial President and Provincial Secretary of the I.O.D.E. respectively, were overnight guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Aylen following the dinner on Thursday evening at Sacred Church Hall.

Rev. Jack Howard of Havelock was guest speaker at the Harvest Thanksgiving Services in St. Paul's Church, Marmora, St. Mark's, Bonarlaw and St. Thomas', Rawdon, on Sunday. He was accompanied to Marmora by Mrs. Howard and their two sons.

White's District



WHITE'S DISTRICT — Bible Study for the Bayside area was held at the home of Mrs. Eldine Webb of Trenton on Wednesday morning.

Miss Roxanne Kleinsteuber and Master Raymond Kleinsteuber of Barrie were Saturday visitors of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bilham.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ross and Annette of Sidney were Sunday evening dinner guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Keneth Bush.

At Westminster United Church on Sunday morning, Rev. Frank Mitchell spoke on "Gracious Invitation" with the communion service following the service. The senior choir rendered an anthem and an offertory hymn.

Police Recover Stolen Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Acting on an anonymous tip, Metropolitan Toronto police Tuesday recovered almost $250,000 in stolen bonds and some classified documents and revolvers stolen last year from the RCMP detachment at Long Sault near Cornwall.

Police said they received a call saying they would find "something interesting" if they checked a "stolen" car in Toronto's west end.

In the car, they found a man and a locked metal strong box containing stock certificates stolen from a home in suburban Etobicoke May 6, 1971.

Later, detectives searched a trailer at Ornemee, 15 miles northwest of Peterborough, and found six revolvers and ammunition, $7,800 in bonds and what they referred to as confidential reports taken from the Long Sault office of the RCMP stolen May 6 of last year.

The reports are believed to contain the names of paid drug informers.

Also at the Toronto residence, police recovered stolen cameras, recovered stolen cameras, stereo equipment and other merchandise and some bonds taken in a $1-million burglary at another Toronto home earlier this year.

Stanley Herbert Norman, 29, of Toronto has been charged with possession of stolen property and two counts of breaking and entering.

Atom Test Signs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced Wednesday that seismic signals, presumably from a large Soviet underground nuclear explosion, were recorded by the United States Tuesday. The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said, the signals were equivalent to those of an explosion in the yield range between 200,000 and one million tons of TNT.

RCMP Changes Procedures

REGINA (CP) — The RCMP has established a plan to give rank-and-file members direct access to the commissioner, Superintendent H. K. Jourdry of Regina said Tuesday.

In a new procedure to be followed by RCMP Divisions across Canada, representatives of the constables and non-commissioned officers of Saskatchewan's six sub-divisions are to meet Friday to discuss grievances and other problems.

A staff representative will present the resolutions to the commissioner of the RCMP in Ottawa in late November or early December for considera-

Ontario Texts to Delete Prejudicial References

TORONTO (CP) — Steps to eliminate prejudicial references in school textbooks to Indians, Eskimos, immigrants and women are being taken by the Ontario government after more than seven years of study.

Education Minister Thomas Wells said Wednesday night that a study of 1,300 books authorized for classroom use by his ministry found that 28 per cent—about 370 books—demonstrate some prejudice.

"Let me say immediately that we are not talking about censorship or anything like that," he said. But "we are determined that the textbooks used in this province will present a fair and accurate assessment of the accomplishments and achievements of all the groups that make up our society."

". . . Most contain relatively few examples of prejudice," Mr. Wells told about 100 persons attending a supper meeting of the Canadian Association of Publishers, Educational Representatives.

"But some of those examples were abusive, and almost all were unnecessary."

Mr. Wells said the number of prejudicial references could be halved if authors would stop using five "dirty words"—square, half-breed, savage, massacre and murder—when writing about Indians and Eskimos.

He gave two examples of textbook prejudice.

The first repeatedly described Indians as savages who tortured enemies, practised infanticide and treated their wives like slaves.

The second, translated from a French-language text, was:

"Mangot is really funny. Her dresses are always too long and she lives in a quaint house at the other end of town. Her parents are funny, too. They come from another country."

The education minister said he has not been made public but Mr. Wells said it will likely be released within two weeks, as soon as the ministry can make sufficient copies.

Mr. Wells spoke of the findings of an inter-ministerial textbook committee, headed by Dr. Daniel Hill, who is also chairman of the Ontario Human Rights Commission.

It examined the education study as well as an earlier study done by the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education on behalf of the OHRC. The OISE study was published as a book entitled "Teaching Prejudice."

Mr. Wells said in an interview that despite the overwhelming evidence of biased textbooks the government is not going to remove any books from the authorized list.

Instead, when an authorized book is reprinted, it will be subjected to a revised form of the prejudice scrutiny and all new textbooks will be checked before they are placed on the authorized list.

Publishers will be asked to submit books in manuscript form to the human rights commission for evaluation of bias before the final printing stage.

In his speech Mr. Wells said an example of bias is in relation to women, especially working mothers.

"When women are shown working they are almost invariably single. Only rarely are the teachers and nurses married women and the working mother is totally absent from all of the stories."

The books depicted little boys leading active lives with a broad range of careers open to them. Little girls, however, were shown leading passive lives with very restricted career possibilities.

Doorman Escapes Car Bombing

MONTREAL (CP) — Geoffrey Creswell, 22, a doorman at an east-end night club, escaped with slight injuries Wednesday when a bomb exploded in his car as he was leaving his home.

Mr. Creswell was released from hospital after treatment for leg cuts.

Four youths standing near the car at the time of the explosion also were injured slightly by flying debris.

Two Montreal policemen were parked about 20 feet behind the car when the explosion occurred.

"I saw this big guy come across the street and then saw a shadow near the car. It was dark you know, Then I saw the car blow up," said Sgt. Jean Paul Blodin.

"First there was a spark and soon after a lot of white smoke," he said.

A member of the police technical squad said the bomb, connected to the car's ignition, had been placed too close to the front of the car to hurt anyone in the driver's seat.

Interest Not Conflict Says David Rotenberg

TORONTO (CP) — Ald. David Rotenberg, a candidate for mayor, said Wednesday that he and four members of his family share a $50,000 mortgage on a building owned by a man who was described by a judge as a "confessedgate landlord" during the court appearance.

Mr. Rotenberg added that he has "nothing to hide."

The Star said Mr. Rotenberg first denied any business connections with Philip Wynn, the landlord, but the aldermen told The Globe and Mail he told a Star reporter about the mortgage immediately when he was questioned privately at a Metropolitan Toronto Council meeting Tuesday.

Mr. Wynn was named in 1970 by Darcy McKeough, then minister of municipal affairs, as the defendant in nearly one-quarter of all prosecutions in 1969 for failure to pass on the provincial basic shelter exemption grant to tenants.

Mr. Rotenberg said his family has a third mortgage, paying 12 per cent interest, on a mid-town building owned by a company of which Mr. Wynn is president. The mortgage, taken out in September, 1968, is renewable annually and can be cancelled by either party at any time, provided the principle and accrued interest are paid in full.

He said $10,000 has been paid off.

The alderman said he saw no conflict of interest in the investment because the 15-year-old building and its immediate area were not scheduled for redevelopment.

Mr. Rotenberg said he had known Mr. Wynn casually since childhood.

He said Mr. Wynn, as far as he knows, has not contributed to his mayoralty campaign and he does not want a contribution from him.

"If I was offered this mortgage now, I would think twice about investing with Wynn because he has been a matter of controversy," the alderman said.

The other two mayoralty candidates, Ald. Tony O'Donohue and Ald. David Crombie, have disclosed their real estate interests.

Mr. Rotenberg said Tuesday he has no obligation to disclose his holdings. But on Wednesday he said he has instructed his lawyer to prepare a list of his family's interests in land in the Metro area and will make it public "in order to avoid any future innuendos".

He said he has no interest in any other buildings owned by Mr. Wynn.

Reaction of Others Dehumanizing Aspect

MONTREAL (CP) — Mental retardation is demoralizing and dehumanizing, not necessarily because of the disorder itself, but because of the reactions of others to the mentally-retarded person, delegates to an international congress on mental retardation have concluded.

The basic aim of the congress which ended Wednesday, was to try to bring to the awareness of all 88 member countries ways that they might try to implement the declaration on the rights of the mentally retarded, said President Yvonne Pesenaar of Switzerland during the opening.

The declaration, passed 1 a s t December by the United Nations, lists seven basic rights of the mentally retarded—the seven that normal human beings take for granted.

Throughout the conference, many of the 125 speakers described situations that indicated the mentally retarded need emancipation—that they are not treated as human beings with basic rights.

And because of their condition, which often prevents them from fighting for rights themselves, sometimes even by law, it falls on the shoulders of those who will help them.

During Wednesday's sessions, several speakers said one of the most helpful groups are the youth.

One speaker, Kate Roden, 18, a nursing student from the University of Illinois, Chicago, described a program in which more than 15,000 young people ages 13 to 25 are working in the United States.

Miss Roden told how she learned of the problems of dehumanization of the mentally retarded. She described a program for the Youth Association for Retarded Children — Youth ARC—that helps them to understand the dehumanizing effects and the reactions of others have on retarded persons.

In many of the Youth ARC programs, members l e a r n to increase their sensitivity to the problems of the mentally retarded through three programs: handicapped for a day, restrained for a day or admitted for a day.

In each of these programs, the young person must live for a day as though he was the handicapped individual.

Miss Roden said she has been admitted as a mentally retarded person to an institution for a day and had also spent one day with her eyes bandaged as though she was blind.

She said what she and others have learned is "as enlightening as getting back your sight." One needs to feel the intolerance, the inhumanity, that is shown the mentally retarded, many of whom are able to understand and feel and who are merely slow to learn, not idiots, she said.

Bernard Posner, 50, deputy executive secretary for President Nixon's committee on employment of the handicapped, also acted the role of a mentally-handicapped person, at one time working for two weeks in a laundry as a mentally-retarded person to learn firsthand how the retarded are treated by fellow employees.

He told a news conference later that all professionals should keep the role of their clients once in a while so they can take some of the problems the handicapped must experience.

Mr. Posner said when he first began to work at the laundry he was ostracized—closed out—by his fellow workers. They distrusted and feared a mentally-retarded person, and would not accept him.

However, during the next few days, led by a motherly woman who continued to try to teach him some of the "sophisticated ways" of folding the laundry he gradually became accepted.

The consensus among speakers during the congress was that the mentally retarded must be integrated into the community. Their addresses stressed the need for dismissal of old fashioned institutions, separate workshops and closed clubs, except for periods of training and possibly for the most seriously handicapped.

Provincial Institutions May Hold Prisoners

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said Wednesday the federal government will establish a Penitentiary Act to allow provincial institutions to hold federal prisoners.

He said this would be a step toward eliminating the federal penitentiary for women at Kingston, Ont.

"We have been negotiating with the Elizabeth Fry Society in some large cities to take care of some women prisoners who are not a danger to society," he said. But we still have the problem of hard core women prisoners."

Mr. Goyer, addressing a criminal rehabilitation conference, said his department is on the verge of reaching an agreement with all the provinces to pay them to hold federal prisoners.

"But we need to amend the Penitentiary Act," he said. "According to the act we can't receive provincial inmates but can receive federal inmates in provincial institutions.

Kingston penitentiary is the only federal institution for women in Canada. Women convicted of federal offences from all parts of the country serve their sentences there.

This is against the basic philosophy of his department, Mr. Goyer said. According to that policy, prisoners should be detained as near as possible to friends and relatives.

Kraft Found Guilty

MONTREAL (CP) — Kraft Foods Ltd. was found guilty Wednesday of a charge of false advertising in its "Explore Canada 70" contest.

Mr. Justice Claude Valleran set Oct. 18 to hear arguments before sentencing.

The sales promotion contest sponsored by the company offered participants "15 big chances to win" a plane trip to any Canadian city, free use of vehicles, $1,000 spending money and a set of luggage.

Chief federal Crown prosecutor Louis-Philippe Landry said no contestant had "15 big chances je win" and 120,900 of the 271,000 entrants had simply wanted a stamp.

Prizes and weekly drawings were done on a regional basis with three prizes going to Quebec and Ontario, two for British Columbia and the Yukon territories and one to each of the other provinces, he said.

The contest ran from January to April, 1970.

Palmer Is Appointed Chairman of OMB

TORONTO (CP) — William Palmer, 58, a career civil servant with no academic credentials, has accepted the tough job of chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board.

His appointment, announced Wednesday by Premier William Davis, comes at a time when the function of the board is under review by a select committee of the Ontario legislature.

It is also the result of the retirement of J. A. Kennedy, an outsider, who, for 12 years as chairman acted as a buffer between the provincial and municipal governments in ruling on debt management and planning by municipalities, the board's major function.

Mr. Palmer, however, doesn't think his 27 years of service as both administrator and deputy minister with the government will affect his objectivity in his new role.

"I think I can be objective," he said at a news conference shortly after the announcement of his appointment, effective Nov. 1.

I've been a 'provincial' civil servant, not 'necessarily a municipal civil servant.'

He is the first civil servant to head non-lawyer to take over the board, which was set up in 1932.

Tall and trim, he said he has recovered from major surgery this summer and is ready to take over as full-time chairman.

Born in Toronto's Scarborough, he was acting "as a senior adviser with deputy minister status in implementing the government's major reorganization program begun last fall, when he was summoned to his new post by Mr. Davis.

Prior to that, he was deputy municipal affairs minister until the department was abolished under reorganization. He joined the civil service in 1945 after high school and took several courses on administration and managerial efficiency while furnishing his government career. The Palmers have three children.

Despite his lack of university training, he said he has no reservations about accepting the post, although he sidestepped most of the questions about the board's function.

"You must remember I'm not on the board yet," he said. "I think it is very difficult to become an expert in any area until you've worked in it."

Mr. Palmer, said he has no personal goals for the board and "I don't intend to move in with a new broom."

He said he would appear before the select committee if asked, but confessed he didn't have "enough first-hand knowledge of the board to make a worthwhile contribution." He said he was active in the ministry responsible for the board, which is quasi-independent.

But he was firm in his belief that the board should be a protector of minority rights, prepared to hear any and all objections. This was one issue detailed by the select committee which heard evidence that the board had become autocratic.

He said his philosophy about the board was close to Mr. Kennedy's but disagreed with the former chairman that the OMB should act as an ombudsman to protect those harmed by municipal projects.

Mr. Palmer said he won't be affected by Mr. Davis's guidelines on conflict of interest, but intends to declare his land holdings — his home, and a summer cottage.

Massey-Ferguson Workers Walk Out

TORONTO (CP) — Production was halted at four plants of Massey-Ferguson Industries Ltd. at noon Wednesday when 3,300 workers walked off the job to back up demands for a 12-per-cent pay hike.

The strike involves 1,700 workers at three plants in Brantford, Ont., members of Local 458, United Auto Workers, and 1,600 members of Local 439 at a Toronto plant.

A union spokesman said Wednesday the workers are seeking the 12-per-cent increase in a 14-month agreement. He said wages in a previous 18-month interim agreement, which expired Sept. 1, averaged $4.20 an hour.

He said the company has offered a three-per-cent increase in a one-year contract.

Talks between company and union bargainers broke off just before the noon deadline, with both sides agreeing to meet again today.

One of the Brantford plants manufactures combines for sale throughout North America. Another, a foundry, produces castings for North American and overseas markets. The third makes farm implements and components.

The Toronto plant manufactures a variety of items, including hay balers, grain drills and components.

Pair Charged With Murder

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police have charged a man and a woman with non-capital murder in the death of a 64-year-old man near this northwestern Ontario community.

Thomas Hawke, 21, and Arlene Thomas, 22, were remanded for one week when they appeared in court Tuesday to face the charges.

Police said 64-year-old John Roberts was found dead of a fractured skull Sunday at his cabin about nine miles from town.

Tigers Click With Veterans

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Tigers have won the chips in the American League East Division and they head west for a game of higher stakes against Oakland Athletics.

"They call us the over-the hill gang and things like that because of all the veterans on our squad," says Tiger pitcher Mickey Lolich, "but I don't think we're that bad."

Apparently Las Vegas bookies don't think that, the Tigers are that bad, either. They rated a toss-up to win the best-of-five-game series from the Athletics, winners in the West Division.

nia Angels 2-1 Wednesday.

In the other games, Minnesota Twins pounded Chicago White Sox 14-2, Milwaukee Brewers checked New York Yankees 1-0 and Kansas City Royals blanked Texas Rangers 3-0.

No matter the psyched-up state of Detroit's East championship, Oakland manager Dick Williams awaits their arrival with confidence.

"The club we'll play has been my preference," says Williams. "That's mainly because we have had better success against the Tigers than the Red Sox."

The Athletics took the season series from the Tigers, eight games to four.

Manny Patkin fired a four-hitter as Boston beat Detroit and deprived Joe Coleman of a 23-game-victories season. Coleman, instead, wound up with his 14th loss after giving up all of Boston's runs in six innings.

Patkin was given a run in the first on Ben Oglivie's RBI single. The Tigers tied the game in the bottom of the inning on Frank Howard's 23-scoring homer. Boston went ahead for good in the second with two runs on Rick Miller's double and singles by Vic Correll, Juan Beniquez and Cecil Cooper.

Photo-hitter Don Mincher's seventh-inning single drove in the winning run in Oakland's victory. John Odom, tuning up for a start in the second game of the playoffs Sunday, won his 19th game for the Athletics.

Bert Blyleven won his 17th game for Minnesota with the help of a 12-hit attack. Dwight Thompson knocked in three runs for the Twins.

Johnny Briggs hit a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning for the game's only run and Jim Lonborg pitched a three-hitter to lead Milwaukee over New York. Roger Nelsith pitched a two-hitter, both singles by Ted Ford, as Kansas City beat Texas.

MICKEY LOLICH,

The Tigers closed out the regular season Wednesday with a meaningless 4-1 loss to the second-place Boston Red Sox.

"Look at the record," says Lolich. "It was the old-timers who did it.

"Al Kaline's been playing great. I pitched a good game the other night. Woody Fryman's an older player and he pitched great."

The Athletics nipped California 2-1 in 10 innings.

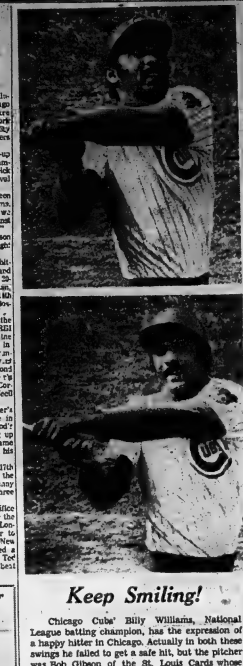
Tiger Had Glue Glove

DETROIT (AP) — Shortstop Ed Brinkman of Detroit Tigers who did not make an error in his brief appearance against Boston Red Sox Wednesday set two major league fielding records.

Brinkman one of only three players in the American League to play in all his team's games this season, finished with seven errors, four fewer than the previous low of Larry Bowa of Philadelphia and Leo Cardenas of California.

Brinkman finished the season with a .990 fielding percentage, .003 better than Bowa's old major league mark.



Pirates Best Series Bet

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Bookmakers say the American and National League baseball playoffs are nearly even money bets.

Reno Turf Club odds issued Wednesday make Oakland Athletics 5-4 favorite over Detroit Tigers in the American League and Pittsburgh Pirates a 13-10 choice over Cincinnati Reds in the National League.

Bookmaker North Swanson said Pittsburgh was a 5-2 choice to go all the way and win the World Series. Cincinnati was rated at 3-1, while Oakland was 13-5 and Detroit 14-5.

Harrah's Tahoe sports book pegged Oakland and Pittsburgh as 5-4 favorites in Las Vegas. Churchill Downs sports book was betting Oakland at 6-5 and Pittsburgh 13-10.

Pirates Not Looking at Past

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"People don't relate to past performances," said manager Bill Virdon of Pittsburgh Pirates. "They relate to playoffs and whether you win or lose."

And for Virdon and his Pirates and Cincinnati Reds, the regular National League season is "past performances," and their immediate future is the league playoffs.

Pittsburgh, the East champion, ended the season Wednesday night, losing to Bob Gibson and St. Louis Cardinals, 4-3. Cincinnati, meanwhile, beat Houston Astros, the team that has been chasing the Reds in the West, 4-2.

In other games, San Francisco Padres 6-4, Philadelphia Phillies edged Chicago Cubs 2-1, Los Angeles Dodgers downed Atlanta Braves 4-2 and New York Mets topped Montreal Expos 3-1.

Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson said his club is ready, and, actually, much better than it was when it opened the season with a 19-34 record, helped his own cause against Pittsburgh by driving in the Cards' first run with a fifth-inning single. He also reached the 200-strikeout plateau—he fanned 11 Pirates in his total to 208—for the ninth season.

Lou Brock drove in two runs and Ted Simmons one for St. Louis.

Johnny Bench hit a fifth-inning sacrifice fly to provide the Reds' winning run. Tony Perez drove in two runs.

Bobby Bonds hit a three-run homer in the eighth to give San Francisco its margin of victory over San Diego.

A pinch-hit home run by Deron Johnson in the eighth broke a 1-1 tie and gave Philadelphia a victory over Chicago Cubs.

Claude Osteen scattered eight hits to win his 20th game for Los Angeles. He was backed by two home runs by Steve Yeager and one by Tom Paciorek.

Jim Beauchamp's two-run homer in the ninth inning broke a 1-1 tie and gave New York Mets' rookie Jon Matlack his 15th victory.

Keep Clines

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirate manager Bill Virdon has chosen to keep sorearmed Gene Clines on the club's 25-man playoff roster.

The choice the Pirate manager had to make Wednesday was whether to go with Clines, who cannot make a strong throw from the outfield, or rookie Richie Zisk.

Clines, a utility outfielder, leads Pittsburgh with a .334 batting average, but he injured his arm when making an offbalance throw more than a month ago.

Big Day for Hirings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Team managers took the spotlight Wednesday as baseball's major leagues wrapped up the 1972 regular schedule.

Billy Martin of Detroit Tigers, Eddie Kasko of Boston Red Sox, Frank Quilici of Minnesota Twins and Ken Aspromonte of Cleveland Indians were all refired by their American League clubs.

The clubs announced that Martin and Quilici signed two-year contracts, Kasko for two years and Aspromonte put his name to a "multi-year" contract.

Martin's agreement with the American League East Division champions was an apparent change of mind.

He had said Tuesday night, after the Tigers clinched the division title by beating Boston 3-1, that he had already refused such an offer.

Martin was not immediately available for comment as the team's announcement came after the Tigers began their last game of the season against the Red Sox.

When Martin joined the Ti gers two years ago, he was given a two-year contract. After the 1971 season, it was extended through the 1973 season. This is the second one-year extension of the contract, repeated to be in the $65,000 - a-year range.

Kasko, considered on the way out just two months ago, before the Red Sox made their dramatic climb into the American League East championship race, received an estimated $10,000 increase to $60,000.

Keep Smiling!

Chicago Cubs' Billy Williams, National League batting champion, has the expression of a happy hitter in Chicago. Actually in both these swings he failed to get a safe hit, but the pitcher was Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cards whose delivery fools the best of 'em. (AP Wirephoto)

Gibson Adds To Record

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Gibson snapped his own record for most 200-strike out seasons as he pitched St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday night to end the 1972 regular season.

The Cardinal righthander fanned 11 Pirates, increasing his total for the year to 208. It marked the ninth season he has topped 200 and eclipsed his own major-league record of eight.

Howard & Robert Coach Has No Lineup Problem

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Don Dolan has one less worry than most softball coaches whose teams get as far as an all-Ontario final — there's no problem filling in his starting lineup.

Not counting batboys Bruce Horwood and Terry Ragwell, and assistant coach Doug Murray, who's also signed on a playing card in the event of an emergency, Dolan has 16 players to work with, and two of them are pitchers.

That's all that will board the bus Saturday morning when the Howard and Robert Printers, the city's Cinderella softball team, head out on a 340-mile trip to Sudbury in quest of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association intermediate AA title.

Carrying a small roster has its strong points, Dolan points out. "I've never seen a ball club where guys get along so well. We haven't had the problems some teams have of guys complaining about sitting on the bench."

"There's a lot of hustle out there for only nine guys," chimed in co-coach Murray.

Aside from both right-hand pitching ace Bob Ethier, who fired six shutouts as the Printers rolled over Peterborough, Oshawa, Owen Sound, and Sarnia OASA opposition the Howard and Robert lineup appears to be singularly devoid of stars.

Bob Swan, a steady pitcher in his own right, won two of the eight OASA games en route to the southern Ontario title, one 8-5 over Peterborough, the other a sparkling 4-0 win over the defending all-Ontario champions from Owen Sound.

BOB ETHIER

But Swan's performances have been overshadowed by Ethier, who started out the season recuperating from a broken ankle, and is winding it up breaking batters' backs.

Ethier struck out 35 in two games against Sarnia last weekend. 20 of them in the third and deciding game of the series. In the first game of a second-round series against Oshawa, when coach Dolan regards as the toughest opposition the Printers have faced to date, Ethier pitched a 2-1 shutout.

Going down the lineup — catcher Larry Potter, first baseman John Campbell, second - sacker Rusty Garvin, shortstop Dwight Baldwin, third baseman Ken Genereaux, and outfielders Pug Kellar, Rod Ridley and Ray Lalesatine — one sees only familiar, but unspectacular names associated with the city softball scene.

That roster, was only good enough for a third - place finish in the Commercial Softball League this summer. But the teams that finished higher — Rollins' Construction and Devolin Motors, who also entered OASA play — are now spectators.

One key to the H and R success story is the versatility of the lineup. Most team members, including pitchers Ethier and Swan, have played as many as three positions during the course of the season.

Another factor is that the club doesn't rely on one or two players to provide the big hits.

Current leading hitter John Campbell, for example, has been the batting boss several times in OASA action. But he wouldn't hazard a guess as to his batting average. "If you don't count the first 10 games," he said, first time man grins. "It might be around .330."

Similarly, it was normally light - hitting Rod Ridley, now commuting from Queen's University in Kingston, who provided the heroics last Sunday, knocking in the only run against Sarnia.

"Yes, it's different guys every time," beams Dolan. "Except for that 8-5 win over Peterborough, we're a one-run ball club. If we can get a couple for Shad, nobody can beat him. The only thing we work on is fielding burts."

At a high-spirited Wednesday night workout, the Printers were also loafing, without a great deal of success, to lay bunts down against some of Ethier's wicked drop or upshoot deliveries.

One was no good catche, Larry Potter thought it was painful.

The southern Ontario champions presented a motley picture. There were no two players with similar sweaters on, and there was a constant stream of chatter.

Someone suggested that cycling aficionado John Campbell get a head start by two-wheeling it up to Sudbury.

Pitcher Swan wandered across the infield, still dreamy-eyed about some fish he failed to catch that afternoon.

And someone wondered out loud if long underwear would be a prerequisite for the weekend trip to the northland.

First game of the best-of-three finals is tentatively scheduled for 7 or 8 p.m. Saturday, with the second, and, if necessary, third games slated for Sunday afternoon.

And the Howard and Robert Printers are just zany enough to bring Belleville its first provincial men's softball title in 17 years, and only the third in city history.

BEST IN THE SOUTH — Howard and Robert Printers, southern Ontario Intermediate AA softball champions, were practising Wednesday for a weekend trip to Sudbury where the Ontario Amateur Softball title will be decided. From left, the Printers are: Pat Asselaine, John Campbell, Ken Genereaux, Dwight Baldwin, Bob Swan, Rusty Garvin, Larry Potter, Pug Kellar, Bob Ethier, manager Bob Dolan, and coach-es Doug Murray and Don Dolan. Missing is outfielder Rod Ridley, now attending Queen's University in Kingston.

Resin Bow Playing Top Tune

KINGSTON — Resin Bow has had a distinguished racing season the first nine months of 1972. The five-year-old pacer won five of 11 starts.

But he excelled to his best performance ever Wednesday night at Frontenac Park before a Ladies Night crowd which saw Ruth Ferguson's pacer win in 2:06 2 - 5, more than two seconds faster than his previous best.

Chris Storms, formerly of Picton, drove the Bloomfield-owned pacer to a narrow win over veteran Earlybates John in the featured race before 859 spectators. Mutuel handle was $38,384.

Joe Hogan scored the only double driving 3-win of the card reining Rick's Satan Boy and Simm Sam to wins. Other winners were Shadydale Rocky, Prima Blossom, Wee Sister, Stewart's Tartan, Mc. Le-May, Hieland Jimmy and Mindo.

The racing scene resumes Sunday afternoon at the Downs with the 401 Invitational Pace. Heading the eight - horse field are Rapid Henry, Phillisrie, Canadian Killean and John's Prince.

Post time is 1.45 p.m.

Trojans Trounce Bayside 48-0

Moira Secondary School senior football coach Hugh Cooke has an explanation for some of the lopsided scores to date in the Bay of Quinte conference.

"There's Quinte, the next level, and then the bottom teams," he sighed after his Trojans had romped over Bayside 48-0.

"We've had some pretty easy games," noted Cooke, whose Trojans started their season with a 41-8 win over Picton, followed up by a 36-8 verdict over BCI.

Another easy one coming up," Cooke remarked on next week's scheduled encounter with Napanee.

Moira, not exactly flush with experience with only eight holdovers from last season, ran roughshod over Bayside's first-year senior squad.

Halfbacks Steve Kirby, Peter Stalikovich, and Dave Rutherford each contributed two touchdowns, while end Mike Akey counted one major. Glen Shaw booted four converts, and the Moira defensive squad nailed Bayside for a safety touch.

Centre Larry Kirby and defensive tackle Mike Olesen were singled out for praise by coach Cooke, whose Trojans remain atop the league's eastern division with their 3-0 record.

Bayside is winless in their three starts.

Injury Intentional?

TORONTO (CP) — Joe Theismann said Wednesday he heard Edmonton Eskimos were under instructions last Saturday to work on his once-broken ankle.

The Toronto Argonaut quarterback got into the game in the second quarter

Theismann, however, re-injured the ankle in the third quarter when tackled by Edmonton's defensive end Tom Gay and the Eskimos hung on for a 21-36 victory in Canadian Football League interlocking action.

Back on Blades

Two members of the Quinte Figure Skating Club especially eager to get back on the ice this week were Karen Erickson, a three-year figure skater, and Karen Mann, beginning her fifth year as a club member. The two seniors won $25 bursaries as being the most improved club skaters last season.

Soviet-Canada Series Gave Ref Creeps

BONN (CP) — "When I recall these matches my flesh creeps," Josef Kompalla, West German referee of the Canada-Russia hockey series, says in an interview with the newspaper General Anzeiger here.

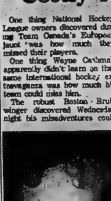
"Ten more such games and I would age several years," Kompalla said. "I am very glad that I got back home unharmed."

Tass, the Soviet News agency, reports that Kompalla told the West German paper in an article called Hooligans on Ice.

"The conduct of the Canadian professionals on the rink had little to do with sports," Kompalla said. "I am very glad they play very crudely, purposely using foul methods that endanger the lives of their rivals. It's a match, does not go well for the Canadians, they blame the referees. In my opinion, the transoceanic professionals behaved in a scandalous way."

Kompalla said it was not only on the ice that the Canadians behaved badly. In hotels, he said, they "harassed visitors."

"Their coaches (Harry) Sinden and (John) Ferguson are not exceptions either," the referee said.



"They (Canadians) went so far as to attack my colleague, Franz Baader," he said. "When we were on board a plane bound from Moscow to Prague, the Canadians pelted Baader with cucumbers and food leftovers."

Cashman Penalties Costly Here Too

One thing National Hockey League owners discovered during Team Canada's European jaunt was how much they relied on their players.

One thing Wayne Cashman apparently didn't learn on that same international hockey extravaganza was how much his team could miss him.

The robust Boston - Bruin winger discovered Wednesday night his misadventures could be just as costly within the friendly NHL confines as they are elsewhere.

WAYNE CASHMAN

He was sitting out a minor penalty when Walt Tkaczuk scored the tying goal for New York Rangers in a 3-3 preseason game at Boston.

In other NHL exhibition action, three members of the now defunct Team Canada—Serge Savard, Pete Mahovlich and Yvan Cournoyer—scored for Montreal Canadiens in a 3-0 win over Toronto Maple Leafs. Pittsburgh Penguins jolted Chicago Black Hawks 4-2, Los Angeles Kings routed Vancouver Canucks 6-1 and Minnesota North Stars took St. Louis Blues 6-1.

In games with minor pro teams, Atlanta Flames edged Hershey Bears of the American League 4-3 and California Golden Seals lost 5-3 to Soo Lake Golden Eagles of the Western League.

Tkaczuk scored the equalizer with just under five minutes remaining in the game when a 35-foot blast from the top of the circle in Boston goalie Ross Brooks' left.

Jean Ratelle and Brad Park, both Team Canada team-mates of Cashman's, scored the other New York goals. Fred Stanfield, Garnet Ballay and Terry O'Reilly replied for the Bruins.

The Leafs-Canadiens game at Montreal held little in the way of excitement other than that generated by Jacques Lemaire's scorer with less with two minutes remaining Guy Lapfear added th eother Canadiens score. Dave Keon, with two, Denis Dupere and Rocky Pelletier scored for Toronto.

In addition to winning the game, Montrealers put a nail in two third-period occupants—Marc Tardif over Mike Pelyk and Larry Robinson deceively over Pierre Jarry.

Jarrell MacDonald hasn't played in the last two years but Glens made his presence felt in the Pittsburgh camp while making a comeback after four knee operations.

The New Glasgow, N.S., native scored before against Chicago, the winning and breakaway goals in the third period and his fourth and fifth in an exhibition games, to pace the Penguins before 8,100 fans who sat in on the first ever pro season game at Pittsburgh.

Durable Saints Shade Cougars

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

If nothing else in these warm-ups for the World Hockey Association debut on Oct. 11, Minnesota's Fighting Saints have proven durable.

The Saints won their third game in four nights Wednesday, edging Chicago Cougars 3-2 at Hibbing, Minn.

Elsewhere, Ron Anderson's three goals paced Alberta Oilers to a 6-3 win over Winnipeg Jets and New England Whalers dressed all their former National Hockey League players for a 5-2 win over Ottawa Nationals.

Keith Christiansen, the long-time U.S. Olympic veteran, scored the winner in the third period for Minnesota after two earlier goals by Ted Harrapson had set up a 2-2 tie.

Brian Glennerpit and Dick Procevisit were the Chicago scorers.

More than 3,000 fans were on hand in Edmonton to see Anderson steer his third goal into an empty Winnipeg goal after Ernie Wakely had been removed in favor of an extra attacker.

Dennis Kassian, John Flisher and Rusty Patenaude scored the other Oilers' goals. Bob Ash, Chris Bordeleau and Bill Sutherland replied for the Jets, again coached by Bobby Hull who sat outside the players' bench.

Hull, who jumped the NHL Chicago Black Hawks to serve as player-coach in Winnipeg, is still making clarification of his status by U.S. courts.

Tom Webster, Ted Green, Terry Caffery, Kevin Ahearn and Mike Byndman shared the New England scoring at Walpole, Mass.

Bob Charlebois and Ron Riley tallied for the Nationals, outshot by the Whalers 43-32 in the game.

Stapleton Could Quit

CHICAGO (AP) — Defenceman Pat Stapleton of Chicago Black Hawks may have played his last hockey in the recent Team Canada-Soviet series.

Stapleton, 32, told Hawk coach Billy Reay Tuesday night he would decide within the next few days whether he intends to retire and concentrate on his operation of two suburban ice skating rinks. Stapleton, member of the Black Hawks since 1965-66, is winding up the final season of a three-year contract.

Islanders Acquire Brown

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — New York Islanders acquired veteran defenceman Arnie Brown and goalie Gerry Gray from the Detroit Red Wings in exchange for goalie Denis Dejordy Wednesday.

Bill Torrey, general manager of the Islanders' National Hockey League expansion club, said the team was necessitated by the injury to defenceman Gerry Hart, who recently suffered a fractured knee.

Brown played 6½ seasons with New York Rangers before going to Detroit last year. Gray, 24, split last season between Tidewater of the American League and Fort Worth of the Central League.

Dejordy, 24, played briefly with Montreal Canadiens and Los Angeles Kings last season and shared the Vezina Trophy while with Chicago Black Hawks in 1966.

Voyageurs Need Rally For Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nova Scotia Voyageurs, Calder Cup champions, needed a two-goal rally to salvage a tie in one of two games that opened the American Hockey League's 1972-73 season Wednesday night.

The Voyageurs saved off with Cleveland Barons 2-2 before 2,252 fans at Halifax, while Springfield Kings fubred New Haven's entrance to the league by defeating the Nighhawks 7-4 before 6,431 spectators at New Haven.

John Stewart and Pete Sullivan scored for the Nova Scotians in the third period, after the Barons were ahead 2-0 on goals by Mary Johnston in the second period and Terry Holbrook early in the third.

The teams played cautiously most of the way with only five penalties called, three in the Voyageurs.

Scott Seagrist led the Kings' attack with a pair of goals and singles were by Mike Keeler, Bob Poffenroth, Michel Dube, Wayne Lechance and Phil Hoene.

The Nighthawks led only once when Yvan Rolando scored the first goal of the game. He also supplied New Haven's fourth marker. Peter Ten Sieves and Dave Pulkkinen each contributed one.

The Nighthawks were deprived of their No. 1 goalie, Bill Smith, who was called up by New York Islanders of the National Hockey League shortly before game time.

Murder Suspect Found

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — The suspicion of a few residents in a tiny, tightly-knit community near here led to the arrest Wednesday night of a suspect in the murder of a Burlington woman and her infant son.

William Holden, 19, of Burlington, was arrested as he sat eating fish and chips in a dairy bar restaurant in Coldwater, about 10 miles west of here.

He had been the subject of an extensive police search since the deaths last Saturday of Caterina DiCecca, 28, and her son, Rocco, 10 months.

Gordon Priestman, a resident of nearby Severn Falls, said he overheard some women talking about "a suspicious hitchhiker," and decided to investigate.

"We don't get many transients up here," he explained in an interview.

Mr. Priestman said he watched as the hitch-hiker was picked up by two women in a car. Then he jumped in his own car and followed as the women and their passenger drove off towards Coldwater.

The villager saw the car turn off at a service station on the main street of Coldwater. He then asked another man to call police, who were directed a few minutes later to the restaurant, where the suspect had stopped to eat.

Sgt. E. K. Zalman of the Orillia detachment of the provincial police said-abe arrest was made by four OPP, three from Orillia, and one from Barrie.

Holden was unarmed, alone, and offered no resistance when approached by the arresting officers, Sgt. Zalman said.

He said that four policemen from Burlington arrived in Orillia following the arrest to identify Holden and take him into custody.

Holden, charged in a warrant with two counts of non-capital murder, and one of attempted murder, was almost caught Tuesday, police believe.

They said a man stole a boat south of Barrie and headed up the Severn River in it. Lockmasters at locks 42 and 43 were told to close their locks, thus trapping the boat and the man.

But police said the suspect turned around upon reaching lock 43 and headed back down the river.

Mrs. DiCecca was found strangled and apparently raped on the floor of her home. Her son died of severe head injuries.

Her husband arrived home from night shift work to hear the cries of his son. He apparently discovered the intruder and fought with him. Mrs. DiCecca was shot in the head and taken to hospital. The intruder fled in Mr. DiCecca's car.

Mr. DiCecca was "out of danger" in hospital Wednesday, police said.

Holden was a neighbor of the DiCeccas.

Reporter Jailed

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Reporter Peter Bridge, who refused to answer grand jury questions during a municipal investigation, went to jail Wednesday to begin an indefinite term for contempt of court. Bridge, 36, who worked on the now defunct Newark Evening News, is the first United States reporter imprisoned for contempt since the Supreme Court ruled last June 29 in another case that reporters may not withhold confidential information or sources from grand juries. The high court rejected Bridge's appeal Tuesday.

FAA Irked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration said Wednesday it is investigating published reports that Democratic presidential candidate Senator George McGovern was allowed to take over the controls of a jet airliner in flight. The FAA said it has received from an airline pilot a newspaper clipping saying McGovern, a second World War bomber pilot, was allowed at the control of a Boeing 727 on a recent flight from New York to Sioux City, S.D.

Champion Walks 300 Miles

PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP) — Phil LaTulippe walked himself into the record books again Wednesday as he finished a 300-mile non-stop walk to beat his own world's record by 43 miles.

The 33-year-old chief warrant officer finished the hike in 77 hours, 54 minutes, and 30 seconds as he completed 1,200 laps on the quarter-mile cinder track at Canadian Forces Base Petawawa.

About 1,500 well-wishers were on hand to greet him as he ended the trek at 10:47 p.m. EDT.

"He's just as strong as he was two days ago," said one observer. "Of course he's been awake for three days and he's a little tired."

LaTulippe originally set a world's record of 218.65 miles in September, 1971, only to lose it the same month to Australian John Sinclair.

The Canadian came back in April 1972, with a 227-mile jaunt, and then set out last Sunday with a 300-mile target.

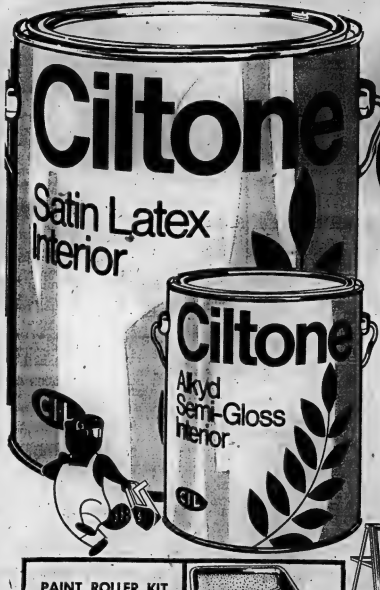
He kept up a faster pace in the latest march, jogging and running the first 200 miles.

In April, he took 81 hours to cover 227 miles, but Wednesday he passed that mark in only 63 hours.

He kept up his strength during the endurance test with gallons of water, dozens of cups of tea, four gallons of milk and 36 cans of fruit juice.

He also consumed 30 pounds of corn syrup, 120 cans of soup and four pounds of honey.

He entered hospital for a check-up and an overnight observation period but Maj. Bernie Collins, the medical officer with LaTulippe's unit, said if the walker is in the same shape as he was in April, he would be back at work at 8 a.m. today.



The walk was for charity, with pledges per mile going to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

A spokesman at the base, however, said it will be some time before the total collected can be determined, as pledges continued all through the walk.

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON
FRIDAY, OCT. 6

Aries (March 21-April 19): Romance, love and marriage all look better to you this otherwise fairly ordinary day. Take the trouble to collect what is owed you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Pleasant co-operation doesn't mean people are going to do your work for you, or anything above their own normal share. Be alert.

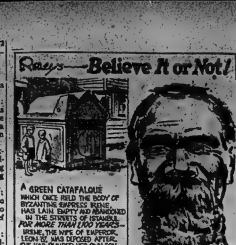
Gemini (May 21-June 20): Get off to a quick start and stay on the move. There are choice opportunities to go after in several directions. Set priorities.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Exchange what no longer suits you. Home improvements are in order also. Be a filler rushing leaves you tense in evening hours.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): It's more a buyer's day than a seller's. Gather in your share of the week's returns, invest in the cure things you have calculated.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Co-operative purchasing turns out quite an advantage, while telling anything produces less than ordinary returns.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Gifts for an even balance so everybody seems to get in the gold rush to take advantage of a good thing. Make your own choices.



Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Expect surprises as people suddenly reveal themselves. Bring say grievance to light. Nothing excels like hard work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Review your resources, add to them. Physical exercise tends to unaccustomed success for brief rushes. Pace yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Focus on finishing what is already under way, the many hone ends from recent past. Hasty decisions are not the best answer.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): See where you fit in with the general welfare of your own people, be willing to listen and be guided.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Defer major decisions. The best counsel you can reach is never too expert. Get a second opinion.

To Your Good Health

Time Major Factor In Curing Trouble

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: My 6-year-old son developed Legg-Perthes disease in his right hip over a year ago. He has been in a leg brace since except for a period from February to April. The doctor thought at the time it took control because of the rapid healing.

Then fluid developed on his hip and he was out in traction in the hospital 11 days, and the brace went back on.

Now the doctor says it will have to stay on until fall and perhaps longer. The few people I talk to who know anything about this disease (two to be exact) say there is an operation that can correct it.

When I mentioned it to my doctor (orthopedic), he said there was not. Please, what do you have to say about it?

Why does it affect more boys than girls? What is the cause? And why does it seem to happen in super-active children—Mrs. R. L.

Legg-Perthes is a form of osteochondritis—an interference with the blood supply to the bone, and in this case the bone lost from the hip. A similar condition near the knee is called Osgood-Schlatter disease. And when it takes on other names, equally hard for people to remember.

I'm rather surprised that you found only two people who professed to know about Legg-Perthes. I receive letters nearly about this disease a couple of times a year or oftener because a steady stream of letters comes from folks whose youngsters developed "this disease I never heard of."

Anyway, there is necrosis of the bone in the affected area and softens. Give it time and protection, and the circulation will renurse and the bone will harden and be strong again.

While the bone, while weakened, must be protected or it will be damaged and deformed. That's the reason for the brace. (Sometimes a cast or even a wheel chair, is ordered.) Time then cures the trouble, but there is no other way to do it, no way to hasten it.

The people who told you about surgery were confused. There are cases in which the bone is damaged and surgery is necessary to do what repairing is possible—but that's not the same as being a cure for the disease.

The exact cause of these diseases is not known, but it is assumed that some injury is probably involved—which, if true, would explain why more boys than girls and why more active youngsters are more likely to have this trouble.

Rest and protection is the only cure. And one must beware of the amateur "expert" who insists that exercise will do it. It can do permanent harm.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I am a high school student, 15. For about a year and a half I've been dragging myself around and am almost always tired and rundown. I get plenty of sleep and eat good goods. I was always under the impression that low blood sugar was a disease of older people. Can a person my age be afflicted? — J. H.

Yes, low blood sugar can bother people your age—but rarely. I say that conclusion without considering the some more likely causes? You mention one of the many troubles that go with low blood sugar.

If you're sure your trouble is physical and not just being bored (you'd be surprised how bored you can be) you'd do better with routine tests for anemia, or low thyroid, or that sort of thing.

Opening lead - ace of spades.

The U.S. team started the second day of the finals against Italy in high hopes. On the preceding day they had played 64 boards against the Blue Team and, after 48 of them, had fallen 46 international match points behind.

The battle seemed lost at that stage, but the Aces rallied strongly on the next 16 boards, gaining 52 imps, and topped only 26 imps behind with 24 hands still to be played.

The disaster struck early on the final day and put a deep dent into American hopes. On the third deal, Solowey and Hamman got to five diamonds doubled and went down 1,100! Solowey's further bidding was not 'Blackwood'; it asked Hamman to bid five clubs, diamonds or hearts, all of which Solowey was prepared to play.

Garozzo led the spade ace and the balloon burst again when Hamman ruffed in dummy and played a club to the king. Sacco cause a spade, again ruffed in dummy, and Hamman, after cashing the ace of trumps, tried to come to his hand with a club to the ace.

But East ruffed, returned a low heart to partner's king, and got another club ruff before cashing the ace of hearts and king of spades to put declarer down four.

Garozzo's four spade bid is especially worthy of note. He had bid it, not expecting to make ten tricks but in the hope of inducing an error by the opponents. He succeeded in this far beyond his wildest hopes.

At the other table, Goldman and Lawrence got to four spades doubled — unluckily going down one because of the 3-2 trump division — and the American team lost 1,240 points, or 15 imps.

Even so, Italy defeated the United States by 63 imps and the Blue Team thus once again asserted its absolute superiority in the world of bridge.

HERE'S A NEW IDEA

We are going to start a number of new homes for spring session. If you are thinking about a new house, let us include it in our inventory. You can select a lot and a model either our's or your's. We will then build it to your specifications. You can then sell your existing house at your leisure. If you are unable to sell, you aren't out anything as we can sell the new house to someone else. This will solve the old problem of — "How can I build a new house when I haven't sold my old one."

CONDOMINIUM IS THE ANSWER

For the active man who wants to confine his activities to the curling rink, the golf course or anywhere else that doesn't involve cutting grass, shovelling snow, painting, etc. This is all done for you.

We have units available for immediate possession. These are located on Prince of Wales Drive. Oh yes! Down payments run from $711. to $886 down.

EAST OR WEST WE HAVE THE BEST

selection of houses in the Quinte area. All in fully serviced subdivisions. All close to schools, shops, etc. Over 20 different models. Let us show you our selection.

Niagara Fruit Belt Reports Released

TORONTO (CP) — William Stewart, Ontario agriculture minister, announced Wednesday the release of two study reports on the Niagara fruit belt.

The reports are titled The Niagara Escarpment Study Fruit Belt Report, prepared by a group of planners and co-ordinated by L. O. Gertler; and Alternatives for the Ontario Tender Fruit Industry, written by E. L. Chadleigh of the Ontario Food Council.

Mr. Stewart said action has been taken on the reports.

"For example, the (Gertler) report recommended that the province of Ontario should assume responsibility for the preparation of a regional plan for the fruit belt within a year from the adoption of the report.

"On Jan. 1, 1976, less than one year from the receipt of the report, the Regional Municipality of Niagara was created by an act of the legislature to bring about the kind of cohesive administration necessary for local involvement in the planning process," he said.

"These two important reports . . . call for action, immediate action by the government of Canada, the government of Ontario and the local elected representatives as well as the growers and processors of tender fruit in the Niagara Peninsula," he said.

Davis Likes 2 Regions

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis hinted Tuesday that two regional governments may be established in the Peel-Halton area between Toronto and Hamilton.

He told the Brampton-Caledon-Chamber of Commerce he has long favored two regions in the area.

"A provincial announcement on regionalism for areas e a s t and west of Metropolitan Toronto will be made this fall and my personal thoughts may or may not be reflected in government policy," he said.

But Mr. Davis said that Peel County's large population, the complexities of establishing a region and the "community of interests" in Peel are a sound basis for a regional government in Peel.

He said Peel appears prepared to be a "pioneer" in altering its local government system including making changes in its internal boundaries and "historical situations."

LEFT GIFTS

LONDON (AP) — Workmen at an old house in Riddings, Derbyshire, found under the floor two boxes containing £25 each and notes indicating that a man who died 18 months before put the money away 30 years ago as birthday presents for his two daughters.

U.S. Court Won't Drop Suit Against Dow

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit judge refused Tuesday to drop Dow Chemical Co. of Canada from a multimillion-dollar mercury pollution suit brought by 15 Detroit-area fish markets.

But Judge John M. Wise did grant a delay in the circuit court hearing until Nov. 6 to give both sides more time to prepare their cases.

The suit contends mercury from plants operated by Dow Chemical of Canada and the BASF Wyandotte Corp. leaked into the Detroit River, the St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair, causing Gov. William Milliken to place a ban on fishing those waters.

The suit said the ban, which was later removed, caused the fish markets to lose business or to shut down. The markets are seeking personal damages ranging from $50,000 to $200,000.

Dow lawyers argued Dow should be dropped from the suit on the grounds that Michigan courts have no jurisdiction over the Canadian firm.

Wise ruled Michigan courts do have jurisdiction under so-called "long-arm" statues because Lake St. Clair, which the company is accused of polluting, touches the Michigan shoreline and flows into other state waters.

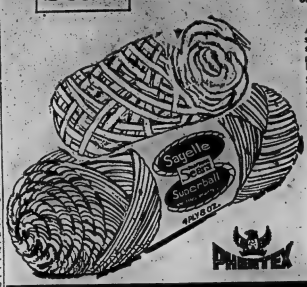
The company denied responsibility for the mercury pollution.

Woman May Lose Bail Fund

HAMILTON (CP) — A 65-year-old Hamilton woman who puts dew worms up to pay taxes stands to lose $19,500 in bail money that she posted for a man charged in connection with a $1.3-million Windsor bank robbery.

Teodora Biloski posted bail last June for William Ferguson, 40, of Montreal, one of six accused of conspiracy to rob the Windsor bank.

The trial was scheduled for Monday but was adjourned until next week when Ferguson didn't show up. He was last seen by his wife in Montreal Sunday when he left to fly to Windsor.



The bail now is in default and the case was adjourned one week to give the Crown a chance to find Ferguson. No action will be taken on the bond if Ferguson is found and can account for his delay but an application will be made to confiscate the bail money if he isn't found.

In an interview Tuesday Mrs. Biloski said she knew Ferguson in the 1940s and posted the bond after some of his friends asked her for help.

Barbara Caplan

Ontario NDPs Combine Beauty with Brains

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario New Democratic Party has combined beauty with brains in organizing its provincial campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election.

Both the beauty and brains belong to Barbara Caplan, a stunning, 37-year-old brunette.

As campaign chairman, she directs all aspects of the drive to improve the party's federal position in Ontario's 88 ridings.

At distribution, the NDP held 25 seats nationally, only seven in Ontario.

She's really cool with an incredible knack of handling people," says Gordon Bridgett, provincial party secretary.

One of her political rivals calls her "a cool cat with brains."

Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, describes her as "remarkably unflappable, with a total grasp of the situation."

As for Barbara, she regards her major role for the party in the current campaign in a calm, non-committal way.

"I'm just sitting here in one place fielding everything."

She operates from provincial party headquarters in a cluttered office which is badly in need of painting. Her staff consists of three, full-time clerical workers.

Her husband, Gerry, is a university professor who resigned as executive assistant to Stephen Lewis after the party's dismal showing in last fall's Ontario election.

In this campaign, Mr. Caplan has no title but, in the words of his wife, "is giving us moral support."

"I suppose he can't help that, because the campaign is all I talk about when I get home," she says.

Mrs. Caplan was tour manager last October for Mr. Lewis, where she picked up valuable experiences in political strategy.

She is running the federal campaign with less money and less staff than was available for the 1971 provincial battle, which cost the party about $215,000.

Now, she has a budget of about $90,000 donated by the provincial wing to pay such administrative costs as gas and salary. She is responsible for paying everything but advertising costs, which are managed from Ottawa.

Lewis Spends Quiet Day

OTTAWA (CP) — David Lewis, federal New Democratic Party leader, spent a relatively quiet day Wednesday tapping two television shows for later showings and conferring with party officials.

Mr. Lewis flew into Ottawa late Tuesday night after campaigning for the Oct. 30 federal election in Toronto and Montreal.

Today he campaigns in Hull-Ouebec and in Cape Breton Island.

One disadvantage in this campaign is that the party has been unable to import specialists from other provinces, as it did in 1971. They are needed in their own provinces to run their federal campaigns.

It has meant that such key organizers as Mr. Bridgett and Michael Lewis, brother of Stephen, are not available full-time to trouble-shoot throughout the province.

Mrs. Caplan keeps in touch with campaign managers in the ridings by phone, fielding myriad problems involving issues, media arrangements, and "a lot of administrative technicalities."

One desk in her office is spread with posters on which appear dates and names of communities where David Lewis is to appear. Barbara is constantly scribbling and changing the lists as details are worked out by phone.

A native of Toronto, she was attending the University of Toronto in 1958 when she left to work for Dr. Morton Shulman, the controversial social reformer who represents Toronto High Park for the NDP in the provincial legislature.

She found that doing Dr. Shulman's riding work was "exciting and fun."

Later, she joined the Speller Reviser Corp., as a fund-raiser. It was a project that ended in success when the group won its battle to stop construction of the Spadina Expressway through Toronto.

But she was soon back with the NDP, organizing the Ontario campaign that led to the election of David Lewis as national party leader.

From there, she went on staff of the provincial party.

After the federal election, Mrs. Caplan will again leave politics to join the Holy Trinity Church in downtown Toronto as program director.

Trudeau Helicopter Runs Out of Gas

BRAMPTON, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's campaign helicopter made an unscheduled landing here Wednesday to take on fuel.

The helicopter was flying over a wooded area when a signal light on the instrument panel flashed a warning that the aircraft was running out of fuel.

Pilot M. W. Lostus, of Montreal, searched for a suitable landing place and came down before the helicopter ran out of fuel at the yard of a cottage beside the main highway running through this town, 36 miles southeast of Quebec City.

The landing was made more hurriedly than normal but Mr. Trudeau, an aide, a reporter and several police officers were interfered an all took the incident calmly.

Mr. Trudeau chatted with local residents wh gathered around the helicopter, discussing hockey, farming and old age pensions.

He said it was not the first time one of his aircraft had been forced to land. During the 1968 campaign he was forced down by inclement weather in Cape Breton.

The helicopter was taking Mr. Trudeau's party from Montmagny to St. Georges de Beauce.

It refueled and took off again for its destination where it arrived 29 minutes late.

Independent To Oppose Dief

TORONTO (CP) — William Fair, 34, said Wednesday he will run as an independent candidate in Prince Albert riding where former prime minister John Diefenbaker was recently nominated as the Progressive Conservative candidate.

Mr. Fair was defeated by Mr. Diefenbaker in his bid for the Progressive Conservative nomination.

Mr. Fair said he asked party officials in Ottawa to allow him to run as an Independent Conservative but permission was refused. He announced his candidacy as an independent while in Toronto, en route from Ottawa to Saskatoon.

Mr. Fair said he lawyers are considering legal action in connection with statements made during the Prince Albert Progressive Conservative nomination meeting by Dick Spencer, presiding chairman of the meeting and president of the Prince Albert Progressive Conservative Riding Association.

Caouette Would Move If Quebec Separates

MONTREAL (CP) — Social Credit Leader Real Caouette says he would move to Vancouver if Quebec separated from the rest of Canada.

Mr. Caouette said Wednesday on an open-line program on radio station CKVL that any clear, democratic decision by Quebecers to separate from Canada would have to be respected.

However, he would not remain in a separate Quebec but would settle in Vancouver, a city that has always attracted him.

Mr. Caouette said Claude Wagner, Quebec campaign leader for the Progressive-Conservatives, is singing one song to Quebecers while Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has a different tune for Western Canada.

He said the leader of the Conservatives' Quebec campaign would respect a democratic vote by Quebecers to separate.

This contradicted PC policy.

Mr. Wagner should conform to the Conservative party line, because it is evident that Mr. Stanfield would never allow Quebecers the right to self-determination.

In fact, Mr. Stanfield was prepared to call a nationwide referendum to stop Quebec from separating.

The Social Credit leader said that in 1968, Quebec elected 30 Conservative members to the House of Commons and three years later there were more than a million Canadians unemployed, most of them in Quebec.

Wagner States 'Party Policy'

STE. ANNE DES MONTS, Que. (CP) — Claude Wagner says his position on Quebec independence does not differ from that of the Progressive Conservative party or party leader Robert Stanfield.

The leader of the Conservative campaign in Quebec said "I am stating party policy" in saying he would be in "solidarity" with Quebec independence if a pro-separatist government were democratically elected in Quebec.

Mr. Wagner was replying to a question Tuesday from a student at a junior college in the Gaspe Peninsula where the former sessions court judge was on a four-day campaign tour.

His stand on Quebec independence was first stated about two weeks ago when he was named Quebec leader for the Conservatives in the Oct. 30 election campaign. He has repeated it since he began touring the province last week.

Mr. Stanfield has said Quebec alone does not have the right to decide on its separation from the rest of Canada.

All provinces should have their say on all major constitutional changes, including Quebec's independence, Mr. Stanfield said two weeks ago.

After the independence issue came up in a radio hot-line show at Granby, Que., last week, Mr. Wagner emphasized in an interview that the question was hypothetical and the Progressive Conservative party's aim is to prove federalism works.

"I am going to make all efforts possible to show Quebecers that within Confederation it is not only possible but to their advantage to work towards that goal," he told a reporter.

But if the effort failed and Quebec some day elected a majority representative government on a pro-independence ticket, then he would be "in solidarity with Quebecers."

Asked whether this was parallel with Mr. Stanfield's position regarding an all-Canada role, Jr. Wagner indicated the question went beyond the scope of his statement.

"We are not going into the process whereby this (separation) might be achieved," he said. "I'm just saying the will of the majority will have to be respected.

"Now, from that moment on, to the interest of separation—how do we go about it, what negotiations will have to take place and so on — that is a whole different matter."

Questions as to whether there might be a vote across Canada or just in Quebec were also a different matter.

"Again, this is a purely hypothetical question," said Mr. Wagner. "We are acting as theorists in this field."

Deputy Named

TORONTO (CP) — Two new deputy ministers were appointed Wednesday to the Ontario civil service by Premier William Davis. Fred J. Pilgrem, 58, deputy minister of consumer and commercial relations, becomes deputy of industry and tourism, effective immediately. He replaces Donald J. Collins, recently appointed chairman of the regional Municipality of Sudbury. J. Kenneth Young, 56, assistant deputy minister of consumer and commercial relations, succeeds Mr. Pilgrem.

To Display Art

QUEBEC (CP) — About 80 art works valued at $3 million most of which have never been outside France, will be on display from Oct. 19 to Dec. 15 at the Quebec City Museum. Entitled "French Art from the Middle Ages," the exhibition is part of a Franco-Quebec culture agreement.

Trip to U.S.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief, plans an official visit to the United States next spring if President Nixon is re-elected in November, diplomatic sources said Wednesday. While in Moscow in May, President Nixon invited the Soviet leadership, including President Nikolai Podgorny and Prime Minister Alexei Kosygin.

Stanfield Rally a Variety Show

EDMONTON (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield's public rally at the Jubilee Auditorium Wednesday featured 90 minutes of k n e e-slapping, toe-tapping music and dance.

Mr. Stanfield's speech, the closing act, took up an additional half hour. It drew applause and laughter from the 3,700 in attendance.

The evening got off to a lively start with the aid of Jalopy, a rock band travelling with the Stanfield campaign. With a smooth, quick-moving presentation, the group soon had the audience clapping and waving their campaign placards in time to the music.

Next was the Edmonton-based Alberta all girls' drum and bugle band, recently returned from a European tour and performance at the Olympic Games in Munich. The band came on stage at the rally with Douglas Roche, candidate in Edmonton Strathcona, where Liberal Hu Harries was the member of the last House.

Of the 18 candidates introduced, about a dozen presented acts worthy of a variety show.

There were cheerleaders, resplendent in miniskirts. There were pipers, complete with kilts. There were singalongs. And balloons, plenty of balloons.

Marcel Lambert, member of the last Parliament for Edmonton West, was supported by performances by the Saddleback family of the Hobbema reserve.

Peter Bawden, candidate for Calgary South, went on s t a g e in a makeshift chuckwagon—pulled by several children, because "we had to leave the horses outside." A banner on the chuckwagon proclaimed Mr. Bawden to be "five times chuckwagon champ in the Calgary Stampede."

William Skoreyko, veteran Edmonton east MP, appeared with the Shuma dancers, an act that brought thunderous applause from the audience.

Later there was a general havoc introduction of all 19 candidates.

Liberal Advocates Canadian Shipping Law

MONTREAL (CP) — Liberal back-bencher Warren Allmand said Wednesday if he is re-elected he will introduce legislation banning foreign ships from Canada's domestic trade.

Mr. Allmand, member of the last Parliament for the Montreal riding of Notre-Dame-De-Grace, said in an interview he would push for adoption of the Darling report which would "force Canada withdraw from the Commonwealth merchant shipping agreement and reserve Canadian waters for Canadian ships.

The Seafarers' International Union has said it will "help elect" any candidate from any party who will make such a promise.

The SIU estimates about 1,000 jobs are being taken from Canadians by foreign ships plying Canadian waters.

Mr. Allmand said he has not made any formal deal with the union, but "I will gladly accept any support they could offer."

The Darling report was commissioned by the Liberal government in 1969 and completed in 1970, but never implemented. It suggested Canadian ships be given jobs in trade between Canadian ports.

Bill Passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress completed action Wednesday night on a $24.6-billion-water-pollution-control bill designed to rid United States waters of all pollution by 1985. The House of Representatives passed the bill 366 to 11. Then the Senate passed it and sent it to the president by a 74-to-0 vote.

Mackasey To Give Accounting

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said Wednesday he would give a detailed accounting of unemployment insurance next week that could prove the payments are not a disincentive to work.

The Progressive Conservative party in its election campaign is inconsistent in saying unemployment expenses are "extravagant", Mr. Mackasey said. "Claude Wagner campaigning in Quebec was telling fishermen that there would be no extension of benefits.'

Mr. Mackasey repeated a charge that Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield "was riding the backs of the poor" by attacking unemployment insurance. The payments are not much, Mr. Mackasey said, but they allow the unemployed to seek out jobs.

He also denied reports last week that he said a $540 million deficit in the unemployment insurance fund was a "drop in the bucket."

Population Shifts Make It New Ballgame

VANCOUVER (CP) — Urban affairs Minister Ron Basford stood in front of Feinschmeider's Sausage Co. against a backdrop of bologna and bratwurst handing out Basford's Half Baked Facts and talking politics to startled shoppers on the city's Robsonstrasse.

"When I first ran for Parliament, a team of big horses couldn't have dragged me out main-streeting," the 45-year-old Liberal cabinet minister said while pumping hands.

"Now I just love it, especially on Robsonstrasse. I've never been a door-knocker but I do like main-streeting.

Robsonstrasse, a street of Old World delicatessens and tea rooms, dissects the city's west end, which in turn forms the core of the Vancouver Centre riding where Mr. Basford seeks re-election as a Liberal in the Oct. 30 election.

There are 40,000 people jammed into the apartments of high-rise buildings that make Robsonstrasse is the place to meet most of them.

That's why Mr. Basford reasons that Robsonstrasse is the place to meet most of them.

The Bald Buttons really are "senile" buttons turned upside down, the label forming a pert Basford dome.

Opposing Mr. Basford are Conservative John McDonald, 59-year-old tax lawyer who has been distributing buttons three times as big as the cabinet minister's, Ron Johnson, 21-year-old former radio reporter and youngest New Democratic Party candidate in the country, and Nick Zambus, Social Credit.

Then there is Ray Dodge, 43-year-old truck driver running for the Western Canada Party, and Daniel Fedoruk has filed nomination papers listing himself as the Socialist Labor Party candidate.

Returning officer Humphrey Mason said three other potential candidates—a Maoist and two Independents—had also picked up nomination papers—"there could be nine names on the ballot on election day."

The densely-packed west end is considered the key to the riding and in the words of one Liberal organizer each election is "won or lost with 11,131 for the NDP candidate and 8,221 for the Conservative."

Mr. McDonald, who helped write the Conservative platform on urban affairs, can rebut the taxation white paper of former Finance minister Edgar Benson, said he is counting on the "general disenchantment of Bill C-termers with the Grits" and "the death of Tradeaumania" to help him get 17,000-odd votes this time.

Mr. Basford said he figures the NDP candidate will once again finish in second place because Mr. McDonald is "unknown in Vancouver."

Mr. Johnson, who recognizes that he is a newcomer to the riding, said he is counting much on the afterglow of the NDP victory in the Aug. 30 provincial election. In that election the NDP defeated Social Credit in the two provincial ridings that correspond to the Vancouver Centre federal constituency.

Winnipeg South:

Anti-Roblin Feeling Now Not Evident

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg South Centre, a long-time Conservative stronghold, turned it back on years of Tory representation in the 1968 general election as the Liberals rode a wave of Trudeaumania to a decisive victory.

Now the Conservatives are hoping to restore the sprawling urban riding to their list of Western seats in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Trying to frustrate them is E. B. Osler, a 53-year-old insurance executive and writer who won for the Liberals four years ago in his first venture into politics.

He did it against a formidable opponent, Duff Roblin, Conservative premier of Manitoba from 1958 to 1967, who lost to Robert Stanfield in a bid for the national party leadership.

Political observers say that in the 1968 campaign there were strong anti-Roblin feelings in the riding, due largely to a backlash against a five-per-cent retail sales tax Mr. Roblin's provincial government had passed in 1967.

The Conservative candidate this time is Dan McKenzie, a 48-year-old city councillor and telephone company employee who was active in the 1968 Roblin campaign.

"There was an anti-Roblin vote in 1968," he says in assessing his own chances. Many people were upset and "very hostile" because of the sales tax.

He says the Trudeaumania that affected voters in 1968 may be reversed this time.

The s o l - spoken Mr. McKenzie, whose only previous political success was his election to city council last fall, was a surprise nominee.

He was chosen by acclamation, but only after rumors that a number of prominent federal Conservatives, including former attorney-general Sterling Lyon and provincial party president Graeme Haig, would seek the nomination.

Mr. Osler, who polled 23,755 votes in 1968 to 13,288 for Mr. Roblin, concedes he will not have Trudeaumania and anti-Roblin sentiment working for him but hopes his incumbent position will offset any losses.

"I've been in four years and I have an identity with the people that I didn't start with last time."

He also points to the past performance of voters in the predominantly middle-class constituency who have not turned out an incumbent in at least 27 years.

Liberal Ralph Maybank held the seat from 1935 until he resigned from the Commons in 1951.

Former Diefenbaker cabinet minister Gordon Churchill won it on a by-election in 1951 and held the seat until he retired from active politics before the 1968 election.

The New Democrats have traditionally run third in the riding with their candidate in 1968 getting 8,340 votes, a slight drop in percentage from the NDP performance in 1965.

Harvey Moats, a 34-year-old United Church minister who two unsuccessful campaigns in Northwestern Ontario under his belt, hopes the NDP's victory provincially in 1969 will help his chances.

He is also encouraged by what he sees as a less than aggressive Conservative campaign.

"The Conservatives have laid down and died in this constituency," he says, citing the failure of the sedentary Tory prominent to seek the nomination.

South Centre had more than 56,000 eligible voters in 1968 and now, due almost equally to the lower voting age and expanding suburban developments, eligible voters are estimated at about 70,000.

Prison Squalor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Conditions are so bad in Alabama prison hospitals, a federal judge said Wednesday, that convicts perform surgery and rags are used as substitutes for bandages. United States district court Judge Frank M. Johnson ordered prison authorities to take immediate steps to provide adequate medical care for all prisoners and also to put rigid controls on narcotics to stop "drug abuse" within the penitentiary walls.

Allies Visit

MONTREAL (CP) — A group of 56 Second World War French resistance workers and their families arrived here Wednesday to begin a five-day visit to Canada. The majority of the group worked in the Shelburn network of the British intelligence service, commanded at one-time by Captain Lucien A. Dumais of Montreal. They were group was to visit Ottawa today for a remembrance ceremony and a reception and dinner given by the department of veteran's affairs.

Doctor Drain

REGINA, (CP) — A new approach must be found to commit doctors to repay in some way the public cost of education, Saskatchewan Health Minister Walter Smishek said Wednesday. Physicians and other health personnel who cause a drain on a province's resources by moving away after being educated, occupied discussions as the provincial health ministers ended a two-day conference. Mr. Smishek said Saskatchewan believes the public has a big investment in physicians and they have some responsibility to return it in service.

Speaks Up for Rock

Elmer Iseler, conductor of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, says: "We have to look to the young composers who work in the field of rock music for the music of the future." He has yet to introduce pop - oriented works to his choir's repertoire, although he feels that this type of music may replace many of the ensemble's classical pieces in future. No Blame Attached In Hospital Death

TRENTON (Staff) — A five-man coroner's jury Wednesday attached no blame concerning the death of an RR3, Trenton man who died in the recovery room of Trenton Memorial Hospital June 2 of this year several hours after under going three operations.

Murray Parks, 28, a resident of Stockdale Road, underwent vasectomy, hernia and tonsilectomy, operations.

The coroner's jury was told by expert witnesses the combination of operations, while unusual, had no direct bearing on his death.

The official cause of death was given as a cardiac arrest. Complications set in shortly after the operation. Sometime went wrong and Mr. Parks' lungs filled with blood, stopping the flow to his brain. He couldn't breathe and experts said they felt this was the cause of the heart arrest.

Although Mr. Parks had a history of heart condition, consisting of an inflamed heart, Dr. Shirley Dereska, former Trenton Memorial Hospital pathologist now in Kitchener-Waterloo, testified this had no bearing on his death.

The surgeon Dr. H. D. De-Groot, has performed more than 3,000 similar tonsilectomy operations, problems. He and other doctors checked on the patient several times following the operation.

The jury was told during the 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. inquest, as soon as the critical condition was discovered expert medical teams were called in.

Two professors from Kingston General Hospital and Queen's University, Dr. Williams, head of the department of otorhinolaryngology (ear, nose and throat) and Dr. S. L. Vandewalker, head of the department of anaesthesiology translated into layman's terms the detailed medical reports for the jury.

Following the jury's verdict which stated they attached no negligence on the part of any of the principals involved, Dr. J. F. Leeson, Northumberland County coroner from Cobourg, congratulated them for their verdict, that included no recommendations or qualifications.

Snag Delays City's Official Plan Date

Nixon Vows Tough Line

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon has vowed to maintain a tough line in the Vietnam peace talks and on the battlefield, and not to allow his moves to be influenced by the presidential election.

At the same time, he has encouraged hopes that peace may be in the offing by saying the negotiations have reached a "sensitive stage," although he said he could not predict when or if a settlement would be reached.

"I will only say that negotiations are in a sensitive stage. I cannot predict and will not predict that they will or will not succeed. I cannot and will not predict when they will succeed."

Nixon, at a White House news conference, gave the appearance of a man confident he had the majority of the country behind his policy of putting maximum pressure on North Vietnamese military in hopes of persuading them finally to negotiate a settlement.

Repeatedly stressing that the presidential campaign would have no bearing on his actions or decisions, Nixon said: "If we can make the right kind of settlement before the election, we will do it. If we cannot, we are not going to make the wrong kind of settlement before the election."

Nixon's surprise news conference Thursday followed charges by his Democratic presidential rival, Senator George McGovern, that the president was "hiding" in the White House, but presidential aides denied there was a connection.

In a foreign-policy statement Thursday, McGovern reaffirmed his commitment to end the war and said that if elected, "My first act as commander-in-chief of inauguration day must be—will be—an immediate and total end of our involvement in the Indochina war."

Million Dollar Ransom

Girls, Teacher Kidnapped

MELBOURNE (AP) — Six young schoolgirls and their 29-year-old teacher were kidnapped from their school 70 miles northwest of here today, police said.

"Oh, Archie. You've been invited to North Vietnam!"

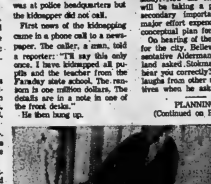
manding $1 million for their safe return.

It is believed the children, aged between five and 12, and the teacher, Mary Gibbs, were kidnapped during their music lesson at their school in Faraday.

The children were named as Christine Ellery, 10; Lynda Allison Coon, 9; her sister Helen Myra, 8; Elizabeth Bowarth, 11, and her sister Michelle, 8, and Denise Kaye, 12.

Early reports said that parents arriving at the school to collect their children found the ransom note on a desk.

The only other pupils who attend the school, two boys and two girls, were away with flu.



The ransom note demanded that $500,000 in $5, $10 and $20 notes be placed in three suitcases and the other $500,000 in $20 notes be put in six suitcases.

The note also read: "Delivery will be arranged. Will contact Lindsay Thompson—state education minister—at police headquarters at 7:35 p.m. WH not wrote time making threats, but any attempt to apprehend will result in annihilation of hostages."

Education Minister Thompson was at police headquarters but the kidnapper did not call.

First news of the kidnapping came in a phone call to a newspaper. The caller, a man, told a reporter: "I'll say this only once. I have kidnapped six pupils and the teacher from the Faraday state school. The ransom is one million dollars. The details are in a note in one of the front desks."

He then hung up.

Entire Area Needed

Belleville's official plan due next March got a big setback last night.

Quinte Planning Board learned the province now wants a plan for the entire region done first.

Frank Stadnyna, the deputy planning director, told Thursday's board meeting the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs wants a conceptual plan for Quinte done so it can see Belleville in better perspective.

The requirement may delay approval of the Belleville plan as much as a year.

News of the requirement means the completion of the conceptual plan must be a new priority for the board staff already working well into the evenings to keep up with demands.

The problem of tackling the conceptual plan is compounded by staff shortage brought on by illness of Quinte planning director Bert Kenny.

Until now the three professional planners employed by QPB have been concentrating their efforts on pushing through the Belleville plan while grudgingly working ahead-of-time on the conceptual study. Now the official plan will be taking a position of secondary importance. With major effort suspended on the conceptual plan for Quinte.

On hearing of the new snag for the city, Belleville representative Alderman Jack Ireland asked Stadnyna "did I hear you correctly?" He drew laughs from other representatives when he asked tongue-

What the Bleep!

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Fishermen who stole what they thought was a cargo of 400 television sets may have unwittingly salvaged Hanoi's surface-to-air missile system with genuine customer satisfaction, a newspaper reported today.

The South China Morning Post published what it said was a real-life "science fiction" story of the SAM missiles, and speculated that the Hong Kong fishermen must have sent the missiles "twisting and turning like mad things" as they twiddled the knobs.

It said the 400 electronic devices which "looked like TV sets" but were in fact complicated guidance units for SAM missiles, were stolen from a Chinese merchant ship which ran aground on a reef, 400 miles south of Hong Kong, five weeks ago.

But when the fishermen twiddled the many dials on the sets, they regained only a series of bleps, the electronic tracks on SAM missiles speeding into the air above North Vietnam on the trail of U.S. bombers.

"The rockets must have been twisting and turning like mad things," the paper said because "when the fishermen turned the many dials they also turned the course of the SAMs."

Lewis Predicts Tax Cut

NEW WATERFORD, N.S. (CP) — New Democrat leader David Lewis predicted Thursday the Trudeau government will be forced by the NDP campaign against corporate welfare to give Canadians an income-tax break before the Oct. 30 federal election.

Mr. Lewis told a cheering crowd of about 400 at a boisterous rally in this eastern Cape Breton town he expects the government to cancel plans to drop a three-per-cent income tax exemption it introduced on a temporary basis last fall.

Finance Minister John Turner said in his May budget the exemption would end Jan. 1, a move that would, in effect, raise income taxes three per cent above the current level.

Mr. Lewis said the government would credit an improved economy as a reason for its change of heart but, in fact, the move would be no more than a desperate bid to cling to power in the face of the NDP attack on what he calls corporate welfare.

Drawing repeated applause from supporters in a nearly-filled auditorium, Mr. Lewis said the NDP has made corporate welfare the gut issue of the election campaign.

He said the issue cuts through the hoopla of partisan talk politics and goes to the very heart of government—it's power to tax and spend.

Both the Liberal and Conservative parties are defending corporate welfare because they need it to survive, he said. Both parties rely on corporations for funds to operate.

"What we in the NDP have done for the first time . . . is to show that there is one set of rules for corporations and one other set for the average citizen."

"Only we can afford to tell you that Argus Corp. and the Power Corp. do not pay their fair share of taxes because we do not have to collect our campaign funds from big corporations."

Nixon Nixes Knocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has brushed aside Senator George McGovern's charges that his administration is the most corrupt and deceitful in history. Nixon told a news conference in his office Thursday that "some of my partisan advisers feel I should respond in kind" to the escalating accusations of the Democratic nominee.

"I shall not do so; not now, not throughout this campaign," he said. "I am not going to dignify such comments."

Rates to Increase

VANCOUVER (CP) — The leaders of the Canadian Real Estate Association said Thursday interest rates on mortgages will start creeping up again early next year and may again reach 10 per cent. Canada's close ties with world money markets particularly those in the United States, dictate the expected increase, officials said.

Bell Asks Rate Increase

MONTREAL (CP) — Bell Canada plans to apply to the Canadian transport commission for a three-to-four-per-cent increase in rates for 1972, company president Robert C. Scrivener said Thursday. The application, the second rate-increase request in the last 12 months, will probably be made in December, a company spokesman said. Mr. Scrivener said the company faces cost increases of about 11 per cent this year but productivity is increasing at five to six per cent a year.

Oldest Horse Dies

By MARGARET HAYLOCK, Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Star Dust, the oldest horse in Ontario, died yesterday at his Picton stable at the age of 39.

The black hunter gelding owned by Robert Jamieson of York Street provided a Black Beauty image for dozens of school children who visited him in his corral as they walked to classes each day.

The big horse basked in the attention of the youngsters and he was a popular favorite among them.

In his prime, Star Dust was ridden by Mr. Jamieson in many faire and horse shows in eastern Ontario and won his share of red ribbons.

When he died at the age of 39 he had already outlived the average life span of the horse by approximately 19 years.

Gillespie Says Airport Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — The "mega-airport concept" for Toronto is wrong and the decision to go ahead with a second international airport in the area was necessary, Science Minister Alastair Gillespie, the Liberal candidate for Toronto Etobicoke, said Thursday.

He told a news conference that Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who criticized the decision to go ahead with a second airport last Saturday, "should clarify his stand."

If Mr. Stanfield has rejected the idea of a mega-airport, "let him clearly say so" so voters in the area will know.

Stanfield Charges PM Treats Defence with Total Indifference

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield hailed Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday night for displaying "a total indifference" to Canada's armed forces and allegedly leaving the defence department without proper leadership.

Buoyed by a renewed declaration of all-out support from Ontario Premier William Davis, Mr. Stanfield uncorked a blister attack on the government for its attitude both toward the forces and the federal public service.

He accused Mr. Trudeau personally of causing a drop in armed services morale and of establishing a "cadre of personal political confidants"—executive authority that properly resides with government ministries.

He charged the government with fostering a conspiracy of silence about public affairs, and warned that the Liberal administration is prepared to renew its on-and-off campaign against Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson.

Mr. Stanfield drew repeated, noisy applause from a crowd of more than 1,000 that jammed an arena in south-central Ontario.

A few hours earlier, he had flown into Ottawa after 1½ days of campaigning in and around Edmonton.

Mr. Stanfield was introduced Thursday night by Premier Davis, who assured him that he had the complete support of Mr. Davis himself, members of the Ontario cabinet, and Conservative members of the provincial legislature in his election campaign.

Sensitive to the strength of the public service and armed forces vote in this capital city, Mr. Stanfield charged that government policies have caused frustration in the first group and sagging morale in the second.

The defence portfolio had become "merely a staging area" for ministers on their way from one government post to another.

"Hardly any are there long enough to unpack their bags."

Mr. Trudeau has appointed three different defence ministers since taking office in 1968. The department now is in the hands of an acting minister, G. M. Drury, who also is president of the treasury board.

The last three minister, E. J. Benson, served only seven months before being appointed president of the Canadian transport commission Sept. 1. Mr. Stanfield observed.

That meant he had not been involved in preparation of the defence budget.

"Perhaps this was intended," said Mr. Stanfield. "That would be understandable given the prime minister's total indifference to that department."

The Conservative leader alleged that because of the prime minister's attitude, the defence ministry has been left without leadership continuity at a time when crucial decisions have to be made regarding Canada's place in NORAD and NATO and major equipment purchases.

Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Henderson, the auditor-general, has been under constant harassment by Mr. Trudeau and the government.

The government's passion for secrecy had led to more than one attempt to decimate the staff of the auditor-general, watchdog of the public purse.

"I have no doubt that if Mr. Henderson's power to the government would resume its attack on the auditor-general."

Passenger Train Kills Pedestrian

An inquest will be held into the death of a Belleville man, killed last night when struck by the Toronto-Montreal evening passenger train at a fenced Grier Street crossing.

Frederick Arthur Yeates, 57, was walking home to 13 Baldwin Street when he was struck instantly killed in the 6:34 p.m. mishap.

He was pronounced dead at the scene by Coroner Dr. John Stock.

The eastbound train was delayed 35 minutes.

The crossing, between College Street East and Moira Street East, has no signal lights but has been fenced on both sides for several years. As a result, Grier Street is closed to through traffic.

The train had slowed down some time before for the regular stop at Belleville Station.

The engineer was Ronald Godden, 1261 Bridge Street, with Howard McQuaid, 29 Lambert Drive, fireman.

Born at Cordova, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elias Yeates, he leaves his wife, the former Alma Ulmer, three sons and three daughters: Arthur, Trevelio; Oscar and Edward, of Belleville; Pansella, at home; Mrs. John (Iris) Sager, Belleville, and Mrs. Christopher (Marie) Wright, Thunder Bay.

Also surviving are four brothers — Harry, Ira, John and Barney, all of Belleville; three sisters, Mrs. Harry (Emma) Tugnett, Mrs. Violet Gill and Mrs. Alvin (Gerald-ine) Beahh, all of Belleville, and two grandchildren. He was predeceased by a brother, Henry.

Mr. Vosteveld was a painter by trade.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, Funeral service will take place Saturday, at 1 p.m. with interment in Belleville cemetery.

Planning

ta-check if the conceptual plan would be ready for the city's next month.

Completion of the conceptual plan is so far away that OPB staffers are not even predicting a date for its final drafting. Although research on the Belleville plan is going on concurrently, its drafting must "take a back seat."

The conceptual plan requirement comes as planning director Kenny is recovering from a six-hour heart surgery ordeal at Kingston General Hospital.

The board was told Sept. 28 during may meeting that the end of December at the earliest, that's part time work only. His full time return to board duties will not take place before the end of January 1973.

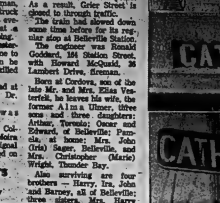
"We are really on the horns of a dilemma," commented Alderman Arnold Orr, "and we are injured for some loss."

Board staff members are only just starting to produce the conceptual plan, it will be composed of five related studies, one of which is done.

Councillor Ray McCarthy of Sidney township asked Mr. Stokmans if provincial subsidies would entitle for completion of conceptual studies related only to greater Belleville, as this would be down on the workload required.

Mr. McCarthy said he would meet the provincia. demand that the Belleville plan be put in context without necessitating a complete conceptual for the entire county.

Stokmans collected that it would lead to a considerable reduction in the work immediately required, and that it would look like the possibility.



Trenton delegates showed considerable interest in the Belleville last night, as they recalled it took them about a year to get their official plan through the ministry of intergovernmental affairs and it is now held up again by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Deputy director Sukmans explained to the board that large-scale development in the city would be held up until the official plan is finished. However, he said he didn't think not having the plan would slow the construction of townhouses and apartments to the range of about 40 units.

Credibility Gap

Persons walking along this West Hill street don't know what to believe. When city engineer Wilbur Purcell checked the spelling on hand surveyor Henry Carey's official city plan, dated 1862 he found the correct spelling was Catharine, Signposts, such as the one shown in the bottom picture, were erected during the last six years and will be replaced.

By now, dated to the turn of the century, are located on houses.

Survey Shows School Leisure Use Wanted

The typical householder may be more environmentally conscious than social critics credit.

That's one of the inferences to be drawn from a recent neighborhood leisure-time survey by Belleville's recreation department.

The survey is to determine the need for school - centred recreation programs in the College St. Prince of Wales Drive area west of the Moira River and will be used largely by heavy response to questionnaires outlining the concept.

The survey was made mainly for the department. canvassers found 30 per cent of homeholders who answered willingly volunteered to help with such a program.

Such a percentage, considering the survey, no doubt indicates the neighborhood is pleased with such a concept, but "waiting for help in the development of their community through this program".

The survey was made through July and August in an area of 400 houses by two teenage students who conducted interviews at the doors of residents and left questionnaires for later mailing by householders. Returns were highsome 54 per cent.

The survey was based on the possibility of organizing Prince of Wales public school and the response shows high interest in a contrasting range of activities from karate to macrame handicraft.

As yet, it's too early for an official response to the concept, says recreation department director Clancy Clifford Belch. Both the department and school authorities have to evaluate the study and decide what recommendations are feasible.

"It was a painstaking effort and very worthwhile," says Mr. Belch of the survey, handled by a provincial government grant, and in line with the concept of putting educational facilities to community use when not needed for school purposes.

In sum, the community school program concept was "received with enthusiasm in the area," the young canvassers found.

Most residents indicated their area was completely lacking in recreation activities, although confessed they didn't know just what programs were offered by the city. However, programs are available further west at King George and Quinte Secondary schools and the fault may lie with the fact householders don't take the initiative to find out what is scheduled.

However, a community program would be a great incentive.

Submission was the leisure choice of most people.

Sports activities recommended in the survey:

Tennis—With 107 people showing interest, consideration should be given for indoor facilities of tennis courts in the area.

Table tennis—School facilities are slated to this sport.

Karate—A wide age range, many females, indicated interest in a self-defence program, and it should be started.

Art—Again a wide variety of age interest and said a program should definitely" operate at Prince of Wales.

Cards—Bridge and euchre drew an enthusiastic response from those asked to learn the games.

Chess—Enough were enthusiastic about learning more advanced techniques for the pastime to be considered.

Union Protests

PICTON (Staff) — Stewart Norval, president of Local 207 United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International this week claimed the government is holding the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. "at ransom" through failure to issue the plant a licence to quarry sand.

Members of the union met with James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward - Lennox in the Progressive Conservative committee rooms this afternoon to discuss the mine at the Sandbanks by the company.

Quarry operations have been halted because the LOCL does not have a licence as specified under the Pits and Quarries Act implemented in Hallowell township recently.

Mr. Norval has said other quarry operators in Hallowell have been granted licences to continue operations.

He mentioned concern among union members because of the present situation and noted that stockpiled sand at the plant is dwindling.

Quarrying will be hampered with the coming of winter weather and a shutdown of operations could result.

Mr. Taylor will be asked what action he plans to take in connection with the LOCL's delay in receiving a licence.

Funerals

MRS. GARNET R. DAVIDSON
Millbridge, Ont.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary B. Davidson was held on Wednesday afternoon, October 4 from the MacKenzie Funeral Home at Maple Grove to John the Baptist Anglican Church where service was conducted by Rev. J. D. Thompson.

Mrs. LOBA Memorial service was held on Tuesday evening and was under the direction of Ruth Lodge, No. 409, Millbridge. Interment was placed in Eldorado Cemetery.

Bearers were Malcolm Carruthers, Donald Thompson, Clinton Woodbeck, Thomas Lummiss, Lawrence Donaldson and William McCaw.

Candidates to Face Youth

Face-to-face confrontation between aspiring members of parliament seems to be gaining favor in the Quinte district.

Next Wednesday, Hastings riding hopefuls, Progressive Conservative Alan Ellis, Liberal Frank Folkwell and New Democratic Party Elridge Strehlow will face an entire county high school students at Centennial Secondary School in a question-and-answer session.

The same evening the Quinte and District Labor Council will sponsor a Quinte all-candidates' night — also at Centennial Secondary School. Invitations have been forwarded to the three party candidates in both Hastings-Frontenac and Hastings to participate in the program.

And the scene will be repeated with a slightly different format on October 18 at Loyalist College where the three aspirants will answer pre-submitted questions from the student body.

Loyalist students will make the program a working session and sophisticated college audio and video recording equipment will be used to tape the proceedings.

Energy Shortage Is Said Critical

PETERBOROUGH — U. S. energy shortages will be felt in Ontario as early as 1974, a government advisor said Monday.

As a result, more application must be made of nuclear reactors which not only meet the demand for electric power but also minimize potential pollution.

The advice came from Dr. Robert Hay, a member of the advisory committee on energy established by the Ontario government last year to study the total provincial energy picture. He was speaking to delegates at an Eastern Ontario Municipal Electric Association conference in Peterborough.

Dr. Hay had much of the blame for current U. S. power shortages on environmentalists. Their concept of a "risk free" existence produces "hypothesy and antimony . . . whenever electric energy is discussed," he said.

Pollution Probe, a Toronto-based environmental society, has proposed restrictions on Ontario Hydro that could prove "drastic," he said. Probe would like Hydro to limit its growth and abandon all forms of promotion in the space- and water - heating fields. They have also suggested the establishment of a regulatory board for the electric industry.

"Do we limit growth by limiting our capacity to meet electrical demand, by encouraging the adversary process now so prominent in the U.S.? Some say yes. But, as a result, when U. S. utilities are being forced to shed load, there is a combination of blackout, and sooner or later the public at large is going to be aware of the choice but is being forced upon them.

"The reaction will be immediate and drastic."

Hay suggested, such as that provided by the uniquely Canadian CANDU reactor, is one way to meet the energy crisis, said Dr. Hay.

He also said the rate of increase of Canadian crude oil reserves was "in a severe downturn" and wondered how much the United States would take in tribute for the capital required to open up new fields in the Mackenzie River delta and the Arctic islands.

Ontario residents, who use about one-third of Canada's total energy resources, will be hardest hit by the impending shortages, he said.

Dr. Hay urged Canadians not to heed what is happening south of the border.

"We should learn from the Ocker fellow's experience. We must do our best to co-operate and work with people who are willing to be responsible . . . and who will not stick to impossible and extreme positions," he said.

Reminders In Mail

First measures to ensure Belleville voters have been enfranchised for the Oct. 30 election already have been taken.

About half of close to 13,000 urban preliminary elector lists were mailed to city household yesterday. The balance were to be mailed today.

The documents go to every home where names have been already enumerated — and include separate lists for each householder, tenant and boarder.

If any errors are discovered, voters should immediately contact the district returning officer for Hastings constituency, of which the city folds, the dominant vote. Revising agents will then call to collect the information and rectify any errors or omissions before three official revising officers who will be in session Oct. 11, 12, 13.

If voters do not receive such lists it likely means their names have not been included, since they have just been home when canvassers called, or responded to reminders left by enumerators, says constituency returning officer Reginald Dunham.

In such cases they should contact his office immediately.

Mailing of the lists was spread across two days to reduce the bulk for letter carriers, he explained.

CUT DOWN FATS — AND LIVE!
Cigarette smoking, tension, lack of exercise . . . all are heart killers. But there's one more, just as serious. Heart specialists show how we dig our own graves by fastening on too much fat and cholesterol in our daily diets. Strong evidence indicates this is the reason North Americans have four times more heart disease than the Japanese. Be sure to read "The Role of Fats" — part of a compelling 3-part feature, "YOU AND YOUR HEART" in the October Reader's Digest. It could be the most important reading you do this year!

Machine Moulds Soles on Pre-made Uppers

Bata Sells Soles in China

BATAWA, (Staff) — Recent participation by 20 Canadian manufacturing concerns in the Canadian Trade Fair in Peking, China, has brought the focus of attention on increased co-operation between East and West, as close to home as the Bata Engineering plant here.

Three Bata men attended the August trade fair, displayed and sold one of their shoe-making machines to two several plants in the Chinese capital, and sampled some of the society until recently barred to the western visitor.

Batawa plant manager G. W. Lawrence says he was somewhat disappointed that the Canadian contingent were unable to view the Chinese footwear industry. He pointed out that the mainland government officials had arranged approximately 10 industrial tours of general interest.

Through partial sponsorship by the Canadian department of trade and commerce, Bata Engineering was able to transport a direct injection moulding machine to the trade fair. As the only shoe manufacturing company displaying, Mr. Lawrence said much interest was generated by their machine which actually produced two styles of shoes for visitors.

"It was rather interesting, the way negotiations were handled. A first we dealt with trade authorities," he explained.

"You don't see the people who would be operating the machine in the plant, just the technicians. If they liked the equipment, their recommendations were made to the Chinese government, and then we dealt with government people."

As well as the moulding machine, which produced men's and women's low-slung running shoes, made from polyvinylchloride, the company presented films, slides, shoe samples and literature dealing with a wide variety of its products.

"We plan to forward further literature. Like any customer, if you don't follow up, the visit is wasted and other company's improved products can replace yours," he said in an interview at the Batawa plant.

Asked if sale of the moulding machine, for $45,000, may enable the Chinese to copy it without making further purchases, Mr. Lawrence agreed it was quite possible. However, while he expects many of the Canadian machines will be turned over to Chinese designers for copying, "it's not likely they will copy our machine."

He candidly theorized that the Chinese shoe industry is not as advanced as Canada's.

The plant manager said he enjoyed the trip to China, and a chance to meet people who he described as "very friendly, with a real sense of humor." His party had a chance to tour the Great Wall of China, the cities of Peking and Canton, plus a Chinese commune, a vehicle manufacturing and a turbine plant.

Although he admits their tour may have been window dressing for the visitors, he said they saw no shortage of food, and a large range of goods available in stores, if not of the quality of Canadian.

Only goods manufactured in China are available for sale, but he said the variety was surprisingly good, if not exactly up to the high standards Canadians.

As for the food, well, it was simply marvellous, he said. Not surprising, dishes such as chop suey and other quick Chinese Canadian dishes, were completely unheard of. And the Chinese versions of those on menus at home, were very much different to the style.

Using chopsticks was a new experience and he described dishes such as Peking Duck as "one of the best meals I've ever tasted."

Western Food? It was available, but for a country with an almost non-existent beef industry, this wasn't entirely unexpected. Most of the food eaten in China, he observed, consists of fish, poultry, pork and rice staples.

He had high praise for the efforts of the Canadian government in arranging for the fair, at the same time as China displayed its wares at the CNE in Toronto. The visitors were told there was the first Canadian plane to land in Peking since 1949.

"We were told, when the idea was started, this was the last opportunity to exhibit in China until 1976. Other programs were booked for the years in between and this first trade fair was a gamble. They (the Chinese) do business with the outside world through trade fairs."

The two Bata employees who accompanied Mr. Lawrence were Walker Pauliuc, manager of application and service engineering, and technician Fred Hujik.

Trenton Firefighters Set for Safety Week

TRENTON (Staff) — Next week is Fire Safety Week in Trenton, and the Trenton Fire Department is doing its best to make the people of the town especially aware of the need for proper fire precautions.

Under the co-ordination of Fire Inspector Robert Haker, squads of 20-day firemen have begun inspecting factories and stores in the town, continuing with schools next week.

As Inspector Haker explained, "The main thing we check for is any serious fire hazards and housekeeping out of place. We're not looking for petty things, just serious fire hazards."

Asked to explain further, he said accumulation of cardboard and paper, poorly kept doors, poorly charged or nonexistent fire extinguishers, poor wiring, over-abundance of extension cords and multiple hookups are some of the hazards that will interest inspectors.

At the scene, accompanied by shopowners, factory supervisors or school representatives, a list of hazards will be prepared. Anything considered minor will be left to the discretion of the building representative. Reports of major hazards will be turned over to Fire Chief Cecil Ellis.

In several instances, re-inspections are considered necessary.

Starting Friday, Oct. 6, the department will present a fire safety film from the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office in Toronto, at the 10 Trenton public schools.

The schedule of school showings are: Oct. 6, Notre Dame and St. Mary's; Oct. 10, Dufferin and Prince Charles; Oct. 11, Marmora Street and, Queen Elizabeth; Oct. 12, St. Paul's and Trinity Christian; and Oct. 13, College and V. P. Carswell public schools.

In time for Fire Safety Week the department is distributing fire hazard literature to all homes in Trenton, offering easy-to-understand checklists, and numerous fire safety hints including which hazards to look for, plus proper plans for escape in the event of a fire.

Higher Water Is Good For Pike and Muskies

High water levels in Lake Ontario this summer won't affect fishermen for at least a couple of years, says the director of Glenora Fisheries.

Jack Christie adds that while pike and muskellunge could increase in number, other species such as whitefish and smallmouth bass may decline.

A U.S. Lake Survey issued in Detroit Thursday revealed Lake Ontario is 26 inches above its normal level for this time of year.

Continuing high levels have extended, spawning habitats for fish that seek out shallow water — such as pike and muskie.

The result, says Mr. Christie, is that the water hasn't receded, giving eggs more chance of survival.

"There should be a noticeable increase in a couple of years for some fish," said the director.

A factor synonymous with high water levels, however, is reduced sunlight. The increase in precipitation naturally means a higher percentage of cloudy skies.

Without the sun, water temperatures remain cool and production of warm water species is somewhat hindered.

"Whitefish need warm water in the spring and smallmouth bass need it in midsummer," said Mr. Christie. "They could both be adversely influenced."

Also, fish appetites taper off as temperatures decline. Largemouth bass, for instance will ignore food if the temperature drops below 50 degrees. The effect is also seen in the fishes' size which tends to remain smallish.

Countering the cool water detriment is an increase in the amount of oxygen available to the fish, particularly in areas where it would normally accumulate in warmer years. Algae growth is delayed although the part this factor will play in future fish production remains to be seen.

The water is definitely cleaner this year, notes Mr. Christie. Shorelines everywhere have taken on a shiny sparkle instead of the grey blue common in recent years.

"It's not to do with improved pollution control though," he adds. "Dilution isn't the solution to pollution."

County's Future

Prince Edward County's image as a region of only scant industry and given over mainly to tourism does harm.

There is a small industrial base but it has seen no noticeable increase in recent years.

When the prospect of a pulp plant on the Lake Ontario shore arose a year or two ago the spectre of pollution raised its ugly head and the plan, which never really got off the ground anyway, was scrapped.

And there was that grandiose plan for a huge airport to take the strain off Toronto and Montreal if you please, but it got nowhere either.

So Little Spain remains relatively dormant, except for the tourists and they don't spend much money there anyway, and the brisk boom in house building by people who have come to appreciate the county's rural charm and surpassing landscapes.

The county nevertheless is still hankering after more industry and has served further notice of this in briefs prepared by County Council's economic development committee and by the Chamber of Commerce. The former says the county urgently needs a county-wide plan of development while the Chamber says job opportunities are needed for residents on a full-time, year-round basis. Many are employed outside the county and travel more than a hundred miles a day in some cases.

As for tourism, people keep coming, but the county sees no advantage in further park development, since the visitors spend little money and — the complete brief lists darkly — "pollution and crime in the immediate vicinity" can be drawbacks. Indeed there was a holdup this summer at the driving range just this side of The Outlet and of course there is the everpresent problem of theft.

The widespread publicity over commercial exploitation of The Sandbanks — that is removal of sand for use by Lake Ontario Cement Company — has resulted, ironically, in an increase in the number of visitors there this year — no fewer than 81,186 people showing up compared with 66,130 for the same period last year. Figures for The Outlet were 402,168, up from 396,021 last year. North Bay provincial park, as attractive as any but with less reliable facilities, had a 10,000 drop in attendance to 86,025 from 89,029 last year.

The Quinte Isle Tourist Association reports that visitors came from as far away as Hong Kong and from Mexico, England, Denmark and Germany not to mention British Columbia on home shores. We even saw a mini-bus from Guatemala earlier in the season and of course the United States was well represented as usual.

It can be seen though that more industry is both needed and desired by the county and we are sure it will come in time. Meanwhile, as a friend suggested the county could by the name Little Spain? If anything it is shaped like the Isle of Wight off the southern coast of England. Does anyone know who first coined this county nickname?

Conserving Our Resources

Belleville's pilot project for the pick-up of paper for re-cycling deserves the support of the public. The program, which will coincide with garbage pick-up and calls for the paper to be tied and placed beside the garbage is in line with the current emphasis on the preservation of our natural resources and protection of the environment.

A recent Ottawa report of recent days in which Dr. Asit K. Biswas, chief of the environment department's ecological systems research division, was quoted as saying the federal government should be playing a greater role in the management and re-use of the whole range of used materials that goes variously by the name of garbage, rubbish, refuse, litter, junk and refuse.

For all the attention this subject is receiving, Dr. Biswas and University of Toronto doctoral student Hersch Jacobs, claim in their 350-page report, Solid Waste Management Techniques and Perspectives, that the problem of garbage has "reached critical proportions" and it does not receive adequate attention.

For all the way dailies that even the considerable publicity the subject is attracting is insufficient and constitutes little more than a soporific. The whole problem, then, as it has come to the attention of the public, is probably little more than the tip of the iceberg and we must make still greater efforts, individually and at the government level, to conserve our resources and maintain a clean environment.

B.C. May See Seats Change Hands

Ontario Remains Key Province in October 30 Election

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — In an earlier look upon the election possibilities in eight of the 11 provinces we eulogized Today, a look at the two "mystery" provinces, Ontario and British Columbia.

Ontario, with 88 of the total 264 Commons' seats, is the key province and it is here the Conservatives must make their biggest gains if they have hopes of forming the government. The prospect for this going ahead is fairly bright if he or elder will on that tradition. The 27 seats they won in 1968 is their lowest Ontario total in history, while the Liberal's 64 was their 2nd record. The New Democrats won six and picked up a seventh from the Liberals in a by-election in Brant. There was one Ontario Independent-MP, Commons' Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

The bilingualism issue in the public service will be a big factor in the Ottawa and eastern Ontario ridings where Liberal Ministers Mitchell Sharp, Jean Marchand, Gerard Pelletier and Murray McBride are fighting for their political lives. Also Speaker Lamoureux's Orleans is a tough situation against former Conservative cabinet minister Yves Pelletier. Air Honey had a hot fight in Carleton.

The Conservatives were shut-out in Metro Toronto last time and could make some headway by the 20 Metro ridings they can accept in line and they are fighting hard to get as many of the total vote compared to 45.4 per cent for the Liberals and 23.8 per cent for the New Democrats. In possibly seven ridings finishes were close in each one. Don Mills, where Dalton Camp trailed Liberal Robert Kaplan by about 3,000 votes.

The Conservatives have picked up success for some years in Northern Ontario which has been split between Liberals and New Democrats. In the 1968 election the Liberals had a sizeable lead in only four ridings, Sudbury, Timmins, Nipissing and Cochrane North surviving. The Tories have hopes of picking up Liberal seats chairman Jean-R. Roy, who defeated Mr. Nesbitt by 2,562 votes in the last election.

There are 19 cabinet ministers from Ontario but spe. defence minister Benson, has retired to take over the Canadian Wheat Board.

The Conservatives should gain seats in Ontario but the question is how many. Mr. Stanfield has been campaigning hard in Ontario and has been well received. Mr. Robert Stanfield, Mr. Robert Stanfield, Mr. Robert Stanfield,

Hunters' Course Next Week

BRENTON (Staff) — Ducks and partridge have been fair game for the many amateur hunters who annually take to the woods in droves and by Nov. 6, deer season will be open. In order to give the would-be hunters a good grounding in firearm and hunting safety and regulations, the Trenton police department has scheduled a two - day course at the police station.

The course, to be held Oct. 26 and 31, between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m., will offer instruction in the proper care and handling of firearms, plus the many do's and don'ts of hunting courtesy and safety. At completion of the session, which is examination will be offered.

A spokesman for the department today explained such courses or previous hunting licences are necessary before a new licence will be issued.

Both nights are compulsory for the students, and firearms will be handled by the instructors.

Anyone under the age of 15 is welcome to attend the classes. However, they are not permitted to write the exams. Hunting licences for those aged 15 and over can be obtained, after standard qualifications plus written permission from parents, are presented to any office of the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Stand-in Accepts

Civil Service Concedes On Retirement Issue

Belleville customs employee John Robertson can now go back to work at his government job following more than a year of forced "retirement".

Mr. Robertson had been retired at age 61 under a regulation introduced in 1954 which permitted many department heads to retire federal public servants between the ages of 60 and 65.

The Public Service Alliance of Canada which represents approximately 16,000 civil servants, fought the ruling for Mr. Robertson and won its case in the Supreme Court of Canada. An appeal by the government was then lost.

An appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada by the government was also made a year ago but the case was thrown out by the government itself when it failed to file further appeal and that the ruling stood with the union.

Under an agreement made between the parties over the regulations declared ultra vires by the court, Mr. Robertson would be re-instated and paid full salary from the date of retirement, less pensions or benefits paid and income he may have earned from other work.

With agreement with appeal the issue between the parties over the pensions and powers for extension beyond 65 will remain.

Customs information on the use of the province is not available, but a recent survey indicated 16 public servants have been retired under the regulation, most of them since 1966.

With removal of the provision, regulations for calculating retirement at 60 and powers for extension beyond 65 will remain.

Climate Changing for Fair

"The Quinte Exhibition is riding on the peak of a very strong wave of . . . and with our rapidly changing social needs, how might be the time to change," said Douglas Tipper, Hastings County Ag Rep, last night.

Mr. Tipper was the guest speaker at last night's annual dinner meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society, held in the Oddfellows Hall.

A steady advance of fairs and described as "a man with his soul in soil," Mr. Tipper asked the question, "Where are you going?"

There is a different emphasis now on fairs. Local people do not have to go to the fair to market their product, but can use marketing boards.

Because of this switch of emphasis on marketing, the manufacturer and the retailer should become more vital to the fair, he said.

"The backbone of the Quinte Exhibition has been strong, and the time to make changes is when you are in a favorable position," said Mr. Tipper.

"And while you are considering changes, to make your fair better, ask yourself the question, 'Is there any purpose in getting bigger?'"

Mr. Tipper suggested to the large group in attendance, there is a lot of merit in having several smaller fairs.

"Don't get bigger for bigger's sake and determine who you are trying to serve," he said.

"You have to attempt to meet the many varying needs of the consumer, producer, manufacturer and retailer, he said.

Everett Gowsell, secretary manager of the Agricultural society, organizer of the exhibition, said this morning he agreed with Mr. Tipper's comments on size.

"It is interesting a change is needed and we all agree," he said.

"We have no really firm plans at the moment but are attempting to achieve a bridge between the consumer and the producer and between urban and rural people," said Mr. Gowsell.

"We can't build the fair any bigger because we don't have the real estate . . . we must be more selective in the type of exhibits we accept," he said. A major consideration will be the possibility of more frequent, smaller fairs.

"With our exhibition placed in August we are out of the race for flowers and vegetables and livestock," he said.

"We would cater to the people more efficiently if we had those shows earlier in the season and appeal to other audiences by having spanning events," said Mr. Gowsell.

The idea is to bring the fair into a more seasonal sort of thing, displaying produce in its best periods, he said.

"We are at it right now at our monthly meetings and in the next two years you may not see the traditional week-long fair," Mr. Gowsell commented.

There will be no major changes in next summer's fair because most plans have been made but there is a possibility of a pilot project to see how a smaller, more specialized fair would work out.

Lots to Carry

On behalf of Prescott resident Gary Dawson, Ed Gaudreau accepts top honors for the champion gymkhana at this year's Quinte Exhibition. Presenting the Bishop Trophy is Bill Bishop. The presentation was made at last night's annual meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society held in the Oddfellows Hall.

Director Honored

Hudson (Happy) Ketchabaw (left) last night was presented with a certificate recognizing his outstanding work as a director on the fair board. Making the presentation is Donald Spencer. Awards filled the annual meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society last night in the Oddfellows Hall.

Special Guests at Study Guild

The fall meeting of the Women's Study Guild took place at the home of Mrs. O. B. Ragsdale. Fifteen members assembled to discuss "Out Work Ethic", with Richard J. Needham and Ada Smith as their special guests.

The president, Mrs. L. N. Fortin, welcomed members and guests, and began the evening with a memorial tribute to Mrs. H. C. Seldon.

Miss Olive Edson announced plans for various programs during the coming season. Mrs. L. F. Reid conducted the meditation, with the theme that "when you work, you fulfill a part of earth's furthest dream, assigned to you when that dream was born."

Mrs. Ragsdale introduced the guest of the evening, Richard Needham who for the past 42 years has had a career with newspapers in Canada from St. John, Newfoundland, to British Columbia. Mr. Needham was born in Gibraltar and brought up in England, and at one time farmed near Kenoraville.

Mr. Needham estimated that he had written and spoken at least 16 million words, and, in addition to that impressive total, provided inspiration for an interesting evening's discussion. Mr. B. Ragsdale and Mrs. R. C. Ellis, who were responsible for the evening's program, provided added stimulus with comments and quotations uncovered in their original search for material on this topic of the Work Ethic. Mr. Needham responded to a request for sources some months ago by volunteering to come in person to the Study Guild meeting.

Tongue in cheek, the guest suggested that to the occupants of the Garden of Eden was given the original curse of work — for most people today regard work as a curse. The industrial revolution, with its separation of the man's earlier joy in craftsmanship, is a recent event — earlier joy in providing food for himself and his family. The current attitude that work is bad shows up as people strive to get more and more and more.

Mr. Needham postulated that all of the people who want to work are working, as witness the long help wanted ads in newspapers — and this sparked some spirited discussion.

During the last 25 years, he said, the group we call the revolution in the western world has seen the sudden emergence of the teen age, plus the fact that never before in the Anglo Saxon world has society made it possible for so many people to live without working. And to the estimated pretties 500,000 unemployed adults, could be added approximately 1½ million students in High Schools and Colleges, to make a more realistic total of two million unemployed.

Canada was pictured as a nation of whiners who, faced with problems, cried to the government constantly for solution, rather than buckling down to supply solutions as individuals.

A financial crises is predicted — the only answer to which seems to be a reduction in the standard of living. And, to change attitudes in this regard seems to be difficult. In the meantime, rising prices are causing the deterioration of the Canadian dollar.

The phenomena of workers hailing their work and their time brought the comment that if a person hates his work he is undertaking a form of suicide — he should get out of that work to some endeavor in which he can find pride and interest. "Workers today don't make a living — they make money and buy a living."

The problem of loyalty to employers, and the question of Canadian workers pricing themselves out of world markets was aired. Canada, for instance, ships her copper to Japan, where Japanese find work manufacturing at a much lower cost to the producer than would be possible here. Canada needs craftsmanship if she is to become an industrial country — and Canada must decide whether she does; in fact wish to become more industrialized.

If all welfare stopped tomorrow, Mr. Needham held that suddenly everyone would work. The will to work would come with the need to work or die.

Discussion about formal education seemed to bring out the majority opinion that higher education was assimilated with better and happier results when it was undertaken voluntarily at a more mature age than is currently the practice. A few years 'out in the world' seems to make both the appetite and the aptitude for higher education a healthier one.

REDNERSVILLE WI

REDNERSVILLE — Mrs. C. McFaul entertained the Rednersville WI for their September meeting. The president Mrs. E. Onderdonk opened the meeting.

Mrs. R. Weatheral, education convener, led in the prayer with a poem. Mrs. Weatheral introduced guest speaker Mrs. Hanna, a teacher at the Rednersville School who specializes in teaching "slow learners" and also the teacher grade five. The guest speaker also read a poem about the sense of failure. She showed slides of children at school some starting with themselves and others in groups. Slides were also shown which were taken at other schools in Prince Edward County—Picton, Massassaga, North Marysburg and Keeler.

Mrs. Hanna showed samples of the new labs which resemble files and cover areas such as: rural life, urban environments, beef farming, dairy farm products, neighbors, service stations and restaurants. Other labs were shown for learning skills.

Mrs. Hanna divided the women into groups for interviewing a game of making words, others using crayons to make a story. In the latter the women chose one subject from each of three columns of objects and build a story around them.

Mrs. R. Weatheral thanked Mrs. Hanna for her interesting program and presented her with a gift.

During the business, Mrs. E. Onderdonk thanked the women who helped in different capacities at the Picton Fair.

An annual report of the boy in the ring being which the WI sponsors was given. A motion was passed that the group continue sponsoring the boy. Training school for the senior citizens' banquet in March with Knits will be held on October 31 and November 1.

The leaders will be Mrs. K. Green and Mrs. W. Pulver.

A letter was read from the district secretary regarding the resolutions to be voted on at the area convention which will pertain to the poor nylon threading which unravels in manufactured garments and the alcoholic beverage advertisements.

Mrs. E. Onderdonk will be the delegate for the Rednersville WI and alternates will be Mrs. A. Carson, Mrs. C. Smith and Mrs. C. Vanclief. Mrs. H. Montgomery thanked the hostess, program convener and lunch committee.

Following the meeting, lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

EAST HASTINGS WI EXECUTIVE

A district meeting of East Hastings Women's Institute executive was held recently at the home of the president Mrs. F. Wellman. There were 15 members representing 10 branches who attended.

First of the business items was a discussion on the two resolutions which are to be presented at the forthcoming area convention to be held in Peterborough. Two members were appointed to be responsible for the sale of meal tickets on the second day of the convention Oct. 25.

A bus will be available for transportation to Peterborough on Oct. 24 and accommodation for four from each branch will be available. The route will start at the Quinte WI hall and any one wishing further information may contact Mrs. Wellmore, RR1, Corbyville.

There was also some discussion re a district get-together; also in regard to a delegate attending the national convention.

The business served light refreshments.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS SMITH
— Smith – Dafoe

St. Thomas Church in Belleville was the setting recently for the double-ring ceremony when Claudia Charmaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jay Dafoe became the bride of Douglas Bruce Smith son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith of Holloway, Rev. Peter Tett of Belleville performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, selected a floor length white gown with long sleeves and cuffs and featuring a rhinestone adornment in the front. A double veil fell from a rhinestone crown. The bride carried a Bible which was crested with red roses.

Matron of honor for her sister-in-law, Mrs. Donald Dafoe wore a lilac floor length gown. The bridesmaids: Miss Barbara Smith, of Holloway; sister of the bridegroom, Miss Kathy Rushton and Mrs. Tanya Scriven, sister of the bride were dressed identically to the matron of honor.

Miss Charmaine Scriven, the bride's niece, was the flower girl and wore a full length gown similar to the other bridal attendants.

Steven Smith of Holloway was best man for his brother. Robert Smith, the bridegroom's brother, Donald Gord Gurd and Donald Dafoe, the bride's brother and Bruce Roth, of Holloway ushered the guests. Master Paul Christopher, nephew of the bride was ring bearer.

For the reception which was held at St. Thomas Parish Hall, the bride's mother received guests wearing a turquoise sheery lace dress which was enhanced by a corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a blue street length dress. A corsage of pink roses also complemented her dress.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside at 43 Hillside St. Belleville.

Retirement Party

A former sales agent with Prudential Insurance of America, Frank Douglas, who had worked for that company for the past 29 years was honored at a retirement party held in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, on Friday evening.

During the occasion he was wished well by fellow agents from Smiths Falls, Brockville Kingston, Trenton and Belleville ex well as by many personal friends.

At this time Mr. Douglas was presented also with a gift certificate from his company and with a host of gifts from co-workers and friends.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one can lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. It's this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naxsol. Add the juice of a pink fruit and follow the simple directions. Use as directed twice a day as needed and follow the Reducing Diet Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you at least an easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by others who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness! Note how quickly these fat bypasses melt much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and native.

Successful Living

This Husband Is 'Always Right'

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: What do you do with a husband who insists he is always right? He will admit it sometimes but he seems to enjoy putting a fight on me. If I claim up he says I'm stubborn. I am too good for him.

We have two children 10 and 12.

Now Lowest Birth Rate In History

HOCK HILL FALLS, Pa. (AP) — The United States now has its lowest birth rate in history but the population won't level off until it gets close to 300 million in the next century, a Princeton University expert says.

Dr. Norman B. Ryder, a 49-year-old professor, told a drug company convention here that the current rate in the United States is due not only to better contraception but also to women putting off pregnancies until they are slightly older.

"It sounds like magic that you could change the population of the United States by 50 million," Ryder said. "But it's true . . . if you convince people to have their babies later."

As a hypothetical example, he said if women started giving birth at age 30 instead of age 25, the population of 300 million would eventually decline to 250 million.

At present, the average age of American mothers at the birth of their second child-birth is about 25½, compared with 24 in the 1950s, Ryder said, so more and more opportunities open for women in the working world.

This trend, plus a sharp increase in use of more effective birth-control methods — pills, IUD, sterilization and intrauterine devices — has resulted in a birth rate of 15.5 per thousand in the U.S. during the first four months of this year.

The highest birth rate recorded in the U.S. was 25.3 per thousand during the baby boom period of 1953-57.

Based on the fertility rate, the number of children a women bears during her lifetime, the United States is just about at a bare stabilization level of 2.11. The estimate for the first quarter of 1972 is a 2.14 fertility rate.

Nevertheless, because babies from the boom of the 1950s now are approaching maturity, the birth rate will swing up again and the American population probably will increase to 226 million by the end of the decade and 262 million by the end of the century, Ryder said.

Parish Holds Fall Bazaar

MARYSVILLE — Holy Name of Mary Parish, Marysville, held its annual fall bazaar on Saturday September 23 with Mrs. Fred Farrell, president of the Catholic Women's League and Mrs. Francis Callaghan, vice - president functioning as guests.

The hall was attractively decorated with pumpkins, bouquets of wheat, fall fruits and flowers.

Each booth displayed an especially wide assortment of needlework and decorative items; sewing, candy, vegetables and home baking.

Manye candles and flower arrangements of mauve and yellow on the tea table were most eye-catching. Representatives of the various neighboring organizations poured tea.

The dance was well attended during which the draws were announced with the various winners announced.

Churches Hope To Form Society

MARMORA — Rev. T. Rex Norman of the Canadian Bible Society met with 25 members of the various churches in Marmora on Sunday evening at St. Andrew's Church hall.

A short devotion period which was led by Rev. G. W. Kemp of Marmora Free Methodist Church was followed by a short film, "Senago Harvest'.

There was lomefficient response for forming a branch of the society so Rev. Norman suggested that two people be appointed by the minister to represent each church on a committee. This committeewill meet in the near future to discuss supporting the Canadian Bible Society.

Trenton Couple Wed 60 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Wallace, 19 George Street, Trenton, quietly celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary with their family, recently.

Mr. Wallace who has been confined to Trenton Memorial Hospital for a lengthy period, was allowed home for the day with his wife and family.

The bride of 60 years is the former Lulu B. Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Eaton, Belleville and married Claude Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace, also of Belleville in a ceremony performed September 25, 1912 in Tyendinaga Township.

The couple became the parents of three children, James E. Wallace, Trenton; Mrs. William (Freda) Mitts, Trenton and Miss Helen Wallace, Bridgeworth, Conn., U.S.A. They also have five grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

Club Plans Activities

The members of the Canadian Federation of University Women, Belleville - Quinte District Branch, held a fall coffee party to renew friendships and welcome new members.

Mrs. R. W. Cass was hostess at her home and greeted members and guests along with the president, Mrs. A. H. McFarlane. Mrs. J. R. Strachard and Mrs. R. W. Edwards were in charge of the arrangements and refreshments.

Activities of the Club this year will include helping to furnish the Manly MacDonald Memorial Room in Glanmore by a short film, "Senago Harvest'.

There was insufficient response for forming a branch of the society so Rev. Norman suggested that two people be appointed by the minister to represent each church on a committee. This committeewill meet in the near future to discuss supporting the Canadian Bible Society.

Meetings are held the third Thursday of the month. In October and November they will be held at the Corby Public Library.

FALL OUTFIT — This deep red plaid sports coat by Curlee of the United States has wide lapels. It is matched with a turtle-neck sweater and casual pants. (CP Photo)

Dear Doris: I have a mother who is over 80 and I'm sure your leaflet "Aging — Some Rules To Go By" would help her and me to cope with the future.

What would we do without your column? Your advice is sensible and appreciated . . . more than you know. — Grateful.

Dear Grateful: Good for you and your mother. You are not just going to let the future happen to you but plan to do something about it. The ball is in its way.

Confidential to Ashamed: A lack of bladder control at 63 is not a trouble that anyone but a doctor can diagnose and treat. And when a man is sick — which your case is, even if he is up and around — he is no longer the one who should be issuing the orders about himself.

In other words, now is the time for Wifey — you — to lay down some laws. Get a big blusher and bald tamper are due to his own feelings of shame; and it would be a perfect relief to him if you were to insist on taking him to the eye person who can offer help.

If you can't manage this yourself, either get your brother to help persuade him, or get the doctor to come to the house.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CAMPBELL

Will ethics keep a husband faithful?

THIS: a sense of integrity or ethics will certainly do the job...provided the husband also happens to love his wife and is confident that she loves him. Simply professing to have a sense of integrity and ethics, however, isn't enough. If a husband doesn't love his wife, he can always turn the argument around in the battle with his ethics and integrity to make it seem that he is really "sincere" even if he is unfaithful.

Does praise help or hurt a child?

BOTH, depending on the intent of the person who is praising the child. Let a mother, say, praise her daughter for cleaning up her room, and the girl will enjoy a boost in self-esteem (and maybe clean up her room when it again needs it). But the child will soon come to realize she is praised — more than you know. — Grateful.

Dear Grateful: Good for you and your mother. You are not just going to let the future happen to you but plan to do something about it. The ball is in its way.

Tasty New Recipes For Thanksgiving Day

Thanksgiving is a time for family and friends to be together to exchange the latest news and to enjoy a festive meal. The feast may be in a modest dining room or at the summer cottage. Whatever the location, it's an exciting moment when the turkey is placed before the carver.

Such is the word from the Martha Logan Test Kitchens, South Canadian Co. For maximum enjoyment, and a minimum of preparation, select a turkey with a brand name well known for quality. A turkey which has the drumsticks tucked, the major leg tendons removed for easier carving and is deep basted for flavor and juiciness. This way your mother can enjoy the special day.

Add a cup of raisins or chopped apple and ½ cup chopped walnuts to your favorite stuffing recipe for an interesting flavor treat. Garnish with onion mums — a cupe ice water (About) 3 large apples 1 cup granulated sugar ½ cup water Butter

To make Onion-Chrysanthemums:

Peel and cut the top of medium-sized onions. Use a sharp knife to cut down through the onion almost to the bottom to make 16 cuts. Then cut crosswise in the same way to make ¼" squares. Keep onion in the original round shape. Place cut-side down in ice water. Refrigerate overnight. Onions will blossom like flower petals. Remove. Drain on absorbent paper.

To make Glazed Mums on Apple Slices:

Wash and core apples. Cut into ½" slices. Dip apple slices into lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Place apple slices in baking dish. Top with onion mums which have been cooked in boiling water. Reserve heat sugar and water in saucepan to boil. Pour syrup over onions and apples. Cover.

Bake in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for 25 minutes until onions and apples become tender. Baste occasionally with syrup during baking time. Remove cover. Allow time to bake for 15 min., basting frequently. If desired, place under broiler heat 1 to 3 min. to brown tips of onion mums. Serve on turkey platter.

Learn to Live with Fear

TORONTO (CP) — Many wives of policemen and fire fighters say they must learn to live with fear.

Some keep their radio turned off while their husbands are on duty. Some wonder if their morning goodbye kiss will be the last.

A group discussion with six Toronto area housewives married to police or firemen agreed that the psychological strain of their husbands' jobs can spill over into family life.

Shirley McMurray, wife of a firefighter, said that Bruce, as she prefers to call him, is another called saying she had just seen her husband on television being carried away from a fire on a stretcher. He recovered in hospital.

Others told similar tales of sudden, clutching fear in the night.

Barbara Irwin's husband, a Toronto detective, was fairly shot while investigating a complaint in an apartment last February.

She got the news from her brother-in-law, Police Inspector Rod Marsh.

"My husband Rod aged 10 years the night he had to come to tell Barbara that her husband Jake Mead had been shot. Rod had seen Barbara grow up and now he had to tell her that her husband was dying," said Mrs. Marsh.

Mrs. Irwin said the fear of the unknown helps make a family closer.

The children try to be home on their dad's day off and of course it makes the children more mature. My children know about their dad as soon as their father puts on the bell at 4 o'clock in the morning . . . together my kids and the adults . . . they know their dad was a hero," she said.

Kirsten Welsh, wife of another Toronto policeman, said she tries to her children to Mr. Irwin's funeral.

"They have to learn to be a part of this, and if the day ever come, God forbid, they would be able to face it, she said.

None of the women said she wished she had married a man with a different occupation. The women said they wouldn't deter sons or daughters from either being or marrying a fireman or policeman.

My son-in-law is an Ontario Provincial policeman. My heart is torn for my daughter but I didn't try to stop her," said Jane Marsh.

Ann Landers

Counselling May Help Dissipate Mom's Anger

Dear Ann Landers: I am raising a child alone. Leslie's father and I were divorced when she was less than two years old. The divorce decree states that we should pay child support but he has never done so. I got tired of chasing the bum and decided to write him off as a bad debt and make it alone.

Next year Leslie will be going to school. I have never talked to her about her father. It's as if he never existed. But I know I've got to face the facts. Ann, Leslie is getting older and more inquisitive. Yesterday she asked, "What was your husband's name?" I was so taken by surprise I answered, "Oh that was so long ago I don't remember."

I realize this was not a very good answer but my feelings for my ex-husband are so bitter I couldn't bring myself even to mention his name. I don't want my child to grow up with a kid against her father. He was my mistake and my problem and I don't want her to be hurt by her. Any suggestions? — Lonesville Mom.

Dear L.T.: Soon you will be forced to talk to Leslie about her father and it will be impossible to keep your feelings from her, so you'd better face up to it, dear.

If you cannot even mention your former husband's name the hostility must be enormous. Bottled hate can be destructive. This is no good for either you or your child. Counselling will help you dissipate your anger and I strongly recommend that you move in that direction.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a socially prominent man and wife who entertain frequently in their beautiful home, have plenty of money, and refuse to serve alcoholic beverages to guests? When I say "guests" I mean respectable, civilized who do not get stinking drunk, but people who enjoy a cocktail and behave like ladies and gentlemen at all times. I am sure you will concede that a highball or two can be a social lubricant and is not morally wrong.

I have answered this in the paper. The couple we want to hear from are readers of your column—Civilized Moderates

Dear Moderates: Your letter is a gem. Let's hear from all those civilized moderates who know how to handle their liquor. Drinking is not the problem. Drunkenness is the problem. Let's hear from you.

Dear Ann Landers: It bugs me when I read in the paper how 36 guys retire from a firm, each with 25 years of service or a combined total of 700 years.

This is ridiculous. Each man served the firm 25 years at more or less the same time. The service span of all 36 men was 25 years at the plant.

How do they arrive at the 700 figure? It can see a progression from 25 years in service to 36, stretching over a period of 700 years, but that is not what took place. That 700 figure is completely misleading. Why don't they tell it like it is?—Dead Duck in Dever

Dear Ducky: Arithmetic has never been my best subject but my math consultant at MIT tells me that Mickey Mouse is right.

I see no reason for your outrage. If you want to get excited about injustice and inappropriateness, I can supply you with some better issues.

Confidential to I used My Gun: You are millions of other Americans cling to the foolish notion that a gun is protection. Statistics show that nine times out of 10 the intruder is a better shot and has faster-shilling clitzen, and quicker on the draw.

Columnist Eats Crow Doused in Russian Salad Dressing

MONTREAL (CP) — The expression "You'll eat those words" is often heard, but seldom becomes a reality.

But for columnist John Robertson of The Star it happened.

Robertson predicted the Soviet National team would beat Team Canada six games to two in the recent eight-game hockey series and furthermore said he would eat the column that predicted the outcome at centre ice if the Montreal Forum if he was wrong.

As it turned out, management of the Forum declined with thanks.

But Wednesday Robertson kept his part of the bargain when he undertook to eat the shredded, 60-square-inch newsprint tidbit at a meeting of the Montreal Advertising and Sales Executive Club!

What did it taste like?

"As bad as it read," said Robertson to the several hundred who attended the meeting.

Robertson shredded the column, mixed it with a chef's salad liberally doused in Russian dressing, and wolfed it down in four minutes and nine seconds.

The only time he appeared to be in trouble was when he reached the part that read: "The best team (Russia) is going to win . . ."

It was about three seconds before a slight tint of green clouded his ruddy features and Robertson allowed the first belch to escape.

"Aw, what's a bit of old paper," Robertson said. "I've eaten worse in my time."

Toronto Globe and Mail columnist Dick Beddoes, who predicted a series sweep for Team Canada, supped his cotton from a bowl of borscht on a Toronto sidewalk the day after the Soviets doubled the Canadians 7-3 in Montreal.

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens feels he'll be able to field a strong club this season with a mixture of veterans and rookies.

Unlike some of his National Hockey League counterparts, Bowman's club was left relatively unscathed by recent raids by the newly formed World Hockey Association. Only one established star—veteran defenceman J. C. Tremblay—was lost. He signed with Les Nordiques of Quebec City.

The Canadiens sent goalie Ken Dryden, defencemen Serge Savard and Guy Lapointe, along with forwards Yvan Cournoyer and Frank and Pete Mahovlich, to Team Canada for the recent eight-game series against the Soviet national team.

As a result, Bowman has been able to work with almost a full complement of veterans for the first time this week. Only Henri Richard, the veteran centre and captain, remains sidelined. He has a knee injury that will keep him out of Saturday night's home opener against Minnesota North Stars.

Bowman said he still isn't sure just how many of his 24-man squad, if any, he will cut by Saturday. But he said he'll pare down to 20 men "within two weeks."

For example he'll keep backup netminders Wayne Thomas and Michel Plasse around for a while in case of an injury to Dryden.

One defence, three positions appear set. Savard, Lapointe and Jacques Laperriere, 'nog down these three spots, with Bob Murdoch, Pierre Bouchard, Dale Hoganson, Jim Roberts and rookie Larry Robinson, still working toward the other two vacancies.

Bowman said his club appears to have "good depth" up front and he hopes he can convert winger Rejean Houle to a centre between Marc Tardif and Guy Lafleur, because Houle "doesn't like to sit on the bench."

Two rookie forwards still remain, both from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series. They are left winger Murray Wilson from Ottawa 67's and Steve Shutt from Toronto Marlboros.

Sinden Takes New Job

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins, in a major front-office alignment, Thursday signed former coach Harry Sinden to the newly-created position of managing director and shifted general manager Milt Schmidt to the new post of executive director.

Sinden, 40 who returned to the United States Sunday after coaching Team Canada, signed a five-year contract with the National Hockey League team.

Sinden said his new job will be to "keep the Bruins the No. 1 attraction in the game."

Sinden coached the defending Stanley Cup-champion Bruins for four seasons, 1966 through 1970. He left the team then for private business as an executive with Stiffler Homes, in Rochester, N.Y., corporation.

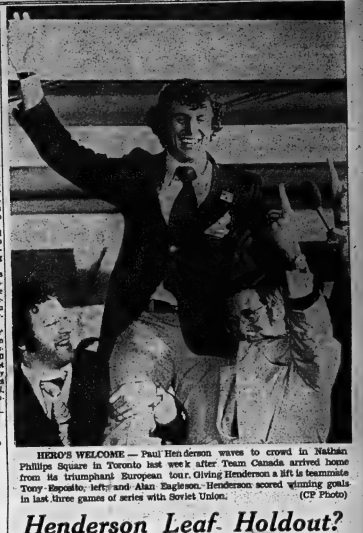
Hull Claims WHA Dignified

EDMONTON (CP) — The conduct of Team Canada members during their hockey games in Moscow was criticized Thursday by Bobby Hull, star of Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association.

The fighting and gestures by Canadian players "were a bad example to young players and were diplomatically harmful."

The former star with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League said WHA play will be conducted "on a more dignified level" than has been the case in the NHL.

Second Thoughts For Sloan



Referee Bob Sloan, a National Hockey League expatriate toiling in the fledgling World Hockey Association circuit have had second thoughts about the charge after emerging from Thursday night's WHA exhibition in Regina.

The score, 2-1 for Winnipeg Jets over Los Angeles Sharks, was incidental to the rhubarbs on the ice that resulted in four game misconducts, two misconducts, seven fighting majors and 15 minors—14 minors to Los Angeles.

Winnipeg's Cal Swenson and Peter Slater of the Sharks sparked the fireworks in Regina when they started trading punches in the second period.

Dave Rousseau of the Jets and Bernie Blodell of Los Angeles got into the act and were joined by Sharks' Jim Neilsen. All three were tagged with game misconducts and assorted other penalties.

The fourth game misconduct went to Los Angeles captain Ted McCaskill who took exception to a high-sticking call by Sloan and fired the puck at the official. Sloan immediately called him with a misconduct call and when McCaskill continued to argue he charged the referee he was disrobed.

Henderson Leaf Holdout?

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Henderson was missing from the Toronto Maple Leaf practice Thursday, but general manager Jim Gregory didn't want to dwell on the problem "which may really not be a problem."

"We should create a problem out of something which may really not be a problem," Gregory replied to questions about the absence of his National Hockey League star.

Henderson reached star status recently with Team Canada, scoring three successive game-winning goals in Moscow as the Canadians rebounded for a 4-3-1 record in the international series.

"He told the coach (John McLellan) he would be here today, but he didn't show," said Gregory. "Ron Ellis worked with the team."

We were on the phone trying to get him (Henderson), but all we got was a busy signal."

Asked if there was any basis to rumors that Henderson's lawyer (Al Eagleson) had been in Gregory's office to discuss . . . well, we'll see then."

Gregory refused to comment on reports Henderson was recognizing the left winger's contract, Gregory replied:

"I'd rather not say anything. I think it would be better that way. If I said anything I might be lying, so I think it's better that I say nothing right now.

"I think it would be better if I just keep my mouth shut. Paul signed a two-year contract this summer and I'm hopeful he'll honor it. If he doesn't show up tomorrow (Friday)

Sabres Beat Farmers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League pre-season schedule came to an end Thursday night and the only two teams in action won.

Buffalo Sabres downed their American League farm hands, Cincinnati Swords, 6-4, while Los Angeles Kings turned on San Diego Gulls of the Western League 3-1.

Gerry Meehan led the Sabres charge at Cincinnati with two goals but Buffalo had to come up with four last period scores to take the victory.

Gil Perreault, Larry Mickey, Don Luce and Jim Lorentz collected the other Sabre goals. Jake Rathwell, with two, Steve Richards and Doug Rombough just before he final buzzer tallied for Cincinnati.

Veteran Rogie Backstrom led the Kings at San Diego with a goal and an assist. Backstrom, who assisted on the first Los Angeles goal by Serge Grenier, tallied the winner at 17:54 of the second period.

Mike Corrigan notched the third Los Angeles score while Hovie Hughes hit for the Gulls.

The regular NHL season opens Saturday.

Edwards Rejoins Red Wings

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Goalie Roy Edwards is going back to Detroit Red Wings, the National Hockey League team he retired from more than a year ago. Pittsburgh Penguins announced Thursday they have sold their rights to Edwards to Detroit for "cash and future considerations." The 35-year-old netminder announced his retirement following the 1970-71 season during which he suffered a skull fracture, but the Penguins gambled that he would come out of retirement and drafted him in 1971. He played 16 games, retired again, and re-emerged when the Penguins opened training camp last month.

Pele Threatens Retirement

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Pele might end his brilliant career in a dispute over a new contract with the Santos soccer club. His personal secretary said Thursday that Pele, 32 next month, a member of the Santos team for 17 years, would quit soccer if his terms are not accepted. Pele has said that he will retire in 1974.

U.S. Senate Could End Blackouts of Sold-out NFL Games

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Legislation to end the television blackout of home games might be sent to the Senate floor within a week if professional football does not allow more viewers to see sold-out games, Senator John O. Pastore (Dem., R.I.) said Thursday.

Pastore said that he suggested a voluntary plan of this nature to president Pete Rozelle of the National Football League.

"A week is one way and out the other," the senator said. "Unless Mr. Rozelle comes up with an answer within a week, this might go on the floor as an amendment."

The veteran Rhode Island Democrat has been seeking legislation to outlaw the current practice of blacking out television broadcasts of home games in the viewing area where they are played. Offering the bill as an amendment to some other more vital bill is a frequent device used to obtain quick action on a piece of legislation.

Pastore revealed his appeal to Rozelle during an appearance by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn before his Senate commerce subcommittee holding hearings on the anti-blackout bill.

He indicated to Kuhn that he preferred that pro football operate a voluntary plan since the bill being considered would apply to all sports.

Kuhn agreed with the chairman that what makes sense for professional football does not necessarily make sense for baseball teams which play more frequently before sparsely empty seats.

Baseball does not have any protection in its television contract for the blackout of home games. But some games, by mutual agreement with one network, have not been carried locally when it was felt that the broadcast would hurt attendance, Kuhn said.

Gaudaur Rejects Eskimo Protest

TORONTO (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos' protest of their 19-9 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders in Edmonton Sept. 23 has been rejected by Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner.

In throwing out the protest, Gaudaur also was critical of a communications break-down at Edmonton's Clarke Stadium which resulted in fans and television viewers not learning the result of the game until almost 1 minute after the final gun sounded.

Gaudaur said in a statement Thursday:

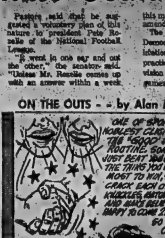
"The basis of the Edmonton claim had centred on whether or not the Ottawa club had accepted, or declined the penalty that had been assessed against Edmonton on the last play of the game, contending that if Ottawa had declined the penalty the score would have been tied 19-19."

Gaudaur noted that Moe Racine, one of the Ottawa captains, had been quoted as saying after the game that the penalty had been declined by Ottawa.

However, referee Jim Lysack, in his normal post-game report filed before the protest, said Ottawa defensive captain Al Marcelin was the first man given the option by the referee. Lysack's report said that Marcelin, after he was advised of the penalty to Edmonton which made it Ottawa's ball at point of foul, accepted the penalty.

Accepting the penalty meant Edmonton had the ball where it had hoped for when quarterback Tom Wilkinson kicked the ball through the end zone on the last play.

Gaudaur also noted that the referee had informed the press that the penalty was declined, but Paul Dojack, western officiating supervisor, had confirmed the referee was actually trying to signal the timer that the game was over.



"Taking all available evidence into consideration," Gaudaur said, "I have decided that there is more evidence to support the contention of the referee that the Ottawa club did accept the penalty so the score will remain Ottawa 19-Edmonton 9."

Gaudaur concluded by pointing out the communications failure which resulted when officials on the field were unable to telephone the public address announcer in the press box area to announce the result of the game.

"Of substantial concern in this incident was the failure to communicate the result quickly to the fans in the stadium and to the radio listeners and television viewers.

"Such failure was the result of a mechanical breakdown of the telephone communications and non-adherence to established procedures, and steps will be taken to preclude a similar failure in the future."

Aging Pirate Heroes on Bench

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Mazeroski and Dave Pagan, who both know the thrill of World Series-winning hits, will likely spend the forthcoming National League playoffs on the bench.

The two aging Pittsburgh Pirates heroes have given way to younger players and seem destined for pinch-hit duty at best against Cincinnati Reds.

Mazeroski, the second baseman whose epic homer won the 1960 series for Pittsburgh, played in just 34 regular season games and batted .186. He's already said this will be his last year.

Pagan, who doubled home the winning run against Baltimore in the last game of the 1971 World Series, no longer the club's prime utility man.

"They fit into our plans mainly as pinch-hitters," said Pirate manager Bill Virdon, once a teammate of both. "Of course, we have just a day to day thing. It could change.

"Though he has grown pudgy with inactivity, Mazeroski may yet have the greatest double-play throw in baseball.

"Of course, the only way they'll probably need me is if somebody gets hurt," said the soft-spoken Mazeroski. "And that's exactly what we don't want to happen."

Pagan, at 37, a year older than Mazeroski, doesn't figure to play much third base with Richie Hebner and Bob Robertson ahead of him.

"I haven't played much, but I have been taking batting practice and doing a lot of running," he said. "I guess the manager needs me, I'll play."

Pagan, who broke an arm last season, made the Pirate team this spring after batting 15 pounds over the winter. He has not yet decided his future plans.

"I'll wait until the season is over and then see if I am refreshed," said the native Puerto Rican.

Finley Peeves Martin

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Detroit Tiger manager Billy Martin is a hot-tempered, and in addition, he's mad.

If Martin's doubt pays off, and his anger builds a fire under the Tigers, Oakland Athletics who face Detroit Saturday in the first game of the American League playoffs, may have more on their hands than they bargained for.

Oakland owner Charles O. Finley sparked Martin's ire even before the Detroit team left for the west coast Thursday. Although first baseman Frank Howard is ineligible for the playoffs because he was acquired late in the season by the Tigers, Martin sought to take him along as a morale booster.

Oakland manager Dick Williams said OK.

Finley said no.

"I think it's chicken soup on Finley's part," said Martin, "and I'm going to tell him so to his face when I see him.

"All we asked is that he be allowed to sit on our bench. What could that hurt? I don't realize the Athletics were so afraid of us."

Martin pins his playoff hopes on Tiger hitting, which has improved since the two teams last met.

Not to be outdone, however, Oakland's Williams doubts the Tiger bats will be much of a threat. He believes "good pitching will stop good hitting anytime," and thinks the Tigers—4-0 against Oakland this year—may have suffered a letdown after the excitement which accompanied their divisions w in ning surge earlier this week.

Alston Signs 20th Contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walt Alston was rehired Thursday to manage the Dodgers in 1973, receiving his 20th consecutive one-year contract with the National League baseball club in Brooklyn and Los Angeles. Alston, who will be 61 in December, will return along with his coaching staff of Jim Gilliam, Roy Hartsfield, Danny Ozark, Red Adams and Carroll Beringer, said Peter O'Mally, club president.

Blue Rescued From Bullpen

OAKLAND (AP) — Vida Blue owes Detroit Tigers a thank you.

By reaching the American League playoffs, which open here Saturday, they saved him from a certain one-week demotion to Oakland Athletics bullpen. As it stands, Blue is only a tentative starter for Oakland in the best-of-five series.

"I'd like to stay," says Blue, "So, you never know. It's been that type of year."

"When you're hot, you're hot. When you're not, you're not."

The 23-year-old left-hander was the hottest pitcher in baseball last year, finishing 24-8 in his first full big league season. This season, he pitched hot and cold after a late start caused by his contract holdout against owner Charles O. Finley.

Blue's 8-10 record this year was the worst among the AthleticsÂ·on average.

Manager Dick Williams plans to start Blue in the fourth game of the playoff, if necessary, in Detroit. But if the Athletics trail 2-1 after that game, Blue's starter Jim (Catfish) Hunter (21-7) may be used instead.

"When you got down like that, you have a tendency to go with your best," said Williams, indicating how far Blue has fallen in ranking from a year ago.

Williams had planned to use only three starters—leaving Blue in the bullpen—if Boston Red Sox had beaten Detroit in the East.

Boston's Fenway Park, with its short left field, is a real horror chamber for left-handed pitchers, as Williams knows from managing the Red Sox three seasons.

The Athletics bullpen was hurt by the loss of southpaw reliever Darold Knowles, also with a broken finger, for the final week of the season, says Williams.

Mickey Lolich, 23 - 14, edged by Blue in the American League's Cy Young Award voting last year, will be the Tigers' start in Saturday's 4 p.m. EDT playoff opener.

Southpaw Lolich will face an Oakland batting order with three left-handed hitters—Matty Alou, Reggie Jackson and Mike Epstein.

"We've got all the material we need to win," said Tigers' manager Billy Martin, who has had most Cincinnati Reds' fans vowing the Athletics for several weeks.

The Tigers may have all-star catcher Bill Freehan available for the playoffs, despite a thumb Sept. 23 but has been returned to the roster for the post-season games.

The Detroit lineup Saturday will include many veterans of the 1968 world championship team. Lolich won three games in the World Series that year, and right fielder Al Kaline, the 37-year-old batting star of the Tigers' late-season title drive, batted .279 in the series.

No Playoffs Carried by CBC

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC said Thursday it will not provide radio or television coverage of the National or American League baseball playoffs. Dan Goodwin, CBC sports director, said "we have been trying for a couple of years" to get the coverage, but suitable arrangements could not be made this year. The World Series will be covered.

Anderson Man in Constant Motion

CINCINNATI (AP) — Sparky Anderson is a man in constant motion, seeking problems to attack and soothing his ulcer with the satisfaction he draws from managing Cincinnati Reds.

"I never stop all the time," Anderson told a visitor to his Riverfront Stadium office as the Reds prepared for Saturday's opening of the National League baseball playoffs to Pittsburgh.

"If I don't have a problem, Anderson said, "I'll invent one. I couldn't live, I think, if there weren't any problems."

Johnny Bench, the Reds' all-star catcher, says:

"Sparky is the smartest manager in baseball. Managerwise, he's second to none . . . the nerves . . . the small things he does are from years of experience . . . He wins or loses with his own decisions. . . .

Power Squadron Makes Big Push

by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

There are easier ways to kill oneself than by taking a boating pleasure cruise. But some 30 Canadians a year can't find one.

Bicycle - riding is more carefully policed and falling out of a speeding automobile is not necessarily as dangerous.

With the annual toll of boating deaths in Canada reaching staggering proportions, the Canadian Power Squadrons organization is intensifying its campaign to keep boat operators out of hot water.

In general, CPS is an association of 118 member chapters aiming to promote safety and good fellowship afloat.

Specifically, the member squadrons work from these goals by offering the public courses in basic boating every fall and winter, from October to March.

The difference this year, the 25th CPS has been in existence, is that the introductory course has been revised to appeal more to the average weekend boater.

"Although there are more and more people boating in the past few years, we found there were fewer people enrolling in our courses," explains Bay of Quinte Power Squadron public relations officer Lee Jourard. "There was some feeling that the courses catered to big boat owners."

The basic course before dealt primarily with the upper level of boat ownership — the cruiser or large sailboat owner. But anybody who has an investment in equipment isn't likely to be a jackass on the water.

"The Boating Course" is the likely name given by CPS to their new introductory 20-week study program, which will deal with all aspects of docking, handling, anchoring, waterway traffic rules, proper clothing and footwear, use of safety equipment, and even use of nautical terms.

More advanced instruction in marine navigation, weather, buoys use, and navigation that used to comprise the old introductory boating course is also included.

A $20 fee — $1 per week — goes toward the administration of the course, which is handled by volunteer instructors, who are CPS members. Pupils are also expected to provide some materials.

Registration night for the Belleville course is Tuesday, Oct. 10, beginning at 8 p.m. Graduation from the course is a prerequisite for acceptance as a Power Squadron member, but there are no qualifications required to take the course.

You don't even have to own a boat — many of our members don't," informed Belleville squadron executive Jourard. "And there's no age restriction — we've had 15-year-olds and last year graduated nine members of the local east end YMCA."

Once admitted to CPS, more advanced courses in navigation may be tackled which, PRO Jourard boasts, "would make graduates capable of navigating anywhere in the world."

Those who register on Tuesday night at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club will be invited to join a shakedown cruise with squadron members the following Sunday to see first-hand how they have put their knowledge of boating safety and courtesy into practice.

There are a lot of people who are involved purely from an academic point of view for the knowledge they can derive," adds Jourard.

"But many of our members have signed on after they experienced moments of panic in fog, rain, or other adverse conditions. The course breeds confidence. Going from here to Deseronto can be a safe, happy trip, or a disaster."

The local squadron spokesman likes to cite two related examples that illustrate the fine line between a pleasure cruise and a catastrophe.

"Too many people take an accident in July when two people or more will be found in a 16-foot boat — on a outboard runabout — to go a couple of miles out to an island in Georgian Bay for a weekend cruise.

"Well, the weather conditions were adverse, to say the least, and 10 of those people drowned. This is the sort of thing CPS is trying to eliminate.

"Most accidents result from silly things: not wearing life jackets — (statistics have shown that four out of every five drownings resulting from boating accidents were due to victims not wearing life jackets) — being poor swimmers, or overloading a boat."

Closer to home, Jourard, who spends more time under sail than under power, notes the case of two current members of the 70-strong Belleville squadron who had a laughable, but potentially dangerous boating experience.

"They bought a boat in Mexico, New York, and without any previous experience, decided to bring her home. They couldn't even read a chart. The boat sank a couple of times on the way to Belleville."

Fortunately, that story had a happy ending. The two haphazard seamen saw the error of their ways, joined the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron, and even won a district recognition, one of the periodical summer navigational tests conducted by CPS.

The local squadron, and the associate "Squadronettes", are aiming at putting some more life in their dry land activities as well, with such events as family picnics and other social gatherings designed to make membership informal as well as informative.

The way it's set it, they'd sooner see a boater's name down on a membership application than on a list of drowning statistics.

Birdies Back

The Belleville Garrison Badminton Club is back in action for another season, with members, taking their swings Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 - 11 p.m., and Sunday afternoons from 1.30 - 4 at Centennial Secondary School Here, Ron Tees and junior member Danny Woodley belt their respective birds.

Rural Football Teams Absorb Big Beatings

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Trenton ran up 53-8 and 60-6 scores against Picton senior and junior opposition in Bay of Quinte high school football action Thursday, but the results did more than raise the Lions higher in their conference standings.

There were also some serious questions being posed about the fate of so-called "rural schools" that have been the victims of some lopsided scores.

"This year we had only four players back from last year's senior team and five from the juniors," explained Prince Edward Collegiate senior coach Harvey Gottfried. "That means we had only nine players who had ever played football before!"

Admitting Picton faces special problems such as students from 30 and 30 miles away and others who are working forests and apple harvests during football season, Gottfried indicated a one - team varsity football operation, like Napanee has adopted, may be the only answer.

"This sort of thing isn't any good for our boys and certainly not for the winning schools," Gottfried said after Picton's senior and junior teams each dropped their third losses in as many games.

"Our boys can't practice three nights a week — the nights we operate late bus schedules. And if a game falls on one of those nights, it's only two practices a week."

"Something has to be done operate one team or re-align the league," the Picton coach said.

"In four years I've never cut a player. Every single boy who wants to play — we've got a uniform for him. We've got more uniform than we've got players."

Even the winning Trenton coaches could find nothing to gloat about in their one sided triumphs.

"It's not the sort of game I'm really pleased to talk about," admitted Trenton junior coach Joe DiCrase after his Tigers trounced Picton 60-6.

Halfback Jacques Belanger scored four touchdowns and fullback Mark Petrie two to pace the defending Bay of Quinte champions to their fourth straight win.

Even the defense got into the scoring spree, with defensive tackle Brad Mansfield scoring on a Picton fumble, and defensive end George DiFrancesco running in a blocked Prince Edward punt.

Bob Oliver hooked five conversions and a single point for the winners.

"Teams in this senior league are getting further and further apart," sighed senior Tiger coach Tom Migro after his team came out on the long end of a 53-8 score to up their season's record to 2-1.

"Schools like Picton, Napanee, and Madoc are just having too much trouble getting kids out."

Rick Alexander and Gord Kell led the senior Tigers with two touchdowns each, with single mayhem coming from Darryl Donnelly, Don and Duncan Armstrong, and Steve Beecroft.

Television Movies Are Heating Up

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Remember all those movies everyone said would never be on television because of the sex, language and violence?

Well, a lot of them are coming to American television—but edited.

Television has virtually abandoned the supply of movies made before the Motion Picture Association of America established its rating system in 1968, and the networks and stations are paying $10 million—with editors assigned to their pictures with bigger glances.

A few movies rated R for the first time appeared on television last year, after careful editing, and a dozen are scheduled for the network this season. One of the network's rules is that treating a X-rated movie becomes automatic grounds for cancellation of contract.

In the United States, under the R rating, persons 17 or younger must be accompanied by an adult. An X-rated movie is barred to 17s and 18s and under. A movie with a G rating is released for general audiences, while a movie with a PG rating leaves it up to the parent to decide whether to take children.

Among the R movies ABC has edited for television are "Goodbye Columbus," The Bottle Curtain," Hard Contract," "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice," "Carnal Knowledge," "Joe," "Medium Cool," "Alice's Restaurant," "The Last Picture Show," "Five Easy Pieces" and "Easy Rider," which were rated PG for language, and "Carnal Knowledge," which received an X. BBD edited in the films of the Mods for a sense of reality.

A movie can be edited for television in different ways. Nudity, for instance, must come out. Sex can be cut completely or a scene is lost for television. Sometimes another—and less romantic—scene can be found among the original film that will work and not cut.

Other times, studio editors can actually scan the film to move the nudity out of the frame or the same way a camera-drug store can take a closeup from a group shot.

A character alters a four-letter word it has to come out. The actor can't be shown actually mouthing the word. Usually, the studio will go back to the original film and find another angle that can be spliced in.

TIRING JOB

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Peter Taylor, chief medical officer in the British post office, went on a 6 a.m. round with a rural mailman to study the stresses and strains of the job. "Getting in and out of the mail van so many times calls for a lot of agility," Taylor concluded. "It can be more tiring than you think."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

SATURDAY, OCT. 7

Aries (March 21-April 19): Visiting, entertaining come to be the thing to do, although you may not have definite plans. Be gentle with those you love.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): It seems your key more to do than on a weekday.. Get an early start, make a list of chores, stay with it until you've got to suffer.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Pleasure-seeking leads easily into spending more than you have planned. Hence you are not careful. Consider your remarks as you go.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Spur-of-the-moment suggestions are thrust upon you. It is better to travel your own path than join with those herd on mischief.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Decide bright and early that you will control your impatience and tendency to snap decisions. All goes smoother for the week-end.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Gather a group to do whatever will produce the best results. Give everybody time to sound off; explanations fill the day.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Moderation is the rule, or should be, despite emotional urges. Extreme or hasty action fails its main purposes.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Expect many distractions—organize activities so you don't lose the thread of continuity. Hidden information comes into view.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Resolve to spend most of your time building understanding. Spare time can be used clearing up unfinished correspondence.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's up to you to hold your balance for the long pull. Relax today since chores of long-range plans are better made tomorrow.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone may tell you that you've done the typical Aquarian thing—something other than expected. Correct any mistakes.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Pursue healthy normal activity, favorite sports and games, once you have the weekend respon-sibilities squared away.

Excess Vitamins Aren't Necessary

By G. C. THORESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoreson: In taking extra vitamins, is it any advantage or is it harmful to take more pills than prescribed?

My daughter takes six tablets each of iron, vitamin E and vitamin B. The prescription on the bottles call for one each daily.—R.C.B.

Your daughter apparently has bought the theory that if a little of something is good, a lot of it is better. Of course, this is not correct.

Remember that if she eats a reasonably balanced diet to begin with she gets vitamins of all types and all she needs of each. At the very least her daughter, or you, could cut vitamin bills by five-sixths.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: My husband had ulcers for 10 years, drank and ate heavily, and then had three quarters of his stomach removed. He didn't drink for six months after surgery but now gets drunk about two times a week.

We argue about that. I say he can get another ulcer, and he says he cannot. Would you answer this in the paper?—T.Y.

Of course, he can get another ulcer in what's left of his stomach and duodenum. I hope he doesn't, because it will be no doubt if there is anything to be gained by arguing about it. It is foolish to belong the risk. That's too bad.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♣
Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠ Q75 ♥ AK7 ♦ 8 ♣ KJ6
2. ♠ 9 7 ♥ AJ8 ♦ K7 ♣ KQJ10
3. ♠ Q5 ♥ QJ6 ♦ KJ6 ♣ AJ6
4. ♠ KJ96 ♥ 86 ♦ AJ6 ♣ 762

1. Three spades. The response to partner's opening bid frequently leads to a different bid when a player has passed originally. Without the previous pass, a jump raise to three spades with this hand would be a gross overbid, since it would drive North to a game contract without possession of the additional values for a laying raise.

But the jump raise is proper here because the bid is not forcing after a prior pass. It merely urges partner to go on to game if North holds that little something extra above a minimum opening bid that is needed for game, and he knows you will probably be high enough.

2. Two clubs. It is true that you passed a possible opening bid, but you should never follow respond two clubs, not three. Lacking a spade fit, there is nothing to get excited about at this point. If North responds at once, it is highly unlikely that a game will be lost.

3. Three notrump. Here you should not run the risk of stopping short of game on partner's response. Four clubs, by rare coincidence, will only lose seventeen. The hand is worth the bid out for notrump with adequate strength in all suits and 4-3-3-3 distribution.

It could be argued that the original pass was wrong, but this rarely lends force to the urgency of keeping to three notrump as compensation for partner's pass. Even if he posits a minimum four-to-bead opening bid, the hand is well suited for notrump and should induce partner to pass a two notrump response — you have a spade stop and a heart stop with 13 hefty points.

4. Four spades. Here, also, you should be unwilling to settle for less than game. It is true that you drew a♥ point in high cards, but, counting the distribution and the combined trump support, your hand must be regarded as the equivalent of a modest opening bid. It is simply apply the general tactical rule in passing bid facing an opening bid means game.

HERE'S A NEW IDEA

We are going to start a number of new houses for spring possession. If you are thinking about a new house, let us include it in our inventory. You can select a lot and a model either out of our's or yours. We will then build it to your specifications. You can then sell your existing house at your leisure. If you are unable to sell, you aren't out anything as we can sell the new house to someone else. This will solve the old problem of — "How can I build a new house when I haven't sold my old one?".

CONDOMINIUM IS THE ANSWER

For the active man who wants to confine his activities to the curling rink, the golf course or anywhere else that doesn't involve cutting grass, shovelling snow, painting, etc. This is all done for you.

We have units available for immediate possession. These are located on Prince of Wales Drive. On bus route. Taxes are run from $711. to $986 down.

EAST OR WEST WE HAVE THE BEST

selection of houses in the Quinte area. All in fully serviced subdivisions. All close to schools. We have 3 and 4 bedroom models. Let us show you our selection.

SPECIAL THANKSGIVING WEEKEND OFFER

Everybody gives turkeys. At Shawano, we offer you the attractive Mallard cottage on a lovely, wooded, lakefront lot for only $8,995.

Where else but at Shawano can you get a quality deal such as this?

Our Mallard is a compact, practical cottage. The floor plan has three bedrooms, ample kitchen area and a big living room with two picture windows. Fine-quality construction materials are used and there is a choice of sidings.

The lot is 164 by 380 by 203 ft. It has three measurements because it's on a point. Thus you get some 250 ft. of shoreline, as well as plenty of hardwood and evergreen trees. Furthermore, the lot is located on Lost Lake which is restricted to non-power boats. Nice and peaceful.

The price is only $8,995 for lot and cottage — an exceptional offer.

Cottage prices will increase an average of $800 by next spring. So if you take advantage of this offer now, you can apply these hundreds of dollars worth of savings into finishing or furnishing the cottage.

Doesn't that make sense?

If you want to enjoy Shawano's unique facilities now, you can buy this lot and cottage complete with wiring, kitchen sink unit, 2-pc. bath, hot and cold water for only $11,900. Terms as low as 10% down. That's still an excellent deal.

Other lot prices range from $4500 to $7400 (two very large scenic lots with 700 ft. frontage on a point are available at $13,000 each.) Most lots have a minimum of ½-acre and are well-wooded with mature shade trees.

Shawano is the beautiful 1,200-acre wilderness vacation-land in the fabled Highlands of Hastings, with first-class, year-round access roads to every door.

This four season paradise has four lovely lakes for swimming, fishing, boating — and hundreds of acres of unspoiled forest. A Trading Post and Marina sell groceries and gas.

Pack a picnic lunch and come for the day. Joe Sullivan our friendly resident manager will gladly show you around. Shawano is 25 scenic miles north of Madoc via Highway 62. Come soon and save hundreds of dollars.

Privacy Invasion Not Yet Crisis

VICTORIA (CP) — A federal report on privacy and computers indicates privacy for individuals in the face of more efficient information systems "is not yet a crisis, nor is it out of control," Communications Minister — Robert Stanbury said Wednesday.

He said, however, there is a power imbalance between information collectors and collected personal data and individuals about whom data is collected.

The minister also told the Victoria section of the Canadian Information Processing Society that a study group, set up in 1971, found "personal information systems appear to contain more errors than is generally recognized."

"Most institutions store their most sensitive information in manuals rather than automated systems," he said.

Mr. Stanbury said the report stated that possible remedies to any threat to privacy include a code of ethics in the computer business, a government data commissioner, a surveillance agency and a formal regulatory tribunal.

He said in the light of the relationship of power and the possession of information, there is a "clear imbalance" between the institutions which collect data, and the individuals about whom data is collected.

"It is not surprising that a number of authorities have proposed that individuals be given a right of access to their own files, so they can correct any inaccurate information in them and be given a say in how the information about them has been put."

Record Price

NEW YORK (AP) — An American collector paid $18,000 Thursday for an 18th-century Japanese print of a woman bathing in falling snow, a record for Japanese prints, Sotheby Parke-Bernet announced. The work was by the artist Harunobu. The previous high price, $10,572, was for a portrait by the artist Sharaku.

Terms Change

VANCOUVER (CP) — National resources policy in British Columbia will be changed by the New Democratic Party government, Premier Dave Barrett told delegates to the annual convention of the International Woodworkers of America Thursday.

"We want maximum use of what you are developing in this province," he said. "We want to process the raw materials here in B.C."

"We can't tell the rest of North America what to do in terms of setting resource policy, we can set an example here and say to the rest of North America, 'Stop, we want to get off.' The boom era is going to end in the West — the last place it existed in full flower."

High Percentage

TORONTO (CP) — The percentage of foreigners hired as new teachers each year by Canadian universities doubled between 1962 and 1972, says the Committee for an Independent Canada.

The committee says in a research paper Thursday, based on statistics compiled by the Economic Council of Canada, that foreign faculty members accounted for 75 per cent of all new faculty hired in 1971-72.

Party Killed

HENDERSON, Ga. (AP) — A car carrying a bride and groom toward their wedding crashed into a truck Thursday and was engulfed in flames, killing the couple and the two other young occupants of the auto. Police said Charles Ronald Shipes, 20, and Glenda Daniels, 16, were on route to be married, accompanied by Shipes' 16-year-old sister and a five-year-old cousin.

Opens in Capital

OTTAWA (CP) — Oops!, the original Canadian musical revue by David Warrack, is playing at the Studio Theatre in Ottawa's National Arts Centre from Sept. 1 to 30. The production was originally given two performances at the Theatre in the Dell in Toronto, Ottawa will be added to the market area for a cast-recording album which currently is available only in Toronto and Calgary, Warrack's hometown.

22 Killed

ISTANBUL (AP) — A bus and a taxi collided head on Thursday in southwestern Turkey, killing 22 persons and injuring 13.

To See Tito

LONDON (Reuter) — The Queen will visit Belgrade, Tito's grad, Dubrovnik and President Tito's residence on Brioni Island during her state visit to Yugoslavia later this month. The visit is the first to be paid to a Communist country by a British sovereign, although the Queen's sister, Princess Margaret, visited Yugoslavia two years ago.

Launch Cosmos

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched the 23rd unmanned earth satellite in its secret Cosmos program Thursday, Tass reported. The official news agency said the Sputnik was sent into an orbit with a high point 31 miles and a low point of 178 miles. The craft's orbital orbit took 87 minutes.

Shock Too Much

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — The father of one of the Israeli Olympic team members killed in the Munich massacre died of a heart attack Wednesday as he was about to take part in a memorial service for his son and the 10 others slain in September by Arab guerrillas. He was Emil Gottfreund, 75, father of Yosef Gottfreund, the Israeli Olympic team wrestling coach.

Korean First

TOKYO (AP) — President Chung Hee Park of South Korea will visit Japan Nov. 13-18 to meet Emperor Hirohito and confer with Japanese government officials on the Asian political situation, the foreign ministry reported Friday. Park will be the first South Korean president to visit Japan since the two countries established diplomatic relations in 1965.

New Programs

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Cambrian College is learning up with various professional organizations in launching "co-operative programs" for area residents this fall. Dennis Sandoval, director of continuing education, said that the "co-operative programs" are designed to facilitate entry into various professions as well as to upgrade the status of members of some of these groups.

Ordinary People Urged To Solve Earth Problems

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The earth's problems of overpopulation and resource depletion can be solved only by the efforts of "ordinary people," the Canadian Bureau for International Education was told Thursday.

Duncan Edmonds, a professor at Carleton University in Ottawa and a candidate for the Manitoba Liberal leadership in 1958, told about 125 convention delegates that many people feel the world is in such a mess they have ceased to care about its problems.

Most technocrats don't really believe in democracy because they are convinced the man in the street is incapable of comprehending problems at the national and international level, he said.

Another speaker, Jack Mobile, recently appointed Ontario minister of universities and colleges, criticized the press for the amount of coverage given to unfavorable comments from "the dissidents" — members about conditions in Soviet Union.

"If I heard it once, I heard it a hundred times," he said

Condemn Trio

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Three men—suspected members of an extremist religious group—were condemned to death Thursday for the kidnap-ping and murder of a Dacca University teacher. The dead men was Dr. K. M. Asad, a mathematician.

Anti-TB Vaccine May Be Possible Leukemia Cure

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — A team of Chicago researchers proposed today that the anti-tuberculosis vaccine BCG be given serious consideration by government and private scientists as a possible vaccine against leukemia.

The team, headed by Dr. Sol Ray Rosenthal of the University of Illinois, did so in reporting results of its survey of Illinois death rates among thousands of children in Chicago in 1934 through 1939.

Welfare Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate early today passed an $18.5-billion bill increasing numerous Social Security, Medicare and welfare benefits.

The Social Security provisions would benefit widows; airmen; disabled persons; the chronically-ill elderly who need maintenance drugs; persons desiring to retire at age 62; those who want to work beyond 65 and many other groups.

Death Package

PARIS (Reuter) — Hand grenades were found inside a package sent by the director of France's royalist newspaper La Nouvelle Action Francaise when opened it in his office here. He sent the parcel and contents to the police for a fingerprint check.

The scientists said the survey involved the health records of black children from infancy through six years of age—54,414 who were vaccinated at birth against tuberculosis with BCG, and another 172,998 who were not.

One death from leukemia was reported among the vaccinated group—a rate of less than one death a 100,000 a year—but 21 deaths were listed among the unvaccinated group, a rate of 2.02.

Dr. Rosenthal presented the report to an international conference on BCG which has been under evaluation as a possible new treatment for cancer.

He said the Chicago study was "a retrospective study, so that no firm conclusions can be drawn, but it suggests that BCG may be considered as a vaccine against acute leukemia."

Recruiting Up

TORONTO (CP) — Gen. Erik Wickberg, international leader of the Salvation Army, says that an increasing number of people are facing the organization.

"Although I don't agree entirely with what the Jesus folk movement is saying, I do welcome the members to the Salvation Army," he said. "I think these young people see the army as a place for the militant expression of Jesus.

The theory behind using BCG as a possible treatment for cancer is that BCG may stimulate the body's immunological defenses against such illa in an especially forceful way.

Guards Shot

HANNOVER (AP) — Two U.S. Army military policemen were shot to death today and their bodies tossed from a speeding train by an American soldier they were guarding, West German police reported.

The two military policemen were returning the man, identified by authorities as Pfc. E. Gregorie, 26, to face military authorities.

Kills Self

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — A teen-aged girl carrying a rosary committed suicide in a small chapel by dousing herself with gasoline and igniting it. The fire and an explosion from a can of gas also damaged the chapel, police said.

Yacht Sliced

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Seven persons were rescued and two children were missing in thick fog off the Mendocino Coast after the yacht Morning Star was struck and sliced in two Thursday by a freighter, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

New Fuels For Reactors Considered

OTTAWA (CP) — Atomic Energy of Canada is experimenting with new fuels for its reactors, but the actual changover, if it comes, is "a long way off."

An AECL spokesman Thursday said experiments are being carried out in a reactor at Pinnawa, Man., using different types of fuel, including uranium carbide and uranium silicide.

The reactor is the first to use an oil-like, organic coolant, instead of the usual heavy water.

It is hoped that a fuel suitable for use in a power reactor using the organic coolant can be found during the experimental program.

The study has been under way for some time, and a final report is expected by the end of this year. Even then, there are numerous unknown factors to be determined before power-generating reactors using a new fuel can be developed.

The entire fuel program is still in the engineering study stage without even a prototype design yet in the works.

All Canadian power reactors, as well as the Pinawa reactor now use uranium oxide as simple enriched uranium as fuel.

Burn Big Top

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Fire set by a gang of youths burned down the big top of a Mexican circus Thursday, police said. There were no injuries.

'Contour' Salon Is Fined

OTTAWA (CP) — Contour Slim, a weight-reducing salon has been fined $1,000 under the federal Combines Act on a charge of false advertising.

The Canadian Press in reporting the case Tuesday erroneously identified the firm as Figur Magic. It also erred in saying Figur Magic had been charged last spring by the consumer affairs department on the claims for a weight-reducing technique.

The Canadian Press regrets its error and apologizes for any embarrassment or inconvenience caused Figur Magic International Ltd., which operates a weight - reducing salons here and elsewhere in a diet and exercise program. It does not use a wrap-around method for reducing.

The court decision Monday suspended a sentence against Contour Slim on six other similar charges and a second count of the judgment is scheduled to be delivered Oct. 16.

Judge J. P. Beaulne will now hear evidence to see whether federal or provincial authorities should investigate claims of fat reduction.

The trial was told by witnesses that treatments at Contour Slim cost $22.50 each, with clients being wrapped in bandages, put into a sweat suit, covered with electric blankets and having a special cream applied.

Rail Crash Kills 149 in Mexico

Roy Paterson

Toll May Climb

From AP-Reuter

SALTILLO, Mexico (CP) — An official death toll was cut at 149 today in the second-worst train wreck in Mexican history — but the number of deaths was expected to rise.

Huge crowds of friends and relatives remained in front of the city morgue and jammed hospitals through the night waiting their turn to identify the scores of dead and hundreds of injured.

At midnight Friday night, Coahuila state Gov. Eulalio Gutierrez Treviño set the official death toll at 149, but said another passenger car was found completely squashed under a pile of other cars.

State Police Chief Genaro Gutierrez Davila said 471 persons were in hospital while another 345 were treated for slight injuries and released.

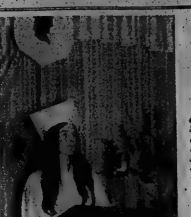
As a result 160 lives were lost almost 30 years ago when a train en route to a pilgrimage to Guerrero state crashed into another train in the worst rail disaster in the country's history.

About 3,000 persons stood in a solemn line in front of the Saltillo morgue waiting to try and identify the rows of bodies, some mutilated or burned beyond recognition.

Rescue crews continued to probe the rubble of the 24-car train where personal belongings of 1,256 adults, also returning from a religious pilgrimage, lay scattered only six miles from home.

It is not unknown how many children were aboard the special train when it spun off the tracks and crashed fire above Monclova Thursday night. A spokesman for the Mexican National Railways said a preliminary investigation showed the train was travelling about 75 miles an hour, twice the speed recommended on a downhill curve such as the train was approaching.

The official said the brakes apparently worked, but could not slow the train enough because of the speed. The driver of the first locomotive pulling the train were only slightly injured.



At the derailment site, doctors injected tranquillizers into those trapped in the crushed passenger cars. Eight of the cars were destroyed by fire.

"Cars are piled up on top of each other," said Davila at the scene. "We're digging tunnels to get into the cars at the bottom of the pile."

Armed with pick axes and acetylene torches, troops and police dug carefully through the wreckage—fearful of tipping over the mass of cars on top of another.

"Any wrong move can crush to death some survivors," Police chief Davila said. The bodies of some trapped passengers had to be amputated to ex-

Freighter Sinks

HOLLAND, Mich. (AP) — High winds drove a Great Lakes freighter against the wall of the channel leading to the Holland harbor Friday night, tearing a 12-to 14-foot gash in the ship and grounding it in the bottom of the channel. The Algorail, a 546-foot vessel out of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., sank to the bottom of the shallow channel. Its decks remained well above water. It carried a cargo of salt.

Use of Force Protested

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark Friday firmly protested "the illegal use of force" by armed Soviet marines who boarded a Danish fishing vessel in international waters in the Baltic Sea on Sept. 9 and took away a Soviet refugee at gunpoint.

Pepin Defends Grants

MONTREAL (CP) — Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin defended government subsidies to Canadian corporations Friday, saying exports had increased by $5 billion since the present Liberal government took power in 1968. "These subsidies are what David Lewis complains about, but they make our industry competitive," he said at a Laval Liberal meeting.

Hijacker Killed

RONCHI DEI LEGIONARI, Italy (Reuter) — A young man who tried to hijack a plane to Cairo and demanded $340,000 ransom was found dead in a pool of blood aboard the empty aircraft today after a 12-hour drama at an airport near Trieste. Police surrounding the plane opened fire on him Friday night after he tossed a bomb onto the apron.

Suicide Squad Routed

PHNOM PENH (Reuter) — A North Vietnamese suicide squad stormed into Phnom Penh today and wreaked havoc in the Cambodian capital's northern suburbs for six hours. With all escape routes closed, Cambodian troops mopped up the dietard remnants of about 250 guerrillas in house-to-house fighting.

Stanfield

Insurance Picture Fiasco, Scandal

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield pounced on the government Friday for what he called the insolvent state of the country's unemployment insurance account, terming it a fiasco and scandal.

Mr. Stanfield reacted quickly to a disclosure by Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey that the federal treasury would say out up to $220 million this year in jobless benefits.

Predicting that in fact the drain on the federal treasury will "almost certainly" exceed $1 billion—at least $700 million more than anticipated—he told a hastily-called news conference:

"Surely as a result of this fiasco, it is no longer just platform rhetoric to find this government lacking in competence, forthrightness and credibility."

During an unscheduled stop at Toronto International Airport, trained by fog at Hamilton's Mount Hope Airport, where his chartered jet was supposed to land, Mr. Stanfield defended the federalist credentials of his Quebec lieutenant, Claude Wagner.

Per good measure he ticked off Marc Lalonde, former top aide of Prime Minister Trudeau who had questioned Mr. Wagner's position. He called Mr. Lalonde a Liberal "hired gun" and hatchet-man for the prime minister.

Mr. Stanfield got off his second big blast here Friday night after Mr. Mackasey's revelations about the escalating costs of unemployment insurance.

He charged the manpower minister with making "a deliberate effort to misrepresent the facts."

In a matter of such consequence, "no government or any member of it should have the luxury of lowering figures and falsifying the record in order to save face . . . this is no time for political finesse and wished words or for half the truth."

Lewis:

Layoffs Followed Receipt of Grants

MONTREAL (CP) — David Lewis climaxed a busy day on the campaign trail Friday by hurling "corporate rip-off" charges at three Canadian companies and stepping up his attack on the regional economic expansion department.

The New Democratic Party leader singled out the Alumaniums Co. of Canada Ltd., Domtar Ltd., and Canadian International Paper Co. back up his argument that the department, headed by Jean Marchand, has been squandering the taxpayers' money by making useless grants to industry.

After Alcan laid off a total of 665 workers at four Quebec plants in late 1971, he said, Mr. Marchand "heaped coffins" over with a generous $400,300 to create 30 jobs.

"They may have been created, but not for speeches, but for "festivities."

To one Kingston caller, who suggested there are too many loopholes in unemployment insurance regulation, Mr Trudeau said the key word is "some." There was a problem with people who were defrauding the system. But the law itself, which provides higher benefits, was supported by opposition parties as well as the government.

In Hamilton, after Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey announced that unemployment insurance benefits would reach $220 million this year, Mr. Trudeau said there is "no real concern about this."

But there was no way, after working for the program, under which the government picked up the payout tab for unemployment whenever the four per cent of the labor force, that opposition parties could cry scandal.

Mr. Trudeau said his government's record of creating jobs—more than one million in four years—stacks up against that of any other western industrialized country. It was an absolute indication that the federal government was not, as has been charged by the opposition, out to destroy the work ethic.

Deputy Premier Trudeau, who has described the program as "the best anywhere," told a London, Ont. audience at the outset of his re-election campaign early last month:

"If some persons are abusing the system, I want them—and you—to know that the government will not tolerate their schemes and frauds."

The backlash-to-welfare theme has been taken up by other candidates since then.

Mr. Mackasey appeared tired during his many conferences. Just before he began, he was on the telephone answering questions for a radio phone program run by Judy LaMarsh, former cabinet colleague who has publicly criticized the minister.

She was questioning him mainly about immigration policy, which is another responsibility of the manpower minister.

Lewis:

Tradeau: A Million Jobs Prove Our Point

HAMILTON (CP) — After a day of "running" with open-line calls on unemployment and bilingualism, Prime Minister Trudeau got a brash, old-fashioned German beer bust.

He was on a campaign swing in Ontario swing—Ottawa to Kingston, Hamilton and Kitchener—in his campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election.

Shoe-horned through the sweltering crowd, to the stage where the German band had been scorching away for hours, Mr. Trudeau finally made it to the microphone.

Whatever speech he might have had in mind, he scrapped, saying Oktoberfest was time

'Note the long jacket, ideal for corporate bums!'

Food Price War Here

TORONTO (CP) — A price-cutting competition among Ontario supermarkets escalated Friday as Loblaw Groceterias Co. Ltd. slashed prices on previously-advertised weekend specials, and other chains scrambled to match the reductions.

At Belleville supermarket managers contacted said they had received no direct word about what price cuts might be expected in this city.

Miracle Mart manager R. J. McGall said, however, that what happens in Toronto also happens in Belleville.

"The stores are all controlled from the same place," he said.

At the east end A and P Store manager F. Bell said he hadn't heard anything about price cuts.

"All I know is what I heard on the radio . . . I haven't a clue if the price war will come to Belleville."

In a Dominion Store advertisement appearing Friday in The Intelligencer, the store offered to pay the customer the difference in cash for any comparable brand, quality and size advertised at a price cheaper than Dominion.

Loblaw Friday reduced the prices of eight items featured in newspaper advertisements Wednesday, after Dominion Stores Ltd. had undercut a number of the Loblaw's weekly specials in its Thursday advertising.

Gets Life

SANFORD, Fla (AP) — Saying the sentence should be "a lesson to all young people," a judge has handed a life prison term to an 18-year-old amateur boxer who police said robbed and killed an elderly storekeeper with a meat cleaver while high on marijuana.

"All I know is what I heard on the radio . . . I haven't a clue if the price war will come to Belleville."

Spokesman for Great Atlantic and Pacific Co. Ltd. and Steinberg's Ltd. said they were adjusting prices to meet market conditions and do not intend to be undersold.

Dominion Stores ran an advertisement Wednesday pledging to pay the customer in cash any difference between grocery prices and those advertised by competitors.

One Loblaw's executive said if Dominion intends to make Loblaw's specials its specials "they are in for a hell of a fight." Loblaws is stressing more staff per store to speed up service.

Loblaw's Friday advertised specials, effective to Tuesday during the Thanksgiving weekend, such as one pound of brand-name cheese slices for 69 cents, 48 fluid ounces of tomato juice for 25 cents, 48 fluid ounces of fruit drinks for 39 cents, 10-ounce frozen dinners for 39 cents, California grapes for 29 cents a pound and a five pounds package of detergent for $1.49.

Political Future at Stake

Mackasey Says Payroll Deductions May Climb 10 Cents Weekly

OTTAWA (CP) — The day the federal election was called, Mackasey told Parliament that bookkeeping for the new employment insurance program was sound and "I will be glad to stake my reputation on that statement."

"For the first time in history the plan is actuarially sound and, unlike 1951, will not need another blood transfusion," he told the Commons Sept. 1.

On Friday, precisely five weeks later, the minister announced that the program is costing hundreds of millions of dollars more than estimated, but added: "I am prepared to stand politically on it."

The need for extra funds forced the government in issue a special order Thursday for $224 million because a statutory vote of $200 million for payments from the federal treasury "is being approached."

Further, Mr. Mackasey said it may be necessary in January to increase the weekly insurance deductions from employees by perhaps 10 cents a week. That would mean an increase for employers of 14 cents weekly in contributions.

The minister's announcement and complex elaboration was a response to Conservative electioneering charges that the unemployment program was more than forecast, with taxpayers footing the bill. Leader Stanfield repeated the charge Friday night.

Persistent criticism provoked a Prime Minister Trudeau to promise a reckoning before election day Oct. 30, but Mr. Mackasey took over the job.

The author of figures issued by Mr. Mackasey left the amount of the drawing on the treasury in doubt. Even the financial specialists emerged with conflicting ideas of just what is going on.

The plan, fully instituted this year, was designed to pay for itself from employer-employee contributions when the national unemployment rate is no more than four per cent of the labor force.

The dispute in the election campaign has been about just how much in ex-ra money will be needed from the treasury. The opposition claims that Canada now is headed to the point of "national scandal," while government spokesmen say discrepancies are not serious.

The government's new spe estimate works out at a gap of $262 million to be made up by the treasury to cover the difference this year between the cost of benefits paid out and the amount collected in the weekly levies on employees and employers.

Mr. Mackasey said that isn't as serious as it looks because the government had estimated in advance that the treasury would have to pay about $150 million when unemployment persisted at the rate it has been running this year.

He calculated, therefore, that the program was costing about $275 million—perhaps as much as $295-million—more than the government had estimated in advance.

While the figures were not provided officially, unofficial guesses suggest that unemployment insurance payouts this year may cost about $2 billion.

If the government's estimate of an $800 million deficit is accurate, that would indicate that the program is collecting about $1.2 billion in premiums.

He was "concerned" because opponents were suggesting that recipients of unemployment insurance were dishonest.

That is a charge that has been discussed from the beginning of the campaign.

Prime Minister Trudeau, who has described the program as "the best anywhere," told a London, Ont. audience at the outset of his re-election campaign early last month:

"If some persons are abusing

Reservoir Provides for Future

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Construction of reservoir "dams to improve water quality and provision of recreation facilities for future generations is one way that today's adults can pay their debt to young people.

This was the statement Friday by John Rhodes, parliamentary assistant to Hon. Leo Bernier, Minister of Natural Resources, as he officially opened the $328,000 Deerock Lake reservoir north of Marlton.

Mr. Rhodes said that such programs were an attempt by today's adults to make up for the mistakes that have been made in the past.

The speaker paid tribute to the Moira River Conservation Authority and other such organizations across Ontario for conservation programs. Authorities provided the local initiative for reservoir and other projects which were carried out with the financial assistance of government.

"We damaged the environment but we have learned our lesson," said the MPP from Northern Ontario.

The official opening of the Deerock reservoir was part of the Authority's 25th anniversary observation and it marked the culmination of planning that commenced eight years ago.

The rock-filled dam itself, built by The Trethewn Company of Belleville, was completed three years ago but since then clear cutting of 500 acres of flooded area has been carried out.

Among those attending the official opening were Norman Patrick, director of the Conservation Authorities Branch, Ministry of Natural Resources who was introduced as the guest speaker. Mr. Patrick is former head of the Lands and Forests Authority of Ontario.

Program chairman was Harold Thompson, chairman of the Authority Water Advisory Board.

John Thompson, vice-chairman of the Water Advisory Board, introduced many of the guests, who included James Spry, Conservation Authority chairman, Mel Marion Tye, representing Reeve Clare Benn of Kaladar, Ontario and Effingham township.

Belleville Alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, chairman of the authority education and information committee, thanked the speaker.

James Sprachett, the only original member of the Moira River Conservation Authority, formed 25 years ago, made a presentation to the speaker. Graham Bell, former chairman of the water advisory committee, recalled the problems faced in getting the Deerock project off the ground.

Graduates Face World of Change

Graduating Nicholson Catholic College students were told last night "you are in a world of gigantic change . . . you will save it or perish with it".

The guest speaker, Toronto separate school vice-principal O. P. Gazeley spent his remarks before the capacity audience drawing quotes from literature and the technological council, progressing his theme of "one to handle the changes that will face you".

"We are faced with challenges that no other generation has had to cope with," he said.

Mr. Gazeley, brother of Rev.

Copter Missing

TRENTON (Staff) — The prospects for a search and rescue air crew from CFB Trenton are good for the Thanksgiving holiday searching for a missing helicopter with two men aboard in the bush country of northern Quebec.

The two men, from the Chibougamau area, were reported missing yesterday on a normal, short-distance flight.

A Twin Otter from 424 Rescue Squadron, with Lt. Ed Baxter as pilot, left for the search area yesterday and commenced a systematic search of the right route of the missing helicopter.

Charles Gazeley of Belleville, said he was no humorist and continued with his comments on the responsibilities of all students to learn and love.

"All the challenges you have accepted in this school over the past five years would surely be wasted if at the same time you have not learned to love one another and respect the dignity of your association," he said.

Topics of controversy such as abortion and government support to separate schools will never be solved by simply saying "close your minds and I have mine and leaving it at that," he said.

"You have to seek out answers and learn how the present society is styled and have an alternative ready if you wish to change it.

"It will be people like you who will make the choices of life and death.

"If you people don't care about contraception and abortion, others will form your world for you," he stated.

Mr. Gazely went on to say "the ethical and moral problems of the contraception or abortion are upon us," referring to abortion and contraception, "and it will be your duty to decide.

"Some say basic morals and standards will never disappear or change. People will not stand for it.

"When I look for the people who will not stand for it, I look to you."

Never Too Late

"Sure you can teach an old dog new tricks," said Dennis Hersey, who at the ripe old age of 38 graduated from Nicholson Catholic College last night with honor graduation diploma.

After being a service-man for the past 20 years it's tough to walk into a school and accept the responsibility of getting a better education, he said.

Mr. Hersey, while serving at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, held the rank of a corporal and worked as an airframe technologist.

One of the most emotional segments of the graduation exercise last night was when Mr. Hersey stood up to receive his diploma and the rest of his class stood with him, cheering and clapping wildly.

"I took a math and physics night course at Moira Secondary and evening school with Quinte as a refresher to get myself into the swing of things," he said.

As a full-time student, Mr. Hersey attended night school for five additional credits for a complete grade 13 certificate.

He now attends Loyalist College, taking an accelerated mechanical engineering technology course, which he completed in "right down my alley."

After housekeeping in Canada and Egypt, Mr. Hersey intends making his home in the Belleville area once his professional education is completed.

Mr. Hersey was one of 37 students to receive honor diplomas at Nicholson's commencement last night in St. Michael's auditorium.

Dam Good Value

The Moira River Conservation Authority got good value in water storage capacity for money spent on construction of the Deerock reservoir north of Flinton.

This is the expert opinion of John F. Nixon, project engineer for Gilbert Engineering Ltd. of Toronto, who drew the plans for the 1,000 acre reservoir structure on Partridge Creek, a tributary of the Skootamatta River.

The reservoir has a drainage area of 8.271 square miles with a storage area of 8,271 acre feet at an elevation of 550 feet. Surface area is 1,000 mile-long lake at the same elevation is about 1,000 acres.

The over all cost of the dam, including construction, clear cutting of all trees, engineering and other associated costs was $328,000, but the project engineer says the cost per acre foot of water storage on most such reservoirs is several times that of the Deerock dam.

The reason is that full advantage was taken of the natural topography which has rock bluffs rising on each side of the lake outlet.

Rock blasted from the 106-foot-wide spillway channel was used to form the rock fill dam.

The dam increased the level of Deerock Lake by about eight feet and, according to estimates, will provide enough water storage to provide a discharge of 12 cubic feet per second during the dry summer months.

Discharge from the reservoir is controlled by a gate valve in the bottom of the dam.

Mr. Nixon said his firm has engineered reservoir dams with no more storage capacity than that of Deerock, but which cost well over $1-million.

With Deerock reservoir, the Moira Authority now has a more controlled reservoirs to augment summer flow in the watershed.

The other two are at Lingham Lake on the headwaters of the Black River and at Skootamatta Lake.

All three branches of the Moira join a few miles north of Tweed and empty into the head of Quinte at Belleville as one stream.

Woman Injured

A Stirling woman remains in Belleville General Hospital today with hip and possible head injuries.

Mrs. Joline May Grant, 62 of RR4, Stirling was driving south on North Front Street and slowed down to make a left hand turn onto Donald Street.

One lane of oncoming traffic stopped for her but when making the turn, her car and a car in the northbound curb lane collided.

The Grant vehicle then spun off from the accident, striking a car parked at a stop sign on Donald Street.

Mrs. Grant was the only one injured in the incident, which occurred about 5:15 p.m. Friday.

No estimate of damages is available and charges have been laid in connection with the incident.

Frogs Become Hazard

TWEED (Special) — Hundreds of small frogs hopping across Highway 37 during Friday night's heavy rain posed an additional hazard for motorists.

Provincial police and rescues officials at Tweed said the squashed bodies of the frogs after being struck by car wheels made the highway very, namely "greasy".

Nearly an inch of rain fell in the Quinte area Friday afternoon and night.

At Belleville the rainfall was measured at .32 inch. At Tweed there was .9 inch and at Bancroft .7 inch.

Temperatures Friday night fell to 35 at Bancroft, 41 at Tweed and Plevna and 40 at Palmer Rapids and Dacre.

Field Day Postponed

TRENTON (Staff) — Murray Township's first annual field day has been postponed until Oct. 22.

Originally scheduled for the weekend of Oct. 1, the field day will be staged next to the municipal offices. Boys and girls baseball, plus track and field events, will form part of the day's program, which will include sale of refreshments.

Supervise Dances

EDMONTON (CP) Parents have been asked to supervise dances at some high schools because teachers can't cope with drug and alcohol use at the events, high school principals say.

Two high schools have already cancelled dances on the grounds that students are breaking the law by openly consuming alcohol and using drugs.

The dances are expected to resume if parents will supervise.

Another school is considering ending teacher supervised dances and having parents take over. Some teachers refuse to assume responsibility for dealing with alcohol and drug users.

A principal said most parents don't realize alcohol and drug problems exist at school dances.

Another Plateau

Dennis Hersey received a stunning ovation from youthful classmates at last night's Nicholson College graduation exercises. With his high school education completed, 38-year-old Mr. Hersey is now enrolled in Loyalist college. Here, he gets another prize from his wife, Mary. Mr. Hersey recently retired from the Canadian armed forces.

Compassion, Knowledge Education's Products

Learning and loving are the essentials said Michele oates of Belleville, as she addressed the capacity audience at last night's graduation exercises at Nicholson Catholic College.

Looking back at the five years spent in the college, Miss Coates reflected, "The time we spent here, was a time to grow as a member of the Nicholson family."

Emphasizing the theme of family, Miss Coates told the crowd of parents, friends and well-wishers, "there is a unity between the students of the school."

"Love comes in many forms, one being the way we cheer our teams, especially our senior basketball team, who won in COSSA championships.

"When we leave here, whichever way we go, we all have the same tool to work with and that is questioning," she said.

"Rather than accept things blindly, we can discover and evaluate merita and not accept the opinion of others at face value."

Apart from being an Ontario Scholar, Miss oates was honored several times during the award presentations, being called upon to accept The Catholic Lawyers' and Doctors' Scholarship. Trysco (Canada) Limited Scholarship, Dr. E. G. Kennedy Medical Scholarship and an honor pin for first class honors in seven credits for grade 13.

Catholic Women's League of Belleville bursaries went to Rita Sterrit and Ann Sherl.

The Intelligencer Scholarship for grade 13 English was presented to Catherine Thompson and Paul Binsette.

Mrs. Jim Thompson, a graduating student who married to the stage several times last night, receiving The Northern Electric Company Limited Scholarship. Bobby Kinamen Bursary, University of Toronto — admission to the faculty of medicine and honor pin recipient.

Marlsen Beadle received the Order of Albambra, Islam Temple, as the top boy in Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club bursary went to Jane McCoy.

Susan Walsh was awarded the Belleville Federation of Musicians prize and the Joseph Capelle Award for notable progress in Improvement went to Robert Ryan and Mathew Lacy.

The Sisters of Providence of Kingston presented Jean Whalen and the Belleville and District Real Estate Prize went to Lynda Brown.

The Better Hall Club award for leadership in musical presidents Pamela Smith.

Miss Smith is the first girl to receive the award in 22 years of the award for the best all - round student.

The Sister Mary Mathew Memorial Prize for Science was William Bennett.

Ontario Scholars are Jacob Chan, William Hurley, Paul Binette and Michele Coates.

Train Crash

tract them from the wreckage.

Trapped screaming passengers trying to get out in pitch darkness lit matches and cigarette lighters to see on fire.

Hopes that there were other survivors rose after rescuers pulled out a three-year-old girl who suffered only bruises.

Devlin said seven of the train's crew were in hospital under police guard. A brakeman was missing.

The Via Rail company manager, Victor Manuel Villaseor, blamed the accident on the "irresponsibility" of the train crew who, he said, were driving too fast.

An estimated 200 doctors and hundreds of nurses, ambulance drivers and rescue workers appeared exhausted. Most had worked for 18 straight hours.

School Enrolment Load Will Shift to Secondary

No dramatic change is foreseen for public school patterns in Hastings county over the next decade.

School authorities believe that enrolment should reflect the present trend projected this week by Education Minister Fred Wells.

The only factor that could cause a deviation would be a sharp population increase, county schools director Eric Runacres said yesterday.

Already some evidence of this exists in what appears to be a small immigration from metropolitan or larger urban areas in the province to less populous regions like Hastings.

If provincial trends are paced, elementary school enrolments should drop in the next decade while those in secondary schools will increase before falling back.

However, the differentials should create no problems for staff or facilities, the education director said.

As already projected by the school board, an increase in secondary school facilities will be needed. At present, there are about 500 students still inadequately housed. Elementary facilities are still in need of upgrading.

Earlier teacher retirements — now possible by legislation linking age to length of service — should help offset the input of new teachers.

Enrolment increases are showing in the Harmony, Bayside, Park Dale, Stirling areas — the dormitory zones linked to Belleville-Trenton urban centres.

The area continues to grow and its expansion is "something we're going to have to look at," said Mr. Runacres.

Elementary school registrations, now about 15,000 a year should drop to 12,000 - 13,000 during the next decade. Secondary school enrolments, now about 9,000, may increase 10,000 - 11,000 at the same time. In the past, high school registrations have increased 300 - 400 annually in Hastings.

Mr. Wells, speaking to a Toronto home and school group, said the trends are shown in a projection of school enrolments made by his ministry's planning and research branch.

The projection indicates that elementary school enrolment, which totalled 1,458,940 in September, 1971, will decrease to 1,308,000 in September, 1979. But then it is expected to begin increasing and is expected to be at 1,330,000 by 1982.

The pattern is expected to take place in both public and separate schools.

Enrolment in secondary schools would increase, to a peak of 628,000 by 1977, compared with the 574,530 of September, 1971. By 1982, it was expected to fall back to 538,000.

Mr. Wells said the information has been sent to local school officials throughout the province to guide their planning.

Planning Free Rest of Year

Quinte Planning Board Thursday voted not to call for levies from its member municipalities for the months of November and December because of a substantial surplus of funds.

By cutting off contributions with the October payments, the board is expected to end the year with about $9,000 left in its bank account by November and December payments were made by members, there would be about a $33,000 surplus.

No contributions have been made by Brighton, Murray and Brighton townships since last April and the surplus comes despite this loss in revenue. Trenton has paid its full contribution and its representatives are again actively participating in region planning.

Main reason for the healthy financial situation in QPB is that expenses were kept below the breakeven level of Trenton, Brighton and the two townships. Money was not spent on hiring of additional staff, new offices, new equipment because the board's future was uncertain.

Tire Fire

Thurlow Township firemen were called on early this morning to extinguish a tire that had caught fire on a Carlewood truck.

Jean Chamberland of Trois Rivieres, driver of the vehicle owned by Maurice Gallenger Hailaway, noticed the burning tire while westbound on Highway 401 near Salmon River bridge. The fire, on the tractor, had gone flat and overheated.

Chamberland was hauling a load of plywood and disconnected the trailer before firemen arrived.

Rail Crossing To Be Narrowed

Traffic on Dundas St. East will be reduced to two lanes over the Canadian Pacific level crossing near Union Carbide for four days next week while crews smooth the crossing.

Work will begin on Tuesday and be completed Friday. A detour system, similar to one used on North Front St. two months ago while a sewer was being installed, is planned to divert traffic.

Workmen will rebuild the ballast under the single track before laying down new pavement.

Board Wants Help

Quinte Planning Board last night authorized the rehiring of a summer employee to assist board staff with its work now seriously impeded by the illness this week of planning director Bert Kenny.

Deputy planning director Frank Stokmans told the board the individual the board now wants back did considerable field work on the conceptual study for Quinte, the board's new priority.

The personnel committee of the board will meet shortly to deal with the hiring of the new part-time planner and other problems posed by the absence of planning director Bert Kenny, who underwent heart surgery in Kingston last Sunday.

Responsibilities of the QPB staff will be reorganized on a temporary basis because of Kenny's illness and the call by the province for Quinte's conceptual plan to be a new priority.

Deputy director Frank Stokmans asked that dealing with current development applications — receiving no attention now at all — and the conceptual plan be stressed in the new allocation of duties.

WHEREAS authoritative statistics compiled and published by the Dominion Fire Commissioner show that during the past ten year seven hundred and forty thousand fires in Canada have taken six thousand lives, seriously injured at least twenty-one thousand other persons and destroyed property valued at one billion six hundred million dollars:

AND WHEREAS such losses are still increasing year by year;

AND WHEREAS humanitarian and economic considerations imperatively demand that improved fire prevention measures be undertaken to prevent this economic waste and tragic loss of life in order that the nation's prosperity may be maintained;

AND WHEREAS it is desirable that the attention of the public be directed to the extent and underlying causes of the preventable loss of life and property by fire and to the best and most practicable means for its control and that a specific period of the year be set apart and properly designated for the dissemination of such information;

THEREFORE I DESIGNATE THE WEEK COMMENCING SUNDAY, THE EIGHTH OF OCTOBER, AND ENDING ON SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH OF OCTOBER, IN THE PRESENT YEAR AS

"FIRE PREVENTION WEEK"

In the City of Belleville and do recommend that at some time during this week:-

(1) All citizens inspect their homes and all conditions likely to cause or promote the spread of fire be removed.

(2) All merchants carry out a general clean up campaign of the business section and assist in this program to reduce the loss of life and property by fire.

(3) All theatres, hotels and places of public assembly place special emphasis on the removal of fire hazards from their premises.

(4) Hospitals and institutional buildings be inspected and the necessary changes made to protect the occupants in case of fire.

(5) Fire drill and lectures on fire safety be given by teachers and staff in co-operation with officials of the Belleville Fire Department in all schools and educational institutions to acquaint the occupants with the dangers of fire and the best and most expeditious mode of exit in time of danger.

(6) All citizens keep in mind the ever present threat of fire and take every possible means at their disposal to assist in the reduction of fire and the loss of life by carrying out fire prevention throughout the year.

Snowmobile Study

The provincial government select committee which has been studying the use of snowmobiles since June 30 is reported preparing to present an interim report to the legislature in November. It plans to seek changes in legislation to control petty trespass, limit noise and increase safety standards.

Great — but isn't November a bit late in the day. By then we are right into winter with the snow about to fly if it has not already done so. Besides, as far as noise is concerned the new machines are showing in the showrooms and by all accounts some manufacturers at least have taken steps to reduce engine noise.

Better late than never though and we hope that any new legislation adopted will deal with this situation once and for all. We are glad to see that attention is being given by the committee to driver and vehicle safety and to operation of the machines on public roads and in other public areas. This is a sore point with many. For example, snowmobiles should not be driven hot-rod fashion along county roads or streets in rural homes, or in parks where environmental damage can result.

On the other hand snowmobiles have proved themselves invaluable to Indians and Eskimos and Northern residents (absolute at the cost of hearing loss), as well as by aiding people who have been stormbound in homes or in cars. They can be real life savers in this regard. Nevertheless, strict regulations for their overall use are vital, especially when they are being used mainly for casual sporting activities.

Quiet Haven

Barcovan Beach is one of those bonuses that the owner of "the-beaten-track" roads comes upon at times. It lay there under a bright sun and we had reached it from that pleasant if bumpy route from Carrying Place to Presqu'ile.

The road swings along the shore after leaving Camp Barcovan on the left and it is not so much beach as cottages with names like Wal-Rare-Wee and Whispering Heights — some entirely habitable, others more like something from a Tennessee Williams novel, for a mile on more. A fine stand of trees shades some dwellings at the turn down from the road. The water's edge is reedy but cleaner looking than any we have seen on the Ontario shores for a long time.

There are boats and a dredge a little farther out and across a channel. And there is a marshy island with a bulldozer perched rather crazily on a point jutting into the water. Around a corner of this improbable trees fill sand and there are seagulls wheeling about and more improbable still there is an atmosphere of being in some other ,romantic place. Like those dreaming shores you read of in novels.

A young woman of about 19 is the only person in sight. She is walking along the road by the water. Her hair is pinned back at each ear and she is warmly clad and is carrying paddles and lifejackets as if she has just returned from the inland sea out there. The sea island is reached by boat and the bulldozer? Well, they are dredging a channel, she says.

Farther along we sight an island with cottages along its shore also, and what appears to be a lighthouse at one end. Could it be what a map shows as The Bluff off Presqu'ile Point? We followed the road inland to its conclusion and emerged at the Murray Canal at Mount Carmel. En route there was another road with the sign, Cedardale Beach. We had seen that sign before, nearer Carrying Place, and have promised ourselves a visit there too before the snow flies.

Textile Festival

Well, we had not been aware that Hespeler, a community of 4,000 people up Kitchener way is the fabric capital of Ontario. Some 60,000 people toured the town's four textile plants recently. it was the occasion of Hespeler's third annual textile festival and what better way to blow its own trumpet and acquaint people with its people and industries. A highlight of the four-day event was a giant parade of 93 floats along with 1,700 bandsmen, majorettes and other participants.

The Western Ontario Highland Dancing Association held a meet on a grassy slope next to one of the woollen mills and another event that attracted much interest was the secondary school sewing competition. Approximately, - Hespeler has more than 1,000 people employed in the fabric industry.

PM's Campaign Relaxed While Stanfield Sets Hot Pace

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Although it might change before the race is run, there have been much a contrast between the way a prime minister and an opposition leader pace themselves in an election campaign.

Conservative leader Stanfield, streaking through time zone after time zone as he jets from province to province, often spanning half the country in a day, is hitting a man - killing pace.

Out of bed, frequently, at five in the morning, and to bed again not until long after midnight.

Prime Minister Trudeau is flying the same type of jet but covering only a fraction of the country, getting back to Ottawa a couple of times a week for a rest, and usually, when out campaigning in short three or four day bursts, taking it rather leisurely.

His schedule calls for a quite decent seven in the morning start and his campaigning day usually ends before nine at night with the final notation "to bed."

Now now come this difference in pace, so swift for the man who Liberals say reminds them of a tortoise, and so potsy for a man the Conservatives have always considered a hare!

Well, the Prime Minister has made no secret of hostile distaste for the fatiguing grind of campaigning.

Stanfield probably does not really care either for this exercise in exhaustion, but has not said so.

But the Prime Minister has the advantage of being able to duck the worst of it — the up-before-dawn and post-midnight strain — by claiming he has to take time out to keep shop here and "run the country."

So far it seems to be working out for him, and probably will as long as he thinks he can safely ignore the ground being covered — and perhaps gained — by Stanfield's crazy-quilting of the country by jet-hopping.

Former Prime Minister Pearson tried the same dodge, but it did not work.

He had hoped, before his last campaign in the 1965 election to make a let-us-take-it easy - and-use-our-headsr deal with Conservative leader Diefenbaker on campaigning.

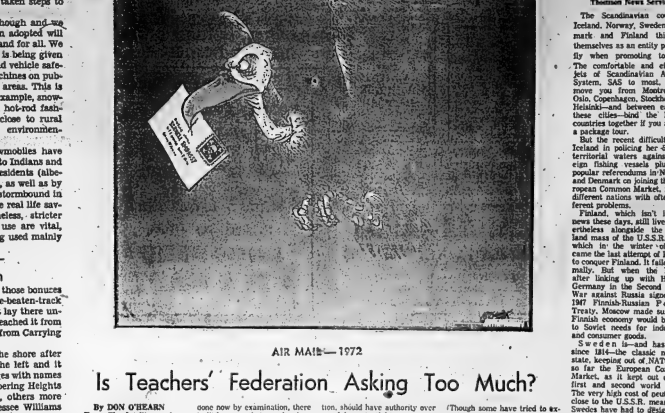
After four elections — two losers and two winners — Pearson was ready to slow down the campaigning so as not to approach election day in a near-state of physical and nervous collapse.

But Diefi said no, the race was on and the pace, after a pause-that-failed, is Pearson, hot, as ever.

In that pause Pearson announced that instead of chasing wildly all over the country he would spend some time in Ottawa working as prime minister instead of sweating it out across the land as Liberal election leader.

He gave that up when he saw how quickly the hard - campaigning Diefi was closing what had started out as a big lead, and took off to hot pursuit.

Diefi loved campaigning — as any man loves anything at which he excells — and when he was Prime Minister through three elections he thrived on the long distance phone and a replay of government messengers between Ottawa and wherever the campaign train or plane happened to be.



It was government - by - remote - control for the eight weeks of the campaign, and while it likely drove the senior civil service back "to Ottawa mad, Diefi liked it and made it work.

He would leap from his plane or train and head for the nearest phone — often a conveniently handy pay station — to call Diefi and check what matters walled a prime minister's final decision.

Last thing at night, usually after midnight, he would be on this "hot line" to Parliament Hill to deal with less urgent matters left standing while he campaigned his way through the day.

Prime Minister Trudeau is not trying that yet.

But if Stanfield shows increasing strength, Trudeau may have to give up his leisurely pace and resort himself to "hot line" government for the balance of the campaign.

Is Teachers' Federation Asking Too Much?

By DON O'HEARN
From The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau

The Ontario Teachers Federation, representing (more or less) the 100,000 teachers in the province, has said it will seek full professional jurisdiction over all teachers.

That is it would set the standards for admittance to teaching, decide who would be admitted and have power of discipline (suspension or cancellation).

The OTF won't get what it wants.

And of course it shouldn't.

There is no precision to such wanting.

There possibly is no other occupation in which there is more controversy and disagreement over approach. What is good and what is poor teaching.

Other than probing his or her depth of knowledge, which is done now by examination, there is little more that can be done to decide whether a prospective teacher is qualified.

A teacher doesn't have to make an incision, as a doctor does. Or draw a will, as a lawyer does. A teacher has to "teach."

It is true that a good many occupations today in addition to medicine and law are self-governing.

Even mechanics have been given the authority to rule themselves.

But in all these occupations there are definite practical skills involved and also continuing questions of ethics.

There is neither in teaching.

So in practical terms the only way the OTF could handle admissions would be through making value judgements. And no group, in or out of an occupation, should have authority over people's potential careers on such an intangible basis.

Further, there is the situation that the OTF in actuality is really a big trade union.

It professes interest and concern over standards of teaching and education and in this it is probably quite sincere.

But its essential reason for existence is to get teachers a bigger share at the pay window.

And in the authority to suspend or cancel its members lies access to teach, it is asking for authority that no other union has even dared ask for.

(Though some have tried to exercise it through internal rules.)

It is a power, of course, which would give it life and death control over its members and which would be abhorrent.

It is noteworthy that many teachers apparently don't agree at all with the Federation's demand.

And in viewing their overall position one has to suspect that the teacher-politicians who run the OTF really are status seekers and power seeking, even though they themselves may not realize this.

Following a decision arrived at two weeks ago favoring keeping stores open Friday evening instead of Saturday night, seven different store groups in Belleville have petitioned city council for a change in their bylaw governing store closing hours.

City council yesterday awarded the contract for alterations in the city engineering department offices to Arthur A. Sills and Son at a contract price of $5,854. This was the lowest of three tenders received. According to plans the remaining portion of the old city hall auditorium will be used to provide additional space for city hall offices.

Canadian distilleries were directly harnessed to meet wartime needs under an order announced by the Department of Munitions and Supply, banning production of liquor from November 1 next. Simultaneously, the War Production Board in Washington ordered all United States distilleries still making liquor, to halt their manufacture by next Thursday and convert to industrial alcohol. It has been said at Toronto that liquor stocks now aging, were sufficient to meet consumer demands for some years.

Nordic Differences

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Scandinavian countries — Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland think of themselves as an entity primarily when promoting tourism. The comfortable and efficient jets of Scandinavian Airlines System, SAS to most, which move you from Montreal to Oslo, Copenhagen, Stockholm or Helsinki—and between each of these cities—and the Nordic countries together if you are on a package tour.

But the recent difficulties of Iceland in pressing for wider territorial waters against foreign fishing vessels plus the popular referendums in Norway and Denmark on joining the European Common Market, reveal different nations with often different problems.

Finland, which isn't in the news these days, still lives nevertheless alongside the huge land mass of the U.S.S.R. from which in the winter of 1939 came the last attempt of Russia to conquer Finland. It failed dismally. But when the Finns, after linking up with Hitler's Germany in the Second World War against Russia signed the 1947 Finnish-Russian Peace Treaty, terms made sure the Finnish economy would be tied to Soviet needs for industrial and consumer goods.

Sweden — and has been since 1814—the classic neutral state, keeping out of NATO and so far the European Common Market, as it kept out of the first and second world wars. The very high cost of neutrality close to the U.S.S.R. means the Swedes have had to difficult time build their own weapons. They cannot buy from the U.S. even an aircraft - producing NATO partner, nor engage in defence-sharing.

Neutrality for the Swedes means a higher defence budget than would her membership in NATO.

Norway and Denmark are both in NATO; Norway in particular is strategically important. 1940-type invasion, this time from the Soviet Union, would they share a small common border in the Norwegian Arctic.

Their different views on the European Common Market at this time ramies during the build-up for the public referendum about signing it. Copenhagen is on the continent, a cosmopolitan city, centre of many things, the capital of Denmark and Old Danish kings who once ruled the entire Baltic. Even Europe's busiest porno shops.

Oslo is a long way from Europe's great capitals, truly provincial and, for this columnist, the most attractive Scandinavian capital of all for that very reason. The Norwegians are suspicious of the super-bureaucrats of Brussels, afraid they will be swamped in a bigger European economic union—hence most publicly against present EEC entry.

Delayed Benefits

Editor,

The Intelligencer,

To make an issue out of the UIC cost-overrun is not tragic, as Mr. Mackasey has it. It is despicable.

Those gentlemen who raised Cain about the cost of delayed benefits recently now vent their ire on the overrun. Were their logic consistent, they should have applauded the savings of benefits denied to the victims. Let them eat cake.

But logic is not at stake, votes are; therefore cause and effect are muddled. The premier, Bert Brutus, derives not from this law, but from those men who squeezed men from their jobs.

Unemployment should be three times 9% not a Lower Slobovian six plus %. Reducing unemployment, politician's Holy Grail, would turn the overrun into a profit.

BERT GERLING

Nordic Differences

There is a good deal of that kind of feeling in Denmark too. But much of Danish foreign trade, for example, her bumper butter, eggs and bacon exports to Britain, could wither away if Denmark held out against the European community with Britain in it. Yet many Danes fear a new "German invasion," this time of super-businessmen flooding this tiny kingdom with their goods after Denmark as a new EEC member reduced and finally cut its tariffs.

Nevertheless, the idea of a "Viking Circle" of nations appeals to many in the Scandinavian countries. Their language, except Finnish which has a Central Asian origin, are similar. Nordic businessmen almost always can handle Norwegian, Swedish and Danish together.

They are all genuine democracies, containing three of the very few constitutional monarchies left in the world and so hang-ups with former colonial empires. Greenland has been incorporated constitutionally into the Danish kingdom for example, and remains a little touchy —all 45,000 Greenlanders that is —about their autonomy.

The Hockey Scene And All That

Editor,

The Intelligencer,

In reply to Mr. Hockley, who seems to have opinions on all subjects — are you sure he lives in our area?

From the tone of his letter I would have suspected he was from Vancouver. Canadians don't seem to be pushed around without retaliating. Had everyone thought as Mr. Hockley in 1939 when the little countries were receiving the boot-end of the Germans dirty work, we would have all had to learn the gooseless. I'm thankful he didn't have the officials to bunker.

MRS. BRADY,
Tweed.

* * * *

Editor,

The Intelligencer,

It seems to me every other night W. C. Hockley has a letter to the Editor on some subject of importance that the news media has printed two or three days prior.

One question I would like to ask, is Mr. Hockley employed by this paper? If not, it's too bad Belleville has an intellectual giant who is unemployed at this time: he should be working somewhere — perhaps as Editor of this paper. After all he seems to be a walking encyclopedia on politics, religion, sports and education.

What prompted this latter was his last article on Team Canada. Well, Mr. Hockley — hockey is a little different than soccer, maybe you should sit down and watch a hockey game sometime and learn everybody else's business alone.

Norway Will Join Market

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Denmark's vote in favor of joining the European Economic Community, or Common Market, has delighted officials and supporters of the EEC.

But oddly enough, a major consequence of the referendum has been an encouragement for debate among West Europeans generally about the advantages and drawbacks of the Community.

The surprise referendum triumphant Danish Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag lends extra interest, at home and abroad, to the referendum and to the issues debated in the weeks before it took place.

The defeat of the EEC cause in Norway last month involved many factors unique to that northern country.

In Denmark, however, some of the issues broached during the referendum campaign by opponents of membership would be equally comprehensible to residents in others currently belonging to the EEC.

In their referendum speeches, the Danish anti-Marketeers stressed what they termed the excessive complexities placed by Community administrations on large-scale industrialization, material growth and sheer unfamiliarity.

Even Dr. Sicco Mansholt, president of the EEC's governing commission, conceded after the referendum that the greatest advantages to be reaped are to be accruing from the Community's operations are not being effectively published among the mass of membership state citizens.

Bearing this out is the fact that in Belgium, where EEC headquarters are situated, thousands of small businessmen stopped work for two days in protest against high taxes and the mountain of paper work that typify life in a contemporary West European state.

A major element compounding such grievances is the way EEC countries are weaving the mushroom growth of big, internationally-organized enterprises, ranging from huge car-making companies to high supermarket groups.

The small businessman, who feels himself being squeezed relentlessly to his demise as well as to the encouragement of endless industrial mergers.

All this produces widespread disenchantment with the EEC idea, especially when the current realities are contrasted with the grandiose visions of a united Europe propounded after the catastrophe of the Second World War.

Thus the danger is that the EEC will formally enter on a new era of enlarged life in a predominantly sour atmosphere.

Critics of the Community are continuing to accuse its top officials of being out with mast feeling.

Conscious of such attacks, Mansholt has acknowledged the need for trying to publicize the Community's work, just like the greater educational opportunities now available in Western European youth, and the salutary results of the Community's policy of frontier-transcending labor mobility.

At any rate, something must be done if the West European man-in-the-street is not to lose whatever faith he has in the EEC and come to regard it cynically as a monolithic juggernaut of international big business.

Remember Thanksgiving In Church

Views of God Differ

By Rev. Gordon C. Sokyta

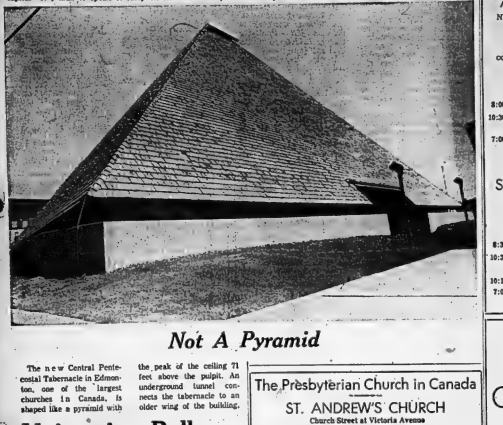
Different people view God differently. A physicist may consider Him a divine 'Mathematician', a lover of nature, a divine 'Artist', or a student of history the divine 'Power' making for moral order. A rationalist may thing of God one way, a sentimentalist another, a fascist another, a capitalist another, a socialist another, and a sectarian yet another.

The human heart craves a central unity in life, a very personal explanation of the whence and whither of our being. The longing is natural. If ever a myth needed to be exploded, it is the myth that the impersonal is more real than the personal, that it is more scientific to speak abstractly, to talk of a spirit of creativity, of the trend of evolution, of nature with a capital "N", than to speak of God creating men and women to be in personal relations with one another and with Him. Christianity was born in response to this direct question, "Who do you say that I am;" (Matthew 16:13-21)

The attraction our Lord had for crowds of Galileans did not blind Him to the sight of clouds forming in the sky of His ministry. He suddenly withdrew into the district of Caesarea Philippi across the frontier in the neutral tetrarchy (mini - kingdom) of Philip, Herod's half-brother. "Was there anyone who had recognized Him for who and what He was?" writes Dr. William Barclay, Scottish theologian, in a commentary on Matthew's gospel.

Dr. Barclay presses on: "Were there any who, when He was gone in the flesh, would carry on His work? To put it bluntly, it involved the very survival of the Christian faith. So Jesus was determined to put all to the test and to ask His followers who they believed Him to be." How His sky must have brightened! Peter, spokesman for the apostles, affirmed. "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God."

What lay behind that profession of faith? The apostles had been raised strict monotheists in "Judaism". In the Greek sense of the word.



Their association with Jesus changed this. He took familiar rabbinical sayings and breathed new life into them. He assumed the divine prerogative to forgive sins. He had a unique approach to God. Nobody has produced a single instance in Palestinian Judaism where God was addressed as "my Father" by an individual person. The Talmud notes that the first words a child learned to say were "Abba" and "Imma" (Dada and Mama). It was this unthinkably familiar word "Abba" Jesus used in addressing God in communion with God.

Imagine the developing effect the apostles over three years. At first they may have said, "God and Jesus". After a while this would no longer do. I suspect they went on to say, "God is with Him". Yet as companionship with Jesus and His ways progressed, this proved inadequate. God was more than with Him. God was "in" Him! Paul was later to express their awe and excitement, "For it is the God who said, 'Let light shine out of darkness,' who has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Christ."

To affirm that Jesus Christ is God incarnate is to say something about God Himself. It is to say He is no "aloof Deity. Fathers and mothers, if they are any kind of parents at all, go after their children, if need be, to reassure them their parental love is very much alive. To see God in Jesus Christ is to realize our heavenly Father is like that. He wants us, as parents want their children, His house is not a home without us.

To affirm that Jesus Christ is God incarnate is to say something about our Lord Himself. The sweetness of God's presence has come to millions of men and women through Him. No Muslim ever sings, "Mohammed, Lover of my soul". No Buddhist ever says of Buddha the teacher, "I need Thee every hour". I have a notion that when most, if not all of us say our prayers to God, a picture of Christ appears on the screen of our minds.

To affirm that Jesus Christ is God incarnate is to say something about human nature. This is to say it can be changed. This is to say we see the image of God in everybody and are accordingly inclined towards them. This is to say the world will undoubtedly experience the brotherhood of man.

University Polls No-show Students

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — What happens to students who apply for admission to a university and then don't show up when school opens in the fall?

The University of Waterloo mailed a questionnaire this fall to 2,500 students who were accepted by the university but did not register. A total of 1,961 replied.

The majority of them, 1,401, said they had decided to attend another university. Another 203 said they had decided to attend another post-secondary institution, such as a community college.

A total of 230 said they had decided to postpone coming to university for at least a year. Another 77 said they had taken up work they regarded as permanent while 11 said they planned to travel. Thirty-nine gave miscellaneous reasons—such as indecision about what course to take or service in the armed forces.

WEDDING

WHITMORE — ROMBOUGH

Springbrook United Church was the scene of the recent wedding when Nancy Irene Rombough, daughter of Mrs. Violet Rombough of Bonarlaw and the late Mr. Sanford Rombough, was united in marriage to James Everett Whitmore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Whitmore of Cavan. Rev. H. Cox of Stirling officiated and traditional organ music was rendered by Ron Moffatt of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her brother, Eric Rombough, of Bonarlaw, the bride wore a floor-length organza over silk gown featuring an empire waistline, stand-up collar and long sleeves, all accented with lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow and white daisies with baby's breath.

Mrs. Grace Reid of Springbrook, sister of the bride as matron of honor, wore a floor-length gown of purple crimplene in empire style with the white and purple lace bodice featuring long sleeves with ruffles at collar and wrists. Her yellow and mauve flowers were entwined in her hair and she carried a solitaire mauve orchid accented with baby's breath.

Bridesmaids Miss Cathy Rombough, RR 4, Marmora, niece of the bride and Miss Linda Leonard of Peterborough were gowned identically to the matron of honor with similar flowers in their hair and carried the same bridal flowers. Flower girl was Miss Valerie Reid of Springbrook, niece of the bride, who wore a floor-length pale mauve crimplene empire styled gown enhanced with long white lace sleeves. She carried a nosegay of yellow and white daisies.

Douglas Hewie, RR 1, Frasserville attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Jerry Harding of Peterborough, Terry Rombough of Cavan, nephew of the bride.

A reception was held in St. Andrew's Church hall. Mamore greeted the guests wearing a street-length dress of burgundy double knit with a corsage of yellow carnations and beige accessories. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a street - length purple crimplene dress with white accessories and a corsage of mauve carnations.

For the honeymoon trip to Lake Placid, the bride wore a beige and brown double knit ensemble with brown accessories and a corsage of orange rosebuds.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitmore will reside in Peterborough.

MR. AND MRS. ALAN BRENT CARMICHAEL

Carmichael – Kerr

St. Margarets - on - the - Hill Anglican church was the scene of a September wedding ceremony when Audrey Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kerr of Belleville was united in marriage to Alan Brent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carmichael of Don Mills, Ontario. Rev. J. A. Dunlop officiated at the double-ring ceremony, and wedding music was rendered by the church organist Bill McAfee.

The bride, given in marriage by her father and mother, selected a floor length white polyester flocked nylon over white nylon jersey in empire style waistline with low round neckline and Juliet sleeves. Frills highlighted the hemline of the gown. She wore a white mohair and straw picture hat with polyester flocked nylon streamers and carried a nosegay of multi colored assorted flowers.

Mrs. Brian Kodalsky of Toronto was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were the Misses Janet, Deborah, and Dianne Kerr, sisters of the bride. All wore empire waisted identical floor length gowns of multi colored flowers on deep purple background of brushed nylon, featuring short sleeves and scooped neckline. Deep mink, turquoise, green and mauve rochair hats trimmed with velvet ribbons matched these at the waistline of the dresses. Each carried a long streamed single rose, white "mum surrounded by baby's breath with multi-colored ribbon streamers.

Best man was Dennis Carmichael, brother of the bridegroom. Hugh Cassel, brother-in - law of the bridegroom, Dave Stewart of Toronto, and Preston Kerr, brother of the bride were ushers.

For the reception held at the church parlor, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a garbo colored polyester crepe dress with matching hat and veil trimming. Beige accessories and a corsage of baby white 'mums completed her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a plak crepe and beaded trimmed dress with matching ostrich hat. Silver accessories and a miniature gold lame vintage completed her attire.

For the wedding trip to points east, the bride donned a floor length sleeveless, deep purple gown, with matching accessories and a white baby 'mum corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Carmichael have taken up residence at Waterloo, Ontario.

COLLECTS FEMINISM

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — "We have probably the best feminism collection in Canada and we do more with it," says Doris Lewis, who initiated the collection of feminism at the University of Waterloo Arts Library when she was chief librarian there. The collection includes works by Indian poet Pauline Johnson and novelist Lucy Maud Montgomery and about 50 rare books, including books published before 1800 and first editions.

Club Activities

SENIOR CITIZENS NO. 473 — MADOC — The Madoc and District Senior Citizens Club No. 473 met at the United Church basement for their regular meeting. Fifty members and two visitors signed the attendance book.

President, Mrs. Broadworth, spoke briefly and then gave two humorous readings. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by secretary, Mrs. Johns.

Plans were made for a bus trip to Peterborough to Bancroft. It was decided that all members wishing to attend the Belleville Senior Citizen's banner should provide their own transportation.

Mrs. Elizabeth Empey, who has been on holiday in Port Colborne, brought greetings from the Senior Citizen's Club meeting which she attended while there. She told the local club that she had visited a friend living in one of the Senior Citizen housing units there and found it very compact, as well as most comfortable.

Mrs. Johns gave the highlights of a meeting she had attended in Belleville, which was being held for the purposes of organizing a Branch of "Pensioners Concerned" in Belleville. This is a nation-wide organization whose aim is to make the life of the pensioner easier in many ways.

The Club was pleased to have back with them Mrs. Defoe, one of their older members. Another interesting story written by Mr. Beumbour was read by Mrs. Broadworth.

The meeting was turned over to Miss Moorcroft, the program convener, who opened this portion of the meeting with a lively sing song led by Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Moorcroft with Mrs. Reid at the piano. A humorous reading was given by Mrs. Defoe. A recitation by George Moorcroft, brought back school day memories to many.

A biscuit-eating contest caused much merriment, with Mrs. Broadworth the winner. Everyone enjoyed Mr. Brown Carman's solos, also piano music by Mrs. Reid.

Lunch and a social half hour brought the meeting to a close.

The next meeting will be held at the usual time and place, on Wednesday, October 11.

SENIOR CITIZENS CLUB NO. 94 — Senior Citizens Club No. 94 met at the Recreation Centre with a record attendance before the meeting opened Mrs. Penfold and Mrs. Lillian from the organization Pensioners Concerned (Canada) Inc., were introduced by Mr. L. Williams.

Mrs. Penfold spoke to the members and explained the purpose of their organization and told those who were concerned to write to their members of parliament and explain their needs.

Mr. Williams and Mrs. Moon both thanked Mrs. Penfold for helpful suggestions.

The meeting was then opened by the president Mrs. Moon with Mrs. Lulu Adams as pianist. The Charter was draped for Mrs. Martha Fitzgibbon and Mrs. Moon read a suitable poem. The new members and regular ones were welcomed. The birthday song was sung for those having a birthday in August and September.

Mrs. Keitha Bowers read the minutes of the previous meeting and the financial statement was given by Mrs. Elsie Jackson. Mrs. Gertrude Glass gave the report on the members who were sick.

A short business meeting followed. Members were reminded of the bazaar Oct. 5, and asked to bring a donation for the grocery basket to the next meeting.

Cards were played and winners were: Mrs. Eva Macnern, Mrs. Annie Haley, Mrs. Nellie Sly, Mr. Fred Smith, Mrs. Jessie Armstrong and Mrs. Elma Doyle.

Alex Ricard won the door prize. Refreshments were served by Frank Edgar, Mrs. Flo Clark and helpers.

CWL to Hold Fashion Show At St. Joseph's

The forthcoming "Road to Fashion" show in St. Joseph's School auditorium Wednesday evening, October 11 will stage a "First" for fashion viewers in the Belleville area.

By means of a rear-view projector, several Irish and Swedish imports will be paraded on the runway with colorful backdrop of scenes from these lands. Designed by Jon Haggerty, an Irish designer who also gave a fashion preview at the CNE will be included in the show.

Over 14 models will fashion more than 100 designs which are mostly Canadian - from McIntosh Stores. Dress will range from children's up. The store will also provide accessories.

Another highlight of this presentation will be a trunk show where several models will show the audience steps in packing for travelling.

All proceeds from this show will go towards charity in affiliation with the Catholic Women's League.

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Must every older child 'be watched'?

YES; not watched in the sense of being guarded, but watched to be sure the older child is not neglected or his or her feelings hurt when a new baby arrives. Sometimes parents have the older child should not be neglected, yet, in their zeal, some can overdo it. They may, for instance, so spoil the older child that he or she will get the impression that things may one day be as they were before the new baby came along.

Why can't a person take a joke?

LACK of a sense of humor is not the main reason, that's for sure. Too many times an individual, because of some inner conflict, fails to see the humor in a joke played either on him or someone else. This internal storm takes much enjoyment out of a person's life. His hostility is then sensed by those around him. Actually, some people take particular delight in making someone the butt of a joke just because they know he will resent it.

Is it weakness to depend on a wife?

NO. In most cases, it is actually a sign of strength in character and in marital success when a man has the confidence to rely on his wife in a family emergency or in the ordinary course of their married life. Every worthwhile husband wants to be the support of his wife and family, of course; but it does not mean he is any less of a man if his wife every bit as good as he is in certain circumstances and even better than he is others.

THOUGHTS OF THANKSGIVING

So once in every year we throng
Upon a day apart,
To praise the Lord with feast and song
In thankfulness of heart.
— Arthur Guiterman.

Now one sees the countryside in another dress; the pumpkins bright yellow lying in the fields, the "trees in apple orchards with fruit bending down" and the far flung hills "up north" quilted with a collage of colored leaves of trees.

Such an October setting brings thoughts of thankfulness this Thanksgiving time. There comes to mind an old mill converted into a restaurant that stands by an out-of-the-way roadside. Within its quiet, though bright interior is served Sunday dinner hard to come by: clear cucumber soup (delicious!), individual small loaves of hot cheese bread, succulent breaded breasts of chicken and home made ice-cream. These excellent dishes served in such rustic surroundings seemed all the more enjoyable — regardless of the impressively high tariff.

And then a young family of five came in — fine happy parents of two lively sons and a dear daughter. Laughter, gaiety, fun, anticipation of mealtime fare healthy, hearty appetites — a delight to witness.

Then as bowed heads eagerly sought the menu there was that instant of still expectancy. But it grew, almost without notice, then with an insistence into an undying silence, finally shattered by a boyish voice deeply laced with bitterness, "I'll cuss too much!"

There was a lingering reluctancy, only the eyes met and spoke of a unanimous decision, instantly, slowly, quietly acted upon, as each rose, and walked, head held high, in single file from the room.

He, however much the throat tightened, the heart beat, was to overflow with the glory of the knowledge that where food when joy and sorrow meet — love is revealed.

The imprint of that moment have emphasis not only to the harbored shared loyalties of a family — but to its miraculousness. The family which is the rock upon which all civilization is built was the creator. The thanksgiving of all humanity.

A happy Thanksgiving, everyone!

Clown Role Unintentional

TORONTO (CP) — Emmett Kelly Jr. is a clown and the son of a clown but he says he never meant to be one.

"I can't really say why I was a clown. I didn't want to be in show business. I was raised by relatives and worked for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad as a brakeman for 10 years. I was watching the Stan Kenton band one night and I don't know why, but I decided I wanted to be in show business.

"I made my debut five years later, riding the back of an elephant. You can go over curbs and you don't even know they're there when you ride an elephant."

Mr. Kelly was in Toronto to appear with Happy Time '72 at the Canadian National Exhibition.

He wears a make-up similar to his father's: a sad-faced tramp, and he wears tattered, baggy clothes and the clown's traditional big shoes, but he says he can't work the way his father did.

"You have to do different things for the kids now. The only act I do that my father did is balancing a feather on my nose and that goes all the way back to King Arthur's court, so what's new?

"Kids don't see hobos anymore. I scare some of the upper- and middle-class kids, but the ghetto kids will come right up to me. They see them sleeping in the doorways and they know they wouldn't hurt them."

Mr. Kelly says it took him a while to get established, working in the fleabills at trade shows, doing commercials. But in September he is opening his own circus and he say it's booked solid until January.

He has five clowns, five musicians and some well-known animals, but he says the show won't be like the traditional circus.

"We're a different bag, a new approach to circus. We're playing air-conditioned concert halls — no pop corn, no cotton candy.

"We're reviving Hellzapoppin, the clowns will be running up and down the aisles.

"Adults will be admitted only if accompanied by children. We don't care if grown-ups don't like it. If they do, that's nice, but we want to do what the kids want to hear."

He says he feels there's a shortage of entertainment for children.

"There's always a brand new violent show. Why can't we have more good humor."

Sash and Go – No Waist Seam!

STEP INTO THIS RELAXED SHIRT SHIFT: sash it and go around the corner or the continent. There is no waist seam beneath that easy sash tie, yet the line glides smoothly down the figure (no bunching). Successful Living

Get Ready for the Rest of Your Life

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: I was in a colleague's office today and saw a small note pinned to his wall: "Remember, tomorrow is the first day of the rest of your life." "Yes," he said when I asked him about it, "those five words have made a great deal of difference to me."

"He'd taken up celestial navigation. Why? Because one day he wanted to sail his boat around the Caribbean. An impossible dream? Not really. He'd started sailing in a dinghy years ago and had worked himself up to a $3000 boat in 18 years.

"How? At $18 a week. By doing without such things as a new car, a color television set a case of beer every week. Things like that. He may never sail the Caribbean (he wants to run a charter service for tourists) but he is having a great time working towards it.

The lesson I get from this is that he's used his leisure time with a purpose and with a second career in mind. He'll always be able to earn his living at his first one, but the challenge of something else always appeals to him.

Other people I know have done extraordinary things. A newspaper writer has built a harpsichord in his basement. An executive editor threw in his job, went to university as an undergraduate and emerged four years later as a professor of Canadian history (in which he'd had a tremendous practical background in his work).

An elderly woman, fed up with her humdrum existence, took up photography and now entertains her friends hugely by taking their pictures, developing and printing them before their very eyes.

A housewife, on the brink of losing her children to the adult world, bought a pedigreed old English sheepdog and is going to breed her. Though the great event hasn't taken place yet, she knows enough about dogs, gets healthy outdoor exercise, and has met so many people that a whole new way of life has opened up before her.

In its article, "School for Self Discovery" a year or two ago, Reader's Digest reported that in Canada, evening classes are available in everything from prospecting to repairing antiques, from learning another language to making television programs, from mountain climbing to glass-blowing.

You asked me about the importance of continuing education. Do there is no doubt of it. There's so much to do and think about, so much to know, so much to rejoice in, that 70 lifetimes wouldn't be enough for it all. So when we have only one, it's a good thing to remember that tomorrow is the first day of the rest of the only life we're going to get around here—and we should make the most of it. — Ralph Hancox, Editor, The Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Ltd.

Dear Ralph: You have inspired me. When I get around to retirement—and that "second career"—which will actually be my third or fourth—I'll be doggoned if I don't either learn to develop my own snapshots or play the piano by ear. Either one will take some doing!

Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster Universities, and has broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, including a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Ann Landers

This Problem Has Her 'Skunked'

Dear Ann Landers: I never thought I would be writing to Ann Landers but I've run into a problem that has me skunked. The skunk's name is Pierre and he has recently taken up residence under our porch. My husband and I sort of like him, but I'm afraid one of our three cats will have it out with Pierre one of these days and there's only one way that the outcome will be. If Pierre were to express his indignity in the limit, he could render our home uninhabitable for days.

My husband suggested that we leave some poison under the porch for 24 hours and keep the cats inside until after the "funeral." I believe it would be more humane to shoot Pierre with a rifle. Do you have a better suggestion Pierre must go. —Peiscat Patties

Dear P.: I don't think much of your husband's solution—and yours is no better. Call the S.P.C.A. and ask them to come and get Pierre. They'll probably lure him into a cage, take him for a ride to the country and let him loose in a field where he can enjoy himself killing mice or whatever it is that skunks do.

Dear Ann Landers: Our teenage daughter invited a girl friend to spend a few days with us at our summer place. She was well behaved, picking up after herself and was a lovely house guest. The phone bill arrived yesterday and I found charges for two calls totalling $16. These calls were to a city where the girl's boy friend lives.

When I asked my daughter about it she said she did not know of the calls and cannot imagine her friend doing such a thing.

The question is this: What should be done? Should my daughter ask her friend to pay the bill? If she refuses, should we our daughter be made to pay? We'd like your advice.—Crossed Out

Dear Crossed: Your daughter should ask the girl about the calls. If she denies having made them or refuses to reimburse you, simply do not invite her again. I don't feel it is fair to make your daughter pay this bill. She shouldn't be held responsible for someone else's actions.

Dear Ann Landers: I have received three invitations to bridal showers in the last 10 days from girls I have not seen in over a year. None of these girls were ever close friends of mine. When I ask my friends how many months ago I didn't receive a phone call, much less a card, from any of them. I find it very interesting that suddenly they think enough of me to invite me to a party.

One girl telephoned herself, which is really gross since a shower is traditionally given by the bridesmaids, or a close friend. When this girl invited me she emphasized that it was a kitchen shower and her colors are yellow and white.

What can a person do when she gets put on the spot like that? I hate to be used.—Sneaky Pegular

Dear Sned: A person can say, "Sorry—I can't be there. But thank you for remembering me," and let her take it any way she wants to.

Confidential to The Shame Of Our Nation—When Will It end: I agree that the penal system in the United States is a factory that manufactures criminals. If they aren't crazy when they go in, they usually are when they come out. Read Dr. Karl Menninger's book, The Crime of Punishment." Dr. Menninger says we must replace punitive vengeance with something better—like rehabilitation, and I couldn't agree more.

Kidnapped Girls Free Themselves

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — A spunky 10-year-old music teacher, realizing it was "now or never," talked her way out of a locked truck and led six young pupils to safety through bush country today after two gunmen kidnapped them at gunpoint from a tiny village school and demanded $1.3 million ransom.

Mary Gibbs and her six girls escaped from the truck, parked 40 miles north of here at dawn, 15 hours after being abducted.

Twelve miles away, Victoria State Education Minister Lindsay Thompson waited in a police car with the ransom in suitcases in the trunk. But the kidnappers failed to show up to claim it.

The drama started at 11:30 Friday afternoon when Miss Gibbs and the girls, aged 10 to 12, were playing musical chairs in the one-room school at Faraday, 70 miles north of Melbourne.

The rascals stopped as the two men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, came in the room. One of them said: "School is over. You are all coming with us. You are being kidnapped."

Miss Gibbs said: "At first the girls thought it was a practical joke. We were scared, terrified when we realized this was serious.

"The men put us in the back of a red van and drove us to a place where we stayed the night.

"The kidnappers gave potato chips to Miss Gibbs and the girls, Christine Ellery, 10, Lynda Conn, 8, and her sister Helen, 11, and three sisters, Robyn Howarth, 11, Jillian, 8, and Denise, 9.

Back at the school worried parents reported to the police that the teacher and their daughters had disappeared. Almost simultaneously an anonymous telephone caller told a Melbourne newspaper reporter that a ransom note had been left in a desk at the school.

Police found the ransom note which said: "We will not waive time making threats but any attempt to apprehend us will result in the annihilation of our hostages."

While a major manhunt started and arrangements were made to have the ransom money available, Thompson received a telephone call personally from the kidnappers at 7:35 p.m. It came at 8 a.m. today.

A rendezvous was arranged at a post office and Thompson went with the police and the money to wait.

In the truck Miss Gibbs tried to keep the girls calm. The kidnappers allowed them out twice.

The oldest girl, Robyn, said: "We tried singing songs but were not in the mood. We tried to sleep but could not."

Then the kidnappers said they were going to collect the money.

"They said they would be gone for about three hours and would be back at dawn," Miss Gibbs said.

"When they didn't come back by dawn I thought it was time to never and began kicking the door, helped by the two eldest girls.

"It eventually gave way and we got out and walked through the bush for about a mile and a half.

"I was terrified the kidnappers would find us. Then I heard shooting and got really worried."

The shooting came from rabbit hunters.

Patricia Hayward, a member of the expedition, said: "The teacher told us she thought we were the kidnappers until she spotted a gun."

Her husband, Alan, said: "They came up to us and the woman said: 'Have you heard about the teacher and children who have been kidnapped? Well we are the ones. Can you get us into town and to the police?'"

Mrs. Hayward drove with Miss Gibbs and the children to Lancefield police station two miles away.

"We squeezed them all in the car, then locked the doors and drove out as fast as we could before the kidnappers came back," Mrs. Hayward said.

The search for the kidnappers is confined to areas near the state of Victoria and description of the two men have been circulated throughout Australia.

The kidnappers did manage to make something out of the crime—for which the penalty is 20 years jail and a whipping. They stole $10.80 from Miss Gibbs.

Survives Leap

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police said a 36-year-old woman jumped from the Mississippi River Bridge, dropped 171 feet into the river, and survived—the third person ever to survive a plunge from the span. Two others have died in similar leaps. Yvonne Vernon was reported in good condition at hospital after she was pulled from the river Friday by seamen aboard a tug.

Spotlight Seat
Harkness Still Major Influence

CALGARY (CP) — For nine elections the vote-drawing of Stanley Harkness has meant Progressive Conservative victories in Calgary Centre.

But the minister of agriculture and national defence in Joe Clark's cabinet government is not running this time.

Five candidates, including two from the Western Canada Party and the four major parties, will be in the running but most of them concede it's a two-man race.

Which lead depends on the candidate expressing the opinion.

Liberal Nick Taylor, who lost to Mr. Harkness in 1968 by 307 votes, said the choice is entirely between himself and Conservative Hervie Andre.

The two agree they are in contention and that NDP candidate David Jones is "totally out of it" although he may be a spoiler taking votes from either.

Mr. Jones, a professor of geography at University of Calgary, says the battle is between himself and Mr. Andre, a professor of chemical engineering at the same school.

Dr. Jones expresses optimism in his ability to come out ahead and says the Liberal candidate has no chance because NDP supporters who voted for Pierre Trudeau in 1968 have returned to the fold.

Mr. Taylor, a successful oilman, agrees Trudeaumania is gone but says the popularity of his leader will give him voter support.

However, with the seat's long history of Conservative representation, Mr. Andre's party affiliation will make it a greater target than the Liberal banner, Mr. Taylor says.

Mr. Andre has gained respect from competitors with signs in day-glow orange on boulevards and lawns.

The Conservative candidate, who like the NDP and Liberals is trying to visit each of the 37,000 constituency households, said the signs are to improve voter recognition.

Issues are scarce in Calgary Centre and the three major parties are leaning on the strength of their national leaders.

Hardline Protestants Threaten More Raids

BELFAST (CP) — Northern Ireland's hardline Protestant vigilantes will intensify their commando raids against guerrillas based in the Irish republic and may bomb government buildings there unless the Dublin government stamps out the terrorists, vigilante leaders warned Friday night.

Sources reported the Ulster Defence Association issued the warning after claiming a commando squad raided an Irish Republican Army armory in the town of Redhills across the frontiere Thursday night.

The UDA, a militant citizens' army which boasts it can field about 30,000 men, said it was the fifth raid against IRA bases in the republic in the last six weeks.

But as the ultra-Protestant movement made its disclosures, armed detectives of the republic's special branch, which handles political offences, swooped on the Dublin headquarters of Sinn Fein, the political arm of the IRA's clandestine Provisional wing.

They arrested Sinn Fein secretary Walter Lynch and seized boxes of documents. Another squad hit a Dublin office purported to have been used by Provisional IRA sympathizers.

The British army stepped up patrols and tightened security on the border.

The UDA's claims came amid a menacing surge of Protestant militancy in Ulster in which vigilantes have been blamed for a rash of bomb attacks on Roman Catholic districts.

The UDA struck again late Friday night when a platoon of 15 men, some masked and in the UDA's para-military uniforms, besieged a Roman Catholic bar in Belfast and tried to drag three men away.

But customers barricaded themselves inside for four hours until police and troops forced the squad away. Three men were injured in fistfights.

Rapid Henry Visits Downs

KINGSTON — The record books at Frontenac Downs don't show pacer Rapid Henry as holding any of "the track's records for any specified age or gait.

However, the Bejean Marion-owned pacer from Russell, Ontario, rates right up there with such record holders as Local Don, Early-lakes John and Armbro Buck.

The last time Marion brought Rapid Henry to the Downs the seasoned pacer won in a time of 2:05 1-5, not really an amazing time for a feature race. However, Rapid Henry came the last half mile in less than 1:00 — the first horse ever at the Downs to accomplish the feat.

The all-in Invitational Pace which goes for a purse of $700 brings Rapid Henry back to Kingston. He'll have tough opposition from Keele Allen's Mighty Flyer — Just back from Vernon Downs. John Bolton will drive.

Philluric (Chris Storms); Wil-Lor Ben (Derek Newman); Miss Kay Frost (Ron Shaw); Canadian Killean (Earl Lalor); Zeus Hanover (Hugh Wenn); and John's Pierce (Vern Mendell) round out the eight-horse field. Although it's not the fastest it will be one of the most competitive this year at the Downs.

Race secretary Bob Morgan also has three other fine races on the program. Marion's Choir Boy, fresh from wins at Rideau-Carleton will take on Hieland Jimmy (winner of four of his last five) and six others.

The preferred I field feature Earlylake John, Canal View Way and Ace's Choice, while preferred II has Two Mountains Dear, Swak and Dominion Lad heading the list.

Post time is 1:45 Sunday.

Joudwa Jolted Just Short of Paydirt

Quinte Secondary School senior fullback Kevin Joudwa plowed his way through the mud for two touchdowns Friday as the Saints inundated Centennial Chargers 36-0, but this wasn't one of them. Joudwa is sent flying on a first-quarter thrust near the Centennial goal-line. The Saints won their third straight game and appear to be en route to their fourth straight Bay of Quinte high school senior football title.

Return Game Sunday

Hockey Quinte's Lose To Arch Rivals

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

KINGSTON — Senior hockey fans isn't what it used to be, Belleville Quintes' coach Wayne Brown agreed last night.

It was just that after watching Kingston Canadians win a comedy of errors 7-4, Brown wished some of the changes in the calibre of senior hockey were for the better.

"It looks like all the teams might be weaker this year," he conceded, but quickly focused his attention on players under his own jurisdiction.

"We're just giving the puck away out there — nobody wanted it. Things better be different Sunday," he forewarned about Sunday's Belleville rematch in the opening weekend of OHA Senior A action for the rival clubs.

Three first-period goals — two on powerplays — by defending Kingston scoring leader Pete Kennedy gave the Aces a lead they never relinquished . . . no matter how hard they tried.

Kingston goalie Mike Lowell had a horrendous night for a veteran, letting in four of the five good Belleville scoring chances he faced: a 30-foot slapshot by Greg Marchen, a shorthanded breakaway by Lorne O'Donnell, Al Ferguson's 35-foot slap from the slot, and Lionel Bell's partially-screened soft backhand from the blueline.

The fifth one, another Marchen drive, rattled off a goalpost.

Similarly, Belleville netminder Ron Jury, last year's second-stringer had a shaky season's debut, although he couldn't be faulted for any part of Kennedy's first-period hat trick.

Bob Clayton, Pat Driscoll, Al Duncan, and Mike Finnigan rounded out the scoring for Kingston, who were as careless as their guests with the puck, only not as often.

The Quintes saved their most spectacular mental lapse until the game's final minute, when they let Mike Finnigan and Charlie Convery walks in alone on goalie Jury.

Stompin' Stamps Threatening Riders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Lancaster, who couldn't agree with five pounds of X-rays, may be called on to lift Saskatchewan Roughriders out of the tight spot in the Western Football Conference this weekend.

It all depends on the outcome of a game today between Calgary Stampeders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Saskatchewan coach Dave Ritchie says that if Calgary wins, he may have to use Lancaster Sunday despite the fact Western quarterback is still suffering from ribs cracked in a game two weeks ago.

If Calgary beats Hamilton, they'll be just two points behind Roughriders in the standings. If they lose, however, Ritchie says he expected to play instead of Lancaster Sunday when British Columbia comes calling in Regina.

The Saskatchewan-B.C. game will be the first of two in the west during Thanksgiving weekend. The Winnipeg Blue Bombers will be visiting Edmonton Monday. The Sunday game, which starts at 3 p.m. CST, is the CTV western network game, while the Monday game, which starts at 3 p.m. MDT, is not being televised.

If Calgary defeats Hamilton, Stampeders will have 10 points to the Roughriders' 12. Ritchie doesn't want to take the chance that B.C., which upset Winnipeg 26-24 Tuesday night, might do the same to Saskatchewan.

Quarterback Eagle Keys of B.C. feels his team, which now has three wins and eight defeats, still has a playoff chance.

"We knew it all year, we had the makings of a good team," he said, commenting on the victory over Winnipeg. WFC leaders are with an 8-3 record. "But it wasn't supposed to happen in the season to overcome some of the other clubs."

The Eskimos "are in a precarious second place with 10 points, one behind Winnipeg."

Edmonton coach Ray Jauch hopes a healed-up defence will give the Eskimos a more solid footing in the standings. He's worried about Winnipeg's Mack Herron, a hard-running halfback who leads the conference in rushing and scoring although he hasn't picked up any points in the last two games.

Jauch is looking for injuries as an excuse.

"Sure, we've lost (Jackie) Griffin and (Rene) Fewnick. But that doesn't account for the mistakes we've been making. This defence used to be one of the best in the league, but this year it hasn't been playing that way.

"I'm not naming individuals because, sure, I've invested rookie to the highest-paid veteran, I'm not happy with their performances. We've talked to players about mistakes, told them to do certain things, and nothing happens."

Jauch has acquired a new cornerback—Lawrence Brinkley from the University of Missouri and St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League—and says "we'll be bringing in more."

Few changes are likely before the Winnipeg encounter and Jauch confirms four of five players labored in a 29-13 thrashing by Montreal Alouettes Tuesday—backs Sam Scarber and Bob MacGregor, linebacker Tom Wilkinson and kicker Dave Cutler—all will see action Monday.

Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital may substitute Canadian Ray Waters in the defensive line for import Jim Sullivan, who has been criticized for not living up to his reputation.

Rookie linebacker Mike Kuhn, recovering from a knee injury, will also start after missing the B.C. game.

Argos' Hopes Rest on Theismann

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders and Toronto Argonauts, who met last year in the Grey Cup, play in games this weekend that fan more questions than answers.

Can the Stampeders, defending Grey Cup champions, win at least one of their two intersocking games this weekend to remain in contention for a Western Football Conference playoff berth?

Will they break their string of five successive losses to the East in interlocking play when they take on the Tiger-Cats today in Hamilton and will Argonauts of linebacker Wayne Harris for 15 days further weaken an already limping defence?

Calgary coach Jim Duncan, looking to today's game against the Tiger-Cats, says "definitely it's crucial." But he adds: "So is the next one and the next after that and..."

For the Argos, the most important question is: Can they stop an improved Montreal team when they meet the Alouettes Sunday in Toronto, halting their slide to playoff elimination in the Eastern Conference?

Argo coach Leo Cahill, asserts that the club will be no push-over, is counting on quarterback Joe Theismann to spark them.

"Joe won't be at his peak against Montreal by any means," Cahill said of Theismann who broke his ankle in the first season game against Montreal and re-injured it last Saturday night in a game with Edmonton Eskimos.

"We just have to hope he's enough improved to get us through and that he can last all the way."

The Calgary-Hamilton and Toronto-Montreal games are two of three being played in the East this Thanksgiving weekend. The Stampeders play again Monday in Ottawa against the Rough Riders who are tied for first place in the East with Hamilton.

The CBC national network will televise today's game at Hamilton while Sunday's Toronto-Montreal game will be televised on the CTV eastern network. Monday, the CTV national network will provide coverage on the Ottawa-Calgary game. All games start at 2 p.m. EDT.

The Stampeders, in fourth place in the West with eight points, four behind Saskatchewan Roughriders, will have a tough game today against the Tiger-Cats, the hottest team in the EFC with six straight victories, and Monday against the Rough Riders.

They will also have to contain quarterback Chuck Ealey of Hamilton and Rick Cassella of Ottawa, passes scrambling coach put extra pressure on the Calgary defence, especially tackle John Helton, running back Gene Gaddis, back Reggie Holmes, who has a back problem, and back Frank Dedmaid, muscle cramps in the legs.

Cahill is also in the absence of Harris, who has been named a Canadian Football League all-star on eight occasions.

"If we play as well as we did in our last two games we've got a chance," said Duncan of the game today in Hamilton and Monday in Ottawa.

But if the solid defensive performance of Saskatchewan in their last two games—which they won 30-0 Monday—could continue their losing string in the East and possibly the Argos' playoffs for the first time since 1995.

Meanwhile, Argos must beat the Alouettes Sunday to salvage any hope of a playoff position for 1972.

Joe Brown and Moses Denson, two big ground gainers for the Alouettes in their victory over Edmonton Tuesday night, are the two men Argo coach Cahill is keying his defence against.

"Montreal has good personnel and they have confidence in their running attack," Cahill said. "But if we stop that early in the game they can always go back to what they were best at before . . . their passing."

However, Cahill is not yet ready to count his Argos out.

"We may be down but we're not out," he said. "If you look out your window some morning and see a star in the East, you'll know we're in the playoffs."

The Rough Riders, although in a tie for first place with Hamilton are still looking for a running back and expect to start import Jack Rhea against the Stampeders.

Rhea, recent cut from New York Giants of the National Football League, will replace a running back and coach Ron Gotta refuses to say which one.

Gotta says he also plans to send in more plays from the bench to help Cassata, the quarterback.

"We've made up our minds," Gotta said. "We'll help our quarterback more in certain situations."

Sonic Wave Treatment

Sonic wave treatment is administered to injured right ankle of Toronto Argonaut quarterback Joe Theismann by trainer Mert Prophet under the watchful eye of club physician Dr. Peter Hanson. Theismann, who fractured his ankle in the opening game of the season and had it twisted on return to action against Edmonton last Saturday, had X-rays Monday plus treatments. He plans to play Sunday against Montreal. (CP Wirephoto)

Super Bowl Wins in 1:59

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Super Bowl became the sixth winner of trotting's triple crown Friday when he swept the $66,230 Kentucky Futurity in straight heats, finishing once with a flat tire.

The big son of Star's Pride led all but a few strides in the second heat and was in front all the way on the first trip around Lexington's Red Mile.

His times were 2:00 and 1:59 Songcan, making a late bid in the first heat, accidentally caught the right wheel of Super Bowl's sulky and split the tire about 1-16 mile from the finish line.

"Those things happen in racing, but I'm glad it didn't happen earlier because if that tire had snapped around the hub it would have meant big trouble," trainer Dancer said.

Dancer sent Super Bowl, winner of the Hambletonian and Yonkers Futurity earlier this year, to the front immediately after the heat on the crowd's third germ.

He led by as much as 1½ lengths down the backstretch but George Sholey put Songcan into a drive at the quarter pole and was only a neck behind the winner at the finish.

"We were close, but I never we couldn' catch him," Sholey said.

Super Bowl relinquished the lead only for seconds in the final heat, when Spartan Hanover and driver Biffy Haugnton moved in front early in the backstretch. Within a few strides Super Bowl, a three-year-old, put down his competition.

Songcan finished second in the first heat with Quick Work. The Black Streak and Spartan Hanover following in that order.

Spartan Hanover took place money in the final heat while Songcan, the third finisher, was disqualified for interference, placing The Black Streak third and Quick Work fourth.

The victory for Super Bowl, syndicated for $1 million after his victory in the Aug. 30 Hambletonian, was worth $30,915 and ran his bankroll over the years to $346,265.

Timed in fractions of 29:1:4, 59 2-5, 1:30 and 2:5 and 1:59, Super Bowl scored by 1½ lengths over Spartan Hanover. His margin was only a neck the first time around the track.

NHL To Open Without Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League opens its 56th regular season tonight, with more teams and a heavier schedule, but without many of the stars that gave it lustre for years.

Two new teams, Atlanta Flames and New York Islanders, have been added to the 14 in the league last year. They will meet tonight in Long Island's new Nassau Coliseum in one of seven games marking the opening of the schedule.

But while the Flames and Islanders, coached respectively by former NHLers Boom Boom Geoffrion and Phil Goyette, make their debut, the NHL will be without such stars as Bobby Hull, Derek Sanderson, Gerry Cheevers, Johnny McKenzie, Ted Green, J. C. Tremblay and Bernie Parent.

All these players, and some lesser NHL stars, defected to the fledgling World Hockey Association, which begins play later this month.

The NHL schedule this season calls for 631 games—78 more than last season—because of the addition of New York Islanders and Atlanta. The schedule runs for 25 weeks and winds up April 1, 1973, after which clubs making the playoffs in the two eight-team divisions will battle for the Stanley Cup.

Boston Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champions, will not be playing tonight. They will open their season Sunday in Boston against Los Angeles Kings, while Buffalo Sabres, the other team not in action tonight, will start Sunday against the Flames.

Besides the clash of the two newcomers to the league, the opening-night schedule finds New York Rangers at Detroit against the Red Wings, Minnesota North Stars at Montreal against the Canadiens, Philadelphia Flyers at St. Louis against the Blues, Los Angeles playing the Penguins at Pittsburgh, California Golden Seals at Vancouver against the Canucks and Chicago Black Hawks playing the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Chicago Black Hawks are expected to repeat as division champions in the West, even without Hull who defected to Winnipeg Jets of the WHA.

The Bruins, without Sandy Orr, Cheevers and McKenzie, are expected to have a close fight from the Rangers—who lost none of their top players to the WHA—and the Canadiens who lost only Tremblay—for top spot in the East. The perennial Bruins will also be without the services for a while of Bobby Orr, their superstar defenceman who is recovering from knee surgery.

Meanwhile, one of the heroes of Team Canada which won an eight-game series against Russia is missing from his team's lineup tonight.

Paul Henderson, the left winger who scored the winning goal in eight of Team Canada's three victories in the Soviet Union, won't be facing the Hawks in Maple Leaf Gardens because he "is feeling lousy."

Henderson left Toronto with his family Friday to recuperate and Leaf general manager Jim Gregory said he hopes Henderson will return to practice session "the first of next week."

"I was talking to his lawyer (Allan Eagleson) this morning and he said that Paul's doctor thought he should take some time off," Gregory said Friday.

"He has a sore throat, a cold, a groin injury and in general is feeling lousy. Eagleson said that he is "emotionally drained since coming home so we've agreed to excuse him for a few days."

Gregory said Henderson's absence did not result from his refusal to renegotiate the two years pact he signed this summer.

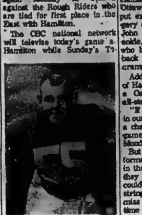
Leafs will also be without defenceman Bob Baun, whose father died last Saturday.

Marlboros Win Third In a Row

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros skated to the top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Friday night by downing Kitchener Rangers 5-3 at Kitchener.

The Marlboros, who have a one-point lead over St. Catharines Black Hawks, have won three straight games.



In other league action, London Knights scored a 6-2 hometon victory over Sault, Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

Toronto goals came from Terry Boutchard, Mark Evans, Glen Golubop, Wayne Dillon and Tom Ghigeh.

Mike Kennedy led Kitchener with two goals and Les Burgess added one.

Toronto led Kitchener 2-0 at the end of the first period and 4-2 at the end of the second.

Coach Eddie Shack pulled the Rangers' goaltender with five seconds remaining in the first period in an unsuccessful effort to get a goal. The Marlboros outshot Kitchener 45-25.

Lolich And Hunter Clash In AL Opener

OAKLAND (AP) — Billy Martin and Detroit Tigers came here with the World Series their goal, but Oakland Athletics and America League playoffs stand as formidable stumbling blocks to be disposed of first.

"I don't like playoffs," Martin said before today's opening game of the three-game best-of-five series.

"I don't like them either," said manager Dick Williams of the favored Athletics.

Both managers have taken teams to the playoffs once before. Martin's Minnesota Twins lost three straight games to Baltimore Orioles in 1969, the first year of baseball's four-division set-up, and Williams' Athletics dropped three in a row to the Orioles last year.

Martin named left-hander Mickey Lolich, 22-14, to pitch the playoff opener and Williams countered with right-hander Jim (Catfish) Hunter.

Veteran Al Kaline was the Tigers' leading hitter in the final, hectic days of the Eastern Division race, and Martin smiled Friday when he said: "If Ty gets up to bat I'm afraid to put him out there's."

The 37-year-old right fielder carried an 11-game hitting streak into the playoffs. He had a .353 against the Athletics this season, although the Tigers' team average was only .227 against the talented Oakland pitching staff.

"The key to stopping the Tigers is Lolich," Williams said Friday. "We've got lots of left-handed hitters, and if he's got good stuff, we'll have trouble getting runs."

Martin will use another southpaw, Woodie Fryman, in Sunday's second game against the Athletics lineup that includes left-handed swingers Matty Alou, Reggie Jackson and Mike Epstein. John (Blue Moon) Odom will pitch for the Athletics.

Monday is a scheduled travel day and the third game will be Tuesday in Detroit.

Barrie Wins 1-0 Opener

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The goals came in bunches at Kingston and Owen Sound Friday-night but it was more like a playoff game than the season-opener at Barrie, where the Flyers began their campaign for a second consecutive Ontario Hockey Association Senior A title.

The Owen Sound Downtowners outscored Brantford Forest-ers 7-3 at home, Sound and Kingston Aces rolled to a 7-4 victory over Belleville Quintes. But Barrie managed only one goal against Orillia Terriers and it stood up as the winner.

Although the Flyers outshot Orillia 32 to 18, they only beat rookie goaltender Jean-Louis Levasseur once when Bob Baird scored on a power play halfway through the second period, taking Tom Bradshaw's pass and firing it home from 10 feet out.

A five-goal outburst in the second period enabled the Downtowners to coast to an early 3-1 lead for Brantford as Bob Mordehai fired three goals for the winners. Bill Abbott had two and the others were added by Rod Bloomfield and Mayo Paquette. Playing coach Chuck Kelly scored twice for the Forest-ers, Jim Reid, Bill Robb and Bob Chatham getting the others.

The Flyers and Terriers will do it all over again at Orillia tonight while Brantford will open their season against the Hornets at Hamilton.

The same two clubs meet at Oakville Sunday while the Aces visit Belleville and the Downtowners go to Brantford for return engagements.

Breaks Arm

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John McKenzie, 34, player-coach of Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association, probably will not be able to play for five to six weeks, says a club spokesman. The former Boston Bruin fractured his arm Tuesday night when he ran into a goal post in an exhibition game with the Nordiques in Quebec City. He is expected to continue coaching.

Williams thinks the A's-Tigers have profited from last year's playoff experience, dismal though it was.

"It was the first time we'd been in anything that weighty meant some'thing. We were a little tense, but we were so tight we couldn't perform up to our capabilities."

Penalty Shot Not Enough

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two penalty shots were called within 41 seconds in a Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League game at Guelph Friday night. Chatham Maroons made the most of their opportunity and Guelph Biltmores were foiled on theirs.

That was about the only consolation for the last-place Maroons, who lost the game 5-1.

The victory gave the Biltmores undisputed possession of first place as St. Thomas 43 gets fell two points behind with a 5-4 loss to Niagara Falls Flyers. In a third game, a short-handed goal by Jim Tunney gave Welland Sabres a 4-4 tie with Windsor Spitfires.

Doug Risebrough scored twice for the Biltmores, who got their other goals from Mike Zeitle, Tim Holder and Jim Springhill. It was Zeitle who missed the Guelph penalty shot after Geoff Marvell had beaten Dennis Kemp to put Chatham on the scoreboard.

The Flyers opened up a 4-1 lead after two periods but had to hang on against a late St. Thomas surge. The Niagara Falls marksmen were Rick Isherwood, Colin Wood, Mike Besson, Peter Schmurra and John Flynn while Rick Smith, Brad Butterworth, Fred Loftenegger and Wally Keurig replied for the Elgins.

Jim Tunney scored his second goal while killing a penalty to give the Sabres their tie. Ken Bannerman and Mike Wall also counted for Welland and Don McPhee with two. Nick Natyshak and Dave Tabb accounted for the Windsor goals.

No action is scheduled in the league tonight but three games are on tap Sunday as the Sabres visit Chatham, Detroit Red Wings are at St. Thomas and the Flyers entertain the Biltmores.

On Thanksgiving Day, Detroit is at Windsor and Welland at Guelph.

Nervous Nells On the Mound

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds, two teams who battled their divisions, begin the National League playoffs today with a pair of nervous starting pitchers.

Pittsburgh's Steve Blass, an admitted nervous wreck everytime he goes to the mound, and Cincinnati's Don Gullett, low lifer to sleep well, match delivaries in Game No. 1, clouded by possible stormy weather.

There's a 40-per-cent chance of rain as the Pirates begin defence of their National League title in this best-of-five-game series. Game time is 1 p.m., EDT, at Three Rivers Stadium.

"I have no control over my adrenalin," said Blass. "It just comes naturally. You can be sure I'll be pretty nervous by game time."

Blass won two games in last year's World Series against Baltimore Orioles and had 19 victories and a 3.48 earned-run average this year.

The Pirate pitcher, a 30-year-old right-hander who reached baseball success relatively late in life, has a record of 103 and 125 RBI and Morgan's 58 stolen bases, they give the West Division champion Reds an edge in power and speed.

The Pirates hit .274 as a team, 23 points better than the Reds, and although Clemente was one of those largely responsible for the unusually high average.

Clemente batted .312 en route to 3,000 career hits and helped the Pirates run away with the East Division pennant. He also killed the Reds when he played against them.

"Clemente drove in the winning run in at least three games against us," said Sparky Anderson, Cincinnati's manager.

While the Pittsburgh right fielder must be considered the Pirates' most valuable player along with Willie Stargell, the Reds have a couple in catcher Johnny Bench and second baseman Joe Morgan. Bench hit 270 and 125 RBI and Morgan a 58 stolen bases, they give the West Division champion Reds an edge in power and speed.

Judge Convicts Young Player

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Bruce Roundpoint of Cornwall Island, a 19-year-old St. Regis Mohawk lacrosse player, was given a 15-month suspended sentence in provincial court Friday when he pleaded guilty to assaulting two referees.

The incident occurred Aug. 27 in a Junior B lacrosse game between St. Regis and Cornwall.

Judge M. J. Fitzpatrick, who also tried hockey player Wayne Maki after Ted Green of Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League was struck on the head by a hockey stick, told Roundpoint that brutality had placed Green within "an eyelash of death."

"If you don't like my decision as judge, are you going to attack me like you did the referees?" he asked.

Liberals and PCs Each Nominate 263

With the close of nominations for the Oct. 30 federal election three days' away, a total of 951 candidates was in the running by today for the 264 House of Commons seats.

The Liberals had in effect completed their slate with 263 candidates reported. The party of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has chosen not to run a candidate in the 264th seat where Lucien Lamoureux, who entered politics as a Liberal and was Speaker of the last House, is running for re-election as an Independent. His riding is the Ontario constituency of Stormont-Dundas.

With an upsurge of nominations Friday, the Progressive Conservatives also had 263 candidates reported. The New Democratic Party had 223 and Social Credit had 198, mostly in Quebec and the western provinces.

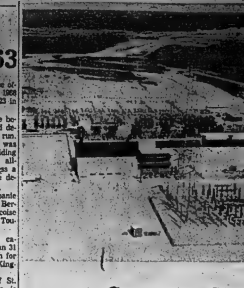
A total of 94 Independent candidates had announced their intentions to run. Many of these came from such organizations as the Communist party, the Western Canada Party and a group in Alberta calling itself the Revolutionary Political Movement.

But all these are barred from carrying their affiliation on the ballot because of a rule that a party must field 50 candidates to be so registered.

Candidates in 243 ridings must make their intentions formal Tuesday at 2 p.m. local standard time, deadline for filing nomination papers. Deadline for the other 21 was last Monday when candidates had to file in remote constituencies where delivery of election supplies necessitates a four-week interim before polling.

Although more candidates may be reported before the deadline, the total by late Friday night compares with the official total of 857 in the 1968 election and the record 1,023 in 1963.

At least 45 women at the begining of the weekend had declared their intentions to run. One interesting contest was shaping up in the Quebec riding of Louis-Hebert where an all-woman tussle loomed, unless a last-minute male candidate declared himself.



The four women are Albanie Morin, Liberal; Cecile Bergeron, Conservative; Francoise Stanton, NDP; and Lisette Toutant, Independent.

Grace MacInnis, whose career in federal politics began 19 years ago, is running again for the NDP in Vancouver Kingsway.

In the Quebec riding of St. Hyacinthe, Martha Adams is running as an independent with legalization of prostitution one of the planks in her platform. In November she faces court charges of procuring. One of her opponents is Claude Wagner, former Sessions Court Judge and Conservative can-didate in Quebec.

Prime Minister Trudeau is running again in the largely English-speaking Montreal riding of Mount Royal where he had a plurality of 27,462 votes in 1968. He is opposed by Conservative and NDP candidates and an Independent.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield seeks re-election in Halifax, opposed by Liberal and NDP candidates. David Lewis, NDP leader, is running again in York South against a Liberal and a Conservative. Raoul Caouette, Social Credit leader, again is after his seat in the Quebec constituency of Temiscamingue against Conservative, Liberal and NDP opposition.

U.S. Seeks to Cut UN Levy

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States served its first formal notice on the General Assembly's budgetary committee Friday of its intention to seek a major reduction in its UN assessment.

U.S. delegate Albert Bender told the committee his country will submit a resolution to reduce the U.S. assessment to 25 per cent of the UN budget, from its current level of 31.52 per cent.

However, Bender said consultations with other countries on the issue will take a other five or six weeks and asked the committee not to take up the resolution until they have been completed.

President Nixon set the 25 per-cent level as a policy goal earlier this year and the U.S. mission here has moved into high gear in a backstage lobbying campaign on many doubtful diplomats.

Some countries contend the U.S. move reflects growing American disenchantment with the world body because it can no longer be assured of having its policies approved. These countries say the Americans were particularly rankled by defeat on the China question last year and say this is what lies behind the current American proposals.

But the U.S. contends it is unhealthy for the UN to rely so heavily on any one country. The U.S. also points out that it is by far the largest donor, paying more than double the 14 per cent which comes from the runner-up Soviet Union.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp expressed sympathy with the American position when he visited here last week. But he said he had made a strong appeal to U.S. State Secretary William Rogers for the United States not to act unilaterally on the matter.

Sharp said he feared that if the Americans acted by themselves, other countries might also decide to act on their own.

After the UN was first established at the end of the Second World War, the U.S. share was about 40 per cent of the budget. That was later pared to the current 31.52 per cent.

By comparison, the Soviet Union pays 14.18 per cent; France six per cent, Britain 5.90 per cent and China four per cent. Canada is among the larger contributors with its percentage set at 2.96 per cent.

More than 80 of the 132 member countries pay less than one-tenth of one per cent, although each has an equal vote with the major powers.

HERE'S A NEW IDEA

We are going to start a number of new houses for spring possession. If you are thinking about a new house, let us include it in our inventory. You can select a lot and a model either our's or your's. We will then build it to your specification. You can then sell your existing house at your leisure. If you are unable to sell, you aren't out anything as we can sell the new house to someone else. This will solve the old problem of — "How can I build a new house when I haven't sold my old one".

CONDOMINIUM IS THE ANSWER

For the active man who wants to confine his activities to the curling rink, the golf course or anywhere else that doesn't involve cutting grass, shovelling snow, painting, etc. This is all done for you.
We have units available for immediate possession. These are located on Cedar Green Drive. Oh yes! Down payments run from $711. to $886 down.

EAST OR WEST WE HAVE THE BEST

selection of houses in the Quinte area. All in fully serviced subdivisions. All close to schools. We have 2 and 3 bedroom models. Let us show you our selection.

Danseuse's Attitude Is Unique

LONDON (CP) — In the highly competitive, intense world of ballet, it's rare to find a dancer so relaxed and detached about her work as Heather McCobbin, the latest ballet aspirant to make the long journey from Canada's West Coast to the London stage.

"Ballet isn't everything — one doesn't want to be too dedicated," says petite, brown-haired Heather, now beginning her fifth year with the London Festival Ballet, Britain's second biggest dance company after the Royal Ballet.

"After all, you can't go on dancing for ever. Ballet dancers usually reach their peak at 35."

Now 24, Heather has been working for ballet since she was six, studying in Liverpool — where she was born — Victoria and Vancouver, where her father is an insurance adjuster. But she seems happy enough as a senior member of the corps de ballet, with occasional solo spots, without striving ambitiously for the stardom of fellow British Columbians Lynn Seymour and Jennifer Penney.

"Every dancer has her limitations and I know mine," said Heather in an interview. She has danced in a wide range of ballets — the Festival Ballet does more modern works than the Royal or Sadler's Wells — but prefers a dord-dancer's role. "Zooming with a bit of acting in it."

"I just take life as it comes, don't think too far ahead," she smiled when asked how she sees her career shaping.

"There are lots of things I'd like to do one day — I have lots of crazy schemes in my head." She is attracted by the thought of television acting and one day would like the time to take a cordon bleu cookery course.

Meanwhile, her days are totally dominated by work — all day rehearsals, currently eight performances a week in Swan Lake at the Royal Festival Hall, and only Sundays off.

A typical day at the huge hall on the south bank of the Thames starts at 9:30 a.m. or 10 a.m. with a warm-up session at the barre, followed by rehearsals until 6 p.m., with an hour's break for lunch. Then there is just 30 minutes before the three-hour performance, and Heather finally gets home to suburban Soldiers Green by 11:30 p.m.

She says it's harder work than the Royal Ballet school, for which she was accepted at an audition when the Royal Ballet visited Vancouver seven years ago on the last

COMMERCIAL COST

Cost of a one-minute commercial on a Toronto television station ranges to $575 from $135.

Tweed

TWEED — Miss R. Peers of Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, spent a few days recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Parks, and family, on South Victoria Street, Tweed.

The winners at the Stoco Euchre Party, held Sunday, October 1st, were: Mrs. L. Vandervoort; Joe Schwager; Wray McGuire; Jim Irvine. Door Prize went to Mabel Keene.

At the first card party of the L.O.O.F. of Thomasburg, the winners were: John Weber, Jim Flint, Mrs. Mumby and Joe Schwarzer. Door prize was awarded to Ronald Parks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Horton of Roslin, celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary quietly on Saturday, September 30th, 1972. Many friends and neighbours joined in extending congratulations and best wishes.

A surprise bridal shower was held for Miss Judy Parks, at the Ivanhoe Community Hall. Judy received many lovely and useful gifts, for which she graciously thanked all those in attendance.

Mrs. Arnold York, of Kaladay, is holidaying in Europe with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Alex York of Morrisburg. While in Europe they will be visiting such countries as France, Switzerland, Italy, Austria, Germany, Holland and England. They also plan on visiting the Isle of Capri.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kennedy of Thomasburg have returned from a trip when they spent two weeks in Spain and Portugal.

leg of a North American tour. But the Vancouver girl finds time for friends and interests outside the tight-knit society of ballet, which she says can wear voracionaly in spare half-hours on the subway or snatched between rehearsals, believing "the important thing is to keep your mind busy."

Most of all, she enjoys the travelling entailed in working for Britain's biggest touring ballet company. It usually spends five or six weeks a year touring in continental Europe and recent appearances abroad have taken it as far afield as Japan, Singapore, Korea and Kuala Lampur in Malaysia.

Company officials hope the Festival Ballet company makes its first Canadian tour in the next couple of years.

Heather looks forward to that, but has no idea how long she will continue in ballet.

"I'll go on dancing just as long as I enjoy it," she says firmly, "and no longer."

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

Aries (March 21-April 19): Once you've made the briefest showing for the communal expression of faith, devote your time to a review of resources.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Home life improves—a fun event should definitely be organized. Single people discover unfamiliar places.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Think what to do to increase the value or importance of your home and possessions. Gabber relatives for a Sunday of good cheer.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Get in touch with world outside. Creative projects come and go better than. Maybe somebody can help with the heavier labor.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23): Relax, enjoy family and home. There are changes and improvements to plan, and few minor ones to put into reality with the help available.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be neither first nor last. Come out of your weekday habits, enjoy a gregarious day of neighborhood activity, public amusements.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Leave the business and career world for this long moment, dwell in Sunday with personally rewarding home life conditions.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Everybody wants to go someplace new. Make yourself heard, be the rallying point for a group, and go. Loved ones bring pleasant news.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's time to live up to your convictions. Carry your full share of community responsibility, support or improve local conditions.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get into the social swim; be where it counts and you are welcome or invited. Stay on the move, but skip no cherished contact.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Activity for its own sake is not enough. Be all there, feelings as well as mind, if you are going to make the scene at all.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Togetherness is important. Where anything short of hazardous prevails, sit quietly and ask yourself why and what you had to do with it.

MONDAY, OCT 9

Aries (March 21-April 19): A search for information ought to be your main activity. Anything is preferable to the purchase of material supplies.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Start early and the day takes care of itself. The best preparation for the future is to live each day fully.

Gemini (May 21-June, 20): Think where you are, what you are doing, pose questions as to how these facts fall with your ideals, intended goals.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): If it is at all possible, put routine jobs aside or in the once-over-lightly category, and concentrate on creative ventures.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): This is a time for putting on final touches rather than any new starts. Skip the publicity pitch; attend strictly to essentials.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Where you have thought the matter over fully, try to come to terms with a tentative project, get things signed up and done.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Keep a wary eye out for big spenders, people with ideas involving money for pleasure. Press forward with projects you've neglected.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Almost everybody is willing to go around most any issue with a successful routine, although few if any lend much practical help. Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Fresh, speculative ventures are to be given a wide berth. Stay out of public attention and finish what you've already started.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Examine your progress, get better knowledge of major factors. Top off a long day with a quiet evening.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Letting well enough alone is a delicate matter today. Later hours bring news, something for celebration.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Analysis of people's characters doesn't quite fill the need—sensitivity to their intentions means more. Home life is better.

TUESDAY, OCT. 10

Aries (March 21-April 19): In contrast to a general tendency to be outgoing, be tactful and patient. The changes of the day will be reserved at least 1000.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): What happens is incomplete, more is on the way. Care and courtesy are essentials. Time not to check for skipped details helps.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You are not quite ready for current emotional attitudes. Detach from romantic attraction to an urge to speculate.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Pris and a sense of power are on parade. Everyone is observing and protecting his interests in a somewhat abrasive environment.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Being yourself through this long and noisy day is a problem. Mind your own business and avoid needless repetition.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money matters do not come to any real conclusion; forcing issues precipitates losses. The moment's whim is not ultimate wisdom.

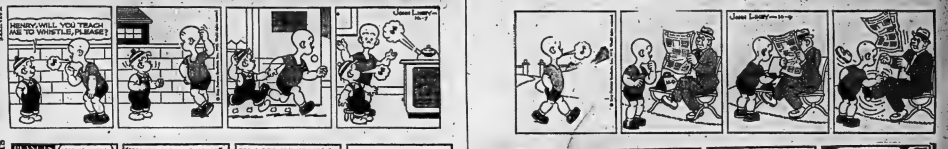
Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Taking matters into your own hands is more likely than not an egress which you cannot sustain later. Shelve drastic moves.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Events differ from expectations. Sudden reactions are not appropriate unless you restrain yourself long enough to formulate plans.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take full advantage of a moving situation, seek new contacts with no preconceived notions of what they have to be or do.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What appears to be erratic behavior is a response to factors unknown to others. Detach from your point of view is unwarranted.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Nothing seems sacred today; long established facts may no longer be so. Further information is needed before you move.



Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Speculative ideas and ventures now ending high will leave like bubbles. Map out alternative courses and be ready for change.

Fearless Fisherman

STRABANE, Northern Ireland (CP) — It takes more than bullets to keep angler Bernard Browne. The 54-year-old publican was caught in cross-fire between British troops and Irish Republican Army gunmen during a fishing trip on the River Foyle in County Tyrone. With bullets flying inches from his head, Browne hooked a seven-pound salmon, played it for 20 minutes and finally netted it. "The gunfire annoyed me because I thought it would frighten the fish," Browne said. "But the salmon was delicious."

To Your Good Health

Mysterious Lesions Are Not Serious

By G.C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thomson: I have a disease called Bocck's Sarcoid. Is there a cure for this and what is the fatality rate? I am under cortisone medication.— Mrs. M.W.

Dear Dr. Thomson: Could you please tell me about a disease called sarcoidosis? Does it have a lot to do with tumors of the skin? Can it affect the eyes? Does a person get cured of this disease?

I am going on 35 years old. Does it have anything to do with the liver? I was told not to drink any kind of liquor, that it would hurt me.—Mrs. J. E. S.

Two letters...two names, same disease.

Boeck's, also called sarcoidosis, is a condition causing small tubercles (lumps) in body tissue. Its cause is unknown, but it is more common among young adults, although it can and does occur in other age groups.

Because not much is known about it and less written about it, a patient is naturally confused and bewildered when he learns he has it.

The disease is strange for several reasons.

For example, it can appear in almost any tissue, eyes, skin, glands, lung. Yet few symptoms are produced, although it may be accompanied by a subtle fever.

It has a tendency to appear and disappear spontaneously and move from one site to another. It is usually characterized by tumors (benign) resembling flesh.

Sarcoidosis has a tendency also to mimic other ailments.

When it attacks the lungs, it can be mistaken for tuberculosis.

Incidentally, while the cause is known, some patients who have had sarcoidosis have later been found to have tuberculosis.

Diagnosis is made by tissue biopsy of the lungs or of the affected lymph glands. There is a special blood test which also reveals its presence.

It is not life threatening, although when it affects the lungs, it can become more serious.

Use of steroids (cortisone-type medication), as in the case of Mrs. M. W., helps speed up the disappearance of lesions.

And Mrs. T. can do without her alcohol for the time being, particularly if the liver is involved.

Dear Dr. Thomson: Are all cancers both benign and malignant? Could you give me a brief explanation concerning types etc.?—J.M.K.

Some confusion here. Do you mean "tumors" instead of "cancers"? A tumor is any sort of abnormal growth, and a great many tumors are benign—meaning that they are not cancerous.

But cancer means that the growth is malignant, that it will keep on growing and spreading, unless it is removed one way or another.

If you'll be more explicit on your second question, as to exactly what you want to know, I'll try to answer, but an explanation of all types of cancers, let alone all types of tumors, can't be brief.

Dear Dr. Thomson: Will you kindly explain what makes a heterosexual? E. A. S.

It means that girls like boys and boys like girls. As contrasted to a homosexual who is attracted to someone of his own (or her own) sex. From the GREEK "hetero" meaning different and "homo" meaning the same.

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

There is usually very little difference between playing a hand well and playing it hand perfectly, but occasionally that slight difference does affect the result.

West led a heart and South, seeing four losers, one of which had to be saved for the contract to be made, very reasonably decided to stake his all on finding East with the king of diamonds. He hoped to build up an extra trick by leading a low diamond from dummy towards the queen, planning to eventually discard a loser on the ace of diamonds.

Accordingly, South won the heart with the ace and played the king of spades in an effort to dislodge the ace. He hoped that dummy's two remaining trumps would then provide the entries he needed to accomplish his purpose.

But East unobligingly ducked the king of spades and so denied South the extra entry he needed to dummy. As a result he went down one, losing a trick in each suit.

But South would have made the hand against any defense had he led seven of spades in dummy's nine at trick two.

East can do no better than win and return a heart. South wins, plays the eight of trumps to the ace, and returns a low diamond which loses to East's king. The defenders cash their heart trick, but South now makes the contract, after cashing the queen of diamonds and ruffing dummy with high-card-only preserved three of trumps and discarding a club on the ace of diamonds.

East cannot thwart declarer by refusing to take the nine of spades. South completes the stroke by playing a low diamond from dummy and the outcome is inevitably the same.

Union Charges 'No Permit' Endangering Cement Plant Jobs

By MARGARET HATLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The flag is down on operations at the Picton plant of the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. here, say union spokesmen — that is, unless the company is granted a licence under the Pits and Quarries Act within the month.

Company officials declined today to comment on their difficulties on advice from their lawyers but Provost Edward Leonard, MPP, James Taylor confirmed from his office in Queen's Park this morning that the company has not been granted the licence.

He said he is waiting only to determine why not.

Members of Local 307 United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers at the Picton plant voted concern for their jobs at a recent meeting with Taylor.

Lake Ontario's stockpile of Sandbanks sand will only last about another 85 days, they told him. This was confirmed today.

Taylor is concerned that Lake Ontario Cement has not been in touch with him over their sand crisis. "If I had a problem I would certainly check with the MPP," he said, adding it should be found whether they filed their license application properly and supported it with required documents.

"The company has not been in touch with me," he said. "There must be a reason for not granting the licence."

The LOCL was forced to stop hauling sand from its quarry site at the Sandbanks on September 1 because it lacked the licence required by the Pits and Quarries Act.

Union president Stewart Norval told Mr. Taylor union members have been informed by company vice - president of operations Bruce Price a licence has been refused until there is "some sort of deal" with Bernier's office.

Mr. Norval called this "political blackmail" and said plant workers are "quite alarmed" that no licence has been issued to the company to date.

He said other companies quarrying in Hallowell township have applied for and received their licences.

At the meeting Friday with union representatives, Taylor assured the workers their jobs would not be lost, adding Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier had stated this.

Bernier was returning to Toronto today from Northern Ontario by plane and Taylor plans to discuss the licence issue with him.

The local MPP's position is that the jobs of the 'steel workers come first in his list of priorities.

Earl Rowson, trustee of local 307, and recording secretary for the district council, said Bruce Price has confirmed that all necessary supplies

Jobless Rate Climbs To Highest in 5 Years

Both Sides Happy

OTTAWA (CP) — Today's unemployment report, the first of three major reports to be issued by Statistics Canada before election day, Oct. 30, can be used by both government and opposition campaigners to support their political arguments.

The report, in brief, says another 44,000 have been trimmed from the unemployment rolls, bringing the jobless total for September down to 459,000 from its peak of 665,000 last January. This is fuel for the Liberal campaigners.

But the report also showed a cutback in the number of people with jobs, to 8.38 million in September from the peak of nearly 8.82 million in July.

And the rate of unemployment computed by statistical mathematics to show the underlying impact on the economy rose last month to 7.1, a peak since the harsh winters of the early 1960s. This, together with the reduction in the numbers of people employed, will add to the opposition Conservative, New Democrat and Social Credit campaigns.

Statistics Canada is scheduled to release on Wednesday the September index of consumer prices.

Later this month Statistics Canada will release August figures on the annual paid out in unemployment insurance. This had run to $1.16 billion by the end of July, and Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey confirmed last week that the unemployment insurance commission needed more money from the treasury.

Hard Winter

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Unemployment figures released today showing 5.2 per cent of the Canadian work force idle means another hard winter for Canadians and a possible substantial rise in unemployment, Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said today.

Asks Tax Cut

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis called today for an income tax cut of 4% to eight per cent to stimulate the economy in the wake of September unemployment statistics.

He also called for a "massive youth employment program" of $70 to half a billion dollars for this winter.

THE WEATHER

Labor Force Drops

OTTAWA (CP-Special) — Canada's jobless fell by 44,000 in September this year but the number of jobs available decreased by an even greater rate, pushing the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate up sharply to 7.1 per cent of the labor force.

The 459,000 without work and seeking employment, estimated to be the mid-September labor force survey, compared with 503,000 in August and 434,000 in September, 1971.

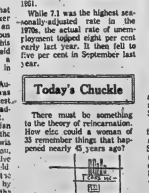
This 5.2 per cent of the labor force actually unemployed last month compared with 5.4 per cent in August and five per cent in September last year.

The statistics bureau reported that the drop in unemployment last month was less than usual, but said there was a greater-than-usual contraction of the number of people employed, down to 8.38 million from 8.77 million in August. A year ago the figure was nearly 8.19 million.

When these figures were adjusted by the bureau according to its usual mathematical formula to show the underlying trend without the seasonal influences that affect employment and unemployment in Canada, the rate rose to 7.1 from 6.7 in August and 6.3 in July.

It was the highest seasonally-adjusted figure in at least five years and compares with an annual rate of 7.1 reached in 1961. The average for the first nine months of 1972 now is 6.25, compared with 5.43 in the first nine months of last year.

The seasonally-adjusted rate is the one to which most economists look for an indication of the underlying slack in the economy.



The actual rate of unemployment always runs well below it in the high-activity summer months, and rises well above it in the depths of winter. The reasonably-adjusted rate is devised to cut through these extremes.

The seasonally-adjusted numbers of unemployed have been rising since late 1853, having previously reached a peak in 1961.

While 7.1 was the highest seasonally-adjusted rate in the 1970s, the actual rate of unemployment climbed eight per cent only last year. It then fell to five per cent in September last year.

Blizzard Halts Car Traffic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Blizzard conditions in Alberta, with more than seven inches of snow at Banff, and a surge of arctic air that drove temperatures to crop-killing, and in some places record lows, in Ontario dominated weather news in Canada today.

The violent snowstorm in western Alberta on the slopes of the Rockies stranded hundreds of Thanksgiving weekend vacationers away from home. Calgary's streets were shorts of ice.

In Georgian Bay and Lake Huron areas, winds gusting to 50 miles an hour caused extensive damage to boats, docks and some waterfront buildings.

Near Collingwood, two cabin cruisers were sunk at their moorings at Fisherman's Point Marina. At Wasaga Beach, eight-foot waves crashed over a beach road and caused an estimated $10,000 damage to a variety store.

The frigid air hit the rest of the Great Lakes area and prairie and Quebec also. Some snow was reported in the southern parts of the province. Frost and freeze warnings in the United States were issued for Michigan and Indiana east to Maine and as far south as Virginia.

News Briefs

Hydro Vote Know Today

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is to learn today whether its 12,000 Ontario Hydro workers have decided to end a province-wide strike which began June 21.

A spokesman for Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, said results of the vote should be known by 6 p.m.

"We have no way of knowing how 12,000 will vote but the feeling at recent meetings seems to have been strong in favor of the executive's recommendation — that the Hydro contract proposals be turned down," said the spokesman.

Bomb Threat At Studio

TORONTO (CP) — A late-night bomb threat forced the evacuation of the audience, including children in wheelchairs, from CFTO-TVs Thanksgiving Telethon for crippled children, the television station said today.

Meanwhile telethon host Pat Marsden and his guests moved to another studio and kept the viewing audience from suspecting anything was wrong.

Historic Byways Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A new government parks program labelled "byways and special places" was unveiled today by Prime Minister Trudeau and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien.

Heart of the program is a system of historic land and water routes tracing paths of explorers and settlers.

A third new plan involves rehabilitation of out-of-the-way roads and development of low-speed parkways along scenic land routes.

Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Chretien also included existing programs in their news conference announcement. They include restoration of Eastern Canadian canals, development of marine parks, protection of "small but unique wonders of nature" and creation of parks along untamed, wild rivers.

In a prepared statement, Mr. Chretien said the byways will "reopen large parts of Canada for travel by boat or canoe, by bicycle or horseback, on foot or snowshoes, or above slow-speed, meandering parkways which lie lightly on the land."

"They provide new pathways for travellers who otherwise are denied the pleasure of nature and history."

Mr. Chretien also said in his statement that the government plans new measures to protect existing national parks against their own popularity.

Lewis Predicts Job Crisis

HAMILTON (CP) — David Lewis said Monday the Canada faces a serious unemployment crisis this winter.

The New Democratic Party leader said he expected figures on the jobless rate for September, scheduled to be released in Ottawa today, would bear him out.

(Statistics Canada reported today from Ottawa that the number of jobless declined by 44,000 to an estimated 459,000 last month, but a greater-than-usual cutback in employment sent the underlying unemployment trend up sharply to 7.1 per cent of the labor force, the highest seasonally-adjusted figure in at least five years.

"Canadians will know that . . . not since the Depression years has Canada faced an unemployment crisis as serious as the one we will face this winter," the NDP leader said to reporters at a Thanksgiving barbecue in nearby Wentworth.

The seasonally-adjusted August unemployment rate was 6.7 per cent which the highest rate during the Diefenbaker administration was 6.5 per cent.

Calling the current Canadian scene one of "high prices, industrialized world, Mr. Lewis said Prime Minister Trudeau opposed the campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election by blaming the uncertainty for the severe lack of work in the country.

But last Friday, he said, Mr. Trudeau suddenly changed his tune because of obvious access to September statistics and began expressing concern for unemployment.

UK Pegs Bank Rate To Weekly Market

LONDON (CP) — The British government appears to have moved indirectly to encourage higher interest charges in the hope of holding down inflation with its decision to base the official bank rate on weekly market transactions.

For nearly three centuries, the government and officials of the Bank of England have each Thursday arbitrarily set the rate at which the central bank lends to commercial banks at whatever level they considered most beneficial for the economy.

An increase generally indicated the government's desire to damp down the economy; a decrease heralded a period of expansion.

Under the new system, the official rate will be announced each Friday and will be based on the prevailing discount rate for treasury bills at the end of the previous week.

If the system were in operation now—it does not take effect until next Monday—the new official rate would be 7½ per cent rather than the present level of six per cent, an effective increase of 1.25 percentage points.

Stanfield Music Sweet and Sour

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The election music was both sweet and sour for Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield on Thanksgiving Day.

Premier William Davis of Ontario let it be known he will give a lift to support Mr. Stanfield's bid to become prime minister, even to the extent of campaigning in British Columbia, Alberta and New Brunswick.

But Robert Thompson, former Social Credit leader now running as a Conservative in British Columbia, predicted the party will look for a leader to replace Mr. Stanfield if his forces meet a severe defeat in the Oct. 30 federal election.

Mr. Thompson softened the blow somewhat by saying, "We're not going to panic."

Later he said that never in Conservative party history has their been so much unanimity and support as there is for Mr. Stanfield."

Donald Matthews, national president of the Conservative party, said in London, Ont., that Mr. Thompson should not talk in this manner about Mr. Stanfield.

"I happen to be president and not Mr. Robert Thompson. There is no reason to consider a leadership convention. . . . We are going to form the next government."

All was outwardly quiet at Liberal headquarters on the holiday as Prime Minister Trudeau spent the day out of the public eye.

However, his office hinted that the speeches he promised in a speech at Shawinigan, Que., last week would be crowded as an Ottawa news conference looms.

Public Hearing

THE DOCTOR and YOU

The Ontario Medical Association has commissioned an independent task force to conduct a "Social Study Respecting the Medical Profession in Ontario". The terms of reference of the study are to examine and report on:

- the role of the medical profession in present day society viewed in the light of social change and economic factors;
- how the relationship between the profession and government within the Province may best be furthered in the public interest;
- the relative economic position which physicians should occupy in society, taking true account their professional qualifications, the nature of their responsibilities, the extent and quality of the services they perform, and the expenses which they incur in providing them; and
- the method by which any modification in the physicians' fee schedule, indicated by this study, may best be effected.

Public hearings are being held so that individual citizens as well as representative organizations can make their views known. Presentations may be confined to the terms of reference outlined above.

You are invited to participate

In this important project by taking part in the public hearing in your area. Please write Mr. Edward A. Pickering, Project Director, Box 271, Toronto-Dominion Centre, Toronto, Ontario outlining the subject of your presentation and how long it will take, at least one week before the hearing.

Date and Time: Wednesday, November 1st. Starting at 9:00 a.m.

Just Doing My Job

Boots is getting lots of attention now, after saving the life of his blind master David (second from right), when fire broke out in his 11 Lewis Street home Monday morning. With David is his younger brother Bonnie (left), Fire Chief Leo Cuthane and fire inspector Paul Stevenson.

Boots Hero in House Fire

Boots, an ordinary sort of pooch, saved the life of his 13-year-old blind master and six other members of his "family" when fire broke out in his 11 Lewis Street residence Monday at 5 a.m.

David, 13, woke shortly before the fire began and was in the kitchen preparing something to eat when his dog came up from the basement, alerting his master to the fire in the recreation room where he slept.

A railing at the head of the stairs had been left open that evening, allowing the dog to escape.

Once alerted by the dog, David smelled the smoke and shouted to his still sleeping family the news of the fire.

The dog then stayed by David's side, leading him to the front door and to safety.

David and Boots were the only two to leave the home by the door, the remainder using windows.

While Mrs. Jeannette Globe escaped through the first storey bedroom window, carrying a two-year-old infant, Margaret, 18, jumped from her second storey window.

Younger sister Donna "panicked at the height," said Pete Globe, father of the family, and a ladder was used to aid in her escape from the same window.

Ronnie, 11, made his way out of the home alone.

Once all were reunited, they gathered at the home of a neighbor waiting for firemen to extinguish the blaze that caused a total of $5,000 damage.

Later Monday morning, his eyes still blood red from the smoke, Mr. Globe said, "It have nothing but the highest praise for the fire department who worked with the precision of a baseball team."

A spokesman for the fire department said the smoke was so dense in the building that escape through natural exits would have been nearly impossible.

Smoke was listed as causing the greatest damage to the home that was reported to by another department spokesman as "unlivable".

By 8:30 Monday morning, crews were already clearing the debris from the home and washing and disinfecting walls and floors to clear the smell of smoke.

Insurance will cover the cost of refitting the home and taking care of the family while the house is unserviceable.

Frost Hits Tomato Crop

The reason for tomatoes still being in the field at this time of year is that the crop was later this year due to late planting, rain and dull weather.

This is the first time in about three years that any tomatoes have been frozen in the field.

In Hastings county, Agricultural Representative Douglas Tipper said that the first frost in 50 acreage to be beneficial for some farmers with silage corn still standing.

Mr. Tipper said actually there had been too much juice in corn stalk for silo filling.

The frost, he said, would tend to dry out the stalks and make for better silage.

Temperatures in the low 20s were not expected to result in much damage to the apple crop although the keeping qualities of some varieties may be affected.

One orchardist said that apples begin to freeze when the temperature drops to 28.2 degrees. Apple picking was delayed this morning to about 11 o'clock until the frost was out of the fruit.

The picking of McIntosh, Talman Sweets and Courtland is about completed with approximately 90 per cent of the Mac's said to be off the trees.

Remaining to be picked are the Spies, Delicious and Greenings.

But area horticulturists are bemoaning last night's cold temperatures.

Unless precautions were taken by covering, the frost nipped late season flowers and vines, and there will be blackened foliage in flower beds where yesterday there was lots of color.

Loot Recovered, Youths Charged

COBORNE (Staff) — A 24-hour stakeout of combined Trenton police and Brighton detachment OPP forces this weekend resulted in the recovery of more than $6,000 worth of televisions and stereo components and a truck stolen from Wertheim TV, 151 Front St., Trenton Friday, October 6.

The combined force headed by Trenton police detective sergeant Sid Gilbert and OPP Constable John McNamee established an observation post near a farmer's barn in Cramahe township at noon Saturday. The Frontier Travel truck owned by Worthing TV, parked in the building and alerted police.

The truck, containing the goods stolen from the shop, was recovered and two Trenton youths subsequently arrested. William Black, 17, and Larry Goyetche, 16, are charged with break, enter and theft.

A warrant has been issued for an unidentified third party.

First of Ugandans Arrive in Quinte

By DOLIN REUCE
Staff Reporter

A family of expelled Ugandans arrived in Belleville Saturday night to begin a new life in the Quinte area.

The family is one of the great exodus of 60,000 Asians who have been forced from their homes in Uganda by that country's president Idi Amin.

Sandbanks

tive material has been forwarded with the company's application for a licence. However, Taylor wants to make sure of this.

In a sharp clash with union president Stewart Norval, Mr. Taylor declared he has not been contacted by the LOCL concerning the apparent delay in obtaining the licence.

"I can't anticipate people's problems in the riding. They must approach me. The company hasn't contacted me to see if I can hurry it up," asserted Mr. Taylor angrily to the union man.

Mr. Norval replied the company had asked the member of provincial parliament initially about problems with quarrying at the Sandbanks and an alternate site was suggested.

"We work there and we know there is an alternate site," declared a union member. Andrew Martin, a member of the union's grievance committee told Mr. Taylor the Sandbanks issue was highly controversial locally and it was felt he should be "on top of it" eliminating the need for either the company or the union to request him to hurry a licence.

Mr. Taylor answered he had no authority to negotiate with the company since this is done at the ministerial level. He also noted he felt the company capable of being as vocal as the public if problems were encountered.

"I don't understand," said the MPP, referring to the fact the LOCL has not discussed the licence with him.

"Maybe they've lost faith in you and that's why," suggested Mr. Norval.

Mr. Taylor reminded union members he had taken a consistent position in the Sandbanks controversy since it came to public attention in last year's election campaign. He said land use is the principal question involved and stressed "if you don't start fresh you would not mix excavation with recreation."

The answer to his opinion, is to include the land at the Sandbanks beaches in the plan with the parks system if the company can obtain a suitable alternative source of material. "You don't shut a plant down because of encroachment land use," emphasized Mr. Taylor. He said he had looked to the Tovell report heard last summer for an answer involving "a suitable source but found it "shallow and disappointing."

The MPP said the report failed to discuss alternate viable sites for quarrying.

Mr. Taylor hotly denied an allegation by Mr. Norval that he had favored expropriation of the LOCL quarry site when the Tovell report was released. He termed this charge "a gross distortion and not aillusue of lies."

The fear of a layoff of employees if the LOCL was forwarded strongly by Mr. Norval, was denied.

He said he felt the government, "Bernier's office in particular" is "leaned" on by pressures of the New Democratic and Liberal parties and by pressures from organizations such as PACE (People Against a Contamination Environment) and Pollution Probe. "We are going to be the scapegoats sold down the river as the company can save face in the province," predicted the union president.

"We have to keep our perspective. The first thing is the economy of the area. We aren't going to close down the county and build a rose garden," asserted Mr. Taylor.

He stressed quarrying by the LOCL is a "legitimate substantial operation here." Land is being mined legally. "If the government shirt it down I'll be the first in line with you," said the MPP. He said if the LOCL has complied with the guidelines of the Pits and Quarries Act "they should be treated like any other industry."

Mr. Taylor promised to speak with Mr. Bernier concerning the delay in licensing the LOCL and the mentioned "deal" allegedly governing the licence. "I don't see how you can bargain a licence for your land," said Mr. Taylor. Mr. Norval noted, "The Act, I think is a legal means to wedge the company out of its Sandbanks location."

The MPP insisted "a commission gab" interfere in the licence issue and said he would confer with Mr. Bernier, adding an interim statement from the minister might be needed.

Missions Successful

TRENTON (Staff) — Search and Rescue crews from CFB Trenton took part in two successful missions during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

A Twin Otter aircraft with Lieut. Ed Batten at the controls located a helicopter missing with two men aboard in the northern Quebec bush country in the Chibougamau area. The rescue centre here reported the pilot of the helicopter decided to set down on the ground rather than continue flying in bad weather.

Yesterday, the aircraft and crew were involved in a mercy flight from Noranda in northern Quebec. The victim of a motor car accident was transferred to a hospital in Montreal for specialized treatment.

Lions to Split Fest Profits

FRANKFORD (Staff) — Profits from the Frankford Lions Club successful Oktoberfest party held here Saturday night will be split between the operation of the community arena and the village's Christmas fund for needy families.

Club president Everett Windover, in announcing the Lions decision, reported the project would be sponsored as an annual affair.

He disclosed paid attendance Saturday night totalled 734, a great improvement over last year when the function was introduced.

Both Conservative candidate George Hees and Liberal candidate George Cunningham with members of their families joined the merrymakers during the evening.

The Frankford Lions club is 30 members strong.

Gift Bearer

Trio Here Tonight

The Beaux Arts Trio will perform this evening at 8:30 in the auditorium of Belleville Collegiate Institute.

Admission is restricted to subscribers of the Community Concert Association.

Purchase Offer To Be Signed

STIRLING (Special) — The official offer to purchase the property of Wells Ford-Mercury Sales Ltd., Stirling for use by the village as a fire hall, was ordered signed this week.

The offer now goes to the car firm and its solicitors for approval. Once this is obtained and a search of the title to the property conducted, the deal can be closed. Tentative closing date is December 20.

Although buying the property this year, Stirling will not take possession until mid-1973 to allow the Wells' to build facilities adjacent to their present premises on the south side of Front Street.

Injuries Minor

Frankford resident, 22 year-old Glenn Madore, was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital Saturday night with minor injuries after a motor vehicle accident 1½-miles north of Frankford.

Mr. Madore was southbound on the roadway when he lost control of the vehicle he was driving.

Owner of the car is Stephen Loshaw of Frankford.

More than $900 damage was done to the car as it came to rest in a culvert at the side of the road.

150 Kinsmen Here For Weekend Meet

Belleville will one eagain be convention city when 150 Kinsmen come to hold their annual Fall Council for District Six this Friday and Saturday.

The district covers all clubs east of Brighton, north as far as Ottawa and takes in the entire province of Quebec.

A spokesman for the local Kiwanis Club said "this is a first for the city."

"In the past we didn't feel there were the facilities to house a conference of this size," he said.

The two - day meeting will be held in the Four Seasons Hotel with registration beginning Friday.

A social evening will follow with entertainment, followed on Saturday morning with the first business meeting at 8:30.

Major business on the agenda will be the election of a vice - governor for the district.

A new office is to give backgrounding to a Kiwanis member who will be expected to take the position of governor in the following term.

The second major piece of business for the council will be to start plans for the national convention to be held in Ottawa next year.

Because of the large number of French - speaking people attending the meeting, both French and English will be used simultaneously during the business session.

Governor for the dirict whose responsibility it was to call the Fall Council is Campbellford resident Douglas Stickwood.

Bancroft Robbery $380,000

BANCROFT (Staff) — Thieves who broke into Birks Jewelry on Hastings Street this weekend netted $380,000 worth of rings, watches and electric shavers.

None of the items was particularly identifiable, making it difficult for Bancroft provincial police to come up with leads.

Entry was gained between 10 p.m. Saturday and 3:30 p.m. Sunday. The thieves came through an adjacent office and forced two internal doors to reach the goods.

PICTON (Staff) — A Belleville district man is a patient in Belleville General hospital today following a six-car accident on the Massassaga Rd.

In hospital is the car driven, 20-year-old David Beatty of RR1, Belleville, who suffered back injuries in the accident.

Damage to the car which went out of control was estimated at $2,000.

Past Glories

Villeneuve House, Picton, as illustrated in the Hastings and Prince Edward Historical Atlas, was the residence back in the late 1870s of P. H. Low, Q.C. It sat there resplendent on the shoreline and the artist has included a passing paddle steamer named the Empress of India no less.

Still standing, the historic "Inn on the Bay" has been described as one of the six best houses in Ontario and we see from The Picton Gazette that it is to be the venue for the Women's Hospital Auxiliary's ball on October 13.

As The Gazette puts it, "A visit to Villeneuve House is to step back into a romantic era and the ladies feel it is the perfect spot to hold their annual semi-formal dance."

In the same issue of the Picton newspaper is an article on the farmstead home of Kenneth and Florence Needham. It is a fine white structure on a curve about two miles east of Northport and is surrounded by locust trees over a century old.

Historically, the home is believed to be one of the first Quaker meeting homes in the county in the late 1790s or early 1800s. This is suggested in journals of the day quoted in the article.

Both these homes reflect the historic character of the county with its rich farmland and lake vistas. The county town of Picton and other smaller communities too, with their interesting old homes and atmosphere, are eloquent of more relaxed and in some ways enviable times.

Terrorism's Legacy

Terrorism, as eminent historian Arthur Toynbee points out in The Observer, tends to be counter-productive. And there is a point when it becomes merely an end in itself, an outlet for the primeval malevolence in man's nature that ordinarily is suppressed.

We see this in the actions of IRA guerrillas in Northern Ireland and Palestinian Arabs at the recent Olympics as well as in earlier skyjackings.

As an extension of the Irish terrorism there have been some 75 murders with no apparent motive and which authorities attribute to psychopathic or "thrill killers," a phenomenon which would not have arisen were it not for the brutalizing influence of the terrorist campaign.

But to go back to the root causes of these terrible deeds, Toynbee reminds us that "persistent neglect to right wrongs has let loose this evil spirit" and he adds that it is not going to be easy to exorcise it.

Helmets Impair Safety?

George Sutherland, a veteran motorcyclist, makes some interesting observations on the wearing of helmets in a letter to The Montreal Gazette.

A motorcyclist for 33 years, with experience of many different makes, Mr. Sutherland writes in part: "I tried out a helmet recently and came to the chilling conclusion that I had less control over the motorcycle than without a helmet. The heavily-mufflied ear muffs tend to destroy the precious harmony that should exist between the rider and his machine, as the ears are not able to tune in on the pulse of the motor.

"Probably this is why helmeted motorcyclists are the worst noise polluters while waiting at intersections. They have to listen to their motors through thick ear pads. In nearly all the fatal cycle accidents I know about, the rider had been wearing a helmet. Did it give him a sense of security?"

The writer says he is now deprived of a pleasurable pastime, "because there is no way I would drive a motorcycle with impaired senses."

Somehow we think there is more to it than that. It is not so much impaired hearing but impaired maturity that lies at the root of many accidents, whether they involve motorcycles or cars. The careful rider will make the necessary adjustments for loss of hearing. At the same time, let's hope manufacturers can come up with helmets that give adequate head protection while not impairing the hearing of the wearer.

Political Style—From Mackenzie King to Pierre Trudeau

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It is all a matter of the style of the man.

And with the election a few short weeks away, it could be important.

It involves nothing more complicated than how a political party leader enters and leaves the airport.

It is an important, in a sub-liminal sort of way, as how he enters and leaves a campaign party.

It is in and out fast?

Is he withdrawn and remote?

Is he doing so well as to think he can be sparing about the reaction of even the few people — who see him but do not necessarily talk to him or hear him speak — as he comes and goes?

Does he remember they are all voters — few, if any, unless he is on home ground, electors in his personal riding — and as leader of the party all of them his constituents on a national basis?

Let us take a look.

At all the recent prime ministers and opposition leaders.

And just for old time's sake, at the far-from - recent travel and style of Mackenzie King.

Flying — except for the most urgent emergencies — was a utter bis time. So the old LiberaI Prime Minister travelled in leisurely fashion by train to his own special car.

He did fly a couple of times, to Britain and back, in a bucket seat in the belly of a Lancaster. In the war years.

And both going on and coming off the old trains, he looked like your grandpa, all bundled up in sweaters and scarves with a formal, velvet-collared overcoat atop all the undershirting.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent had did not like air travel, and so he, too, travelled quietly and comfortably, at an unhurried rate from coast to coast during campaigns.

(Those were the days, as the song goes, when campaigning or electioneering prime minister was a bit of a paid vacation.)

Except that Mr. Diefen baie had a liking for zip-touring motorcades, and piled up — nothing really serious though — a couple of times in "controlled skidding."

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker preferred the train to the plane, but since politics did fly, moving frantically and quite in his rush-rush character, also to the use of air.

Prime Minister Lester Pearson flew all the way, and often, did Diefat as opposition leader, and campaigning became an eight-week exercise in exhaustion.

Now both Prime Minister Trudeau and Conservative leader Stanfield fly — and short-stop anotherwise — and it's all as ordeal in fatigue.

So we get down, at last to what happens at the airport?

The Prime Minister enters and leaves the airport like he does the House of Commons, racing his motor. Time only to shake a few hands hurriedly over the rope between the cordon of bodyguards, on the jog out of the limousine, through one door, into and out another, to the waiting jet.

Everybody and everything waits for him and he waits for nobody.

Before the campaign opened, Robert Stanfield showed up as just another Air Canada or CP Air passenger, with all the faceless ticket and baggage routine, wait for the gate and the boarding.

If it was a long wait, say between flights, he usually went to the Maple Leaf lounge. There is one in every major airport, better known to the taxpayers as the VIP room. It is also privacy, a cubicle, a sanctuary or better.

A short wait and he would just sit and let time tick by reading or in quiet conversation with a single aide or companion.

Robert Stanfield, being the withdrawn kind of man he is so often, does not mix easily. There was no glad-handing through the concourse of the terminal. And perhaps for him that was a good thing, for handsurging campaigning can wear and making what should be unnecessary self-introductions just would not suit his style.

Now with the campaign daily picking up pace, what a change for him; the rush, the crowds, the high-pressure, people-seeking contact.

The man this sort of thing does become — because with long practice and an insatiable love for people — is Mr. Trudeau.

Watch him enter an airport and initially he is a crowd.

"How do you do. So glad to see you. Didn't we meet in Moose Jaw five years ago last January 17?"

Or "Good to see you. I'm John Diefenbaker. You are? (And when he gets the name) Say, by chance do you know, so-and-so, he comes from your town?"

Never a lekop. He retreat to the VIP lounge. No sitting down. Just circulating, meeting people. Great public relations, great because it is what comes naturally and he does it so well.

"Do it long enough," he has said, "and you get lucky to know everyone."

Marmora's Rodent Invasion

Peterborough Examiner

Like most of us, the good people of Marmora Village must have got used to the threat of a nuclear holocaust, come kind of a disaster caused by germ warfare, the melting of Arctic ice or the invasion by little green men with antennae on their foreheads.

But whoever figured on rats? Well, we have reported Marmora Village was invaded by rats who lost their natural habitat and food supply when the old garbage dump on Deloro Road was closed on Sept. 1.

The hungry hordes of rats then moved into troubled neighboring fields and backyards and reported to trying their luck on certain premises, but not a dangerously large number of them, as yet, have strolled to town.

Residents have reported seeing rats in their backyards, garages, all around town, hence, out on the roads and fields and in our reporter's post a few of the bolder ones on their (the rats') way to town.

Rats were killed in the yard of Marmora Senior School and in the school itself and a field day shooting them with a .22 rifle.

All this may sound like an interesting break in the everyday monotony of which children probably love the rat hunt — but there is a far more diabolical as just one of those things.

Rats are numerous and if they find the opportunity are bolder — which means that more and more of them will invade the town.

Rats can, and sometimes do, carry disease. Be cleaned out soon enough, they can cause serious health problems.

They can also cause property damage. They should be taken seriously.

UK Economy Hamstrung by Outdated Concepts

By JOHN A. HARBRON
Thomson News Service

Is Britain facing a slow and steady decline of a kind not experienced by any other Western European nation at present?

The latest Blackpool conference of the Labor party appears to offer the British nothing more than more of Harold Wilson—with a repeal of hated Tory legislation, chiefly the Industrial Relations Act, yet more taxing of whiskever is left in Britain of residual wealth.

Nor is Ted Heath making it the way he promised after his surprise election in the summer of 1970. Problems domestic and international almost overwhelm national governments in Britain these days. Inflation has jumped almost 20 per cent in the last 18 months. Unemployment this winter is likely to reach 10 per cent of the working force.

Traditional British industries still labor under too many old-fashioned and suffocating attitudes of management. The class system, supposed to have been expunged in the Battle of Britain bunkers, the camaraderie of wartime service, the common postwar efforts at restoring economic strength, is in effect still there.

Not even the common humble origins of both Messrs Wilson and Heath give any prospect of common purpose between two men, who not only follow two other 'ideologies, but seem to be on opposing ideological courses as far as labor is concerned.

The British working man, exploited mercilessly by Victorian and Edwardian industrialists, overcrowded by the dole of the depression, the soldier who went out to win Britain's victories, is more intransigent than ever.

His conservative, even reactionary trade union apparatus continues to support him only if he assures them Tory-imposed ceilings on wages and prices will be removed if Labor comes in again.

And yet if Harold Wilson or some other future Labor prime minister does come to power, the perennial question of how British productivity versus constant wage increases, will have to be faced as squarely as has by the present incumbent.

And so it goes, the familiar and depressing catalogue of Britain unable to climb out of the economic morass in which she floats. How many times must these be repeated in assessing the British dilemma and at the same time, indicating those elements which have given strength to British industry and export potential?

Unfortunately, the former seem to outweigh the latter—and the end is not in sight. Where Mr. Heath has been tough and successful, for example in centralizing national efforts to clean up Britain's once atrocious environmental pollution, he has lost ground on issues no one man can control. These include Ireland—always the Irish question hounding British governments, and the mounting one of racial tensions.

In one sense, British governments chosen in tried-and-true methods by traditional elections are no different than national governments in all the other industrial democracies. They come, and go—try and make their own special contributions to problem solving—but the problems have become less and less soluble, more and more perennial.

The classic example of the perennial problem is of course, Ireland. It badgered the first Elizabeth, over 300 years ago as it badgers the ministers of the second.

Whatever politics can be said, the British are in deep trouble. The legacies of empire allegedly long-dead, linger in too many subtle ways—attitudes about social change, reticence to seek revolutionary new directions, still the feeling we'll make it—somehow.

Clear Policy Lacking

Housing Planning Spotty and Costly for the Buyer

By FARMER TISSINGTON
From The Intelligencer's
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—House building has always been one of the favorite tools of government. Encouragement of housing starts is aided and abetted whenever the economy appears to be slumping and when the private sector needs a shot-in-the-arm to create employment and stimulate the purchase of goods and services. And house building has long been one of the most widely used political weapons as governments point proudly to the total of housing starts generated each year.

This election year is no exception as is seen by the recent announcement of changes in the National Housing Act regulations, designed to make home ownership easier. It is questionable if this ad hoc, hasty political tinkering with NH rules is any substitute for a clearly-stated, long-term national housing policy that would be addressed to regardless of short-term economic fluctuations or the inadequacies of present solutions.

In a recent report on low income housing, Michael Dennis and Susan Fish refer to recent government "crash" programs in search of policy." They are sharply critical in their claim that the only real planning for housing is done by financial bureaucrats who use it as a short-term economic stabilization tool. Housing is regarded only as a product and is not viewed as a package of services and even as a place where people live. Management and maintenance of housing are irrelevant and locational factors such as community services and facilities, transportation problems and neighborhood context are largely ignored and design is a secondary factor.

The changes in the National Housing Act regulations are questionable. They are based on the assumption that a greater percentage of Canadians should be encouraged to own their own homes, almost regardless of their financial position, their family structure and other factors. The changes may be a reaction to recent statistics which show that home ownership has been declining since its peak in 1961. In that year, ownership accounted for 66 per cent of the total living accommodation. By 1966 the figure was 63 per cent and advance information from the 1971 census reveals that owner-occupied dwellings now constitute only 60 per cent of the total.

One of the changes raises the maximum NHA loan from $25,000 to $30,000. Under this formula it is possible for a couple to buy a $32,000 home with only $2,000 as a down payment. At first glance, this looks like a good idea, but it really isn't. It can be a financial trap for a young family. The $30,000 they borrow, amortized at nine per cent over 25 years requires principal and interest payments of $248 a month. That does not take into account municipal taxes which have been escalating in recent years. For this mortgage, the unsuspecting house buyer will pay out over $78,000 for his $30,000 loan.

As these houses are sold, the owners naturally want to recover their high interest pay-out with the result the selling price of their house will climb steadily higher—often built-in inflationary spiral. Most of the houses will be sold to young married couples, many of whom will not fully comprehend the extra costs of home ownership—for furnishings, landscaping, equipment, taxes, insurance, improvement and maintenance.

Allowing all of a wife's income to be considered with the husband's for purposes of determining eligibility for a mortgage can be a financial trap as couples have children and the wife's income is lost, perhaps for several years.

Anyone who has visited our large cities, particularly by train, knows about the row-on-row of slum and sub-standard housing that blights the suburbs. It would make more sense if the government put its emphasis on assisting low income people to escape from this dismal environment instead of encouraging middle-income people to become involved financially over their heads.

Bottoms Up!

Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield gives forth with a hearty toast and then drains his stein at an Oktoberfest festival in London, Ont. Unfortunately, some of the contents escaped the intended target and mopping - up operations were necessary. (CP Photo)

Tudeau:

People Ignore 'Bellyachers'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says people aren't listening to the "bellyachers and poormouthers" in the campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election.

He coupled this message with a stout defence of his Liberal government's policy Saturday as he completed a two-day tour through southern Ontario communities by car and helicopter.

Canadians aren't listening to the opposition parties when they express gloom about Canada's future, he told a shopping mall crowd in Oakville. He said the busy stores around the mall provide the evidence to the contrary.

Addressing one heckler directly he said:

"Look man, you're in a shopping centre and people are buying things."

After Oakville, he moved north of Toronto to Newmarket and Barrie. In both places he faced questions about the plans to build a new international airport in the area.

At a chilly picnic in Newmarket, some in the crowd carried signs saying "no airport" and questioning whether Ontario would be "a place to stand or a place to land."

One heckler shouted: "You've stolen my house," Mr. Trudeau suggested he "report it to the police."

On a techno TV program in Barrie, Mr. Trudeau said everyone in the area had seemed to want the new airport "until it landed in their back yard."

The prime minister flew to Ottawa Saturday night and is to remain there until Tuesday, when he re-starts a campaign swing in the West.

Lewis Predicts Crisis

loudly trying to blame the unemployed for the mess he himself created has backfired on both himself and—Mr. Stanfield," he said.

No longer could the two major party leaders accuse unemployed workers of not taking jobs available because it has become clear to all that the number of jobs open is only a small fraction of those needed to ease unemployment, he said.

"Their phoney issue has come home to roost because . . . the voter will know beyond any doubt that the corporate welfare system devised by the Liberals and Conservatives has failed to create the jobs Canadians so badly want and need."

Canadians cannot continue to let men like Mr. Trudeau run the country when their only answer is to fork out grants to industry in the hope that corporations will somehow solve unemployment, he said.

"Nor can Canadians expect Mr. Stanfield, the man who tends to agree with Mr. Trudeau to do any differently," he said.

He predicted the unemployment situation will force Mr. Trudeau to announce before the week is out that the government will adopt a winter employment scheme for young people who make up almost half of the more than 500,000 Canadians out of work.

But the young will not be duped by the ploy, he said, because many of them were taken in by the summer Opportunities - for - Youth program which paid such low wages they were unable to return to school.

Statistics Canada is scheduled to release on Wednesday the September index of consumer prices.

Later this month Statistics Canada will release August figures on the amount paid out in unemployment insurance. This had run to $1.16 billion by the end of July, and Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey confirmed last week that the unemployment insurance commission needed more money from the treasury.

Returning Officer Runs Tight Ship

TORONTO (CP) — Terence G. Mott: former counter-intelligence officer, one - time Liberal riding association secretary, sometime peanut seller and train porter said, at least until Oct. 30, full-time returning officer for the electoral district of Toronto Spadina.

"You might say I'm like Hailey's Comet—all smoke and fire until Oct. 30 and then it is back to selling peanuts," he said in a script British accent that belies almost a Hebrew in Canada.

Mr. Mott runs his office like a military command post. Every file, map, diagram, poster, pamphlet and document is laid out within easy reach.

His staff knows who is boss.

"I run a tight ship," he said in an interview Friday, drawing up his five-foot-eight frame and pacing the parish hall of St. Francis Roman Catholic Church amid the unset of last year's Christmas pageant.

It's a two-month job with every action geared to voting on Oct. 30.

His problems are the problems of the 253 other returning officers but, he explains, every returning officer has his own peculiar tangles to unravel.

Spadina, in the heart of downtown Toronto, goes from rags to riches, he says.

"From the industrialist's mistress in the apartment who doesn't want to be enumerated to the worst slums in Canada."

Mr. Mott, 50, said a number of recent immigrants live in the area and sometimes communication can be a problem.

He walked up and down one street for an hour before he could find a location for a polling station.

"Some people from Europe are naturally suspicious of governments and don't quite understand how a democracy works."

Mr. Mott knows, though.

"The Queen has appointed me to see that the electoral district of Spadina has a representative in Ottawa."

From his office in the parish hall basement, he briefs workers, gives directions, answers queries and deals with complaints — that signs have been torn down, of padding and all the others that are related to Canadian democracy.

There are no strong-arm men on his staff, which basis at election time, but one polling station not too many years ago had a pair of brokers standing outside the door acting as sort of a reception committee. We put a stop to that."

Every year, he said, the problems are different.

"Maybe a deputy returning officer will show up drunk on election day. We can only wait and pray."

Mr. Mott is not guaranteed a vote Oct. 30. But if there's a tie, he would have to break it.

"Judges, idiots, criminals and returning officers are disfranchised," he said.

By election day Spadina will have about 38,000 eligible voters and six candidates.

As the election nears, the phones in the parish hall ring more frequently.

"About 60 per cent of the calls," he said, gesturing to a ringing phone, "are from bill collectors looking for a copy of the voters' list to see who lives where."

Caouette Says Liberals Ignore Family Needs

LORETTEVILLE, Que. (CP) — Social Credit Leader Real Caouette has attacked the Trudeau government for burying a deaf ear to family needs while the current welfare system destroys family unity.

Speaking at a meeting in Portneuf riding Sunday, Mr. Caouette said couples can receive more money from welfare schemes if they are separated than if they are living together.

Mothers receive only a few hundred dollars to feed their children while the government pays up to $150 a month for children placed in foster homes, he added.

The Social Credit program includes a social and economic security program and a system of interest-free loans from the Bank of Canada for the provinces and municipalities.

Stanfield: PC Head Enjoys County Fair

SIMCOE (CP) — Conservative leader Robert Stanfield visited a fall fair Saturday night and shook hands with hundreds of people as he continued his campaign for the Oct. 30 federal election.

Mr. Stanfield, on the last stop of a busy day's journey through a wide area of Ontario, was introduced to about 5,000 people who filled the stands at the Norfolk County Fair.

But he refrained from making a partisan political speech. Speaking briefly from a stage in front of the stands, he restricted himself mostly to pleasantries.

The closest he came to talking about politics was to note that an election campaign is in progress and to express the hope that it would generate a vigorous discussion of public issues.

Then Mr. Stanfield took a walk along the midway and through the main pavilion, shaking hands and obviously enjoying the atmosphere.

The Conservative leader also got to kiss the 1972 Norfolk county dairy princess, 17-year-old Sandra Steinhoff.

Addressing a news conference in Sudbury, Mr. Stanfield renewed his attack on the government's handling of the unemployment insurance program and said that Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey has been dishonest in some of his statement about the insurance account.

Gardeners Reap Result of Toil

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty families living in high-rise apartments sat down to Thanksgiving dinners Monday which included fruit and vegetables they had grown themselves.

They were the lucky 20 of 60 applicants who sought to take advantage of an offer made last May by Beatrice Fischer to provide 20 plots for high-rise apartment dwellers wishing to have their own gardens.

Mrs. Fischer opened up a 1½-acre plot of land near her residence for would-be gardeners. All summer, the 20 climbed up and down the flagstone path to the plot of land, dug, hoed, raked, staked, weeded and exchanged tips and cuttings.

Despite wet and dry spells, a temporary tomato blight and marauding raccoon, the summer's labors were successful and Thanksgiving this year had a deeper meaning for a number of families who in the past have mumbled their thanks for food that had been frozen, canned or chemically-preserved.

LOVES TO DIG

In a single night, a mole which is only about six inches long, has been known to dig a tunnel nearly 100 yards long.

Libya Seeks Reparations

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Libya served notice Monday that it will demand reparations from the Second World War powers that mined the Western Desert and refused to identify the location of these weapons.

In a surprise move in the U.N. General Assembly, Libyan Foreign Minister Mansur Kikhia said his government would "not stand idle," politically and juridically" in face of what he called "this inhuman act."

"From a humanitarian point of view, it was imperative that the belligerent states, who later became friends, give us an indication of the existence of these mines which jeopardize innocent lives and prevent them from practising their fundamental liberties.

"But without a single exception, all refrained from performing this humane and legal duty, leaving it in time and to mines to "solve" our problems," he said.

Woman Changes Mind 300 Feet From Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A young woman who entered the swift-flowing Niagara River Saturday clutched a tree stump 300 feet from the brink of Bridal Veil Falls until carried to safety by a park policeman.

The Niagara Frontier State police said Ruth Hayden, 21, of Bradford, Pa., parked an automobile on Goat Island and entered the river on the north-eastern side of the island.

Swept toward the falls by a current that runs 18 to 20 miles an hour, she managed to grab a tree stump sticking about a foot above water about 100 feet out from the island.

Sgt. Lyle Newberry of the park police donned a safety harness and waded into the river, secured by a rope. He carried her back toward the island.

The woman was taken to a hospital for observation.

Police quoted her as saying she had quarreled with her husband and had driven from Bradford to Niagara Falls intending to take her life.

Exile Returns

MONTREAL (CP) — Richard Butler, who jumped bail here in 1968 while awaiting trial on charges of disturbing the peace and participating in a riot, was taken into custody at Montreal International Airport Saturday. Butler, living in exile in France, was quoted in Paris this week as saying he prefers "to spend a few months in a Quebec prison rather than stay any longer in France."

Car Imports Not Restricted

TOKYO (AP) — Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, said Monday he thinks Japan need not restrict its car exports to the United States.

Woodcock left for home after attending the inaugural convention of the Confederation of Japan Automobile Workers Unions, a series of meetings with Japanese government and business officials.

The UAW president said U.S. imports of Japanese cars have been declining since last year's yen revaluation and thus Japan need not voluntarily control its car exports.

He said the UAW is willing to help those Japanese auto makers who are interested in assembling their cars in the U.S.

Lusitania Held Munitions: Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The British liner Lusitania, whose sinking influenced the United States entry in the First World War, was carrying armaments when attacked by a German submarine, says an account in the Oct. 13 Life magazine, issued Sunday.

The contentions were contained in an excerpt from a forthcoming book, Lusitania, by Colin Simpson, a British writer.

When the great liner set sail from New York May 1, 1915, with 1,959 persons aboard bound for Liverpool, a false manifest was filed to conceal its cargo of three-inch shells and rifle ammunition, Simpson says.

The Germans had made clear they would attack vessels the Allies were using as part of the war effort.

When the Lusitania was torpedoed May 7, 1,198 lives were lost. The writer says a second explosion of the munitions, not the torpedo, sank the liner.

Wrong Hair

HALA, Ont. (CP) — A plan to station a squirrel was ordered Saturday when he was hit in the back, shoulder and arm with No. 5 shot from a 12-gauge shotgun. Larry Vogel, 19, of Toronto, was hunting in the area about 20 miles south of Ferry Sound when he was shot. Police and another man told them he saw hair that he thought was a squirrel, and fired from about 30 feet. Dennis Graham, 21, of Toronto is charged with dangerous use of a firearm.

Elections Canada

REVISION OF THE LISTS OF ELECTORS

REVISION OF THE LISTS The lists of electors prepared by the enumerators are now available. Make sure that your name, address and occupation are accurately indicated on the list for your polling division. In an urban polling division, the list is posted and a copy is mailed to each household.

In a rural polling division, the official list of electors is publicly posted.

MISTAKES OR OMISSIONS If your name or that of a neighbour or friend is not on the list or if there are any mistakes in names or other particulars, contact your returning officer as soon as possible; he will tell you what to do in order to have the list corrected during the revision.

IMPORTANCE OF AN ACCURATE LIST In an urban polling division, YOU CANNOT VOTE UNLESS YOUR NAME APPEARS ON THE OFFICIAL LIST OF ELECTORS FOR YOUR POLLING DIVISION.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION For more information, check your Guide for Electors. It has recently been mailed to each household. Copies are also available at any branch of a Canadian chartered bank. If you cannot find the answer to all your questions, contact your returning officer. His name and office phone number are listed below.

Author to Cross Sahara by Self

LONDON (AP)—British author Geoffrey Moorhouse sets out this week to cross the vast Sahara alone by camel.

No one is known to have made the 3,600-mile journey from the Atlantic coast to the Nile River alone, Moorhouse, 40, admits the prospect "petrifies" him, but says:

"I believe the most corrosive element attacking the greatness and goodness of the human spirit is fear; and his most insidious form—the fear of being afraid.

"In a sense the Sahara represents the ultimate of all my fears.

"If I can conquer the spiritual as well as the physical hazards embodied in the desert, then I believe I shall have something of value to tell mankind."

The longest known crossing by camel was a 2,188-mile ride from Cairo to Lagos made by a German, Frederick Hornemann, with a caravan at the end of the last century.

Moorehouse, a former London newspaper man, estimates hit trip, with a pause for the summer months, will take about a year.

He will "eat a string of camels by trade with nomads and carry almost $5,000 in local currencies to buy food and water from the more sophisticated of the desert dwellers.

Hardened desert veterans have regaled Moorehouse with frightening tales of what the Bedouin can do to lone travellers.

This has not discouraged him, nor has the prospect of months of riding a camel. He has practised at London Zoo aboard one that takes kids for 10-cent rides.

Won't Quit

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ken Parsons, a 59-year-old London construction worker, is $50,000 richer today but he vowed it is not going to change his life. Mr. Parsons, who won the first prize in the $100,000 Bothwell Ont. Rotary-Serjeons lottery, said he is going to keep on working. "and so is my wife." Mr. Parsons said the only thing he has planned so far is a larger donation to his favorite charity. "Every year I give the crippled kids $2 or $3, but this ever I can spare. This year I can do a little better."

Eighty Charged

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Police roadblocks resulted in 80 charges and 12 arrests at a Canada's Choice field day here Sunday.

About 100 provincial police, RCMP and Waterloo Township police manned the two roadblocks near the farmer's field where the event was held.

Motorcyclists and passengers were stopped and searched and each motorcycle was checked to make sure it came within the specifications of the Highway Traffic Act.

All cars approaching the field were stopped and searched for liquor and drugs.

Of the 80 charges, 66 were traffic offences, nine involved liquor, two were Criminal Code charges and the rest were drug offences. The 12 arrests were made on outstanding warrants from different parts of the province.

The event went off without incident. About 150 riders from 13 chapters of Satan's Choice and about 70 other motorcycle clubs attended the field day along with about 300 spectators.

Many of the motorcyclists attended the Canadian motorcycle hill climb at Mount Sherd, six miles northeast of here, Monday.

Power Cut

HAMILTON (CP) — A collision between a truck and a train left an area of the city without power for several hours Monday.

A Canadian National Railways diesel engine collided with a tandem transport truck and the impact of the collision knocked down several power lines.

Police said there were no serious injuries.

Ontario Place Closes Season

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Place, the provincial government's $25-million waterfront showplace, closed out its second season Monday, but fewer than 5,000 persons dotted the 94-acre landscape as chilling wind ripped across Lake Ontario.

Members of the Ontario Place orchestra performed in overcoats and scarves, and one beer player even wore earmuffs.

At the open-air Forum, where a special Thanksgiving program was staged, the few hundred spectators were parkas and gloves, and some were wrapped in blankets.

Officials said total attendance for this year was almost identical to the opening season's 2.2 million. It was boosted by 1.1 million during the Canadian National Exhibition when, for the first time a CNE ticket also got the holder into Ontario Place.

Wardair Record

EDMONTON (CP) — A Wardair Ltd. aircraft established a world distance record Sunday by carrying a load of pineapple from Hawaii to an orphanage in England. A company spokesman said the Boeing 707 set the record for the longest non-stop flight by a domestic or charter airline by flying from Honolulu to Gatwick Airport in England, a distance of 7,750 miles. The previous record, 7,540 miles, was set earlier this year by a British aircraft on a flight to Bagdad from Seattle.

Diesel Passes Stringent Tests

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — An experimental General Motors diesel engine, with 25 per cent fewer moving parts than a conventional diesel, is being tested by Ruan Transport Co. here.

GM officials say emissions from the truck, in use since June, are low enough to pass the stringent 1975 California air pollution standards, considered the toughest in the United States.

The engine is quieter and weighs less than a comparable 3 2 5-horsepower engine, although it costs more, said Bob Hicklin, president of Hicklin GM Diesel Inc. of Des Moines.

Business Women's Week Functions Are Planned

The Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club along with clubs in all principal cities and towns across Canada (with a total membership of over 5,000 women) will mark Business Women's Week October 15 - 21.

This very special week is set aside so that business women can demonstrate to their respective communities, the fact that women do work in almost every facet of Canadian economic life.

The Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs was established by Federal charter in July 1930 as a national organization to promote the interests of business and professional women in Canada and to affiliate with similar organizations in Canada and abroad.

Membership in a Business and Professional Women's Club provides a stimulating environment through leadership training, the exchange of ideas and the cementing of friendships and new members are always welcome.

The Belleville Club under the direction of Mrs. Jean Bell, women's Week committee chairman Dorothy Fluke, vice president Marion McFaul, has arranged a number of functions to take place during the week of celebrations. On opening day October 15, members will attend church parade to Bridge Street United Church for the service with brunch to follow in the Pirate Room at Hotel Quinte. At 8 p.m. there is a meeting on the Monday evening at the Sun Valley Motel a special speaker from the University of Labor, Mrs. Barbara Shields, will address the gathering. She has chosen a most appropriate topic, "Equal Employment Legislation", especially so as the economic status of women is a primary concern of B and P women's clubs. A special invitation is also extended to guests to bring their husbands to speak.

Other activities will take place during the week and it is hoped the overall participate in as many of the activities as possible.

Unmarried Couples Seek Counselling

WASHINGTON (AP) — You don't have to be married to seek out a marriage counselor.

From Boston to Beverly Hills, psychiatrists and counselors say that within the last year unmarried couples have been beating a track to their doors in unprecedented numbers.

"The principal reason they come is that most people who live together become emotionally involved and don't know how to break up," said Jarle Brors, founder of the Institute for Human Relations in Redlands in Washington.

Brors has almost once man two dozen family counselors questioned in a survey between metropolitan areas—Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, Miami, New York and Washington. All said their practices now include unmarried couples who live together.

"The understanding when they live together is that they're free," Brors said. "But it don't usually work that way. It's not much different from marriage except in one case they have a ring and in the other they don't.

One counselor gave this example of an unmarried couple that sought his advice:

Peter and Pat, two college students from New York, had been living together about a year.

Peter insisted he loved Pat and considered their relationship permanent, but he was not yet ready to get married," said the counselor.

Pat, after numerous arguments, they went to a family counselor. After four sessions, they split up.

"It became clear that neither of them felt comfortable together. After the first session it was clear that he did what he damn well pleased, and the fact that it was nothing more than a convenience for him."

Many of the counsellors said that the intrigue of living together is not what it is cracked up to be and sometimes wears thin after awhile.

"It's like trying to live with something the spirit doesn't go away," said Dr. Lawrence Balcherz, supervisor of the Boston office of the Family Counseling Guidance Centre, Inc. "Despite the service conferences and sophistication, they recognize the importance of a sustained commitment. They goes back to the traditional. I's been a part of them for so many years."

Some counsellors said that unmarried couples often seek help in relation to disapproval from family or neighbors.

"Some are afraid of their image and hide the fact they're not married," said Dr. Leopold D. Wasdee, a clinical psychologist in Greenbelt, Md.

"The fact that it's a relatively new phenomenon makes it difficult. Some people try to experiment with new kinds of social relationships, but they also have ties with the past."

Social And Personal

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. David L. Graham, formerly of Carrying Place and now residing in Windsor, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Joan Nancy to Lawrence Winn, of Fort Credit, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Winn. The marriage will take place on October 28, 1972 at 4.00 p.m. in St. John Vianney Church, Windsor Ont.

Dispute May Result in New Laws

OTTAWA (CP) — What started early this year as a dispute over alimony payments between a divorced Vancouver couple is threatening to turn into a full-scale constitutional issue before the Supreme Court of Canada.

The court's ultimate decision could nullify the power of judges to order maintenance payments under the federal Divorce Act. That would leave the provinces with the responsibility of drafting a complete set of laws dealing with alimony, child custody and other associated matters of divorce action.

Tuesday, the court decided to hear an appeal by Josephine Zacks against a ruling of the British Columbia Court of Appeal which had the effect of cutting off her support payments. The B.C. court ruled that her former husband, Louis Zacks, does not have to pay the $1,020 monthly payments ordered by the provincial divorce registrar because the maintenance order was not issued until the divorce already had been declared absolut.

In allowing the appeal, the Supreme Court agreed with Mrs. Zacks that the B.C. court of appeal had no power to clear wording in the Divorce Act and it should be examined thoroughly at the highest level.

Mrs. Zacks' lawyer, Neil Pelachman of Vancouver, is hoping to fight the appeal on the ground the section of the Divorce Act is unconstitutional.

His contention is that the British North America Act grants the federal government power over divorce, but is silent on all associated matters relating to the breakup of a marriage. Alimony, child custody and similar problems arising from a divorce are, he says, a provincial responsibility.

Women's Institutes

MELROSE WI

A demonstration on rug making highlighted the program for the October meeting of Melrose Women's Institute which was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Long. There were 17 members and seven visitors in attendance.

A short business period followed the regular opening procedures.

Mrs. W. English reported on meeting three members had attended at the Sun Luck Garden on an earlier date. The subject discussed at the meeting was "Man and Our Natural Resources". It was felt that since natural resources including land, air, water, minerals, trees are being exploited, a study is being made on how to cope with this problem. The Institute intends to continue a further interest and will attend further meetings. Next one is being held in Kingston in November.

It was noted that the area convention to be held in Peterborough will take as its date Sept 24 and 25. A delegate was chosen from the Melrose Branch to attend this event. An invitation was read from the Canniffon-Corbyville WI inviting members to an agricultural meeting which was held October 2. Guest speaker at this time was Grant Ketchison who had spent five months observing farming practices in the British Isles.

At the next meeting of the WI the 4-H Club (2) will attend and will put into practice the lessons learned in this fall's project, "The Club Girl Entertains." to be held at the home of Mrs. Sherry Delville.

For the program, Mrs. M. Haight of Picton, who specializes in rug making addressed the gathering. Numerous completed articles were shown, some of which were almost too intricate for a beginner. Slides of show pieced and appliqued articles with commentary from Mrs. Haight made a most interesting conclusion for her demonstration.

Mrs. Haight, who teaches this craft at Loyalist College in a 12-week course to begin shortly, was presented with a small token of appreciation.

The social committee served refreshments at the close.

Cooper and Remington WI

Mrs. G. Holmes president of the Cooper and Remington WI conducted the recent meeting which was held in the Community Centre with 12 members and five visitors present.

In opening, the president spoke briefly on the recent ACWW after which there was a short business period. A thank-you note was read from Mrs. F. Parks. Mrs. L. Conveyes thanked the members for boxes Lawrence and Shelley had received, and Mrs. C. Fitzgerald did likewise. Mrs. Parks gave the treasurer's report when it was decided to donate $5 to the Fair Board.

A discussion ensued, dealing with the area WI convention to be held in Peterborough Oct. 24 and 25 and Mrs. R. Rollins is looking after the WI participation. Mrs. F. Bolin gave a report on the 4-H training school. "The Club Girl Entertains".

Mrs. L. Parkes, resolutions convener was in charge of the program and she introduced Mrs. D. Carman, who came to show and narrate a trip which she and her husband had taken to Texas, California and other States. These proved to be most interesting, especially scenes from Disneyland and of the various canyons.

Miss M. Taylor expressed thanks to the speaker and presented her with a small gift in appreciation.

Lunch was served by the committee in charge.

LONSDALE W.I.

Lonsdale Womens Institute fall activities commenced on Sept. 19 with 11 members in attendance. The meeting opened in the usual manner by president Mrs. J. Safford. Regrets were read by Mrs. L. McGuinness. Business was attended to and it was decided to hold the first euchre party on Wed. Oct 4. The members are working on the quilt which will be raffled later on.

The 4-H girls modelled their garments which was their project in the sewing "Sewing with Knits". Rosemary McGuinness was the commentator.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. J. Bell who gave a paper on "food poisoning. She also had a contest the prize winners were: Mrs. E. Chappell and Mrs. B. Aldcorn. Mrs. Bell gave a humorous reading.

Dinner Held For Couple

RAWDON — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Broadworth were honored with a surprise dinner recently on the occasion of their 35th wedding anniversary. The dinner was held at the home of his brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Broadworth for the Broadworth family and several friends.

The gift of a rotary tree was made by Don Broadworth of Victoria, B.C. Don was his brother's groomsman at the marriage ceremony in 1937 and is now holidaying in the area.

Bankey — Hore

MR. AND MRS. DONALD CHARLES BANKEY

Queen Street United Church, Lindsay, was the setting for the recent wedding of Shirley Jean Hore, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hore, Reaboro, and Donald Charles Bankey, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bankey, of Belleville. Rev. J. R. Carbert officiated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Jane McQuarrie played a flute solo accompanied by organist G. Everson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white princess style gown of crimp lace, and a mohair picture hat trimmed in velvet ribbons. She carried a basket of white daisies, yellow carnations, and orange sweetheart roses.

The bride's attendant was Miss Sue Timmons, of Lindsay, who wore a carnation yellow crepe gown and a yellow mohair picture hat and carried a basket of white daisies and yellow carnations.

The best man was Ernest Shaw of Belleville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

For the reception held at the home of the bride, the bride's mother received wearing a princess style dress of delph blue, with white accessories, and a corsage of pink miniature carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a two - piece rose crimp dress, with white accessories and a corsage of miniature pink and white carnations.

New Day Care Centre At Madoc

MADOC — The fall Centre Stage Dramatic School will register its youngest students ever — ages three to five years — in the New Day Care Centre.

A registration workshop will be held at the Secondary School on Wednesday afternoon, October 11, 1972 from 1 - 3 p.m. The purpose of the workshop is to register the pre-schoolers and to introduce their mothers to the new Centre. initiated this year in conjunction with the new homemaking course there, the social education at Centre Hastings.

The purpose of the new Centre is three-fold. Firstly, it will provide greater opportunities for community involvement in the special education program; secondly, it is designed to enhance the training of the young girls whose need is to learn more about young children. Thirdly, it will provide opportunities for the "underfive" child to develop early skills and an awareness of the social group he/she is in.

Much thoughtful concern has gone into the planning of this program by people who recognize that a child is greatly influenced, for his entire life by what happens around him and to him during his first few years. It is during this early period that a child, in his playing and talking develops the necessary vocabulary, the lively thinking and the understanding so essential to mental development.

Supervision of the Day Care Centre will be by the Hastings County Board of Education for purposes of satisfying requirements of the Day Nurseries Branch, Queen's Park, Toronto.

The Centre will operate three mornings per week — Monday, Wednesday and Friday under the supervision of the school nurse, Mrs. Rita Moore. Presently, Mrs. Ina Tarrant, Mrs. Connie Lake and Mrs. Bud Sutton have volunteered their time and services to assist with this program. Other mothers may be invited as volunteers in this new program.

Mothers are asked to register at Centre Hastings Secondary School, Room 114 on October 11, 1972 between 1 and 3 p.m. For any further information they may contact D. Empey at 473-4251.

Madoc Couple Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary

MADOC — Recently Mr. and Mrs. Eric Ormerod celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at their home, four miles south of Madoc on No. 62 Highway.

The couple were married in St. Barbabas Church (Chesterfield), Derbyshire, England, Danforth Avenues, Toronto, on September 16, 1922. Mrs. Ormerod was the former Edith Purchase. Seventeen years ago, she and Mr. Ormerod moved to Crookston, where they have resided ever since. Mr. Ormerod operates White Lake Florist there.

They have two daughters and five sons: "Mrs. Lyall (Marion) Hi of Cobourg and Mrs. John (Vi) Holmes of Toronto, also Ernest Ormerod of Madoc, George Ormerod of Toronto, Leonard Ormerod of Markham, Wilfred Ormerod of Toronto and Walter Ormerod of Toronto.

Several of their grandchildren were present during the afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Nettie Ash and Mrs. Edna Adams of Madoc Legion convened the lunch and served tea.

During the day Mr. and Mrs. Ormerod were presented from the community with table lamps and table - top plaques from Bestbuds U.C.W. and the Ladies Auxiliary to the John the Baptist Anglican Church, Madoc, and Hunington Veterans Branch 263 Legion.

Mrs. Ormerod's youngest sister, Mrs. Jack Selwood, of Toronto was the flower girl. Also present was her oldest sister, Mrs. Ida Rees of Toronto.

The evening reception was held at Madoc Legion Hall 263 where music was provided by the Random Band of Wilfred Ormerod, Bob Gellen and John Tebworth. Master of ceremonies at their home, four miles south of Madoc on No. 62 Highway.

Ann Landers

Serviceman Objects To Mom's Reference

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in reference to the young lady, whose mother objected to her going to the U.S.O. because it was a pick-up spot for low class servicemen.

Well, I am one of those "low class" servicemen," she spoke of. I am not happy in the military. In fact, I would be much happier going to college but like many servicemen I joined the service because I didn't have enough money for college. I joined so I can get veteran's benefits when my time is up and then go to school. If it is low-class to trade four years in the service for a college education then I am low-class.

The civilian populace shouldn't consider all servicemen guilty of committing war crimes and such. I realize it isn't considered cool to be in the military these days, but for some of us, it is the only way we can see to get ahead.

I hope the young lady's mother will let her go to the U.S.O. and be a hostess. For servicemen it is a very important place to rap since most civilians don't want anything to do with us.

I agree with you, Ann. That mother owes several hundred thousand servicemen an apology, but I'm sure not going to hold my breath waiting for it to sign me — Low-Class Serviceman At Keesler Air Force Base

Dear Friend: I salute you for a letter that calls it like it is. As for that mother, she sounds like the type whose brains go AWOL when her mouth goes co-active daily.

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend my husband and I gave a party for his new boss in our lovely new home. There were about 40 people, most of whom I had met at once or twice. I saw one of the wives pick up a china figurine and slip it into her purse. I decided to say nothing.

The next day when I told my husband about it he was furious at me for not calling her on it right then and there. To be frank with you, Ann, I just couldn't do it.

Next week we are going to the woman's home for a similar party. My husband says I should look around for the figurine and if I see it, take it with me. I feel this would be wrong. Do you?—Mine And Not Thine.

Dear Thine: Yes, I do feel it would be wrong. Somehow I just can't condone taking something out of someone else's home even if you are certain it was stolen from yours. If you should see the figurine on display you might ask the hostess where she got it because you "mistook" one similar and would love to replace it. Perhaps she'll offer to give you hers.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband died 20 years ago. I was in my 30s then. At that time I bought a cemetery plot consisting of four graves. After being a widow for six years I married again. Would it be proper for me and my second husband to be buried alongside my first husband? Or should I sell these plots and buy two plots elsewhere?—Looking To The Future.

Dear Looking: You don't say whether or not you have children. Nor do you say how your present husband feels about being buried alongside your first husband, should he predecease you. If you are pondering him how would he feel about burying you alongside your first husband? Also, you're only in your 50s, and you might marry again. My advice is to sell the lots and buy two others and don't try to second-guess the Grim Reaper.

Successful Living

Reasons for Parents' Abuse to Tots

By DORIS CLARK

"We are loath to think that nice people who live in nice houses abuse their children, but they do. Only a minute percentage of parents who batter are sychotic, but virtually all of them have a common link — they were, themselves, abused as children either physically or because they lived in punitive, cold, unloving homes.

"They want nice children but do not know how to mend this goal because they never had realistic demands made of them.

We profess to abhor battering, we have eliminated corporeal punishment within our penal institutions, yet we still maintain the use of the strap in the school system. Spanking is really only an object lesson in bullying." — Mary Van Stolk, author of "The Battered Child in Canada". (from C.A.S. News, Vancouver).

Dear Doris: I'd like to thank you and the other persons who were so concerned about my husband and sons, and the way they were abusing my young daughter.

I had a tough time but I got them all to our family doctor.

When he questioned them my daughter seemed to fall completely apart. She started crying and shaking terribly. When we all came home they promised me there would be no more of their mistreatment. But they soon got back at their sister. They even undressed her.

Our neighbor dropped in and was very angry; he beat up on her, wrapped a blanket around my girl and took her home with him. My daughter and I shed a lot of tears that night. Later we moved out. I have an apartment with a nice middle-aged lady who stays with us for room and board. My daughter is happy now and I am too.

But my daughter is lazy. She was still in bed when I came home at noon one day. All it took was a few seconds of tickling those bare feet and she was awake. Now that she would get up if I'd quit tickling her. Once when she was sick her father came in and tickled her with his cold feet. It frightened her out. He just laughed. I believe he was mentally ill. — Mrs. R. J. M.

Dear Doris: I've heard of a woman making Rose Petal Jam in Yorkshire in England. Do you think this gentleman who supplied the Rose Potpourri recipe may know something about that too?

She wrote to say it takes 24 roses to make a one pound jar and it is delicious. But she made no mention of how to make it — Rose Jar.

Dear Rose Jar: Let's ask our readers. Who has a recipe for Rose Petal Jam?

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

Mirror of Your Mind

by JOHN CONWELL

Should a love be 'cleared' first?

NOT necessarily, although almost any man or woman would like parents, family, relatives and friends to approve of his or her choice is a romance and—if it is to be—love and marriage. Yet, if a man, say, is everything a woman expects of him and she believes he is the man she could be happy with, she needn't worry if he doesn't win any popularity contests with others. She is the one who must make the final judgment; she is the one he must please.

Are neat people the best thinkers?

NOT necessarily; definitely not those self-designated "good thinkers" whose neatness derives from neurotic tendencies. In fact a person who is almost fanatically neat might be trying to prove a point. He might be trying to convince everyone that he is neat and orderly in everything he does because that is the only way he can operate; and he wants to convey the impression that his thought process is just as neat and uncluttered.

What if a child tells a dirty joke?

IGNORE it if possible; if not, laugh. Don't punish the child. He's heard the joke either around the house, or in the street. Nine times out of ten, the youngster is telling it for shock value only. Once he sees nothing much has been made of it, the child—if he has a mind to tell jokes—will go on to something that seems unrelated to him. Parents can be sure his brand of humor will not depend on risque matters which to the child are not funny at all.

Panel Agrees Toronto Draining Area Resources

TORONTO (CP) — Experts on municipal management have suggested that the Metropolitan Toronto region has grown economically obese and is draining the resources of the rest of the province.

The group, taking part in a seminar on municipal organization sponsored by The Globe and Mail, called for a more flexible tax-sharing arrangement in Ontario to restore economic autonomy.

Municipal leaders involved in the seminar included Mayor Mackenzie Chown of St. Catharines, Mayor H. D. Logan of Lindsay and J. H. Moore, Hamilton economic development commissioner.

Some speakers said Toronto has become an absentee landlord, controlling the size and function of most communities within 120 miles of the Toronto waterfront.

Mayor Logan said Lindsay is typical of smaller communities that are being adversely affected by the province's development of a Toronto-centred planning region.

"Lindsay has an absentee landlord sitting comfortably in a controlled environment and planning for an uncontrolled environment. We can't afford a full-time administrator or professional help and we're not likely to grow big enough to achieve these things alone. Our growth is effectively frozen by the province," he said.

His said Lindsay is a recreation centre for Toronto and needs capital to buy waterfront land and to build sanitary sewers.

Mayor Chown supported Mr. Logan's position, but called for a reversal of the trend toward conditional provincial grants.

"We should receive the money without strings, provincial averaging of funds is a better answer," he said.

Automobile Test Checks Exhaust

TORONTO (CP) — Drivers of late-model cars in downtown Toronto are being flagged down these days and spirited away to a small garage operated by the Ontario ministry of the environment.

There, the car is mounted on a treadmill-like machine and run at 30 miles an hour while uniformed policemen check dials, gauges and charts.

After the car is put through about 12 minutes of simulated driving, the car is cleared either that his vehicle has passed the pollution-control test or that it requires corrective attention.

So far, the tests show that the equipment—mandatory on new vehicles since 1968—has cut unburned hydro-carbon and carbon monoxide emissions by about 50 per cent.

Besides monitoring the cars for emission of pollutants, the free tests also provide an analysis of engine performance which could cost the owner $10 or more in a private garage.

Land Yacht Chases Policeman

PERTH, Australia (AP) — An alarmed police motorcyclist raced for his life Monday after a head-on road encounter with a speeding land yacht driven by Princess Margaret's husband, Lord Snowdon.

Accompanied by a racing official, Lord Snowdon took the yacht along the dusty Kambalda road. Their speed was an estimated 40 m.p.h. when a policeman rounded a bend in the opposite direction. The policeman turned smartly on the narrow road and sped back the way he had come, with the yacht in pursuit.

The situation was saved when the yacht lost wind on a sharp bend.

Snowdon borrowed the policeman's motorcycle and rode back to Princess Margaret and the official party.

That was great," he said.

Worst Weekend In Five Years

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada had its worst Thanksgiving weekend for accidental deaths in five years as at least 92 persons were killed across the country.

Road mishaps claimed the lives during the 78-hour holiday period, seven more than had been predicted by the Canada Safety Council.

Chicken Pluckers Set Record

SPRING HILL, Fla. (AP) — The feathers flew in Spring Hill, Fla., where a four-woman team of chicken pluckers topped the world record in their specialty Saturday by stripping a dozen birds in four minutes 25.5 seconds.

"The secret," said Spring Hill team-captain Sofia Hutchinson, "is stripping, rather than pulling the feathers."

The previous best time, as listed in the Guinness World Book of Records was 6:31.

It was the second annual chicken-pluckers affair at Spring Hill.

The main event, which pitted Spring Hill against Masaryktown, was preceded by the lighting of an "Olympic" torch which spewed feathers into the air and coated a crowd of 1,100 onlookers.

Oven Keeps Birds Warm

TORONTO (CP) — The cool breath of autumn has resulted in a mixture of cold feet and hot ovens in a downtown Toronto apartment block.

About 300 persons in the 10-storey building have been without heat because the building's boiler is not working.

Some have taken to sleeping fully dressed while others are fighting the chilly temperatures by using their stoves for heat.

Another tenant, Anne Milyer, was worried about her eight parakeets.

"They're my pets, they're my life," she said.

Her oven was blazing away at 300 degrees.

Spassky to Return

MOSCOW. (AP) — Boris Spassky, pondering his loss of the world chess championship to Bobby Fischer, says he plans to enter the elimination tournament for a 1975 challenge of the American titleholder.

Spassky broke his month-long public silence in an interview with the Soviet chess magazine, 64.

He says Spassky still is

NFB Drama Withdrawn

TORONTO (CP) — The National Film Board has withdrawn a fictional drama dealing with income-tax evasion from the Canadian Film Awards.

"An NFB man telephoned to say The Sloane Affair must be withdrawn immediately and not shown because its sponsor wouldn't allow it to be seen at this time," Gerald Pratley, this awards jury chairman, said Sunday.

He said the federal revenue department sponsored the film.

Pratley was critical of the removal of the movie.

"This is a film made with the taxpayer's money and they're being deprived of seeing what their money is used for and that's terrible," he said.

Officials of the National Film Board could not be reached for comment.

Screenings for the Canadian awards are being held at the St. Lawrence Arts Centre here throughout the week.

U.S. to Aid Launchings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced Monday the United States will provide other countries, including Communist China, with assistance in launching space satellites for peaceful use.

A spokesman for the National Security Council told reporters at a White House briefing the countries "as long as each launching was for peaceful purposes."

In the past, the U.S. provided such assistance only to several European countries, all of whom are members of the European Space Conference.

Nixon's announcement said the launch assistance is to be made available either at U.S. or foreign launch sites. Nations asking for the U.S. service will be charged on the same basis as U.S. firms which have used government launch vehicles to put communications satellites in orbit.

Val Scott Says Just Curious

TORONTO (CP) — Val Scott, New Democratic Party candidate for Toronto-York West, says he is embarrassed, because word has leaked out that he recently visited a Toronto clairvoyant who told him he is going to win the Oct. 30 federal election.

Asked by reporters about the visit, Mr. Scott said that Elias Malleat, who claims to have predicted Prince Minister Pierre Trudeau's wedding and other events, "doesn't keep confidences" and that he had been placed in a "semi-embarrassing position."

Mr. Scott said he went to Mr. Malleat out of curiosity and that he is a serious student of parapsychology and transcendental meditation.

First Senior Win

Quintes Catch Fire on Aces

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville Quintes lit coach "Weiner" Brown's victory cigar in their second senior hockey outing of the season Sunday, providing most of the fuel by scoring five first-period goals en route to a 6 - 5 win.

AL FERGUSON

home ice win over Kingston Aces.

"Yes that was a bit better, all right," grinned Brown, who 48 hours earlier saw his charges stumble to a 7 - 4 loss in a lacklustre season's opener in Kingston.

As in Friday's game, it appeared that the Belleville sensations are going to be relying on the Bread - and - butter line of George Godson, Al Ferguson, and Lorne O'Donnell to provide most of the scoring punch.

"That Georgie's playing pretty well, considering he's only been on the ice three times this year," Brown applauded the Quintes' premiere skater, who missed the last portion of last season with a knee injury and is only attended one training camp practice before signing this fall.

Godson, who picked up a pretty assist on a shorthanded goal by O'Donnell in Kingston Friday, picked up a goal and two helpers Sunday. Ferguson, who scored in Friday's opener, added two more Sunday to give him a healthy start toward another 30 - goal season.

O'Donnell, who scored and assisted twice in Friday's loss, earned four assists Sunday to make him the club's early-season point leader with seven.

Other Belleville marksmen were defenceman Bob Edmunds, who was credited with a goal at 5.20 when Kingston's John Ford put the puck into his own net; Wayne McConnell, who scored at 18.25 of the opening period to send the hometowners to the dressing room with a 5 - 2 lead; and newcomer Bob Taylor, whose first goal as a Quinte at 4.23 of the middle period proved to be the winner.

Peter Kennedy, Kingston's leading scorer in his rookie season last year with 30 goals and 33 assists in 36 games, got his second hat trick in as many games against the Quintes. Les Colligan and Mike Flanigan added the other Kingston goals.

The Quintes roared into an early lead before the 4,300 who turned out for the first of their 22 home - game schedule, scoring three times within a 55-second span, beginning at 4.20 when Al Ferguson batted his own rebound past Mike Lovell.

Mead Squirts Give Trophy Two-way Bus Ride

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

GALT — Mead Johnson Squirts had plenty of time to look at their category's Ontario Amateur Softball Association trophy this weekend, and they must have liked what they saw.

The 11-year-olds, who performed the chore of transporting the trophy to their final series with Sarnia Valley Chemicals from the Belleville contendership of OASA secretary Cliff Belch, gave it a two-way trip by beating Sarnia 3-1 Sunday.

The win came on a neutral Galt diamond to give the mighty Meads a 2-1 verdict in the best - of - three final series they opened with a 3-1 win in Belleville last week and which Sarnia prolonged with a 2-1 verdict Saturday.

Sunday's win, the Meads' squirts' 26th of the season, brought Belleville only its second - ever OASA minor title. The first, a 1957 province championship, began a 15-year provincial softball championship drought that the squirts and Howard and Robert Pringle's Intermediate AA team brought to a dramatic end on the same weekend.

It took a perfectly executed defensive play by pitcher Jack - leading Sarnia's rally that threatened Belleville's 3-0 lead Sunday.

With one out and a runner on first, pitcher John Wilhelm, whose last - inning home run won Saturday's game for Sarnia, crashed a Tim Soule delivery about 30 feet past left-fielder Steve Gilbey.

The first Sarnia runner scored, but Gilbey chased down the ball, heaved it on the fly to shortstop Andy Rossit, who cut Wilhelm down at the plate with a perfect strike to catcher Darrell Coltman.

"That's why our kids are the best in the province, they never give up," beamed Herb Coltman, completing a successful debut in his first year of softball coaching.

Soule got the next Sarnia batter to ground out on the first pitch to send Mead players, coaches, and parents streaming onto the field to mob one another.

Rossit was Sunday's defensive star for Meads, who played errorless ball to the two weekend games.

The team captain stopped a first inning Sarnia threat by scaring a pop foul beside the third-base fence. He robbed heavy - hitting Wilhelm of a sure single in the fourth inning when he leaped to flab his line drive with Rocco Cicinni ready to advance from second base.

Two pitches later, Rossit caught the Sarnia runner off guard, firing the ball to second - baseman Ron Begley for an inning - ending pickoff play.

Begley gave Belleville a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the third inning, drawing a walk, advancing to third on a passed ball and John Henry's single, and scoring on a Sarnia throwing error.

That was all the scoring until the Belleville sixth, when Rossit led off by beating out a bunt and taking second on an overthrow. With one out, Darrell Coltman, who was robbed of an extra-base hit in the fourth inning when he smashed a liner right at the left fielder, advanced Rossit to third with a single.

Rossit drew a throw that went wide and permitted him to scamper home with Belleville's second run. Coltman came around from second on passed balls to give Belleville a 3-0 lead.

The Belleville contingent was making plans for a Saturday celebration in Sarnia when Tim Soule was coasting along on a 1-0 no-hitter going into the sixth inning. Ron Begley led off the game with a single up the middle, advanced on Darrell Coltman's single, and came home on two passed balls.

Then in the bottom of the sixth, Sarnia's Paul Carahar led off with a single and came all the way home on John Dillon's double.

Peter Moran led off the Sarnia seventh with a single and pitcher Wilhelm cracked a Soule pitch for a left field homer to make the official score 2-1.

Sarnia had evened the series despite being outhit 11-4. Soule, who had beaten Sarnia three times in tournament competition earlier in the season and tossed a one hitter at them in the series' opener, struck out nine and didn't issue a walk.

Winning pitcher Wilhelm was touched for two hits each by Ron Begley, Bob Hedge, and Paul Soule' bat, after three first - inning singles, never allowed more than two Belleville safeties in an inning. Wilhelm struck out six, walked one, and stranded eight baserunners.

Sunday's win climaxed a sensational season for the Belleville squirts who compiled a record of 26 wins, one tie, and four losses. Along the way, they won the Belleville Minor Softball Association peewee house league championship, the grand championship at Richmond Hill's squirt tournament, a championships at Oshawa, Markham, and Belleville tourneys, and the B crown at an Etobicoke tournament.

Before Saturday's loss in Sarnia, the Meads had been unbeaten in OASA play, sweeping Napanee, Peterborough, Pakenham, Oshawa, and Barrie in straight games.

On their return to Belleville Sunday night, the team had received a police escort to the Memorial Arena where the players were introduced to the spectators between periods of a Belleville - Kingston senior hockey game.

Quinte Sports Foundation president Jim Harold Williamson presented season's passes to each member of the team and coaches Coltman, Larry Hedge, and manager Fred Soule.

Monday, former city mayor and Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings — Jack Ellis — spent three hours giving team members aerial tours of the Quinte area in his private plane.

MIGHTY MEADS — Members of the Mead Johnson Ontario Amateur Softball Association Squirt champions are: bottom row, from left: Ron Begley, Darrell Coltman, John Henry, Andy Rossit, Bob Hedge, Tim Soule; middle row: Paul Soule, David Urch, Steve Gilbey, Allan Brooks, Donnie Turner, Silvano Pallesa; back row: head coach Herb Coltman, assistant coach Larry Hedge, manager Fred Soule.

FIRST STEP — Andy Rossit heats out a bunt on his first leg of a four-base journey that provided Mead Johnson Squirts with the winning run in a 3-1 decision over Sarnia Sunday. The Belleville team took the Ontario Amateur Softball Association squirt title two games to one.

Armless Kicker Realizes His Goal

NEW PROVIDENCE, N.J., (AP) — Physical handicaps don't necessarily need to be hinderances in the rough and tumble sport of football.

Ben Agajanian, whose toes were severed when his right foot was caught in an elevator shaft, became a standout kicker.

Tom Dempsey, currently the Philadelphia Eagles placekicker, was born with only half of a right foot.

Skip Selzer, a 17-year-old born without arms, is New High School's reserve kicker.

Selzer realized a boyhood dream when he kicked an extra point against Don Bosco High Sept. 23.

Selzer fell over the field when coach Frank Bziome summoned Selzer for the place kick effort.

"You could hear the fans in the stands whispering, Come on Skip! said a reporter.

More Sport
Pages 12, 20, 21

"and it seemed like it took the ball quite a while before it split the uprights.

"The fans went wild and so did all the players on the field, including the opposition. Everybody rooted for the kid."

"It was the happiest moment of my life," Selzer said with a smile after the game. "I've always wanted to kick just one point."

"Skip was determined to make the squad," said Bottoni.

"He was a freshman team manager and then served two years as varsity manager.

"During those three seasons, Skip, practised place kicking whenever he had spare time.

"Despite his small size, 5-foot-8, 160 pounds, he developed a strong right leg that helps him kick them right down the middle."

Skip was fitted with artificial limbs at age two, but he doesn't use them in a game.

Is he planning to play in college?

"I don't know," he says. "But if somebody asks me to play, I would give it a try."

Lupenette Helps Royals Stand Pat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cornwall Royals and Quebec Remparts are in a familiar position fighting for first-place honors in the Quebec Junior A Hockey League standings after a week of action in the circuit.

The Royals, defending Canadian junior hockey champions and holders of the Memorial Cup, remained deadlocked with the Remparts, the 1970-71 Memorial Cup champions, with a 6-4 win over Shawinigan Bruins Sunday night.

In other games, Quebec clipped the Montreal Red, White and Blue 8-3, Sherbrooke Beavers edged Sorel Black Hawks 5-4, and Laval Nationals dumped Trois-Rivieres Ducs 5-2.

Both Quebec and Cornwall are undefeated in four games and have a four-point lead over Laval and Shawinigan.

In Cornwall, Yvan Boullon fired two for the Royals, en charing, he eventual game-winner at 10:37 of the third. Blair McDonald, Brian McCullough Bob Geoffrion and Boullon had given the Royals their 4-0 edge.

Claude Arvisais and Maxime Quesnacks tallied for Shawinigan to open the third and, after Boullon's goal, Renaud Gagnon and Quesnacks, with his second, brought the Bruins to within one goal of a tie.

Dan Lupenette ended the scoring for Cornwall at 13:15. Cornwall outshot the Bruins 43-23 before 2,456 fans.

In Monday night's only game, Sherbrooke crushed 9-4 to Laval.

The League returnes action on three fronts tonight with Montreal travelling to Cornwall, Sorel visiting Trois-Rivieres and Shawinigan playing in Quebec City.

Japanese Prefer CFL Style

TORONTO (CP) — The Japanese have discovered Canadian football.

Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said Sunday the CFL will be providing films, rule books and other data to Japanese promoters "anxious to establish our game in their country."

Japan is already a hotbed for football with a 15-team league.

"By till now we have played the 11-man football of the Americans, but we are changing," said one of those Japanese promoters, Tatsuhiko Mori, who conferred with Gaudaur during the Toronto Argonaut-Montreal Alouette game Sunday.

The first Japanese game of Canadian - style football is scheduled for Dec. 10 between Mori's Osaka Sidewinders and Tokyo Thunderers.

"We feel your game is more wide open than the American game," Mori said. "We are going completely Canadian—23 men, wider field, the works."

Liverpool By A Head

LONDON (CP) — Pat Cormack scored with a spectacular diving header Saturday and sent Liverpool into a two-point lead at the head of the English championship soccer race.

Cormack's goal, in the 75th minute, gave Liverpool a 1-0 victory over Everton before a crowd of 45,000.

Arsenal, racing Liverpool for top place, had a disastrous day against Sheffield United, losing 1-0. Alan Ball, the World Cup star, was sent off the field.

Campy Kicked Out

DETROIT (AP) Right-hander Joe Coleman had the job of keeping Detroit Tigers' hopes alive as Oakland aimed for a sweep today in baseball's American League playoffs.

The Athletics, who took the first two games in the best-of-five series at Oakland, countered with left-hander Ken Holtzman. An Oakland victory would advance them to the World Series against the National League champion.

The Tigers, facing elimination, remained confident of a comeback.

"If we win tomorrow," said manager Billy Martin at Monday's workout, "we'll win three in a row.

"We've always risen up to the situation before and we can do it again."

Martin and the Tigers got one piece of good news before their workout. They learned that Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris had been suspended from the remainder of the playoffs and fined $500 for hurling his bat at Tiger pitcher Lerrin LaGrow in Sunday's second game.

"Good," exclaimed Martin. "That's what he had coming."

But almost before Detroit's tiger manager Billy Martin had a chance to smile at the suspension, his shortstop, Ed Brinkman, was ruled out for the season due to a back injury.

Brinkman, who set major league records for most errors (1) and highest fielding percentage (.986) for shortstops this season, was x-rayed Monday and found to have a ruptured disc in his lower back.

Martin had led a Tiger charge out of the dugout after the Athletics' shortstop was hit by a pitch and responded by heaving his bat. It took three umpires to keep the Tiger skipper away from Campaneris.

Campaneris' suspension was good news for Coleman. The speedster stole 52 bases during the regular season, leading the American League for the sixth time in eight years. He swiped two Sunday before the seventh-inning attack.

"We're not out of this thing yet," said Martin.

Oakland manager Dick Williams, enjoying his club's two-game cushion, was confident that the Athletics could finish the series quickly.

"We're prepared to fly out after the game," said Williams, "after we win it."

Pirates Riding Ellis' Sore Arm

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pitts burgh Pirates are going to steal a leaf from the book of Cincinnati Reds and try to win the National League pennant today with the help of sore-arm pitcher Dock Ellis.

The Pirates, however, hope they have better luck than the Reds.

Cincinnati pinned its hopes Monday on the ailing right arm of Gary Nolan, but the pressure of going all-out against the power-packed Pittsburgh lineup took its toll.

Nolan's arm stiffened in the sixth inning and he left with a one-run lead that the Pirates overcame 3-2 to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five pennant playoff.

"I went as hard as I could for as long as I could," said the dejected Nolan, who had pitched 15 innings since the all-star game in July and hasn't completed a contest since shutting out Los Angeles Dodgers 5-0 on June 26. "I just ran out of gas."

Ellis' story is almost a carbon copy. The 77-year-old right-handed pitcher has a chronic elbow condition. He went six innings Sept. 30, and allowed one hit to New York Mets, but it was his first start since Sept. 13.

The Pirates' victory Monday was keyed by outfielder Rennie Stennett and catcher Manny Sanguillen. Relief pitchers Bruce Kison and Dave Giusti came on to check the Reds' big bats after Pittsburgh wiped out a 2-0 Cincinnati lead.

Stennett made the first big play Cincinnati's Johnny Bench tripled leading off the fourth with the Reds already up 2-0.

Pirates' starter Nelson Briles got, Tony Perez on a running ba c k-to-the-plate catch by shortstop Gene Alley. He then walked Denis Menke. Cesar Geronimo hit a fly ball to Stennett in left, and the outfielder fired a strike to Sanguillen to nail Bench trying to score after the catch.

Stennett's throw seemed to fire the Pirates. A half-inning later, Sanguillen engaged in a guessing game with Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench. The Pirates catcher guessed right. He figured Nolan would throw him a fastball and he socked one over the left-centrefield fence for a home run to make it 2-1.

Pittsburgh tied it in the seventh off relievers Pedro Borbon and Clay Carroll when Rich Hebner was hit by a pitch, Sanguillen singled and Gene Alley sacrificed to place runners at second and third.

Stewart Leads All Way

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) Jackie Stewart of Scotland led all the way Sunday and won the United States Grand Prix road race.

France's Cevert of France, who won last year, finished second and Denis Hulme of New Zealand was third.

Stewart, who won the Grand Prix here in 1968, set a record for the race with an average speed of 117.482 miles an hour and finished better than 32 seconds ahead of Cevert, who set the old record of 115.002 m.p.h. last year.

Ottawa Worried About Ticats

By IAN MacLADINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

For a team that had just drubbed the defending national champions, Ottawa Rough Riders showed more concern Monday about their future.

The Riders romped over Calgary Stampeders 45-30 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game in Ottawa to reclaim a share of first place in the Eastern Football Conference with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

It's those same Ticats, who administered an earlier beating, 50-24, to Calgary on Saturday, which the Ottawa players worried.

Their dressing room after the Calgary game took on an atmosphere of deep concern, rather than one of expected jubilance after their convincing win that reigned a share of top spot.

"They've got us super-psyched . . . and we've got to take away their big plays to stop them," admitted linebacker Jerry Campbell whose key interception in the first quarter was converted two plays later into Ottawa's first touchdown.

The Ticats have won all three meetings with Ottawa this year.

The only other weekend action in the East saw Toronto Argonauts maintain a slim playoff hope with 31-4 victory Sunday over Montreal Alouettes, the team they must beat to earn a shot at the Eastern post-season laurels.

"Every time we play Hamilton they come up with the big plays like the first interception I had today," recalled Campbell. It set the stage for quarterback Rick Cassata's 26-yard touchdown toss to Terry Welseley.

Cassata passed for two more major scores, to Tom Pullen and Gerry Organ, and Art Green tells ran 55 yards for another. Organ covered the five scores, added three field goals and missed on another field goal attempt that went for a single. He padded his league-leading points total to 103.

Larry Robinson missed one of the four converts and connected on one field goal attempt, pushing his CFL career records to 141 field goals and 228 converts respectively.

Hamilton's Tommy Joe Coffey used the Calgary game to improve on three of his CFL career marks—most points (850), pass receptions (64) and passing yardage (10,318).

The veteran wide receiver made only one reception in the game that gave him a touchdown. He was always a threat in the Calgary secondary where quarterback Chuck Ealey used him primarily as a decoy while directing traffic elsewhere.

Larry Highbaugh and Dave Flemming each scored two touchdowns for the Tiesta.

The Argos were trailing Montreal 24-0 on wide field goal attempts by Montreal's Don Sweet in the first quarter when quarterback Joe Theismann started moving the Toronto attack.

The offence, sputtering under Wally Gabler, suddenly came alive and Theismann responded with a touchdown strike to Joe Allen. Running back Leon McQuay later dove over for another score.

Eskimos Keep Down

Edmonton Eskimos preserved their hold on first place while Saskatchewan Roughriders went into the air as the teams created important victories in Western Football Conference action during the thanksgiving weekend.

Import running backs Sandy Scarbor and Roy Bell were unstoppable as the Eskimos downed Winnipeg Blue Bombers 24-15 in Edmonton Monday, while quarterback Ron Lancaster threw two touchdown passes as the Roughriders thumped British Columbia Lions 24-16 in Regina Sunday.

The victory boosted Edmonton into a first-place tie with Winnipeg at 8-4, while the Lions and Regina Roughriders are deadlocked in second place contention. With Calgary's 45-30 loss to Ottawa Monday, Edmonton and Winnipeg clinched playoff positions while the Roughriders moved closer to locking up final berth.

Calgary, with a 4-8 record, has only an outside chance of catching the Stampeders, who are 7-5.

Saskatchewan's win was their 21st consecutive victory over B.C. since 1965.

Reserve Clause On Way Out?

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — A landmark ruling that professional hockey is not immune from the anti-trust laws of the United States could be in the offing today. Such a ruling would mean the removal of the lifelong down hockey players is illegal.

Judge Leon Higginbotham, hearing the court battle between the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association over player contracts, had indicated that pro hockey, unlike baseball, may be subject to anti-trust laws.

Judge Higginbotham, in U.S. district court, told lawyers for both sides Monday that "you can be sure I'm going to rule that hockey is not immune from anti-trust regulations."

He said he would not make any ruling before 10 a.m. EDT today.

Philadelphia Blazers of the WHA, which begin their inaugural season Thursday, charged that the NHL, now in its 56th season, has an illegal monopoly in professional hockey and that the reserve clause in NHL contracts perpetually prohibit players from negotiating outside the league.

The NHL countersued in several cases, charging that top-class players violated their contracts by signing lucrative agreements to play in the WHA.

The WHA will operate without a reserve clause in players' contracts. Such reserve clauses have been under fire for several years in the U.S. and Canada.

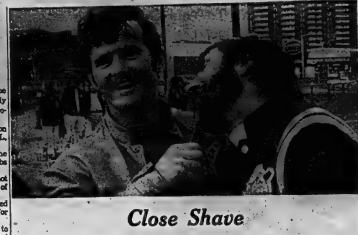
However, the WHA has signed players to multi-year contracts.

All the major hockey suits have been consolidated and sent to Philadelphia for hearings before Judge Higginbotham.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled recently in a case involving former major league outfielder Curt Flood that baseball is exempt from anti - trust laws. Higginbotham's remark to the lawyers apparently eliminates any similar exemption for hockey in the cases before him.

The principal suit pits John McKenzie, former star of the Boston Bruins, against the NHL. McKenzie, who signed a $500,000 player-coach contract with the Blazers, claims the NHL reserve clause illegally cenied him the right to negotiate outside the league.

Herbert Dym, a Washington lawyer representing the NHL, told Judge Higginbotham:



"It appears to me they (the WHA) want to raid NHL clubs for hockey players.

"The anti-trust laws do not require the self-destruction of professional sports leagues."

At one point, the judge asked Harold Rahn, lawyer for McKenzie:

"How much time do I have to decide this? When is the first game?"

The first game, he was told, is Thursday when the Blazers open their season against New England Whalers in Boston.

Rangers Open Season With Double Setback

By IAN MacLAREN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Emile Francis, the plucky little general manager-coach of New York Rangers, was still upset Monday after his club arrived home from a disastrous National Hockey League weekend.

The Rangers, least severely hit among the NHL leaders by the rival World Hockey Association, were conceded by most to be bein apparent to the East Division crown and odds-on favorites to assume the Stanley Cup mantle from Boston Bruins.

EMILE FRANCIS

The Rangers lost only little-used defenceman Jim Dorey to the WHA while Boston lost three—Gerry Cheevers, Derek Sanderson and John McKenzie—to the WHA and Ed Westfall to the expansionist New York Islanders.

But the Rangers were humiliated in their two opening games by teams not expected to pose much resistance. Detroit Red Wings took a 5-0 lead en route to a 5-3 win Saturday night and Chicago Black Hawks rolled up a 5-1 score over the New Yorkers Sunday.

Had Francis ever before experienced such a setback on an NHL opening weekend?

Hell, no. Not since I've been with this club," he replied. "And you can bet your bleep it's not going to keep on this way. No sir."

"They were moving and we weren't," was Francis' explanation for the Detroit loss. "We couldn't catch them.

"You can't sit still and try to make passes like we did in those first two periods. We should have had that puck cleared out of our end, but we didn't."

The Rangers showed signs of improving at Chicago, but Cliff Koroll's two goals in the second period broke a 1-1 tie and the Black Hawks added two more unanswered scored in the final 20 minutes.

"Eddie (goaltender Eddie Giacomin) had no chance with guys standing around in front of him," said Francis of the Chicago fiasco. "We weren't playing our positions in our own ends . . .

"We've got some work to do and you can believe we're going to get at it right away."

NHL Players Against Series?

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson, executive-director of the National Hockey League Players' Association, hinted Monday a proposed series of three exhibition games by the Red Army team against three NHL teams in January may not get players' approval.

"After what happened in Russia they may not decide it is worthwhile," Eagleson said Monday when asked about a report the Soviet Army team was negotiating exhibition game in January with the Stanley Cup Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks.

Eagleson, who said the series was worked out by Chicago president Bill Wirtz and NHL president Clarence Campbell during Team Canada's recent visit to Moscow, said the exhibitions need the association's approval.

"As of right now there is no indication we will approve the series, so they're whistling past the graveyard." He said it would be up to the players whether the series goes on.

Earlier in the day, Brian O'Neill, the NHL's executive-director, said in Montreal "to my knowledge" the agreement to allow the series had not been concluded.

"I was asked to look at potential dates and Jan. 16 was one of several submitted. But there's till a lot of work to do before it becomes fact.

"I think the potential date has leaked out and accepted as fait accompli."

O'Neill said the visit of the Soviet team to North America will start against Russia in September, could be ready to start against Montreal Canadiens here Wednesday night, his lawyer said Monday.

Eagleson said he will attend the meetings, following which he will take a phone vote of player's representatives of each of the 16 NHL teams.

He said that in a phone conversation with Boston's Charlie Imlachay last week, the owners' representative told him the exhibitions had made "some headway" in their arrangements with the Russians.

"But, added Eagleson, "everything is subject to our (NHLPA) approval."

Sharks Sit Out Plenty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles Sharks, heavily penalized in their World Hockey Association exhibition game, continued their trend Monday night in Regina and it paid off handsomely for Alberta Oilers.

The Sharks, laboring under manpower disadvantages most of the night, lost a 4-0 game to the Oilers who got shutout goaltending from Ken Brown and two goals from Bill Hicke.

In other games Monday, Ryan Campbell's power-play goal at Sherbrooke gave Philadelphia Blazers a 3-2 win over Quebec les Nordiques and Minnesota Fighting Saints hammered Chicago Cougars 6-2 at Duluth, Minn.

Winnipeg Jets edged Los Angeles 6 - 5 on Chris Bordeau's second goal of the game Sunday while Houston Aeros thumped the Saints 8-1 and New England Whalers downed New York Raiders 4-2.

In exhibition play Saturday, Chicago ripped Minnesota 5-1, the Sharks dropped a 4-1 score to Alberta, New England edged the Blazers 2-1 and New York Islanders and Bob Nevin blanked Long Island Ducks of the Eastern League 6-0.

Los Angeles took 19 of the 12 minor penalties handed out in Regina by referee Brent Ashrelman and Sharks' Earl Heitala got the game's only misconduct.

The Oilers, meanwhile, got two more goals from Jim Harrison and Bob Hall.

The Blazers, playing without Derek Sanderson who was removed from the lineup to allow an elbow injury to recover, had to come from behind twice before Campbell's tie-breaker.

Michel Plasse and Ron Plumb stifled Quebec goals by J. C. Tremblay and Andre Gaudette, the second score coming while Philadelphia was two men short.

Henderson Playing Habs

TORONTO (CP) — Paul Henderson, signed from the Toronto Maple Leafs lineup since his scoring feats for Team Canada against Russia in September, could be ready to start here Wednesday night, his lawyer said Monday.

Rams in Final

What the Stars Say

By JEANE DIXON

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 11

Aries (March 21-April 19): Correction of yesterday's errors and lapses may fill your day. Making amends is a privilege rather than a duty.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): An early start helps, consistent diligence aids. Letting others manage or decide important matters brings later confusion: don't.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): The stronger the emotional ties, the more vivid the communion brought out by today's stresses. Remember your past actions.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Self-confidence should not make you take on more than you can handle. Working alone brings the best results.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): For once it is very likely you have to put your muscles and resources where you have made verbal commitments.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Know that the coolest review of the situation comes to some people as bitter criticism, so abstain from comment.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Personal goals are subject to secretive reactions where you may expect little or nothing. Patience saves the day.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Help brings unexpected strings. Temptation is a strong impulse to splurge with funds you need for more practical purposes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your enthusiasm and energy has you right in the thick of today's turbulent activity. Phones are sympathetic.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You shouldn't agree to involvement in any hidden partnerships. Such deals have only a short time before they are published.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Eagerness leads you into carrying more than your share for a brief period. Your advice springs readily on any provocation.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): You should plug away at advancement expecting no great co-operation, particularly from those close to you emotionally.

Guard Against Fatty Substances

By G.C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I was told by my doctor that I have triglycerides — and when I asked for an explanation in layman's language, he said it would be a waste words to understand that. I would concerts with more confidence if could get a proper explanation. I would appreciate any help.—M.L.

Triglycerides are fatty substances that accumulate in the bloodstream and whose level should be kept within bounds because of the contribution of these fats to atherosclerosis (arterial hardening).

Dear Dr. Thorteson: What can taking 13 aspirins a day and drinking baking soda water over a period of years do to a person?

My friend, 52, is on a low cholesterol diet and has headaches often, all his life. They're at the migraine type. He takes four aspirins in the morning, four at noon and four at night, even when his head is not hurting.

Then his stomach cramps and he runs and takes the soda water, off and on, day and night. He stays on his low cholesterol diet pretty well, though. — R.L.V.

Well, it's dandy that he sticks to his diet, but that has nothing to do with the rest of it.

In the first place, an aspirin schedule like that isn't going to do much for his migraines, or anything, and I should think that after 52 years he'd try something else.

He may well have the type of stomach that becomes irritated by the constant aspirin. So he takes soda—which in turn upsets the normal chemical balance of his stomach juices.

His stomach cramps are not at all surprising under the circumstances, and if he keeps up that routine I'd expect his stomach distress to stay as bad as it is.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: We have a boy, two, and plan another baby soon. I have been on "the pill" for two years. What effect, if any, will it have on my second baby? Do the pills make you add on two weeks, as I've been told?"

I had a hard birth the first time, and have a feeling I will again. Is this true? My doctor said it was because our baby was too big for me. He was almost nine pounds, and I am small - boned. — W. H.

The pill won't have any effect on the second baby. Whether you become pregnant right away is not predictable. Some women do; some don't.

What do you mean by "add two weeks"? A longer pregnancy? Well, the pill won't cause that.

Second babies are usually easier than the first ones—but having heavy babies sometimes is simply a tendency toward diabetes. I'd suggest being checked for that, as a precaution.

Dear Sir: Would like your views on the Vitamin E cure for diabetes.—R.G.

Vitamin E doubtless has its uses. And I can listen to some of the way-out claims for it without blowing a fuse. But when someone claims it to be a "cure for diabetes," that's going too far. It can't and it won't cure diabetes—and if anyone tries it at the expense of the known methods of controlling diabetes, it's an invitation to disaster.

Musical Mixes Antiquity And Mod

BETHLEHEM (AP) — The movie version of the rock musical Jesus Christ Superstar, now in front of the cameras in this land where it all began, promises to be a mixture of antiquity and mod.

"We're trying for a concept of timelessness when we tell the story of the last days of Jesus," Canadian-born producer-director Norman Jewison says.

That is why you may see Jesus and his followers in Roman robes and others in jeans, T-shirts, beads, beard, afros and other accoutrement of today's hippie subculture.

Or Roman centurions wearing hair dusters, dog collars and carrying swords or submachine guns.

"Everyone is mod when we start the film," says Jewison. "Then they are slowly changed until there is a complete admixture."

"Only Jesus never abandons his traditional robes. The company of about 200 was shooting inside the ruins of King Herod's palace south of Bethlehem.

Jewison, clad in tattered shorts and an Australian bush hat with brim turned down, was filming Judas' nervous confrontation with the high priests after betraying Jesus.

The director, a puckish, good-humored native of Toronto, was peeved because the 30 pieces of stage silver he was using when Judas buried them on the stones at the foot of the priests.

"Let's throw in some two-shilling pieces," he shouts. What kind of money is this that doesn't clink?"

Ted Neeley, a young, almost-unknown rock singer who plays Jesus, sits on a large ornamental urn, a heavily-veiled Mary Magdalene kneeling at his feet.

Jewison, who made In the Heat of the Night and The Russians Are Coming, The Russians Are Coming, first heard a record of Superstar while on location with Fiddler On The Roof in Yugoslavia.

It was then an obscure double-album written by two Englishmen, Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber. Jewison was impressed.

"Images kept assaulting me as I listened and I knew I wanted to film it."

Shooting the film entirely in Israel, he has avoided the original Christian sites in the Holy Land where gaudy souvenir shops have all but engulfed revered shrines.

The crucifixion is being shot 100 miles from Calvary in the harsh Negev Desert. Market scenes are being filmed in nearby Bedouin bazaars, hardly unchanged in 2,000 years. The Last Supper was shot on a patch of newly-planted grass in an olive grove.

The film version generally follows the Broadway and London shows, except that Jesus has more of a starring role than Judas.

Pier Preserved

SOUTHEND - ON - SEA, England (AP) — Southend Pier, the world's longest pleasure pier will continue to attract the tourists after Essex council agreed to restore the one-and-a-half-mile structure. Local inhabitants feared the pier would have to be demolished after a tourist-plagued rough the walk-way into the sea last year. The council will pay £176,000 ($425,600) over 20 years to keep the pier in better condition.

HERE'S A NEW IDEA

We are going to start a number of new homes for spring possession. If you are thinking about a new house, let us include it in our inventory. You can select a lot and a model either one's or your's. We will then build it to your specifications. You can then sell your existing house at your leisure. If you are unable to sell, you can rent or anything as we can sell the new house to someone else. This will solve the old problem of — "How can I build a new house when I haven't sold my old one".

CONDOMINIUM IS THE ANSWER

For the active man who wants to confine his activities to the cutting rod, the golf course or anywhere else that doesn't involve cutting grass, shovelling snow, painting etc. This is done for you.

We have units available for immediate possession. These are located on Cedarhurst Drive, Oh yes! Down payments run from $711. to $986 down.

EAST OR WEST WE HAVE THE BEST

selection of houses in the Quinte area. All in fully serviced subdivisions. All close to schools. We have 2 and 4 bedroom models. Let us show you our selection.
